SHAKE OFF PALL OF LONG SORROW TO GREET VETS

New Orleans Seeks New Deal Cash.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

New Orleans, La., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—The streets of old New Orleans, which were silent Thursday for a minute in honor of the funeral of Senator Huey P. Long, were gay with banner and music today as veterans of the Spanish and other foreign wars marched into town for their annual convention, which is to begin tomorrow.

The city which has been under several flags and which drove out the carpetbaggers in the revolution of 1878, has survived the rule of the late dictator as if nothing had happened. Those who had surrendered to Long during the last few months now are scurrying around seeking new political alignments. It is Long and anti-Long for the present and no one can tell what the political kaleidoscope will bring forth between now and the January elections.

Walmsley Seeks U. S. Cash.

Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, who stands out as the lone leader who refused to succumb to the dictatorship of the Kingfish, arrived at Washington today to see what could be done about getting relief money for the city in view of the laws passed by the recent special session of the legislature making it almost a crime to spend federal money here.

The talk of a truce with Washington is the most convincing evidence of the change that has come about through the death of Long.

The last special session of the legislature restored $1,000,000 in revenue to the city as result of the collapse of the Long opposition among the city rulers. They had asked for twice this much, but Long only gave them half a loaf.

The leaders of the various blocs which made up the Long machine cannot stand against the administration without the stiffening, defiant presence of their leader.

Talk of Indictments.

New indictments against the old Long leaders for evasion of the income tax already are gossiped. It is said that the indictment against Seymour Weiss, president of the dock board and chief Long strategist is to be quashed for one charging conspiracy and that several other members of the old organization are to be included.

There may be a compromise over patronage, but there hardly can be one with the department of justice.

Senator Long never kept books and his wealth often has been the subject of speculation. He told this writer last winter that he had spent $2,000,000 in the last year or two, but he said there was no record of it. He kept his money in his pocket and always had an apparently inexhaustible roll there.

Long Will Awaited.

His followers are not so well supplied. The Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, who has taken the leadership of the "share-our-wealth" organization in the state and already has begun a campaign to realign and test his forces, has been getting $45 a week for his living expenses. The probate of Long's will is awaited with interest.

Dr. Smith, who had an opportunity to study Ku Klux Klan methods while he was a pastor in Indianapolis ten years ago, has decided to model his organization after the anti-saloon league rather than the klan. He often has spoken against religious prejudice and works not only in the northern piney woods section of the state, where the klan was once all terrifying, but in the southern section where the old church creoles form the bulk of the voting strength.

Smith Starts Campaign.

Dr. Smith spoke in Alexandria today to start his new campaign. It was in Alexandria a few months ago that there was talk of a "revolution" against the Long machine, which had moved in there, as in New Orleans to take away home rule and center power in the governor's office. It was all planned for a battle in which it was expected that lives would be lost, the story runs, until one of the anti-Long men made his peace with Long and hamstrung the revolution. Much of Long's strength lay in his ability to play on the weaknesses of his opponents.

During the special sessions of the

JUDGE ORDERS $2,500 PAID TO WOMAN ARTIST

No Money to Do It, Barbour Says.

BY KAY HALL.

Eames MacVeagh, for years a leading figure in Chicago society, was ordered yesterday by Municipal Judge Joseph H. McGarry to pay $2,500 to Miss Louise Hagen, a New York artist. The court's decision ended a week's sensational hearing of Miss Hagen's suit in which she charged MacVeagh with breach of contract and asked for the $2,500 award.

Judge McGarry, who heard the case without a jury, ruled that the contract at issue, in which MacVeagh had promised to pay Miss Hagen $250 a month for life, was valid and enforceable. Her suit specifically sought payment of arrears for 10 months, from March to December, 1934.

Contract Follows Marriage.

The contract, one of three similar in character, was signed after MacVeagh made a "society marriage" in 1929 with Miss Zelie Barthelemy, daughter of Antonin Barthelemy, then the French consul in Chicago.

The marriage terminated MacVeagh's association with Miss Hagen who, the testimony showed, had borne him a son in 1911. This child, now 24 years old, was placed in another home and has never been seen by either MacVeagh or Miss Hagen since then, according to the testimony.

MacVeagh, who is now 60 years old and lives at 900 North Michigan avenue, is the son of the late Franklin MacVeagh, pioneer wholesale grocer in Chicago and secretary of the treasury in the cabinet of President Taft. Miss Hagen is 47 years old.

Principals Evince Nervousness.

MacVeagh and Miss Hagen strained forward, perspiring and tense, when Judge McGarry announced as soon as the lawyers' closing arguments were concluded that his decision was ready. The moment he had ruled MacVeagh rushed into an anteroom and Miss Hagen sank back in her chair, rubbing her hands together excitedly but keeping her voice low as she murmured her pleasure at the verdict.

"Of course I am happy about it," she said, "as long as it had to be this way and not on a friendly basis."

Reporters followed MacVeagh's dash into a side room and cornered him. Said the fugitive: "I have nothing to say, nothing at all."

Attorney Volunteers Statement.

"I will make a statement for him," volunteered State Senator James J. Barbour, MacVeagh's attorney. "He has three courses open to him. He can take the case to the higher courts at great expense; he can enter voluntary bankruptcy or his creditors can put him into bankruptcy, or she can get a judgment—and frame it.

"Mr. MacVeagh already owes $80,000 in bank obligations. This is just $2,500 more. It looks as though they can get a judgment and frame it."

Senator Barbour it was who first informed Miss Hagen of MacVeagh's

AMERICA'S RETURN TO SOIL ADVOCATED BY MAJ. GEN. BOLLES

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Frank Bolles, stern, outspoken commander of the seventh army corps area with headquarters here, inherits his love of the land from the days when, as a boy, he roamed his father's farm at Rollo, Mo.

Today he says: "We must dig ourselves out through the soil."

"Since the world war, this country has been on a prolonged debauch—the headaches, the uncertainties and the mental and physical shock of the sobering-up process are beginning to be felt," he said.

"The influx of quack doctors is very much in evidence on every hand. Each has his cure-all to offer the hopeful public, while the curative powers of fresh air, sunshine and hard work are being neglected. Why? Because they are too practical to have an appeal to the mind that seems to be seeking a magician with an Aladdin lamp."

SAILBOAT AND CREW OF THREE MISSING ON LAKE

The coast guard was asked last night to search for the sailboat Skip Jack which, with a crew of three men, has been missing from the Jackson Park harbor since Friday night.

Mrs. Laura Geisert, 10350 South Peoria street, requested the search. She said that her son, Leo Geisert, 24 years old, was one of those who was on the boat. With him, she said, were Andrew Schmidt, 24 years old, 7628 South Paulina street, and a third man believed to be a brother of Schmidt.

The boat was not in the harbor last night and investigators found Geisert's automobile parked near the harbor. It had been there, the police were informed, since Friday night.

Mrs. Burget Finds Friday 13th Not So Bad After All

Reversing the tradition of Friday the 13th, Mrs. George A. Burget, 7000 Merrill avenue, reported yesterday she had recovered a diamond bar pin valued at $800, after it had lain for nearly half an hour Friday in Michigan avenue near Adams street. Mrs. Burget, whose husband is an employé of the C. & E. I. railway, had attended a recital in the Art institute. Leaving the institute, Mrs. Burget walked to Michigan avenue and Jackson boulevard before discovering loss of the pin. Retracing her steps she found the pin.

Price of Title Tells Rank in New Nobility

Washington, D. C., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—From dukedoms to baronies, "America's new nobility" is on the auction block for prices, anywhere from $1,000,000, down to $200,000, and the auctioneer is Jean Pierre Reinach, late of Paris, now of Washington. But all this is a secret until next Wednesday.

For a million dollars, no more nor no less, M. Reinach will make you the Duke of Decatur, or any other place, and for a trifling $200,000, he might confer on you the Barony of Blue Island. If Americans, bewildered by the "new nobility," can't keep the ranking straight, they can just refer to M. Reinach's price tags, all quoted on a cash basis:

Duke, $1,000,000; marquis, $700,000; count, $500,000; baron, $200,000.

Need Only Cash.

All you need to crash the new nobility is to be "energetic and courageous enough to dispose of $1,000,000, $700,000, $500,000, or $200,000," as M. Reinach disarmingly puts it in the letters which he has sent to prospective members of America's peerage. "It will be sufficient," he adds, "to send the check to Mr. J. P. Reinach."

M. Reinach has journeyed from Paris to America's capital because he thinks the raw United States should no longer have a leadership based on some crass thing like money. It should have a nobility, as in the old world, built upon "intelligence, morality, altruism, kindness, greatness, noble feelings."

But his plans, except for the price schedule, must be secret until Wednesday. Evidently this is the deadline which M. Reinach has set in his letters soliciting members for his peerage. On Sept. 24 he will have "a ceremony of ennobling and of the granting of titles," and the menu for his climactic dinner is worrying him just now.

Drumming Up Business.

Youngish and dapper, with an accent making him hard to understand, M. Reinach is most offhand about his plans, except that he will not announce them in full until Sept. 18. But by letter and personal interview he has been drumming up business for several days.

"I have considered," his letter said, "that only men who are energetic and courageous enough to at once dispose of a million, $700,000, $500,000, or $200,000 will be worthy to enter this new nobility, which is destined to such a great future. . . .

"Since, in spite of all, these sums are of little importance as compared with the glory of forming part of this class of new élite, I have decided that the titles would only be conferred when the sums were sent within forty-eight hours after the receipt of this letter, otherwise the check will be returned."

To whom he has sent his letters, and who, if anybody, has accepted, are details which M. Reinach is not ready to divulge.

Two Titles or None.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 14.—(AP)—The price tag on mail order dukedom is not the only flaw William Candler has to pick with J. P. Reinach's proposition to found "the nobility of the United States."

"He says nothing about duchesses and countesses," commented the Atlanta capitalist who rejected an offer and turned the proposal over to postal inspectors.

"As he does not say whether I would be limited to one title, I wonder if I could be the Duke de Biltmore and Count de Coca Cola at the same time," added Candler, who operates a hotel here and is an heir to a soft drink fortune.

FOUR PARTLY BLIND BOYS RAISE HOME'S WINTER FOOD SUPPLY

Boston, Mass., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Four boys, all partly blind, have accomplished a stupendous task to be envied by many a farmer—the raising of 30,000 pounds of 26 different kinds of vegetables on the grounds of the Perkins institution for the blind on North Beacon street, Watertown.

Despite their handicap the boys, who can distinguish light from dark, but not much more, raised the 15 tons of vegetables, all that will be necessary to supply the institution for the winter months.

Wasp and Chris Get Same Idea; Latter in Hospital

Albany, Ore., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Just because a wasp and Chris Nofsiger had the same idea at the same time, Nofsiger is in the hospital. Nofsiger took a sandwich from his lunch kit. The wasp took a toe-hold on the sandwich. Nofsiger took a bite of both. The resultant swelling nearly strangled him.

DUCE SPURNS PLEAS FOR PEACE; MAY QUIT LEAGUE

18 Nations Pledge Selves to Curb Mussolini.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Sept. 14.—At least 18 nations, at the conclusion of today's meeting of the league of nations assembly, had proclaimed their determination to support those clauses in the league covenant which were designed to punish war makers. Then, as the echoes of these speeches began to die away, Italy, the league's latest bad boy, tossed a bombshell right into the peace palace.

It was a communique from Premier Mussolini and his cabinet, declaring that for Italy no compromise in the Ethiopian quarrel was possible. And on top of this, an even more defiant note—that Italy was ready to fight anybody who stepped on its toes.

See Italy Quitting League.

In many quarters here this Italian statement is believed to foreshadow Italy's withdrawal from the league at an early date.

Less excitable observers, however, especially in French quarters, which are doubtless more precisely informed regarding the Italian cabinet meeting, are inclined to think it is another Italian bluff, though they are unwilling to make any definite prediction.

They expect that Mussolini will content himself with another spectacular gesture like last week's when his delegates walked out of the council room. According to this view, nothing has been changed by the Italian communique and negotiations will continue as during the last two weeks.

Duce's Reply, Say Italians.

Italian spokesmen here, maintaining as usual a sphinxlike attitude, merely declare in ominous tones that the statement that no compromise will be accepted is Il Duce's reply to the plea of Sir Samuel Hoare, British foreign secretary, for peace. The Italians were evidently anxious to draw attention to the communique, for they caused it to be posted in the pressroom of the league for all to see.

Whether the Italians remain in Geneva or not, the Rome communique destroys the last faint hope of the league's committee of five nations—Britain, France, Poland, Turkey, and Spain—arriving at any solution acceptable to Italy.

It seems unavoidable now that the five will report failure in their efforts to the council on Wednesday. It will be difficult then for the council to dodge any longer the application of article 15 of the covenant, which almost automatically leads to article 16 and its collective action against Italy as soon as an overt act occurs.

The British and French, it is learned, have not yet reached a complete understanding on the use of force against Italy, and it is some-

ROME, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The cabinet announced today Italy will accept no retreat or compromise on the course it has laid out in east Africa, even in the face of the possible armed opposition of Europe.

It announced also that consideration is being given to the possibility of Italy's withdrawal from the league of nations in case its membership interferes with its objective.

The cabinet communique, issued after a session with Premier Mussolini, who holds eight portfolios, announced:

1. Intensification of East African military preparations.

Reënforcements to Libya.

2. Reinforcement of Italian defenses in Libya.

3. The adequacy of Italy's military forces "to respond to any menace whatsoever."

4. "Furnishing of war materials proceeds with intensified but regular rhythm."

5. Speeches at Geneva of Sir Samuel Hoare and Premier Pierre Laval were received "with the greatest calm."

6. Italy intends to fortify its friendship with France and its European collaboration.

7. The possibility of Italy leaving the league was examined.

8. The East African controversy admits no compromise.

9. The conflict has been made the rallying point of "anti-Fascist forces."

Seen as Challenge to Britain.

The announcement that Mussolini had informed the cabinet Italy is prepared to meet "any menace from whatsoever direction it may come" was regarded by political circles as a definite challenge to Great Britain and the league of nations.

Particular significance was attached by informed quarters to the disclosure that Italy is strengthening its military forces in Libya. In view of the proximity to Egypt of this colony, which is administered by Gen. Italo Balbo, these preparations were regarded as a particularly pointed reply to the dispatch of British war vessels to the Mediterranean and the reinforcement of the Malta garrison.

A government spokesman, commenting on the importance of the communique, said the extent of Italy's military and naval preparations should not be minimized.

"All our frontiers are guarded," he asserted.

Places Blame on League.

An official source said: "Italy does not want to leave the league at any cost, but if the league's action renders its retention of membership impossible, it will withdraw."

Another cabinet session was called for next Wednesday.

The official Gazette published a decree today extending to Italian colonies the military information law, which forbids the giving out of any military information.

Another important decision was taken by the permanent wheat committee, under Mussolini's presidency. It decided the price of wheat must not go any higher.

The minister of agriculture was ordered to dump 1,000,000 quintals of wheat on the market at prices lower than the current ones. Another million quintals is due from abroad [reliable sources indicated it was coming from Hungary].

Stern punishment will be meted out to speculators.

A guard of 20 carabinieri—national police—was placed at strategic points around the French embassy here today because a large proportion of the Italian population interpreted the speech of Premier Laval of France before the league assembly yesterday as an abandonment of Italy. Police feared a demonstration.

Text of Communique.

The text of the cabinet's communique follows:

"The cabinet met this morning at 10 o'clock at the Viminale palace under the presidency of the head of the government and in the presence of Ministers de Vecchi, Direvel, Solmi, Rossoni, Gigli, Benni, and the Fascist party secretary. Absent, Minister Ciano [Count Galeazzo Ciano, Mussolini's son-in-law, now in Africa with the Italian army].

"Il Duce gave the cabinet an ample report of the military and political situation as developed since last week's meeting at Bolzano.

"From a military viewpoint our preparations in East Africa proceed with greater intensity so as to guarantee us, in the face of preponderant Ethiopian forces whose mobilization is already being carried on.

Admits Unrest in Cyrenaica.

"Owing to the unrest manifested by some groups which left Cyrenaica, reinforcement of our defenses in Libya is in course.

"On the basis of detailed data, Il Duce demonstrated that the sum total of our military forces on land and sea and in the air is such as to be able to respond to anysoever menace, from whatever direction it may come.

"With the functioning commissariat for war manufactures confided to Gen. D'Allolio—who has had previous experience in such a position which he held during the world war — the furnishing of war materials proceeds with intensified but with regular rhythm.

Discounts Geneva Speeches.

"On the political side the head of the government reported on the constitution of a committee of five [at Geneva] and on the Hoare and Laval speeches. These speeches could not be different from what they were for an evident reason, owing to the English and French position with regard to the league covenant. For this reason they have been received with the greatest of calm by Italian responsible circles and by the masses of the people.

"The cabinet, nevertheless, notes with satisfaction the cordial words which Minister Laval in his speech dedicated to the Franco-Italian accord of January, 1935, and to the friendship which they have consecrated. Italy intends to develop and fortify this friendship, not only in the interest of the two countries but also in that European collaboration which cannot be shattered by a conflict of colonial character or by the use of sanctions, which were never specified and never applied in the most serious previous controversy between members of the league.

"On this point the cabinet examined in what cases Italy's continued membership in the league of nations would be rendered impossible.

No Compromise Possible.

"The cabinet, after having learned that around the Italo-Ethiopian controversy are gathering all the forces of foreign anti-Fascism, feels it is its duty to reconfirm in the most explicit manner that the Italo-Ethiopian problem does not admit of compromise solution after the huge efforts and sacrifices supported by Italy and after the irrefutable documentation contained in the Italian memorandum presented at Geneva.

Tribes Mass on Border.

In connection with the admission in the communique of unrest in Cyrenaica, the newspaper Giornale d'Italia says armed bands of Senussite tribesmen have concentrated in Egypt, on the Libyan frontier.

These tribesmen escaped from Libya during the subjugation of rebel tribesmen by Gen. Rudolfo Graziani, now in charge of Italian forces in Somaliland.

18 NATIONS PLEDGE SELVES TO FIGHT ITALY

what unlikely that they will, for the British now are reported to have turned down the French demand for security guarantees in return for support against Mussolini.

Laval has made clear, it is reported, that if it is necessary to apply article 16 France will not go any further than economic penalties against Italy unless the British change their minds about security.

The farthest Laval would go in his talks with Hoare, if these reports are correct, was to agree to concentrate the French fleet in the English channel and the northern Atlantic, thus covering the British fleet in its operations in the Mediterranean. But it is not absolutely certain that Laval gave a formal assurance in this respect.

There is also a report that Laval has reached a private agreement with Mussolini that in case economic penalties are applied Italy will not consider it ipso facto an act of war or definitly break with France, even though France is obliged to join in the penalties.

At the same time, however, Laval warned Mussolini that once penalties are adopted the enormous concessions in Ethiopia now being offered him will no longer hold good and he will have to content himself with considerably less.

Il Duce is reported to have replied that military prestige was more important to him than substantial economic concessions, and consequently he would rather go ahead with his war, even if he has to bow to the league later on less favorable terms.

Front Against Italy Grows.

GENEVA, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Canada and Soviet Russia, embracing vast stretches of territory on opposite sides of the globe, joined the ever growing rally around the league of nations covenant on the bitter Italo-Ethiopian quarrel today.

George Howard Ferguson, Canada's representative, told the assembly Canada cannot agree that any member of the league is waranted in resorting to war to enforce its claims "in violation of its solemn pledges to seek and find a peaceful settlement for every dispute."

Canada hopes an honorable and peaceful solution of the controversy will yet be reached, he said, and added:

"If, unfortunately, this proves not to be the case, Canada will join other members of the league in considering how, by unanimous action, peace can be maintained."

18 Nations Join Move.

Altogether eighteen nations have pledged themselves to this united front. They are Great Britain, France, Russia, Belgium, the Netherlands, Portugal, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Finland, Jugo-Slavia, Rumania, Czechoslovakia, Canada, New Zealand, Ecuador, Honduras, and Greece.

The Greek delegate spoke in behalf of the Balkan entente, which includes also Bulgaria and Turkey.

Maxim Litvinov, Russia's spokesman, said that for his nation "there is only the question of defending the covenant of the league as the instrument of peace." He warned, moreover, that the "covenant is not enough" and created a sensation by saying that certain bilateral non-aggression pacts actually are designed "for security and aggression."

The Poles and Germans who heard his address interpreted this remark as an attack on the German-Polish treaty of non-aggression.

Ethiopia Answers Italy.

The Ethiopian delegation tonight submitted a detailed answer to the charges contained in the Italian memorandum laid before the council last week by Baron Pompeo Aloisi.

The Italian memorandum charged that "barbarous" conditions existed in Ethiopia.

The Ethiopian answer asserted that if conditions in Ethiopia were "one-tenth as bad" as the Italian complaint asserted, foreign legations in Addis Ababa long ago would have made a joint protest to the civilized world.

Accuses Italy of Falsifying.

The answer also pointed out that one photograph which the Italians had captioned as a picture of a thief whose hands were being cut off as punishment, was in reality a photograph of a murderer being put in chains.

The document added that such instances of cruelty as might actually be proved "may be justly compared to similar cruelties in other countries, such as lynchings in New Orleans."

Such occurences, it said, while regrettable, "do not necessarily place the country in which they happen outside the pale of civilization."

Lloyd George Flays League for Delay in Ethiopian Crisis

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 14.—"The league of nations is in dire peril. If it fails now—well, it may serve some useful purpose of an international bureau, but as an association of nations to establish right and peace on a basis of justice, it is doomed."

This warning was delivered tonight by David Lloyd George, Britain's wartime prime minister, in a speech at Llandrindod, Wales. He criticized the league for its delay in dealing with the Italo-Ethiopian dispute.

"Peace Hanging Back."

Contrasting Premier Mussolini's speedy war preparations with the cumbersome procedure at Geneva, Lloyd George charged:

"Peace has been hanging back timid, tentative, and putting off; war has been marching along relentlessly collecting its weapons and ready to rain its horrors on the people in the mountains of Ethiopia.

"Mussolini's teeth are bared as he advances. And he means in a few days to bury his teeth in Ethiopia's throat, and he has never concealed it. Why all these delays? Soon, if not already, sanctions [penalties] when they are devised will be worthless, because by that time Mussolini will have on the shores of Africa all he needs for conducting the most ruthless massacre of these helpless people."

Lloyd George said he is strongly opposed to any "settlement" amounting practically to a surrender to Mussolini's demands being imposed on Ethiopia.

Wants "Reputable Death."

"If the league must die, let it die a reputable death," he said. "Let it be remembered at its worst for its harmless ineptitude, but do not let it be abhorred for an act of turpitude."

The split in the British parliamentary Labor party over the question of applying military measures against Italy widened tonight when Sir Stafford Cripps, addressing a demonstration of the Socialist league of which he is a leader, strongly opposed the use of any sanctions whatsoever. Economic boycotts, he said, would spread to military measures, which in turn would entail a European war.

SPIKES REPORT IRISH BLUE SHIRTS WILL AID MUSSOLINI IN AFRICA

KINGSTOWN, Ireland, Sept. 14.—(AP)—E. J. Cronin, director general of the Irish Blue Shirts, today spiked reports that his Free State political organization is recruiting a corps of 1,000 men to help Premier Mussolini in Ethiopia.

Cronin said:

"I want it clearly understood that when we appealed to our young men and women to join the Blue Shirts we did so in defense of the rights of the Irish people. I do not want the Blue Shirts induced to embark on a reckless, suicidal policy which is not and should not be of concern to this country."

LEAGUE ELECTS JAP AS MEMBER OF WORLD COURT

GENEVA, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Despite Japan's resignation from the league of nations because it was condemned for its action in Manchuria, the league assembly and council today elected Hiruichi Nagaoka, former Japanese ambassador to France and Germany, a member of the world court of justice. Nagaoka succeeds the late Judge Mineichiro Adatchi, Japanese member of the court.

The election excited considerable interest as it was believed that many nations would vote against the Japanese candidate as an expression of disapproval of Japan's attitude toward the league. Opponents of Nagaoka concentrated on the candidacy of Ake Hammarskjold, young Swedish jurist, now the registrar of the world court.

Nagaoka received the support of 35 of the 51 assembly delegations. A majority is necessary for election. Hammarskjold received eight votes. James Scott Brown, American jurist nominated by the Panama national group, received one vote.

After the election of Nagaoka by the assembly President Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia was notified that the league council also had elected him.

Two Italians Arrested on Gibraltar Freed by Court

GIBRALTAR, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Two Italians arrested yesterday on charges of "being aliens found on Gibraltar without a permit" today were dismissed by the court. The men were identified as Giorgi Bedin of the staf of the Italian consulate general in Tangier, and Alfredo Rabaglietti, an Italian police agent from Tangier.

Spanish Police Recover 300 Gems Stolen from Churches

PAMPLONA, Spain, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Three hundred gems wrenched from cathedral treasures here were said today by police to have been recovered in the home of a friend of a jeweler now under arrest in connection with the robbery.

ETHIOPIAN KING'S DAUGHTER JOINS UP FOR WAR DUTY

Volunteers for Work with Ambulance Unit.

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Princess Tsahai, youngest daughter of Emperor Haile Selassie, who traces her ancestry back to the queen of Sheba, broke with the tradition of the imperial house today when, with her father's consent, she became a volunteer worker for the first field ambulance unit of his army.

Attended by a guard, she arrived at an abandoned house in the heart of the capital where Ethiopian women are making bandages for soldiers. There she donned a white smock over her native robe and joined 50 ladies of the court, the majority of whom were wives and daughters of nobles and high officials, and three native nuns of the Roman Catholic Mission in their work.

Lack Medical Facilities.

"When I was in London," the princess said, speaking faultless English, "I visited some of the hospitals and I wish now I knew more about their work. I never thought the day would come when such knowledge would be invaluable in helping me teach our people how to care for the wounded in time of war.

"We lack all means of succoring the wounded. We haven't a single doctor, no medicines, splints, tetanus serums, surgical appliances, nothing."

A hospital is unknown to the primitive warriors of Ethiopia, who expect to lie with their wounds unattended and suffer in silence, die where they fall, or be eaten by jackals and hyenas at night.

Black Eagle Off for Interior.

Hubert Julian, Harlem colored man, mounted on a superb mare which he said Emperor Haile Selassie gave him, left today for Ambo, 100 miles from Addis Ababa, where he said he would train 5,000 rookies.

He was followed by streams of white clad and barefooted retainers carrying rifles, swords, tents, beds, and tinned food.

The ministry of war presented to "the Black Eagle of Harlem" a shining revolver, a gilded sword, and three uniforms of a "commander." He also was provided with a house, servants, and interpreters at Ambo.

Some Ethiopians, however, said this was a camouflaged plan to banish Julian because of his recent blasts against Ethiopia's air force.

Insists It's a Promotion.

Proudly displaying three gold ribbons, which he said make him a full infantry colonel, Julian said:

"This magnificent assignment is a promotion by the emperor as a reward for my work in making soldiers in Addis Ababa. I personally asked his majesty to place me in an infantry command instead of aviation, where I was a mere servant to a French flying chief.

"It is a prodigious lie that the emperor told me Ethiopia hadn't enough planes for me to crash. I am favored by his majesty, respected by high officials, and loved by the people."

SIXTY SOUTH AFRICAN NATIVES REFUSE TO UNLOAD ITALIAN SHIP

LUDERITZ, Southwest Africa, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Sixty native dock workers refused to unload an Italian steamer here today upon her arrival from Cape Town.

Police gave the natives their option of arrest or unloading and most of them agreed to resume work. A few of the ringleaders were arrested.

Southwest Africa is a former German colony now administered by the Union of South Africa under a league of nations mandate.

BRITAIN ANGERED AS DUCE'S SHIPS PAUSE AT GREECE

ATHENS, Sept. 14.—[U. P.]—Great Britain today asked an explanation of recent frequent calls of small warships to Greek harbors.

Sydney P. Waterlow, British minister, made the request. It was understood that Waterlow informed the government that in many places the incursions of the Italian warships into Greek territorial waters was regarded as threatening Greek integrity.

It was reported on the basis of authoritative information two weeks ago that the cabinet has decided that in event of an Italian-British clash Greece would go whole-heartedly with Britain.

Hence the British representations were friendly and apparently intended to lay the basis for further tightening of the web about Italy as it proceeds with its plans to make war on Ethiopia.

Greece has protested to Italy that Italian warships violated international courtesy by entering Greek ports without advance notification. Rome announced yesterday that three ships a week ago sought haven in Greek ports because of bad weather, and that Greece had accepted this explanation.

However, it appeared that since that time a destroyer and two torpedo boats of the Italian fleet had anchored in a Greek harbor.

BRITAIN MASSES MYSTERY FLEET OF 100 WARSHIPS

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.]

LONDON, Sept. 14.—A mystery fleet of upward of 100 British warships—about the third biggest navy afloat if compared with the entire fleet strength of the United States and Japan—was believed by diplomats tonight to be concentrated in the serene waters of the Mediterranean.

Dangerously near, it appeared from reports, were about 250 units of the lighter Italian navy, ready to lend their force to the declaration of the Italian cabinet that it was prepared to meet any resistance that might be offered from whatever direction to Mussolini's moves.

Pick of Fleet in Area.

Since early in September the pick of British fighting ships has been assembled in this troubled section.

The belief of diplomatic observers here was that more than 75 British fighting ships were gathered at Alexandria, Port Said, Malta, Gibraltar, Port Sudan and Haifa, while ten more were cruising in the Mediterranean and a fleet of about 25 ships, which sailed from Portland Aug. 31, and was presumably still at sea, could have been concentrated in the vicinity of the Mediterranean.

Nearly another 100 units of the British home fleet was standing by at Portland for maneuvers announced to start Tuesday in Scottish waters. Naval men, however, observed that this fleet could receive sudden orders to change its plans and reach the Mediterranean in from three to five days.

Thousands of Troops Ready.

According to the latest published lists there were about 10,000 British army regulars in Egypt, 2,608 at Gibraltar, 3,276 at Malta, and 57,000 troops in India. It was known, however, that reinforcements have been steadily concentrated at Malta for a fortnight.

The exact number of British fighting planes concentrated in the Mediterranean and north Africa was not known, but new air units have been arriving there during recent weeks.

The ships which sailed from Portland on Aug. 31 steamed out for exercises, according to the British admiralty's list of ship movements. At the head of the squadron were the battle cruisers Hood, Renown, Orion, Achilles, and Cairo, accompanied by about 20 destroyers, minesweepers, and miscellaneous craft.

Location of Ships Mystery.

With the exception of the five battle cruisers, which showed up at Alexandria on Sept. 8 and sailed again for an unannounced destination, the entire fleet had been unreported since on the admiralty's list.

Admiralty officials said today the Hood had returned to Portland, but refused to disclose what had become of the remainder of the large contingent.

The "mystery fleet" included the flotilla leader Exmolth and the destroyers Express, Eck, Echo, Eclipse, Escapade, Electra, Escort, Encounter, Firedrake, Fearless, Fame, Foresight, Fortune, and Foxhound, all built within the last few years.

Other Disguised Movements.

Similarly disguised departures from the south shore of England have also been continuous, with some ships showing up at strategic Mediterranean ports. Among these were the depot ship Lucia and five L type submarines which now are anchored at Malta.

The latest admiralty list showed 26 warships anchored at Alexandria, a strategic point in the control of the mouth of the Suez canal; ten more at Haifa, nearby; four at Port Said, one at Port Sudan, one at Gibraltar, between 20 and 30 were believed concentrated at Malta, and seven cruising unreported in the Mediterranean.

Try Not to Alarm Public.

The bulk of these ships sailed from Malta Aug. 29 on what was described as an autumn cruise around the Suez region. They have been joined by reinforcements, while additional ships have moved in to the defense of Malta, where stationary land and sea defenses have been speeded up simultaneously with an announcement by the war office that 4,200 additional soldiers were being sent to Malta to bring the garrison up to full strength "in view of the international situation."

All concentration movements have been carried out in a manner designed not to alarm the British public. There has been no indication of activity inspired by any known immediate threat to British interests.

In recent weeks, however, almost all naval movements, which have resulted in something like a record for concentration of ships in the Mediterranean sea, have been carried out under a near wartime secrecy by the admiralty. Officers have refused to explain even noticeable ship movements.

2,000 Troops Unloaded.

PARIS, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The Cairo correspondent of the Havas [French] News agency reported today that a British transport had landed tanks and 2,000 British soldiers at Alexandria, Egypt.

Mystery Movement in China.

HONGKONG, China, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Two British destroyers left the harbor here suddenly today for "exercises." The belief they were headed for Singapore caused exciting rumors.

M'Adoo Weds at Daughter's Home

Senator and Third Wife Leave on Honeymoon.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Senator William G. McAdoo, 71 year old former secretary of the treasury, today married Doris I. Cross, 26 year old nurse in the United States public health service.

The wedding took place at the home of Senator McAdoo's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Brice Clagett, near Landover, Mr. The Rev. Russell J. Clinchy of the Mount Pleasant Congregational church, Washington, performed the ceremony. Secretary of State and Mrs. Cordell Hull and Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Daniel Roper were among the guests.

Leave on Honeymoon.

The senator and his young bride left shortly after the ceremony on a brief honeymoon. Later they will fly to California, to be there during President Roosevelt's visit at the San Diego exposition. They will live at their home in Los Angeles until the reconvening of congress.

Marriage Is Surprise.

The marriage, which came as a surprise to the senator's friends, was his third. His first wife, Sarah Fleming McAdoo, died in 1912. Senator McAdoo, then secretary of the treasury, married Eleanor Wilson, daughter of President Wilson, during the latter's term in office. This marriage, together with his political prominence, caused him to be called "the crown prince" of the Wilson régime. His second wife divorced him in July, 1934.

Senator McAdoo has eight children by his previous marriages. Two sons and three daughters attended his third marriage today.

Mrs. McAdoo is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Cross of San Diego, Cal. She has been engaged in welfare work for the United States public health service for two years, having spent the last year in Washington.

Father Opposed Marriage.

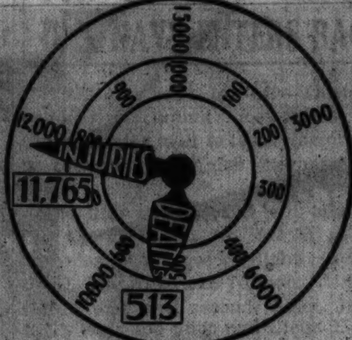
Oakland, Ia., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Despite the fact that he had expressed regret that his daughter. Doris, was to marry 71 year old United States Senator William Gibbs McAdoo, R. J. Cross, the bride's father, today said the couple would be welcome if they make a honeymoon visit to the Cross home here.

"My daughter told me by phone that she would see me soon," Cross said. "So they may visit here on their way to the west coast.

"Persons that far apart in age shouldn't get married," he added. "I made no effort to alter my daughter's plans, however, and they will be very welcome here."

THE MASSACRE

Chicago's 1935 Trafic Toll



Over 98 per cent of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

Mr. Lowrie's companions, Theodore Bruelheide and Robert Courtney, both of Chicago, escaped with minor hurts.

Three deaths increased the 1935 automobile trafic toll for Cook county to 659. Until 3 p. m. yesterday 513 persons had been killed in automobile accidents within the Chicago city limits and 11,765 injured. The victims:

Patrick Kane, 60 years old, 5313 South Honoré street. Died in the County hospital of injuries incurred on Sept. 11 when he fell from the rear of a truck in front of 741 South State street.

In the crew were 30 men and several women.

DICTATOR RULE IN POLAND FACES DRASTIC SHAKEUP

President and Premier Are Expected to Quit.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, Sept. 14.—Important changes in the Polish government were discussed at Warsaw tonight. Government officials report that the resignation of President Ignace Moscicki, who has held office since 1926, is expected. They also predict he will be succeeded by Gen. Kazimierz Sosnowski, who is second in command of the Polish army. The general will act as first president of Poland under the new constitution.

The resignation of Col. Walery Slawek as premier is also anticipated. He had a long conference today with Moscicki in Warsaw castle. Col. Slawek's most probable successor is Col. Alexander Prystor, who is expected to make several changes in the cabinet.

Army Gains Control.

The impending reorganization of the Polish government is a result of last Sunday's elections of parliament which, according to the opposition press, revealed a lack of public support for the present dictatorship. The reorganization is also expected to increase the influence of the army in the government. It is regarded as a defeat for the legionaries who, since the late Marshal Josef Pilsudski established a dictatorship in 1926, have been in control.

Tomorrow an election for the new Polish senate will be held in 17 district electoral colleges where 2,500 delegates will select 64 senators.

The elections have excited public interest because they are the most exclusive elections since Poland's nobility voted for a king. Less than one per cent of the population—300,000 citizens—will vote. This group includes university graduates, army officers and holders of decorations.

List Is Hand Picked.

Unknown to the rest of the country, they voted on Aug. 25 for delegates to electoral colleges. These delegates tomorrow will vote for handpicked lists of candidates provided by the general election commission which also controled the parliamentary elections. The senate will consist of 96 members, 32 being selected by the president.

The government has taken precautions to prevent a recurrence of last Sunday's riots. The senate electors will meet under heavy police guard.

BLAME 'GROSS NEGLIGENCE' FOR JAILBREAK OF FIVE

Kane County Prosecutor Opens Vigorous Quiz.

Charges of "gross negligence" in the handling of prisoners at the Kane county jail in Geneva were made yesterday by State's Attorney George D. Carbary of Kane county as he opened an investigation into the escape of five jail prisoners during the early morning, a few hours before they were scheduled to appear in court for trial.

During a six hour period when the prisoners were free from inspection, according to State's Attorney Carbary, the five men met in a cell on the third floor of the jail, sawed through the bars of a window, and made their way down a corridor which runs along the rear of the building.

Reach Outside Window.

There they sawed bars in an outside window, and with a rope made from the webbing used to support their bunk mattresses, lowered themselves 35 feet to freedom. The fugitives are:

FRANK WHITING, 49 years old, of Belpre, O., under three indictments for passing bogus checks in Elgin, supposed leader of the escape. His record shows escapes from prisons at Plymouth and Greencastle, Ind., and Waterloo, N. Y. Ten days ago he told his jailers: "You can't keep me in this jug. I'll never go to the penitentiary from here."

HARRY SHAFFER, 22 years old, of De Kalb. While being returned from Leavenworth, Kas., where he was arrested last week for an Elgin robbery, Shaffer attempted to escape from Constable Hale Treadwell, but was overpowered.

WILLIAM BRUMBELOW, 36 years old, arrested in Des Plaines June 27 for stealing an automobile from an Elgin salesroom. He has served sentences in the Wisconsin state prison at Waupun and the Missouri state penitentiary.

GEORGE BOUGADIS, 22 years old, 918 North 15th avenue, Melrose Park, arrested with four others as the gang which has been preying on country clubs. Because the bandit leader was masked, Bougadis was not identified in these holdups. His pals, however, were sentenced four days ago in the Cook county Criminal court to terms of one year to life in prison. Bougadis was turned over to Aurora authorities after confessing that he led the gang that robbed the Club Royale, a roadhouse near there. William Donovan, a member of the country club gang who is a fugitive also took part in the Rondout mail robbery.

JOHN BODISH, 23 years old, of Aurora, arrested there while robbing a man with a gun. He is on parole from Pontiac reformatory.

Sherif and Carbary at Odds.

State's Attorney Carbary opened his independent investigation in the absence of Sherif Albert J. Kampmeyer, the official who has charge of the jail and who left Geneva at 4:25 a. m., shortly after the escape but nearly two hours before it was discovered.

Since the election of Kampmeyer last year, as the first Democratic sherif in 44 years, the two men have engaged in a bitter political and personal feud. Carbary is a Republican.

Kampmeyer returned in the afternoon from Prairie du Sac, Wis., where he said he had gone in the hope of catching a criminal suspect. He denied reports he had gone fishing and said he would conduct his own investigation. Kampmeyer admitted that some one had previously been negligent and indicated there would be some shakeups in the jail personnel.

During the day the county board met and authorized a reward of $100 each for the capture of the five prisoners. The board also instructed Mr. Carbary to spare no expense in apprehending the felons and investigating the circumstances of their escape. Carbary said he would ask additional indictments for jail breaking when the men are recaptured.

Whiting's Escape Boast.

The jail break was discovered at 6 a. m. by Night Jailer William Mann, the only one of the sherif's force on duty. The alarm was then spread.

FIVE PRISONERS SAW BARS, FLEE FROM GENEVA JAIL

Through that hole five prisoners crawled into the corridor and then sawed through the bars to which Reilly's left hand is pointing. Thus the men gained entry to a room from which they dropped through a window to the ground. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

FRANK WHITING.

HARRY SHAFFER.

WILLIAM BRUMBELOW.

Mr. Carbary learned that Whiting ten days ago announced that he would escape, and that as a precaution the five men were transferred from the first to the third floor cells, which supposedly had sawproof steel bars—the county had spent $12,000 six years ago to attain this end.

Visitors who called on the prisoners, including relatives of Shaffer, Brumbelow, and Bodish, are to be questioned in an effort to learn how the hacksaws were smuggled in. Mr. Carbary said there was a laxity in the visiting rules, the callers being permitted to go to the cell corridors.

It is believed that the fugitives stole a car in Geneva, drove it to Wheaton and abandoned it, taking another there.

MOVE TO REVIVE 12 BANK CHARGES AGAINST ESSER

State's Attorney George D. Carbary of Kane county yesterday filed in the Circuit court at Geneva a motion to reinstate twelve additional indictments charging embezzlement against John L. Esser, former president of the Aurora Trust and Savings bank, who is scheduled to be paroled from Joliet prison on Oct. 6.

Esser was convicted on charges of embezzlement and started serving four concurrent sentences of one to ten years each on Jan. 24, 1928. He was accused of embezzling $530,000 and squandering it in high living.

After Prosecutor Carbary's motion was filed yesterday Esser's attorney, Charles O'Connor, protested that his client had an agreement with the former state's attorney, Charles L. Abbott, that the additional complaints would be dropped. Judge Frank W. Shepherd gave O'Connor until next Friday to show cause why Esser should not go to trial again.

Convicted of Slaying Wife Over Chain Letter Replies

Princeton, Mo., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Arthur Banton, colored, was convicted today of killing his wife because she answered chain letters. He was sentenced to life imprisonment.

PAROLED CONVICT ESCAPES CELL BY USING SHOELACE

Michael Nudo, 25 years old, an ex-convict, escaped from the Austin police station early yesterday with the aid of a shoelace.

Arrested on Thursday as a robbery suspect, Nudo complained of being cold in his cell and asked Policeman Patrick Kane, lockup keeper, to lower a window. Kane did, then went out, locking the cell door. A few minutes later when he returned to the cell block he saw Nudo's door ajar.

When Kane stepped inside Nudo knocked the policeman down and fled without shoes or socks through the adjacent police garage to Chicago avenue and disappeared in the darkness. Investigators discovered that, apparently, while Kane was lowering the window, Nudo placed a shoelace over the end of the bolt and then when the bolt was fastened again he released it by pulling both ends of the lace.

Nudo had been identified through pictures as one of two men who robbed Dr. Harry A. Salzman of $5 and $500 worth of jewelry after binding the doctor with rope last Tuesday in his office at 110 North Parkside avenue. Nudo had served six years in Pontiac reformatory on a robbery charge and was paroled May 6, 1934, police records showed. He lived at 2064 Lexington street.

SCENE IN GRAND HOTEL DONE OFF STAGE, SAYS WIFE

New York, Sept. 14.—[Special.]—The bedazzlement of audiences which Elvira Trabert, beautiful German actress, achieved abroad in "Grand Hotel," was just a preliminary to the off-stage hotel touring she began here after meeting Leonard J. Marquis, millionaire Manhattan broker, his wife charged today.

Suing for a separation, Mrs. Blanche Marquis listed five hotels, an apartment house, and a steamship where, by no coincidence, she said, the L. J. Marquis and company official and the actress had apartments or state rooms at the same time.

The couple always took two apartments or two state rooms, Mrs. Marquis said, but she charged this was just a ruse to throw dust in the eyes of investigators. Her sleuths, she added, had obtained evidence of misconduct at one of the rendezvous.

The broker, her husband since 1906, had boasted he enjoyed the caresses of her youthful rival, Mrs. Marquis declared. Mrs. Marquis named last May 18 as the date when her husband finally left her.

MAJOR CRIMINAL TRIALS ON NEW FEDERAL DOCKET

Boss McLaughlin Heads List of U. S. Cases.

The fall term of the United States District court will open tomorrow with the lightest docket in a number of years. There are 431 criminal cases and 690 civil cases. Despite the few cases, several of them are regarded as of major importance by the government.

Chief among criminal trials scheduled for this term is that of John J. (Boss) McLaughlin, former Chicago politician now serving a federal prison term for conspiracy in handling part of the $200,000 ransom paid in the Edward G. Bremer kidnaping at St. Paul.

McLaughlin and 38 others are charged in federal court here with possession of part of the $250,000 loot taken in the robbery of a mail carrier and his guard near the Commonwealth Edison building, 72 West Adams street, on Dec. 6, 1932. The money and securities taken were consigned to the First National bank. The case is on call for Wednesday, at which time the date for the trial will be set.

Drake Estate Swindle Next.

Another important criminal case is that involving the Drake estate swindle, which cost midwesterners several million dollars in a scheme to establish them as "heirs" to a supposed huge estate left by the English adventurer and explorer, Sir Francis Drake. Already a similar case has resulted in conviction of an Iowa man. The present case, set for trial Wednesday, involves 43 defendants.

Other criminal cases to be heard involve four officials of the Trustees Service system, accused of mail fraud; the perjury case against Ralph O'Hara, lieutenant of the late Thomas E. Maloy, czar of the moving picture operators' union, growing out of an income tax investigation concerning Maloy; and the income tax cases of Howard W. Elmore, former president of the sanitary district, and William H. Malone, former chairman of the state tax commission, now a fugitive in Germany.

RFC Suit on Docket.

A major civil case is the Reconstruction Finance corporation suit against stockholders of the Central Republic Bank and Trust company. The RFC is seeking to recover $14,000,000 as stockholders' liability to make up an expected deficiency in two loans totaling 90 million dollars made to the institution, a part of which has been repaid. No date has been set for this trial.

In addition the courts will hear about 650 reorganization cases under section 77B of the amended bankruptcy law.

HUNTER DIES OF WOUNDS.

Rochester, Minn., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Burton J. Crites, 38 year old Sheridan, Wyo., baker, shot accidentally by a hunting companion last Sunday, died in a hospital here today.

NEW X-RAY SYSTEM MAKES EVERY CAR BUYER AN AUTO EXPERT!

Reveals the surprising, hidden DIFFERENCES INSIDE the low-priced cars in fascinating, easy-to-understand pictures

The X-Ray System shows you the astonishing differences INSIDE cars of the same price. For example, WOOD pillars in bodies usually referred to as ALL steel.

The X-Ray reveals that this steel body gives you only wire mesh and fabric over your head. In LaFayette alone do you see a complete, seamless ALL-STEEL body, top, sides and floor!

IT IS NO longer necessary to take for granted the parts of a car you can't see. Or to wade through a mass of complicated figures and specifications to find out what's INSIDE. For the first time in automobile history, you can see . . . actually SEE with your own eyes . . . the amazing, hidden differences inside the low-priced cars!

The remarkable, new X-Ray System, now in use in all Nash-LaFayette showrooms, shows you in simple, easy-to-understand X-Ray pictures the vital things that most low-priced cars leave out . . . the things that high-priced cars include. And it shows you, beyond all doubt, that LaFayette alone in the lowest-price field gives you ALL of the VITAL features of engineering usually found only in cars costing hundreds of dollars more.

This is more than just the safest way to buy a low-priced car. It's a lot easier, a lot more sensible, a lot more fun! And it has already convinced hundreds of car buyers like yourself that Nash's statement, "Out to Win America on Value Alone" is a fact—not an advertising slogan. See the X-Ray System. See the new 1936 LaFayette—the biggest, roomiest car . . . the safest, best-engineered car ever offered at anywhere near the price—and you'll be convinced, too! PAROLE BOARD IGNORES ADVICE, JUDGES ASSERT

Same Complaint Is Voiced by Prosecutors.

Cook county judges declared yesterday that for many years their recommendations have been spurned by the state board of pardons and paroles. As a consequence Chief Justice Denis J. Normoyle of the Criminal court said he would urge the adoption of a policy of sentencing criminals to serve consecutive sentences.

That there is sharp conflict of opinion between the sentencing judges and the parole board was admitted by W. C. Jones, chairman of the board, which under the law is charged with the duty of determining the duration of the indeterminate sentences imposed on certain classes of criminals. He said the Cook county judges ceased making recommendations several years ago, probably because their recommendations were ignored.

Resents Political Overriding.

"Judges are presumed to have a knowledge of the law, common sense, and good judgment," said Superior Judge Walter T. Stanton. "Yet our decisions are subject to review by a few politicians who comprise the parole board and our opinions on what penalty the criminal should pay society are entirely disregarded."

"I don't make recommendations to the parole board because I know they would be thrown in the waste paper basket," said Superior Judge Benjamin P. Epstein. "They pay no attention whatever to our ideas on how long the criminals should be kept in the penitentiary."

During the five months preceding Sept. 1, the parole board freed 411 convicts, some of whom were serving repeat sentences in the penitentiary. During the same period, 78 beneficiaries of previous clemency [in some cases, probation], were indicted for new offenses. Indeterminate sentences gave the parole board power to effect most of these releases.

The Indeterminate Sentence.

Robbery, burglary and larceny are the major crimes for which the Illinois law fixes indeterminate sentences. The crimes of robbery with a weapon and of burglary carry penalties of one year to life. Larceny is punishable by imprisonment for one to ten years or one to twenty years where an automobile is stolen. Murder, rape, and other crimes of violence are punishable by definite sentences, the jury fixing the number of years to be served.

Parole may be granted on definite sentences after one-third of the specified time is served. On an indeterminate sentence the parole board is empowered to act after the minimum time is served—for instance, a convict sentenced to one year to life may be paroled after he has served eleven months. This is because he is allowed one month off the first year's imprisonment for good time.

Insists Law Is Obeyed.

"We follow the law and send a letter to the trial judge, the state's attorney and the complaining witness," said Parole Chairman Jones, "before we consider paroling a convict. The first time we give consideration to parole is when the minimum is served—usually eleven months after the convict is received in prison. The letter asks the opinion of the judge, state's attorney or complaining witness on the advisability of paroling the convict.

"For many years Cook county judges have ignored those form letters. Perhaps it is true that they concluded their advice wouldn't be accepted. We are not bound to follow their recommendations. We have knowledge of the prisoner not possessed by the trial judge and we know his state of mind and what his conduct in prison has been. Parole depends entirely on the criminal and not on recommendations which oftentimes we can't follow."

View of the Prosecutors.

Prosecutors in the Criminal court said that their recommendations carry no weight with the parole board. Several of the assistant state's attorneys related that many times they sought to trade leniency to a criminal in return for information about other criminals.

"Many times convicts have told us they knew we couldn't deliver the goods," said Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty. "We could recommend that a criminal be released in eleven months and the parole board would keep him there five or six years. We lost many a trading opportunity."

Mr. Jones declared that such recommendations as have been made usually have been for leniency and seldom for life imprisonment. He said it might be better for society if the judges would order that a convict serve two or more sentences consecutively instead of concurrently.

In most instances in which a person is convicted of two or more separate offenses the courts rule that the sentences are to be served concurrently, and the entire responsibility is placed on the parole board as to how long the criminal is to be imprisoned.

Fears Clogging Courts.

"I'm going to call a conference of the Criminal court judges," said Chief Justice Normoyle, who assumed that office two weeks ago. "Personally I am in favor of imposing consecutive sentences. A criminal is entitled to no consideration.

"If we adopt that plan as a general practice, however, we may clog the courts again. The criminals all may demand jury trials. Now it is an easy matter to get pleas of guilty on several charges where there is an understanding that concurrent sentences will be imposed.

"Where a gang of criminals have committed numerous robberies it should be sufficient to sentence each to imprisonment for one year to life. The parole board can, just as easily, keep them for life on one sentence as on several.

"I think sentences of one year to life give the parole board too much authority. The sentencing judge should be allowed to fix the minimum time to be served. One criminal might merit a minimum sentence of five or ten years and another only one or two. The judge should be in a better position than the parole board to make that decision."

BOUND, GAGGED AND ROBBED

June Knight, actress, lost jewelry and coins valued at $5,000 yesterday when two gunmen forced their way into her New York apartment. The robbers bound and gagged Miss Knight and her maid and escaped.

ROBBERS BIND JUNE KNIGHT; SEIZE JEWELS

Pair Enters Apartment by Employing Ruse.

New York, Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Two men went into the Essex house, small apartment hotel on Central Park South today shortly before noon ascended 19 floors in an elevator, and entered the apartment of Miss June Knight, actress. They bound and gagged Miss Knight and her maid and walked out with approximately $5,000 in jewels and $50 in cash, taking the same elevator down.

The night before, as Miss Knight told the story, a man who gave the name of Ferguson had called her apartment and told her he was a representative of a large moving picture production concern. He said, Miss Knight related, that he wanted her signature on a contract which would result in the use of her name in the advertisment of hair nets.

Actress Makes Appointment.

She told him, as she related the story, that she had little time to spare, but that if he came shortly before noon she could give him a few minutes.

The management of the apartment hotel refused to discuss the robbery, but it was stated the two men had gone up unannounced. The elevator operator told detectives he had held the door of his car open long enough to see the men push the buzzer at Miss Knight's door and then had descended to the lobby.

When the men entered the apartment one took a revolver from his pocket and the other opened a portfolio and took a revolver out of that. Then they herded Miss Knight and her maid, Hazel Curry, into the bathroom.

Two Women Trussed.

First they demanded that Miss Knight get into the tub, but when she remonstrated they took both women into an adjoining bedroom. The maid was tied hands and feet with insulated wire, and Miss Knight's feet were tied with ribbon, although her hands were left free.

Both were gagged with pajamas and sheets. With both women trussed, the two ransacked the apartment.

They took, Miss Knight said, a five carat diamong ring valued at $3,500, a platinum bracelet worth about $1,000, a pair of yellow gold bracelets worth about $25 each, a garnet ring worth about $75, a jade and a "sphinx" ring, value not given, and $50 in cash.

Miss Knight was mentioned in Broadway gossip frequently last fall in connection with the name of Max Baer, former heavyweight champion. However, while the gossip was rife, she was married in Chicago to Paul S. Ames, a former member of the New York Stock exchange. He won a divorce in Florida on the ground of cruelty.

13 BALLOONS POISED FOR BENNETT RACE; U. S. NAVY ENTERS BAG

WARSAW, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Thirteen balloons, including one from the United States, will take off tomorrow in the annual Gordon Bennett cup races.

The first of the bags will take to the air at 5:35 a. m. [11:35 p. m. Saturday, Chicago daylight saving time]. The American balloon, "U.S.A. Navy," will start second. Lieut. John C. Tyler is the pilot and Lieut. Howard P. Orville the navigator.

Wind was blowing tonight towards the northeast and the Baltic regions. Aeronauts were hoping it would not shift to the southwest because authorities of Czechoslovakia have ordered contestants not to land in their territory. Lieuts. Tyler and Orville spent the day by visiting the military balloon plant at Jablona.

BRITISH SEAMAN GETS BINOCULARS FROM ROOSEVELT

SHANGHAI, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Binoculars sent by President Roosevelt were handed today to a British seaman who helped rescue the crew of a burning American gunboat.

The seaman was Robert Richardson. He was a member of the crew of the British steamer Tsinan, which, with the British warship Wishart rescued the crew of the gunboat Fulton, which was burning off Hongkong March 14 last year.

Other officers of the Tsinan, who will receive binoculars from the American President, are now in England.

FLEEING GUNMAN ENDS PURSUIT BY BLAST OF SHOTS

Abraham B. Harris, 54 years old, was shot in the left thigh last evening when he resisted an attempt of a man, described as a Mexican, to rob him in the Harris hardware store at 28 North Halsted street.

As Harris fell, the robber, without waiting to loot the cash register, fled to the street and turned south. Sidney Harris, son of the man who was wounded, followed him, but his ardor was cooled when the Mexican fired at him. Melvin Gold, 224 South Halsted street, drove his automobile in pursuit of the gunman, but was also dissuaded when a bullet fired at him struck the steering wheel of the car. A third pursuer whom the robber shot at was Emil Stark, 1036 North Marshfield avenue.

Harris was taken to the County hospital, where it was said he is expected to recover. Sergt. James J. Hanrahan of the detective bureau, who went there to interview Harris, found William Blackwell, colored, 3620 South Michigan avenue, who has a record as a pickpocket, riding in the hospital elevator and arrested him.

WOMAN ARTIST WINS $2,500 IN MACVEAGH SUIT

Barbour Says His Client Can't Pay It.

Judge McGarry granted the defense 60 days to perfect an appeal and fixed an appeal bond of $5,000. Miss Hagen said she will return tomorrow to Woodstock, N. Y., where she has a studio cottage.

The court's ruling was made generally on three agreements, each supplanting the other as they were made between 1930 and 1933.

"Briefly the agreements provided that the defendant [MacVeagh] pay the sum of $250 a month for life," Judge McGarry said in his decision. "Since their execution the defendant has become unable to pay, according to the first point of the defense. This was passed up by the court because inability to pay is no defense."

"The defendant also contended that the plaintif violated the agreement by subjecting him to publicity. This is not sustained and is also cast aside. The main point at issue is the want of consideration. The defendant contends that the contract was founded on the past illicit relationship between the two and is therefore invalid.

"It is admitted the parties did meet in 1905 and in 1910 had illicit relations which resulted in the birth of a child.

Holds the Consideration Valid.

"The plaintif contends that the illicit relationship is not the consideration, but that an alleged promise to marry, cancelation of a note, and a trip to Europe are the considerations of the contract." [Miss Hagen's contention was that she was persuaded to "disappear" on a trip to Europe after MacVeagh's marriage and that this trip was one of the conditions of the $250 a month contract. Another was that she would refrain from exposing MacVeagh to exposure or criticism.]

"The court feels that in making this decision, and the question is a close one, there is a consideration for the promise to pay and the contract is enforceable and valid."

An English case of 1864 having a similar ruling was presented by Herbert R. Stoffels, attorney for Miss Hagen, in his closing argument. In that case a woman plaintif charged a bachelor with failure to live up to a written contract providing for her support some years after she bore him a child. The English court supported her claim.

Old History Stirs Feelings.

Both MacVeagh, who for ten years has been a vestryman of St. James' Episcopal church, and Miss Hagen stiffened uncomfortably several times during the day at the peaks of the personal onslaughts made by counsel.

Senator Barbour portrayed Miss Hagen when she first met MacVeagh in a manicure parlor at the age of 16 as a "graduate of three manicure parlors with everything to gain and nothing to lose" in her association with the scion of the distinguished MacVeagh family.

"The education as an artist which Eames MacVeagh provided for her so that she might support herself was a failure," said Barbour, his voice rising to a roar. "That was a failure—but along another line of art, as a sculptress with a chisel, she was a success."

Charges Reptile Characteristics.

Senator Barbour also referred to Miss Hagen as a "boa constrictor who turned out to have a hissing, rattling tail."

Barbour charged that Miss Hagen wilfully enticed MacVeagh on the night in December, 1910, when her seduction took place.

"Balzac said that the organ is the greatest instrument to portray with perfect tones all that is great in human emotions," the attorney said. "Miss Hagen was studying organ music and in the MacVeagh home was a beautiful organ.

"It was after a play that they went to the home. It was the first time that he had taken her there and it was at her request that she wanted to see the organ and how it operated."

Artist's Attorney Flails Rich Man.

In turn Attorney Stoffels assailed MacVeagh as a "pillar of society, member of the church and man of the world" who cultivated "the friendship and trust of this young lady for five years and then entrapped her."

"When he suggested that she would be living a lie if she did not give up her child, he was yellow and a coward," Stoffels said. "He could at that time have legitimatized the child to whom she was entitled. She was gullible and he was cowardly. He said 'Dear, I'd like to marry you at once, but my family wouldn't like it.'

"To the end there was a yellow streak. In 1929 this Miles Standish with reverse English has to send a John Alden to tell her that something has happened, that he has married another woman."

The reference here is to the conferences between Miss Hagen and Senator Barbour, who represented MacVeagh in the contract negotiations.

Senator Barbour's contention that the contract by which MacVeagh promised to pay $250 a month to Miss Hagen was invalid because it was against public policy prompted Stoffels to retort that Barbour prepared the contract himself. Barbour avowed that when he drew up the contract he did not know it could be construed as illegal.

The contention of Senator Barbour that the contract represented only the statement of a gift on MacVeagh's part and that Miss Hagen gave nothing of legal value in return was the subject to most of yesterday's argument with numerous law citations on both sides.

Senator Barbour argued that since intimate relations between MacVeagh and Miss Hagen stopped in 1922, according to the evidence, the statute of limitations had ruled out her possible claims against him.

On Promises of Marriage.

Alleged oral promises of marriage as claimed by Miss Hagen in a deposition and on the witness stand were disputed by the defense with the contention that there was no promise of marriage at any time.

"Her sweetness and graciousness continued through the years because there was more money still to come," argued Senator Barbour. "She knows now she cannot get money from something that is squeezed out and her only motive now is vengeance."

Attorney Stoffels argued it was not necessary to show by preponderance of the evidence that there had been promise of marriage on the ground that the contract itself proved Miss Hagen's claims upon MacVeagh.

"But," Stoffels declared, referring to the testimony, "parties who retire at night, put their arms around each other and pray are not thinking in terms of illegality but in terms of man and wife. Was it lust or was it love that governed him? They must have discussed the marriage. There was the matter of the ring he gave her, a diamond ring."

Five Day Story of Romance.

Testimony and arguments lasted five days in the case.

Miss Hagen's case was presented in deposition form and by direct testimony. Evidence unfolded the hidden romance that began in 1905, when she was 16 years old and MacVeagh 29, as she manicured his hands.

MacVeagh testified that he spent $75,000 on Miss Hagen in furtherance of her education and art career. He ended his long reign as Chicago's "most eligible bachelor" six years ago, when he married Miss Barthelemy.

During this period, according to MacVeagh's testimony, the family's $10,000,000 or $11,000,000 fortune crumbled. Their grocery house, Franklin MacVeagh & Co., which Eames' father, Franklin MacVeagh, founded, went out of business, and their other wealth, largely in the form of bank stocks, was sacrificed, Eames MacVeagh related, to meet obligations.

WINS $2,500 BREACH OF CONTRACT SUIT

Candid camera shot in Judge Joseph H. McGarry's court yesterday as Miss Louise Hagen, New York artist, and Eames MacVeagh, member of a well known Chicago family, listened to arguments by Senator James J. Barbour, MacVeagh's attorney. Miss Hagen won her suit to enforce a contract under which MacVeagh agreed to pay her $250 a month for life.

SCHOOLS READY TOMORROW FOR 476,000 PUPILS

"Activity" Class Plan to Be Stressed.

When the Chicago public schools open for the fall term tomorrow morning and approximately 476,000 pupils return to their classes, the 342,000 who enter the elementary schools will encounter a further development of the activities method of teaching, William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, disclosed yesterday. The activities method, he explained, teaches the three "Rs" by giving the pupils actual experience in line with their studies.

The superintendent announced that under the direction of Louis V. Newkirk, who was recently placed in charge of handwork in the schools by the board of education, a handbook covering the teaching of rug weaving, pottery, basket weaving and other handwork exercises has been prepared and will be distributed for use in the eight grades of the elementary schools.

Plan Won't Increase Costs.

"When economy cuts eliminated the teaching of manual training sometime ago a saving was made because additional teachers had been required to direct the handcraft courses in use at that time," Bogan said. "The new handwork courses to be used in the elementary classes will be taught as part of the regular work by the regular teachers and will not increase the educational costs."

The handbook covering the handwork courses has been prepared by a committee composed of assistant superintendents, principals, supervisors and teachers, according to Mr. Bogan.

"The new method of teaching handwork allows the pupils to learn with their hands as well as through seeing and listening," Bogan said. "For example, in the study of Indian life the children have the opportunity to illustrate their learning by grinding maize, weaving baskets and rugs, and making pottery, employing the methods and designs which the Indians used."

Will Build Model Homes.

In the study of the American home the children will have an opportunity to make floor plans and construct miniature model homes. Dioramas patterned after those used at A Century of Progress will be used to make current or historical events more objective, he said. Mr. Bogan pointed out that the activities method of teaching has been gaining power in the elementary system for several years and that this year will mark the most definite step toward instaling the method in the schools.

Mr. Newkirk has been in charge of handwork instruction at the Chicago Normal college for several years.

Teachers Familiar with Plan.

"The elementary teachers understand the handwork method of teaching, particularly the more recent Normal college graduates," Bogan said.

The elementary schools will open at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. The opening hours of high schools vary according to the classes held, according to the superintendent. Several of the high schools will open at 7:30 a. m.

Six evening schools, at Austin, Englewood, Crane, Fenger, Lake View and Schurz high schools, will open for classes tomorrow night. Four new pre-vocation branches will be opened tomorrow. The new branches are to care for 400 retarded pupils.

DR. STOCK TO LEAD CLOSING CONCERT IN GRANT PARK TONIGHT

A program arranged and to be conducted by Dr. Frederick Stock, director of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, will bring to a close tonight the series of evening concerts which have been given this summer in the band shell in Grant park. Tonight's performance will be the sixty-fifth of the season.

The combined membership of the Chicago Symphony, the Chicago Opera and the Women's Symphony orchestras, totaling 225 musicians, will play selections of famous composers.

James C. Petrillo, Chicago park commissioner and president of the Chicago Federation of Musicians, declared yesterday that the concerts have been a success, judging from the attendance, and that plans are being made to renew them next year.

FIRST INJUNCTION GRANTED UNDER FAIR TRADE LAW

Court Bars Liquor Dealer from Cutting Price.

The first injunction under the new state "fair trade practices" act, which is designed to prevent price cutting of trade marked and patented commodities, was issued yesterday in the Circuit court by Judge Joseph Burke.

The injunction, a temporary restraining order effective pending a full hearing of the case, was directed against E. R. Oransky, a liquor concessionaire at Novak's Stockyards Market, Inc., 6128 South Halsted street. The suit for injunction was brought by the Joseph Triner corporation, to prevent Oransky from selling two brands of Schenley whisky at less than contract prices as agreed to between the manufacturer and retailers.

Regulates Retail Prices.

On July 8 Gov. Horner signed the "fair trade practices" bill, which was introduced by State Senator Earl B. Searcy [Rep., Springfield] and passed by the legislature. It provides for contracts between manufacturers and retailers of their product, regulating the retail prices of commodities which bear a trade mark, brand, or name ot the owner.

Sales at less than the contract price are deemed unfair competition, and under the terms of the act are actionable on the suit of any one damaged. Observers interpreted the act as attempting to abolish the practice of selling well known products at less than their advertised prices as "loss leaders" to attract customers.

Attorney Bachrach's suit charges that Oransky sold the Schenley "Old Quaker" brand of whisky at $1.39 a quart, as against the contract price of $1.89, and the "Cream of Kentucky" brand at 83 cents a pint instead of the standard price of $1.15.

Most Dealers Keep Contract.

Eighty-five per cent of the retailers doing business with Schenley, the bill stated, have abided by the contracts they made with the manufacturers, so that "the sales have doubled and the public has been benefited through the unobstructed sale of high quality products at reasonable, uniform prices enabled by volume of production."

The "fair trade practices" act, said Attorney Bachrach, is almost identical in wording with similar acts in effect in California and New Jersey. It is designed to maintain a high degree of ethics in business, said the attorney, so that the market will not be demoralized and the retailers and public injured.

Homer Cummings Leaves London for Paris on Tour

LONDON, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Homer Cummings, United States attorney general, left today for Paris on his European tour studying police methods. Cummings planned to go from Paris to Berlin and Vienna. Upon his arrival here Aug. 27, Cummings began a series of visits to Scotland Yard and British law courts. He left Sept. 2 for a motor tour of the English countryside, from which he returned late last night.

TRAPPED ON TRESTLE: KILLED.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 14.—[U.P.]—Zachary Busbee, 53 year old laborer, was trapped on a trestle of the Missouri Pacific tracks in Valley Park today and was killed when struck by a train.

SENATOR REYNOLDS STRIKES A SNAG WITH 'TRAILER TOURING'

Lusk, Wyo., Sept. 14.—(AP)—United States Senator Robert R. Reynolds, in motion again after a night in the mountains with a stalled trailer truck, studied specifications of his freak 9,000 mile motor tour anew today and sighed.

"We are four hours behind schedule now," the North Carolinan said, "and money is running perilously low."

Senator Reynolds, accompanied by Leo Caddison, Washington newspaper man, and a servant, is attempting to visit "all the chief historical spots" of the nation in thirty days on an expense account of $100 for each person.

The senator's transcontinental trailer stalled on a perilous grade of Iron mountain in Mount Rushmore National park, South Dakota, last night. Pulling out rolls of bedding, the party deserted the dangerously perched vehicle and slept on the ground.

Senator Robert Reynolds' Daughter 'Living' in Reno

Reno, Nev., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Mrs. Frances Reynolds Colt, socially prominent daughter of United States Senator Robert Reynolds of North Carolina, has established residence in Nevada, presumably to divorce Le Baron Colt, it was learned here today.

TORCH SINGER'S PRINTS FOUND ON DEATH GUN

Discovery Adds Mystery to Investigation.

Westchester, Pa., Sept. 14.—[Special.] — Evelyn Hoey's finger prints were the only ones experts found on the revolver which lay at her feet when she was found dead Wednesday night at Indian Run farm, summer estate of Henry Huddleston Rogers III., Standard Oil heir. In making this public today, County Detective Francis Grubb, investigating the Broadway torch singer's death, said the absence of other prints on the gun was mystifying.

"If Miss Hoey killed herself, as we have assumed," he said, "you would expect to find only her prints on the gun. Under ordinary circumstances that would clear everybody else.

"But I have statements from George Yamada, Rogers' Japanese cook, and Charles McCardell, who worked at the Rogers place, that they both handled that gun the same day that it killed Miss Hoey."

Tell of Moving Gun.

The cook and McCardell, Grubb said, told him they lifted the weapon Wednesday morning while they were cleaning the bedroom in which Miss Hoey was found dead just before 10 o'clock that night.

Grubb said he had been told by Charles Dunlop, finger print expert for the Chester police department who submitted his report on the death weapon today, that a finger print should be readable on a surface such as the gun's for at least 100 hours.

"Now," said the detective, "if Dunlop is right, you'd expect to find not only Yamada's and McCardell's prints, but young Rogers', too. We know he handled that revolver only a few days before Miss Hoey was killed."

Frank Catalano, the Rogers chauffeur, has told authorities he found the pearl handled weapon under a pillow in the bedroom of Rob Wright, foreman of the farm, who was dismissed from Indian Run a few days before the shooting after a dispute with Rogers over care of the place.

Prints of 3 Fingers.

Catalano said he handed the weapon to Rogers and saw his employer break it, remove the shells, and put in on a table in the living room.

"In spite of that," said Grubb, "the only clear prints we get off the gun are the dead girl's. They are the prints from the three lower fingers on the inside of the gun butt, just where you'd expect to find them if she held the gun in a normal grip."

Detective Grubb admitted there were some smudges on the weapon that were not readable enough for identification. He conceded these might be the older prints, but his inference seemed to be that some one had wiped the revolver clean and then had closed the dead girl's hand in a grip on the butt.

Inquiry Will Continue.

"Do you say that some one made those three clear prints after the girl was killed?" he was asked.

"I don't say anything of the kind," replied Grubb. "I only say I don't understand why, if at least two other persons handled the gun the same day, we can't find their prints just as clearly."

Grubb announced that Acting Prosecutor Raymond B. Reid had ordered him to continue his investigation into the singer's death.

The body of Miss Hoey was claimed today by her father, Henry Hoey, St. Louis chemist, at a Downingtown undertaking parlor.

Hoey, who was accompanied by Attorney Vincent P. Downey of New York, collapsed at sight of the body.

Meanwhile Rogers, who was released yesterday under $2,500 bond wih his friend, William Kelley of Union City, was resting at Galen Hall hotel in Wernersville, Pa., some 60 miles away. He was in seclusion and refused to see any one.

5,000 EMPLOYES PROTEST 'SLASH' IN RELIEF STAF

New York, Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Five thousand members of the Association of Workers in Public Relief Agencies participated in a mass demonstration today in front of the Emergency Relief bureau's Broadway offices in protest against threatening reduction in the administrative staf due to the transfer of clients to Works Progress administration projects.

Fifty policemen held the crowd in check when a picket line four persons deep paraded along Broadway. Twentieth street was blocked off between Broadway and Fourth avenue for the use of demonstrators making speeches from a sound truck.

OLD PAPERS TELL 70 YEAR HISTORY OF NEW ENGLAND

Museum Gets Series of Proclamations.

BY MARCIA WINN.

In a long, red portfolio in the study of Frank G. Logan, 1150 Lake Shore drive, rests the highlight of 70 years of the proclamatory history of New England.

Since 1890 it has rested in that portfolio, pored over from time to time by Mr. Logan, but early this week it will become a permanent addition to the files of the Chicago Historical society museum in Lincoln park. Mr. Logan, retired capitalist, art patron and honorary president of the Art Institute of Chicago, yesterday announced the gift of its contents to the Historical society.

The collection includes the original 50 proclamations issued by the governors of Massachusetts and Connecticut between 1800 and 1870, a period of internal strife within the United States.

Public Prayer Ordered Annually.

During those years there were three wars, several panics, and the assassination of a President, but in spite of all these New England observed two annual events. One was a day "of public prayer, humiliation and fast." The other was Thanksgiving day. Both dates were set annually by proclamation.

"You'd think," Mr. Logan said yesterday as he carefully turned a yellowed page, "that the proclamations would deal only with the fast or feast days, but you'll find that the whole history of the period can be traced in them."

Fragile with age, frayed where they have been folded, the proclamations chronicle war, pestilence, and political arguments of the 70 year period. From 1800 to 1814 the series of proclamations is unbroken.

One Signed by Lincoln.

The collection includes a fast day proclamation of July, 1864, signed jointly by John A. Miner, governor of Massachusetts, and Abraham Lincoln. It also includes a March, 1840, issue of "The Charter Oak," an antislavery publication with the motto, "Free principles, free men, free speech and a free press."

Mr. Logan bought the collection in 1890 from Maj. H. N. Rust, an Indian agent who once, as a Connecticut wool buyer, took part in the antislavery activities of another Connecticut wool buyer, John Brown.

Several of the proclamations apparently once belonged to the Rev. Joseph Gaffy of Milbury, Conn., for his signature appears on many of them, while on the back of one he wrote—in a tiny, angular script—an entire sermon!

TELEGRAPHERS CLOSE SESSION; RED BAN VOTED

After an all night session in which delegates voted to restrict communists from membership, the annual convention of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of North America ended yesterday in the La Salle hotel. Frank B. Powers of Chicago, international president, and W. L. Allen, Winnepeg, Man., secretary-treasurer, were reëlected. Executive board members elected include Arthur Markel, Washington, D. C.; G. R. Pawson, Toronto, Ont.; William J. Ryan, New York; William McEwen, Winnepeg, and W. J. McMahon, Milwaukee. The convention opened last Monday.

BULGARIA LAUNCHES A SERIES OF RAIDS TO BALK COMMUNIST PLOT

SOFIA, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Authorities said today they believed a series of raids had halted a revolutionary movement to establish a communistic state in Macedonia. They said many arrests were made here and in southwestern Bulgaria.

Among those taken into custody were former Senators Christo Kalaidjieff and Alexander Martulkoff.

Police said their raids had spiked plans terrorists had developed with organizations in Bulgaria, Jugo-Slavia, and Greece, with headquarters in Paris. They charged that both the terrorists and the Bulgarian headquarters received money from Russia.

DISPLAYS RELIEF MAP OF PACIFIC OCEAN'S FLOOR

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 14.—(AP)—A relief map of the Pacific ocean's floor, where towering undersea mountains and huge abysses make land topography seem puny, was displayed here today. It is the work of Capt. Claude Banks Mayo, attached to the thirteenth naval district.

The map was designed out of a big plank and thousands of bronze nails through use of sounding records.

Capt. Mayo's articles on the Pacific ocean floor have attracted world-wide interest among hydrographers. Many have studied his map, the first ever made of the subcontinent between America and Asia.

The veteran naval officer started the novel work while captain of the navy tanker U. S. Ramapo, transporting cargoes of fuel oil.

He became interested in the Sonic sounding device, which tested the depth of water every half hour. He started experiments that produced his strange map.

PARENT-TEACHER NATIONAL BOARD CONVENES TODAY

The board of directors of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers will convene this morning in the Edgewater Beach hotel for five days of sessions.

Mrs. J. K. Pettengill of Lansing, Mich., first vice president of the organization, has charge of today's meetings. She said that committee meetings will be held today and tomorrow with the board holding its regular meetings during the remaining three days. The board will consider especially the home in its relation to the development of the child.

Mrs. Benjamin F. Langworthy of Winnetka, president of the board, will take charge of the meeting tomorrow.

BARRYMORE RIFT WITH PROTEGE IS BELIEVED FINAL

Beyond Ken of Law, Say Attorneys.

New York, Sept. 14.—(AP)—A sudden rift between John Barrymore and his 19 year old protege, Elaine Barrie, was examined by counsel for both sides tonight and pronounced beyond the ken of the law.

Attorneys for the 53 year old actor, who left Miss Barrie's apartment in a huff Thursday night, said there was "no legal situation of any kind" involved.

Miss Barrie's lawyer, Aaron Sapiro, expressed a similar view.

"Not at Home."

At the apartment building of the young girl, who changed her name from Jacobs to Barrie so it would be somewhat similar to that of the greyhaired Barrymore, it was said that "everybody went out."

The actor, who is being sued for divorce by the former Dolores Costello, and who last month took Miss Barrie on a shopping tour for a bedroom suite, finally winding up by buying a directoire set, was said by his attorneys to have left the city.

Maurice Hotchner, one of Barrymore's attorneys, said:

"It is true that I have for a long while been Mr. Barrymore's general attorney in New York, but I have not been specifically asked by Mr. Barrymore to represent him in anything connected with Miss Jacobs. Perhaps the reason is that there is no legal situation of any kind."

Calls Reconciliation Unlikely.

Said Sapiro:

"At present there is to my way of thinking no possibility that things will be patched up between Miss Barrie and Mr. Barrymore.

"There are, however, some human factors that go beyond the knowledge of an attorney, and even beyond the ken of a person's closest confidants.

"Right now, I can only say that, barring these unknown equations, I do not think that Miss Barrie and Mr. Barrymore will resume their former relations."

The attorney added it was his understanding that henceforth both professional and friendly relations between the two were to be completely severed, but that there were to be no hard feelings.

Feel "No Bitterness."

"Neither Miss Barrie nor her parents feel any bitterness toward Mr. Barrymore," Sapiro said.

The girl's father, Louis Jacobs, a traveling salesman, recently denied there was anything romantic in the friendship between Barrymore and his daughter, who last May took a cruise to Havana with the actor aboard his yacht Infanta.

"This business about love and romance is just poppycock," said Jacobs at the time in reply to rumors Barrymore and Miss Barrie planned to marry after the actor is divorced from his present wife.

In recent months Barrymore has been a constant companion of Miss Barrie on yachting trips and at night clubs. He has said, however, that his interest in her did not extend beyond trying to help her on a stage career.

He was taken to the Victory Memorial hospital in Waukegan, suffering a fractured pelvis and internal injuries.

FEDERAL LOANS ON FOREST LAND WILL BE URGED

Roosevelt Tells Asset of Trees to U. S.

President Back Home

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 14.—(AP)—President Roosevelt arrived home tonight by train after an all day visit to public projects in upstate New York. Mr. Roosevelt motored directly to his home.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lake Placid, N. Y., Sept. 14.—[Special.] — President Roosevelt came north to the heart of the Adirondacks today to witness the dedication of the White Face mountain highway, an engineering feat started when he was governor of New York.

He also attended a celebration of the 50th anniversary of conservation of forest lands in the state. To a crowd of about 1,000 persons in Olympic stadium here, the President said:

"I hope that the next session of congress will pass legislation extending credit to owners of forest land. There is no reason why either government or private industry should not consider trees just as much an asset as houses or barns. Trees are great assets of nature that God has given us."

"Doubting Thomases" Shown.

Two hours later, speaking from atop White Face mountain, 4,600 feet above sea level, the President again lent a political tinge to his second extemporaneous talk when he remarked that "doubting Thomases" had once scoffed at the proposal to build a highway up to the peak.

"Yet here it is, complete," he declared to a group of several hundred persons. "I am reminded of the words of President Wilson in 1917 to Marshal Joffre that "it can be done."

Joffre had asked Wilson how many men America could furnish and Wilson, according to Mr. Roosevelt, replied:

"You will have a million men if you need them; two million men if you need them—the entire manpower of the nation if you need it. It can be done."

Takes Shot at Critics.

The emphasis which the President gave the last four words convinced his listeners that he had in mind criticisms that his "recovery and reform" program never could be pushed successfully to completion without bankrupting the nation.

Two hundred boys from a local CCC camp were present at the first of the President's talks and he repeated to them his announcement of yesterday that the CCC camps were to be made a permanent part of the government's policy.

"When a certain person entering a political campaign," remarked the President, referring to himself, "suggested that for the preservation of the forests of the nation and to help many unemployed families, several hundred thousand young men should be put into the forests, I remember the ribald laughter that greeted that suggestion.

Going to Remain Permanent.

"Yet that crazy dream, that political gesture, has come true. The idle dream is a fact. And it is going to remain permanent. If the general pickup in employment keeps on, I believe that in future years the people of this country can well afford to have 300,000 young men each year in these camps."

Leading up to his announcement that laws would be passed extending credit to owners of timber lands, the President declared that "trees must be treated as a crop. We must persuade the farmer to take off his wood lot only an amount equivalent to the growth in that lot that year."

From atop the White Face mountain the President peered through binoculars and expressed his delight at being able to see Mount Royal, Montreal, and the St. Lawrence.

The President concluded his expedition with an inspection of the new $8,000,000 spa at Saratoga Springs, in which he became interested in 1929 when he was governor of New York. Through the executive's intervention with the Reconstruction Finance corporation the Spa was enabled to finish an ambitious building program.

Relief Client Tries Hand at 'Politics'; He's Seized

When Joseph Mikula, 49 years old, a relief client, accepted a marked $5 bill yesterday in the home of Frank Gardner, 3827 South Kenilworth avenue, Berwyn, he was arrested by police on a confidence game charge. Gardner said that Mikula posed as a politician and promised to get him a job as a bricklayer at the County hospital. Mikula said he lived in a relief shelter at 509 North Union avenue.

PRESIDENT IS AMUSED BY CHICAGOAN'S WIT IN MOUNTAIN MEETING

Westport, N. Y., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—A 74 year old Chicagoan gave President Roosevelt several hearty laughs today. The wit and nonchalance of John H. Hayes, 3701 Lexington street, a retired bricklayer, amused the President.

The presidential party was motoring from White Face mountain in the Adirondacks, where a new highway had been dedicated, to Westport where a special train was waiting. The automobile carrying the President was halted near Elizabethtown, N. Y., by a flat tire. The car was proceeding at a leisurely pace at the time and there was no danger.

Hayes sauntered up to the President's car.

"I'd like to shake hands with you, Mr. Roosevelt," he said jauntily. "I'm a thousand miles from home but this is nice country you have hereabouts." The President grinned and shook hands with Hayes. The latter turned and called to his two daughters, Lucille and Florence, who were gasping at their father's temerity. "Hey, Lucille and Florence," he called to them. "Come here and shake hands with the President."

FLYING 'ESCORT' OF ROOSEVELT WORRIES GUARD

Troy, N. Y., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Gov. Herbert H. Lehman tonight ordered an investigation into the conduct of an aviator who flew a cabin monoplane close to the special train of the President as it ran between Westport, N. Y., and Saratoga Springs this afternoon.

The plane, carrying only the pilot, swooped down close to the train and followed it for fifteen minutes. The plane at times was not more than one hundred feet off the ground and secret service men with the President were worried. Such a plane could drop bombs on the train or in its path, it was pointed out, and escape easily.

Gov. Lehman, who was with the President, instructed his secretary, Walter Brown, to attempt to ascertain the identity of the aviator with a view to penalizing him.

NORTH AVENUE BABY CONTEST WINNERS NAMED

The North avenue district held a community celebration yesterday as part of Chicago's homecoming week. In the baby contest, the event which attracted the most attention, six infants were selected as winners by Dr. Edmond D. Levisohn, judge of the event.

They are Marianne Balchun, 10 weeks old, 1909 Lincoln avenue; Elliott Friedman, 6 months old, 545 Eugenie street; Corlaine Emperly, 9 months old, 1918 Mohawk street; George Manisco, 18 months old, 1410 Cleveland avenue and Shirley Ann Bucaro, 5 months old; and Sally Hammond, 13 months old, both of 1944 Burling street.

At 1 o'clock this afternoon the East Side Chamber of Commerce and the Chicago park district will cooperate in another communal observance of homecoming week with a celebration at Calumet Park, 98th street and Lake Michigan. The program will include a tennis exhibition, a pet parade, a motor cycle exhibition, and a healthy baby contest.

SHAKE OFF PALL OF LONG SORROW TO GREET VETS

New Orleans Will Seek New Deal Cash.

Long régime 464 laws were enacted which now arise to plague his successors. From all sides arises the demand for repeal of many of these laws and Gov. Allen is urged to call a new special session.

Those who are anxious to have the Long organization continue in power for a few more months at least are urging Mrs. Long to accept appointment as senator until the next election. She is said to be averse to this, but may be persuaded to it on the plea that the organization cannot unite on anyone else.

Plot Story Unsupported.

The more information is developed concerning Dr. Carl A. Weiss of Baton Rouge, Long's murderer, the more it looks as though the young doctor had acted on his own initiative, on the cumulative intensity of his brooding mind. It now appears that Dr. Weiss was not at the anti-Long meeting in New Orleans on July 21 and 22, where the alleged plot is said to have been hatched. There is much evidence to show that he was elsewhere, at his home and at his work during these days.

Earl Christenbury, secretary to Long, now says that there was another meeting following the July 21 meeting at which the conspiracy was framed. This phase of the assassination bears a strong resemblance to the rumors and plot hunting that went on in Washington after Booth had shot Lincoln.

The story of the Long conspiracy, stated as a fact by Gov. O. K. Allen, and by the Rev. Smith, goes into the political campaign for what it may produce in the way of emotion and suspicion. New evidence may develop at the inquest next week.

Talks in Long Fashion.

Dr. Smith performed in regular Huey Long fashion over the New Orleans radio last night, blasting Wall street, "the lying newspapers" and the conspirators, pleading for the poor and hungry, urging all those who loved Long, and they were legion, to rally now to the share-our-wealth standard in memorial meetings. He also denounced Senator Theodore G. Bilbo [Dem., Miss.] as a "low down" politician.

In the voice that breathed over New Orleans last night, sweeping through the old tenderloin which the Long forces had taken over, the minister ended his exhortation with the words, "In the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, amen."

The lounging taxi men and policemen, the silk clad girls in furtive doorways, almost thought they had been to church again.

GIRL ROBBED OF SALARY.

Miss Ruth Stevens, 27 years old, 1717 North Artesian avenue, a stenographer, early yesterday was robbed of her $24 pay by three men, masked with handkerchiefs, in front of her house.

SMITH'S A 'DAMNABLE SELF-MADE LIAR,' TO QUOTE SENATOR BILBO

Jackson, Miss., Sept. 14.—(AP)—U. S. Senator Theodore G. Bilbo referred to the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, organizer of Long "share-our-wealth" societies as a "damnable self-made liar" today in denying charges made by Smith in a radio address last night.

Bilbo, who is a licensed minister of the Baptist church, said Smith should "take his bible and get back into the pulpit where he belongs."

"When the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith intimates, insinuates or charges that I went to New Orleans last week or any other time in my life with $25,000 in my pocket," Senator Bilbo said hotly, "he is a contemptible, dirty, vicious, pusillanimous, with malice-aforethought, damnable self-made liar.

"I went to New Orleans to make arrangements with the federal land bank to get some money that they were holding back on a loan to finish my dream house. I made the necessary arrangements and drove straight back to my office at Poplarville. I visited only two places in New Orleans, a restaurant and the bank."

U. S. USES DIVORCE OF DEMPSEY IN TRIAL OF GAMBLER M'KAY

New York, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Using the Jack Dempsey-Estelle Taylor divorce as its chief argument, the government today sought to prove that James C. McKay, western gambler, was in Reno, Nev., at the time swindle transactions were put through a Reno bank.

McKay and William J. Graham, both of Reno, are being tried on federal mail fraud charges in connection with an international swindle ring's operations.

McKay previously had testified he was not in Reno from July 20 to Aug. 20, 1931, when certain transactions were put through the Riverside bank there, but was in a hospital in Vallejo, Cal.

J. Howard Carter, government prosecutor, produced testimony McKay gave at the Dempsey divorce proceedings in 1931.

"Didn't you testify that you had seen Dempsey every day between April 11 and Aug. 19, 1931?" Carter asked the defendant.

"Yes," said the witness.

"Then which testimony is true?"

"I was in the hospital," McKay replied. "I misunderstood the question at the Dempsey divorce. I thought I had been asked only about Dempsey's six weeks' residence."

Graham, the next witness, denied he had ever participated in or received the proceeds of any of the alleged swindles.

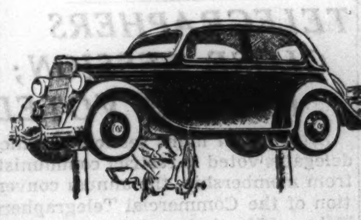
LOOK FOR THE FORD SIGN

THE Ford Motor Company very early decided that good service was as necessary as correct design and efficient manufacturing.

To give you service that measures up to factory requirements, Ford dealers' mechanics are factory trained. The modern, efficient equipment they use, such as the Ford Laboratory Test Set, saves you time and money. Charges are low, because uniform flat rates prevail. Perhaps one of the most noteworthy savings has been effected through the Ford Factory Engine Exchange Plan, which eliminates the old-fashioned costly overhaul.

Today we believe that Ford dealers and those garages which display the "Genuine Ford Parts" sign combine to provide the most complete, most satisfactory type of service available anywhere. Use these facilities and get the utmost in performance and economy from your Ford car or truck.



Your Ford dealer always lubricates your Ford in accordance with factory specifications. He has the modern equipment and skilled mechanics necessary to do good work.

Typical of the modern, scientific equipment used by Ford service stations is the Laboratory Test Set, which quickly and accurately checks engine and electrical performance.

At less cost than an old-fashioned overhaul, you can exchange your present Ford engine for a factory-reconditioned cylinder assembly. Many other units are also included in this service.

PARISIAN WOMAN DOCTOR HERE ON HEALTH MISSION

Tells of 70 Pct. Slash in Tuberculosis Deaths.

The tuberculosis mortality rate in the United States has dropped about 70 per cent since intensive campaigns against the disease began in the early part of the century, Dr. Alix Churchill of Paris, France, noted worker in tuberculosis and blindness prevention, said yesterday upon her arrival in Chicago.

Dr. Churchill is executive secretary of the International Union Against Tuberculosis and is associate secretary general of the International Association for the Prevention of Blindness. She is on a six weeks tour of American cities to attend conferences on world-wide campaigns against the two afflictions.

As she stepped from a Michigan Central train yesterday she was met by representatives of the Chicago Tuberculosis institute and the Illinois Association for the Preventiotn of Blindness. Later she visited the offices of the association.

Plans Two Day Visit Herc.

During her two day stay here Dr. Churchill will tour the institutions and hospitals of Chicago and suburbs which participate in tuberculosis and blindness prevention work. She will leave Tuesday morning for Denver.

"There are various theories concerning the evolution of tuberculosis throughout the world," Dr. Churchill said. "According to one school, the last two centuries have witnessed the world-wide outbreak of a tuberculosis epidemic which is slowly dying out. These authors are of the opinion that anti-tuberculosis measures have had little effect on the mortality and morbidity from the disease.

"Another school teaches that economic conditions are the main factor having a direct bearing on the tuberculosis death rate. According to a third theory, advanced by Sir Robert Philip of Edinburgh, anti-tuberculosis measures have a definite and decisive influence in curbing the disease.

Fight Begun Since 1900.

"The main lines of the campaign against tuberculosis were worked out in the early part of this century and anti-tuberculosis schemes have been developed in all civilized countries since 1905. A decline in the tuberculosis death rate has been observed since then.

"In the United States, for example, the figure came down from 195 per 100,000 inhabitants in the year 1900 to 63 in 1932. Generally speaking, the decline has been most marked in countries where the anti-tuberculosis programs have reached the highest level of efficiency and have been in operation for the longest time, such as in the United States, Great Britain, and Denmark."

GREET PARIS PHYSICIAN

Dr. Alix Churchill (center), noted Paris worker in tuberculosis and blindness prevention, was welcomed by Miss Frances Hooper (left) of the Chicago Tuberculosis institute and Mrs. M. G. Garrity of Illinois Society for Prevention of Blindness, on arrival here yesterday.

Lake County Drownings and Auto Deaths Decline

Dr. John L. Taylor, coroner of Lake county, yesterday issued statistics showing that the number of drownings in the county since Jan. 1 was 15, as compared to 29 in the corresponding period of 1934. Automobile deaths for the period also were reduced, the 1935 figure being 26, as compared with 47 in 1934. Dr. Taylor attributed the better record in drownings, in part, to a shorter season. He said that greater caution and better law enforcement had cut the auto toll.

JAPANESE COLONY PROTESTS POLICE RAID IN SHANGHAI

SHANGHAI, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Because Shanghai's foreign police raided a Japanese home here yesterday looking for a kidnap suspect, members of the local Japanese colony today demanded "vigorous action" against the municipal council and the governors of the international settlement. Japanese are represented on the settlmnt government.

Resentment against local British and French policemen flamed among the Japanese here, who declared their colony had been "outraged and insulted." Police explained the raid was made in error, resulting from a change in the house numbers on the street where Genzo Kumabe, Japanese whose house was entered, lived.

Kumabe charged that the police not only entered his house, but violated the sanctity of a Japanese home by striding in with their shoes on and kicking his 14 year old daughter.

MINERS' STRIKE AVERTED; WAGE PACT EXTENDED

Union, Operators Resume Negotiations Today.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 15.—[Sunday].—(AP)—Appalachian soft coal operators and the United Mine workers agreed shortly after last midnight to extend their present wage and hour contract until next Sunday midnight, thus averting a threatened strike in nearly every soft coal field in the country.

Fifth Truce in Six Months.

Edward F. McGrady, the labor department's ace labor trouble shooter, arranged the compromise agreement after negotiations toward a new contract broke down late yesterday. The present contract expires tonight at midnight.

The truce, the fifth in the last six months, was agreed to after telephone communications with President Roosevelt's Hyde Park, N. Y., home.

It was understood, however, that President Roosevelt took no personal hand in the negotiations, but left the parleys to an assistant.

Both Sides Give Ground.

The miners gave up their demand for a retroactive wage clause in any extension agreement. The producers gave up their proposal for a two week extension of the present contract.

Negotiations toward a new contract were to be resumed at 2 p. m. today, with McGrady sitting in as the President's representative.

WIND FROM GULF GIVES CITY A 4TH HOT DAY; HIGH 86°

Southerly winds continued to sweep up from the Gulf of Mexico yesterday, giving Chicago its fourth consecutive day of weather reminiscent of midsummer. The day was the warmest here since last Aug. 11.

The high point was reached at 3:30 p. m., when the official temperature reached 86 degrees. This is twelve degrees above the normal maximum of 74 degrees, Weather Forecaster Charles A. Donnel said.

The outlook for tomorrow, Mr. Donnel added, is for continued warm weather and fair skies. Winds are expected to be mostly southerly.

WIFE ACCIDENTALLY SLAIN.

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Mrs. Lester L. Smith, 23, was killed early today and Peace Justice Walter A. Ellis said she was shot by her husband, who mistook her for a burglar.

Slays Woman's Captor

Sergt. Ray Delaney of bomb squad examines dynamite found in street. He later shot to death a man he saw seize a woman.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Policeman Ray Delaney, of the bomb squad of the detective bureau, early today shot and fatally wounded a young man who attempted to flee after seizing a woman near Diversey and Francisco avenues.

Delaney, driving his car on his way home, heard the woman's screams and stopped to investigate. The man who was holding her ran north in Francisco avenue and hid in a passageway, into which the policeman also went. They struggled in the darkness until the youth broke away. Delaney fired when he refused to obey a command to halt.

The man, who said he was Edward Meyers, 22 years old, 2720 North Mozart street, was captured and taken to St. Mary's hospital, where he died from a wound in the left side of the abdomen. The woman who screamed is Miss Gladys Cartier, 31 years old, 2633 North California avenue. She asserted that the man apparently intended to rape her.

Southern Suburbs Hold Flower Show at Midlothian

Residents of many southern Cook county suburbs gathered yesterday at the American Legion hall in Midlothian for the first annual Fall Flower show sponsored by the Midlothian Garden club. There were more than 300 entries of flowers, fruits, and vegetables. The grand prize was won by Mrs. Arthur L. Smith, 14346 Murray street, Dolton, for her exhibit of dahlias. The ribbon was awarded her by Mrs. William Sedgwick, chairman of the show. The exhibit will continue through today.

MR. BUCKLE WAS IRRITATED, BUT NOW HE'S GLAD!

Frank Buckle, 1517 East 57th street, was annoyed last evening when his automobile ran over a paper wrapped package at 57th street and Lake Park avenue. Stopping the car, he got out and picked up the package, tossing it to the pavement near the curb. His son Thomas then examined the bundle and discovered that the package contained seven sticks of dynamite, fitted with a fuse and fuse cap. The police, to whom the package was given, said that Mr. Buckle was fortunate that the explosive just wouldn't go off.

5 NORTH SHORE BUDS MAKE BOWS TO SOCIAL WORLD

Four Teas and a Dinner-Dance Mark Events.

BY JUDITH CASS.

With five young women making their debuts during the afternoon and evening, yesterday will be remembered by society as one of the busiest days of the early fall. With the exception of Miss Clarice Hamill, who bowed at a supper-dance given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred E. Hamill at their Lake Forest residence, the Centaurs, last night, the debutantes were presented at teas.

Miss Hamill, who received with her parents, wore a Grecian gown of turquoise chiffon moulded to her figure in tiny plaits. Her flowers were talisman roses. Mrs. Hamill's dress was of white satin, made simply, and she carried no flowers.

Plan Entertainment Tonight.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe and their daughter, Miss Jean, are entertaining tonight at a supper in their Lake Forest home for Miss Hamill, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Poole and their daughter, Miss Nancy, who is to be a debutante next year, gave a dinner-party for her and some other Lake Forest debutantes last night before going over to dance on the outdoor platform constructed in the Hamill garden.

Yesterday's other Lake Forest bud was Miss Barbara Morse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton M. Morse, who was introduced at her parents' home, 495 East Deerpath road, at the same kind of a tea that was given for her sister Priscilla a year ago.

Two Teas in Winnetka.

In Winnetka there were two teas, one that Mr. and Mrs. Edwin P. Price gave for their daughter, Frances, and another given by Mr. and Mrs. William Dale Truesdale for their daughter Marjorie. Receiving with Miss Price and her parents was the debutante's grandfather, Russell C. Price. For her debut, Miss Price chose an eggshell satin gown trimmed in sable, harmonizing with the yellow and brown orchids pinned to her shoulder. Mrs. Price wore a brown lace dress shot with gold, and a corsage of purple orchids. Refreshments were served on the terrace.

Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Price took their daughter, her assistants, and their escorts to the Exmoor club to dine and dance.

Mr. and Mrs. Truesdale and their daughter greeted their guests at the Indian Hill club, where the latter was introduced at a tea-dance. Miss Truesdale's gown was of red moire, made with a deep yoke at the neck and a full stiff skirt. As a quaint touch she added a muff made of gardenias and coxcombs. Mrs. Truesdale's dress was made of two shades of green, accentuated by a dark green hat and a corsage of green orchids.

Debut Tea for Miss Brown.

Out in Wheaton Mr. and Mrs. William Bruce Brown gave a debut tea for their daughter, Ruth. The party took place at the Brown residence on Warrenville road, and tea was served in the garden. Receiving with the bud and her parents were her sister and brother, Elizabeth and Gardner.

Miss Brown was picturesque in a white brocade gown shot with silver, fashioned with a high round neck, long sleeves, and a low decolletage in back. Her flowers were purple orchids. Mrs. Brown's gown was of brown lace with full sleeves of shirred net. She wore a corsage of cream colored orchids with brown centers. Miss Elizabeth had on a simple dress of black velvet with a spray of gardenias on the shoulder.

Former French Officer's Shooting Held Suicide

A coroner's jury returned yesterday a verdict of suicide while temporarily insane in the death of Alfred Soriano, 50 years old, 7716 Eastlake terrace, an importer, who shot and killed himself on Friday in his office at 10 South La Salle street. Soriano, a French army captain in the world war, had been ill for years from wounds.

ONE DIES, 3 SHOT AS WORKERS AND PICKETS BATTLE

Seven Seized in Riot at Georgia Plant.

Rome, Ga., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Guns blazed in a pitched battle between pickets and a group of workers at the Rome Stove and Range company today, one worker being killed and three others wounded.

Two men were taken into custody on charges of violating a superior court anti-picketing order, and five were arrested later on "charges of shooting at another person." All were released on bonds.

The victim of the gun battle was Fred Reid, about 30, who came here from Cleveland, Tenn., to work in the plant.

Police said picketeers resented importation of workers to fill jobs vacated by more than 50 men who were enjoined from picketing or from engaging in a group walkout. The men quit their jobs, and some of them have been picketing.

Guardsmen Not Called.

No call for national guardsmen was made today, since the situation quieted down after the shooting. Gov. Eugene Talmadge sent 500 national guardsmen here last fall to preserve peace during a strike at several stove foundries.

The shooting today occurred as workers began arriving at the plant to go to their jobs.

Reid fell wounded as a hail of lead struck a taxicab in which he had gone to the plant. He died of a bullet wound in the head.

The other three men wounded were listed as George Tallent, Lucius Plank and Herman Ingram.

Police Sergeant Frank Russell said Ingram was a picket and the others were workers.

Bullet Strikes Artery.

Tallent and Plank were dismissed from the hospital after treatment for superficial gunshot wounds, but Ingram's condition was reported as not favorable. He suffered a gunshot wound in the shoulder and at first was reported as only slightly hurt, but the hospital said the bullet struck an artery and his condition was not good.

The warants charging shooting at another person were sworn out before Justice of the Peace Carter by B. V. Allen, who called on him with a large delegation.

He signed warants against H. E. Henson, superintendent of the foundry; Joe Henson, Clayton Woods, George Tallent and a man listed on a warant only as "brother" White.

MINNEAPOLIS MAYOR TO RECOMMEND 200 NEW CITY POLICEMEN

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 14.—[Special.] — Mayor Thomas Latimer will submit to the city council Sept. 27 a recommendation for addition of 200 policemen to the Minneapolis force based on the grand jury report Friday. The jury reported to Judge Paul W. Guilford, exonerating police after two days' investigation of the riot at the Flour City Ornamental Iron company in which two persons were shot to death and 30 injured.

Mayor Latimer said he would urge the increase in the police force because Minneapolis "wants new blood in the police department so it may be possible to dispose of some men who are inclined to use their muscles, guns, and clubs before they use their brains."

Inspector Fritz Ohman, questioned by the grand jurors as to what started the trouble Wednesday night, was reported to have replied "it just started; no one knows just how" as police were trying to disperse the crowds gathered in the vicinity of the iron plant.

The jurors will broaden their inquiry next week to include an investigation into the demonstration by unemployed at the city hall Friday when a crowd of several hundred was routed with tear gas.

Colorado Springs, Colo., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Miss Catherine Karhoff of Edina, Mo., and Francis Weaver of Moline, Ill., were married at sunrise this morning on the summit of Pikes peak.

TALMADGE WINS RULE OVER STATE PARTY LEADERS

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Georgia's representation on the Democratic national committee passed today into the hands of Gov. Eugene Talmadge, critic of the Roosevelt administration.

Mrs. Susie Tillman Moore of Tifton, long prominent in party affairs in the state, unanimously was chosen Democratic national committeewoman by the rules committee of the state Democratic executive committee. She remains a vice chairman of the state committee, controled by Talmadge.

Mrs. Moore, who supported President Roosevelt in 1932 by organizing 13 south Georgia counties and being president of the Tift county Roosevelt club, declined to comment on what position she would take in the event Gov. Talmadge enters the presidential preferential primary in 1936 as an opponent of Mr. Roosevelt.

Youth Shot During Bike Theft Will Recover

Charles Tarsoli, 17 years old, 839 North Damen avenue, was reported recovering yesterday in the Bridewell hospital from a bullet wound in the back received Friday night when he was shot by Policeman Thomas Addison of the West North avenue station in front of 1225 Rice street. The policeman became suspicious when the youth started to walk away with a bicycle belonging to Leon Leveday, 18 years old, 1108 North Francisco avenue, a messenger boy. When Tarsoli fled Addison fired. Leveday later signed a complaint charging Tarsoli with larceny.

STORE EMPLOYS EXTRA HELP FOR SALE TOMORROW

Henry G. Hart, manager of the Boston Store, announced yesterday that 2,500 extra sales people have been employed to handle the volume of extra business expected on Netcher day at the store tomorrow. He expressed confidence that the sales event would attract thousands of buyers and credited newspaper advertising for previous successful Netcher day promotions.

"Our faith in the value of newspaper advertising is proven, I think, by the fact that these Netcher day promotions, which are tremendous in scope, have been confined almost exclusively to the newspaper columns," he said.

Customers will be in a position to save many dollars, Hart added, because buyers for the store were able to place advance orders for goods before the recent increase in wholesale prices.

Robert Ward, alias Gordon Young, 51 years old, 18 East Chicago avenue, was sentenced to 30 days in the Bridewell and fined $1 in South State street court yesterday for passing a worthless check.

CONSIDER USE OF ICE BREAKERS ON WATERWAY

Engineers attached to the office of the United States army engineers for the Chicago district said yesterday they will consider plans to make ice breakers available for keeping the Illinois waterway open all winter when trafic justifies such measures. They pointed out, however, that when trafic becomes this heavy the operation of the regular tows probably would keep the channel open.

The engineers said that except in a severe winter the waterway is never frozen more than a week or ten days at a time. Ice doesn't form above Joliet, they said. Below Joliet the heaviest ice is in the Peoria lake, where a coating 18 inches thick sometimes forms in extremely cold weather.

They said that ice breakers never have been used in any river in the United States, but only in lakes where the water may be frozen throughout the winter.

FIRE DRIVES OUT FOUR FAMILIES.

Fire of undetermined origin broke out early yesterday in a frame building at 5001 Aberdeen street and drove out four families. Damage was estimated at $350.

MISS JOSEPHINE TEMPLETON WED TO S. D. JOHNSON

Reception Held Following Church Ceremony.

BY JUDITH CASS.

A lovely wedding yesterday afternoon in the Church of the Holy Spirit in Lake Forest was that of Miss Josephine Templeton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth S. Templeton, and Sidney D. Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney G. Johnson of Rahway, N. J. Canon Killian Stimpson, rector of St. Mark's church in Milwaukee, a cousin of the bride's father, read the service at 4:30 o'clock and a reception followed at the Templeton home.

The bride, who is tall and blonde, was given in marriage by her father. She wore her mother's beautiful wedding gown of white satin with a knee length tunic of tulle beaded with seed pearls, and a rosepoint lace trimming on the bodice. A handsome veil of rosepoint, lent by Mrs. Carleton Scribner, fell the length of the gown which was made when hobble skirts were fashionable, and a tulle veil covered the whole gown. The bridal bouquet was of white orchids, gardenias, and lilies of the valley.

Nine Attendants Precede Bride.

Nine attendants preceded the bride to the altar which, like the rest of the church, was decorated with white chrysanthemums and lighted by white candles. The matron of honor, one maid of honor, and the six bridesmaids were gowned alike in white velvet, trimmed in gold, with small white velvet hats, and the other maid of honor wore a similar gown of gold velvet with a matching hat. The matron of honor, Mrs. Ralph F. Chatillon, carried a bouquet of gardenias with a few yellow roses in the center, and the maid of honor who wore the gold gown, Miss Mary Montgomery of Madison, a cousin of the bride, carried a bouquet of gardenias. The rest of the attendants carried roses in various shades of yellow and gold.

The second maid of honor was Miss Barbara Soper, and the bridesmaids were the Misses Elizabeth Ann Montgomery and Emily Price, cousins of the bride; Elizabeth Alexander, Lucy Harrison, Frances McPherson, and Margaret Taylor of Pittsburgh. Edward Johnson served his brother as best man, and there were eight ushers, including James S. Templeton, the bride's brother

Mrs. Templeton Heads Line.

Mrs. Templeton, at the head of the receiving line in the flower filled living room, was dressed in green silk, with which she wore a brown velvet hat, sables, and lavendar orchids. Mrs. Johnson, the bridegroom's mother, wore black lace, a black hat, and orchids. After a wedding trip east by motor, with a stopover at Lake Placid, Mr. Johnson and his bride will be at home in New York City.

A half an hour later, at 5 o'clock, in Wheaton Miss Jean Dunbar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David O. Dunbar, became the bride of Lawrence E. Denman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burt J. Denman, in the Dunbar home on Carlton avenue. The Rev. John Heuss of St. Luke's pro-cathedral in Evanston, and the Rev. Frank Hobart Millett of Trinity church in Wheaton read the service which was followed by a reception.

The bride wore a simple white satin gown with a lace cap and a tulle veil. Mr. Denman and his bride will make their home in Cambridge, Mass., for the next year until he finishes a course at the Harvard school of business administration.

G. O. P. FACTIONS FIGHT FOR VOTES IN PHILADELPHIA

Democrats This Time Have Machine.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—The most unusual primary campaign this city has seen will be climaxed in Tuesday's election when party nominees will be chosen for scores of city offices, headed by that of mayor. Some 800,000 are eligible to vote.

For the Republicans it will be a free and "unbossed" primary for the first time in the memory of most of those going to the polls. With no organization slate, with the ward leaders divided into factions supporting three candidates, the decision on nominees from mayor to magistrates is in the hands of the individual voters —a novel experience in this traditionally machine ruled city.

Slate is Hand Picked.

For the Democrats, who have been clamoring for years for overturn of the Republican "boss" domination, the primary will be cut and dried. A political machine modeled strictly along the lines of that set up by the Vares and the other dominant Republican leaders in years past has been set in motion by the Democratic organization which has hand picked a complete slate.

The three leading Republican candidates for mayor are office holders, City Treasurer Will B. Hadley, City Controler S. Davis Wilson and Sherif Richard Weglein.

Once Elected by Democrats.

Wilson and Hadley, who are dividing the organization, were for years thorns in the side of the Vare organization machine. Both were Republicans during the year when Hadley was controler and Wilson was his first assistant and his close friend. Two years ago, approaching the end of a term, Hadley resigned as controler and Wilson was appointed to succeed him by the then governor, Gifford Pinchot.

With the advent of the election, Hadley filed for city treasurer, Wilson for a full term as controler. The Vare organization disowned both of them and defeated them in the primaries. The revived Democrats, looking for vote getters at the head of their ticket so as to sweep some other jobs, nominated Hadley and Wilson and proceeded to elect them.

Last year Wilson helped to elect Democratic Governor Earle. Hadley supported the Republican, Schnader. Now both are after the Republican nomination for mayor.

Heading the Democratic slate is John B. [Handsome Jack] Kelly, contractor and one time Olympic oarsman, who has picked himself for the mayoralty. Mr. Kelly and his contractor colleague, Matthew H. McCloskey, are the dominating figures in the resuscitated Democratic party in Philadelphia. The primary ticket the Democrats will indorse Tuesday is their ticket.

A record breaking number of voters have qualified themselves to cast ballots. The total enrollment is approximately 800,000, with the Republicans leading the Democrats in a 5 to 3 ratio. That total is about 50,000 above the previous high water mark attained here for the state elections last year.

AMERICAN FLYERS URGED TO CAPTURE SIXTY NEW RECORDS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Although the United States now holds 45 world records in aviation, this country should strive to capture some 60 more which are within the reach of present technical development here, William R. Enyart, secretary of the contest board of the National Aeronautic association, has written in the September issue of the National Aeronautic magazine, published today.

The United States took the lead this year for the first time in seven years, Mr. Enyart says, in the number of aviation records held. The Sikorsky S-42 gathered 10 records, his computation shows; D. W. Tomlinson flying a T. W. A. Douglas D. C. 1, took nine, and individual records were brought to this country by the following: Benjamin King, sportsman pilot of Washington; Lieutenant Commander Stone and Lieut. Burke of the coast guard in their Grumman amphibians. Helen McCloskey, with her Monocoupe; Art Chester in his Chester special, and Maxine Bennett in a Spartan.

The list did not take into account the world's speed record of 353 miles an hour set yesterday by Howard Hughes at Santa Ana, Cal.

Arraign Girl Tomorrow in Robbing of Benefactor

Elaine Campbell, 19 years old, who gave her address as Winnipeg, Man., will be arraigned tomorrow before Frank Pavek, Berwyn police magistrate, on a charge of having stolen $300 worth of women's clothes from Mrs. J. E. Powers, 7141 West 34th street, Berwyn. The girl stole the clothes, according to Berwyn police, when she was left alone in the home of Mrs. Powers, who had befriended her.

BITTER CONTESTS WILL MARK N. Y. PRIMARY TUESDAY

New York, Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Bitter contests, of which there are an unusually large number for an "off" year politically, will mark Tuesday's primary election in New York City.

The primary fights of greatest interest are the contest between District Attorney W. F. X. Geoghan and Samuel Leibowitz for the Democratic nomination for district attorney of Kings county, the Tammany district leadership fights in sixteen Manhattan assembly districts, and the contests for election of county committee members and district leaders in the Republican primary in New York county for the effect the results will have on the reëlection of Chase Mellon Jr. as county chairman.

The contest between Leibowitz and Geoghan is being so hard fought that it may give an excellent chance of election to former City Controler Joseph D. McGoldrich, whom Controler Frank J. Taylor defeated last year. Mr. McGoldrick, an independent Democrat, is unopposed for the Republican nomination for district attorney of Kings county.

Dynamite Blast Kills Three Road Workers; Injures 8

Longmont, Colo., Sept. 14.—Three highway workers were killed and eight injured in a dynamite explosion which burst last night from a cliff on the North Saint Vrain canyon road near Lyons, Colo.

The blast-torn crew of 11 men was hurled from a steep granite wall when 100 sticks of dynamite exploded. The men plunged to a mountain road 150 feet below where sharp rocks, ripped from the precipice, toppled upon them.

OPEN FESTIVITIES TODAY IN HONOR OF CONSTITUTION

Military Drill and Political Rally Scheduled.

Chicago's three day observance of Constitution day, which is to reach its climax with a program of speeches and pageants at the Stadium Tuesday evening will open today with two major events.

A martial note will be sounded this afternoon at exercises at the south end of Lincoln park in connection with honors to be paid to the contributions of the Chicago Board of Trade in three wars. An artillery salute, a parade and a fast drill by a troop of lancers will precede ceremonies at the museum of the Chicago Historical society.

At the same time—if, on this third attempt, the weather man is kind—the annual Republican rally at Riverview park will get under way. Frank Knox, Chicago newspaper editor and publisher who was scheduled as the orator on the original Labor day program, will be the speaker of the day. Two postponements have brought the rally so close to Constitution day—Tuesday—that the promoters say that patriotism more than partisanship will dominate the occasion.

Two Events Tomorrow.

Tomorrow will see events which were planned from the beginning as actual parts of the commemoration of the adoption of the constitution. There are two important evening programs.

The Union League club, which traces its inception to the civil war, will have a members' dinner which will be addressed by two former governors, one a Republican, the other a Democrat, but both strong constitutionalists. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, wartime governor of his state, is the Republican. The Democrat is Joseph B. Ely, former governor of Massachusetts.

At the Medinah temple, 14 East Ohio street, the Chicago Bar association will present an historical pageant, "The Making of the Constitution," in which members of the organization will play the rôles of twenty-five men who participated in the drawing up of the supreme law of the land. The debates are historically true in outline.

Schools to Have Part.

Tuesday's observances will open with various forms of commemoration in all of the schools in the city. "It is well," read a bulletin issued by Supt. W. J. Bogan of the public schools yesterday, "to emphasize by means of special programs the great value of this document to the nation."

At noon there will be two luncheons commemorating Constitution day. The Sons of the American Revolution will have a public luncheon in the Red room of the Hotel La Salle. The Rotary Club of Chicago, at the Hotel Sherman, will have as speaker on "American Business and the Constitution," Dean Ralph E. Heilman of the school of commerce of Northwestern university.

Record in Three Wars.

In this long list, the first event—the Lincoln park exercises today—is sponsored by the Chicago Board of Trade post of the American Legion. It is a tribute to the long record of the board for patriotic endeavor and accomplishment in the civil war, the Spanish war, and the world war.

The first field artillery shots of the civil war were fired by Battery A, Chicago light artillery, which included officers from the Board of Trade. Henry Rumsey, son of Capt. I. P. Rumsey of that battery, is the representative of the board on the program today. In 1862 the board organized, equipped, and put into the field the Board of Trade battery and three regiments which later became the 72d, 88th, and 113th Illinois volunteer infantry. They fought in many battles.

Three survivors of those regiments are James Arnold, 97 years old; Edward Luff, 94, and William Metzger, 87, will take part in today's exercises.

Militia Supplied in '98.

In the Spanish war, the first naval militia to leave for Cuba was equipped by the Board of Trade. Flags of that war will be presented to the Board of Trade post today by E. D. Norton, a veteran.

In April, 1917, the board presented to the French government three ambulances, driven by Raymond S. Simons, Wesley S. McLean, and Walter S. Boogs, which were assigned to the French 161st infantry division and went into active service. Flags and decorations will be presented for this contribution by Rene Weiller, French consul at Chicago.

Colorful ceremonies will precede these presentations. At 1:15 Consul Weiller will arrive at the Grant monument to review the 122d field artillery lancers' troop, which will escort him to the Historical society building.

Exhibition Drill by Lancers.

En route the lancers will stage an exhibition drill and there will be music from several military units, among them the Scotch bagpipe band of the Canadian and British Empire post, the Board of Trade post band, and the band of the 122d field artillery.

Among the notables who will participate at the ceremonies in the Historical society building will be Maj. Gen. Frank McCoy and his staf, Rear Admiral John Downes and his staf, Thomas Ambrose, state commander of the G. A. R.; James B. Murphy, state commander of the American Legion, and Brig. Gen. John V. Clinnin.

A complete costume rehersal for the dramatic spectacle "Land of Liberty," which will be presented at the Stadium after the speaking Tuesday night, will be held this afternoon. It will be under the supervision of Director Isaac Van Grove, who is getting together a cast of 2,000 principals and extras.

POLICEMAN LEO O'BRIEN.

Policeman Leo O'Brien of the Central station shot and killed Howard Atkinson, 30 years old, 1517 South Michigan avenue, an automobile mechanic, yesterday when Atkinson, apparently intoxicated, reached for his hip pocket as if to draw a weapon during an altercation at 16th and State streets.

The shooting occurred just after Mrs. Wilford Bradley, 4304 Lake Park avenue, a nurse, had asked Policeman O'Brien to try to effect a reconciliation between her and her husband, a bus driver for the Bluebird lines, which has a station at 16th and State streets.

Just before Bradley appeared in his bus, Atkinson, driving Bradley's automobile, drew up and Mrs. Bradley said: "There's my husband's friend." O'Brien went over to talk to him but found him intoxicated and quarrelsome, the policeman said. When O'Brien ordered him from the car he started fighting. Bradley then arrived in his bus. He asked O'Brien to let Atkinson alone. It was then Atkinson made the gesture as if to pull a weapon and O'Brien fired, the bullet striking Atkinson in the abdomen. He died in Mercy hospital.

TRIES TO DRIVE AUTO OVER TWO N. Y. DETECTIVES

New York, Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Jack Blatt, 39 years old, employed as foreman in the circulation department of The Day, was arrested today and held on a charge of felonious assault after he attempted to drive his car over two detectives who sought to question him on the upper level of the Manhattan bridge.

Detectives Robert De Mario, Louis Fiori, and Lieut. Harry Hanley of the Elizabeth street station were crossing the bridge when they came to a parked car and saw a man walking near the railing of the bridge.

The detectives stopped and questioned the man, who refused to account for himself. Lieut. Hanley ordered De Mario to walk to the police booth at the foot of the bridge and summoned the trafic patrolman.

While the policemen were waiting for De Mario's return Blatt jumped in his car and without warning started his motor and drove directly at the two men who were standing only a few feet ahead.

The detectives attempted to leap out of the way, but the attack was so sudden that the car was upon them before they could get clear. Both were knocked to the roadway and the car disappeared.

ASKS PARK BOARD TO ALTER POLICY ON USE OF FIELD

State Labor Body Attacks Three Refusals.

Belleville, Ill., Sept. 14.—[United Press.]—The Illinois Federation of Labor today adopted a resolution urging the Chicago park board to reconsider its entire policy governing permits for use of Soldiers' field for public gatherings.

It characterized the issue as squarely one of "freedom of speech and free assembly." The resolution was provoked by refusal of the park board to allow the Chicago Federation of Labor to use the field for a Labor day gathering.

Action of the convention not only reflected the adverse decision in the case of the Chicago federation, but refusal of the park board to allow Father Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit radio priest, to use Soldiers' field.

Personal Attack Deleted.

As originally introduced, the resolution embodied a personal attack upon Robert Dunham, president of the park board, who was charged by the Chicago federation with "malfeasance in office." When finally ironed out by the resolutions committee, however, the proposal deleted all personal reference to Dunham.

The committee, in a majority report, explained that the issue was of such vital importance that it ought not to be obscured by reference to personalities. On this point the Chicago delegation was overruled by the convention, and a minority report was withdrawn.

Remedy Is Proposed.

Secretary Victor Olander of the state federation advocated the majority report, pointing out that it offered a positive remedy to the situation of which the Chicago delegation complained, whereas the minority report offered no corrective suggestion.

Policy of the park board consistently has been to refuse use of Soldiers' field for any gathering smacking of a controversial nature. Even a Constitution day meeting was turned down, Dunham explaining the action was in line with the policy of the board in the Coughlin case.

The park board resolution was the highlight of the convention week.

President Roosevelt was requested to issue an executive order to pay prevailing union wage scales on Works Progress administration projects. A proposal to call a strike on PWA projects was defeated.

A proposal to organize workers by industries, instead of by crafts, as is now the common practice, was defeated after long and bitter argument.

BARTENDER AWAITS SENTENCE.

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Melvin Aldag, 22 year old bartender at Lake Lansing, was in the county jail at Mason late today awaiting sentence on a charge of manslaughter as the outcome of an argument over an unpaid beer bill in which George B. Vanatta, 33, Meridian township highway commissioner, was fatally shot.

BANDIT SLAIN BY POLICEMAN TO BE PUT IN 'SHOW UP'

The body of Walter Schmidt, who was wounded fatally on Friday in a gun battle with Policeman Samuel McDowell at 63d street and Eggleston avenue, will be placed on view at the county morgue for possible identification by victims of south side robberies. Schmidt died early yesterday of four wounds.

Capt. Michael Tobin of the Englewood police, who ordered the "show up," said he believes Schmidt, whose address was given as 6345 South Washtenaw avenue, was a member of a gang of five men which made a business of robbing persons on their way to or from banks.

Policeman McDowell, who defended Beatrice Cunningham, cashier of the Prudential Life Insurance company branch at 453 West 63d street, as she was carrying $1,600 to a bank, was reported recovering yesterday at St. Bernard's hospital from wounds received in the battle. Schmidt's two companions escaped.

Ernest Elmo Calkins, author of "Louder Please" and other works, in a foreword to fellow sufferers advises reading the booklet, "Defeating Deafness," by Isabel Beglan.

"You who read this and I who write it have one thing in common. We both know what it means to be hard of hearing. I have been deafened practically all my life and have now become worse. Whatever you may feel at this present moment about your affliction, be sure I have known that stage of it, for I have been through them all.

"With a lifetime experience with this exasperating handicap, I can say to you with the utmost confidence there is no thrill like that of being able to hear again after years of baffling and embarrassing disappointment. The whole world takes on a new radiance as though another window had been opened.

"Therefore, I urge you to read this little book ("Defeating Deafness") earnestly and thoughtfully. Take it to heart and qualify to cope with your problem. It may prove to be the turning point of your life. The first step is the hardest, to admit one is deafened, admit it to one's self and to the world; but the compensations outweigh the penalties, as you will find."

The booklet referred to by Mr. Calkins is available to the hard of hearing without cost. You may simply write to (postcard will do) ACOUSTICON, Dept. 714, 180 No. Michigan Blvd., Chicago, for your free copy and learn how deafness may be successfully defeated. There is no obligation whatsoever.

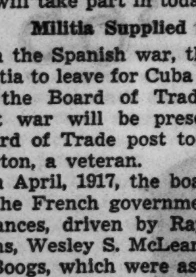
CONSTIPATION, LIVER AND GALL BLADDER TROUBLES

Need Pluto Water with Amazing Double Action

1. Safely, Surely Relieves Constipation, in One Hour or Less!
2. Stimulates Gall Bladder and Liver to Normal, "Free-Flowing" Action!



Constipation, liver and gall bladder troubles often come together. Millions suffer them daily—yet don't know why. Often, physicians say, it is not only because you're constipated, but also because biliary drainage from liver and gall bladder is not normal.

Hence, ordinary laxatives that act only on bowels to temporarily relieve constipation still leave you feeling terrible. Pluto Water, however (with its amazing double action), relieves all these troubles at the same time.

First, Pluto gives you a sure, gentle flush in an hour or less. Second, it stimulates gall bladder and liver to normal, "free flowing" action. So relief is quick—and thorough! You feel amazingly better in an hour. Soon feel normal again! That's why more than 50,000 doctors take Pluto themselves and recommend it to their patients. That's why your own doctor, too, will tell you there is nothing better.

DO AS DOCTORS DO

Dr. W. R. K. of Iowa says: "Since a gall bladder operation, my liver has never functioned normally. Pluto gives me best relief."

So do as doctors do next time you feel dull and listless from constipation, liver or gall bladder troubles. Take Pluto Water in the tasteless, non-habit-forming dose — 1/5 Pluto, 4/5 glass hot water. Cleanse your system of health-destroying poisons this sure way. You'll be amazed at the difference it makes!

Two hundred million bottles of Pluto have been used—millions more each year. The safest, surest, most economical relief you can buy. Comes in 2 sizes—25c and 50c—at all drug stores. A beneficial, saline mineral water from famous French Lick Springs, Indiana.

GERMAN YOUTHS TOLD TO BECOME AS HARD AS STEEL

54,000 Boys and Girls Cheer Hitler's Order.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NUREMBERG, Germany, Sept. 14.—One hundred and fifty new army tanks lumbered through Nuremberg today. Adolf Hitler's lieutenants described them as concrete symbols of the strength and power for which the German nation must strive if it obeys orders and pleases its fuehrer.

"Become as tough as lether, as hard as Krupp steel," Hitler ordered the youth of Germany at the Nazi party convention. His message to adults was to "strive and perfect that spirit of unity which alone makes the strength of a nation and enables it to surmount its last difficulties."

The old generation, Hitler told the youths, admired a student who was a great beer drinker.

Urges Youth to Be Hard.

"Today we want to see hard young men," he said. "The number of glasses of beer he can drink means nothing, but his ability to take punishment does. The number of nights he can go 'bumming' does not count, but the number of miles he can march, does.

"The German boy of the future must be slim, swift as a greyhound, tough as lether, hard as Krupp steel. We don't talk, we act. We have undertaken to train this nation through a new school. The training starts in childhood and ends with the old fighter for the Nazi movement.

"Nobody should have the right to say that there shall come a time when he will be completely free to his own devices. Everybody is compelled to serve the nation, to arm himself for this service, to steel himself physically and mentally. That is our determination—hardness which is a true characteristic of our race.

"We shall steel ourselves to meet every setback with strength. We will never forget that the total sum of all virtues and forces can be effective only if they are subject to a single will and order. If other nations do not understand us, we do not care."

54,000 Youths Cheer Hitler.

Later in the day they glimpsed the fleet of the army tanks. This was the first public appearance of the new weapons. The tanks, which had participated in army maneuvers, had been concealed in a special camp five miles from Nuremberg. As the tanks lumbered past Hitler, he saluted them from the balcony of his hotel.

"The tanks, called the "victory tank corps," traveled at a speed of 20 miles an hour. Two soldiers occupied each machine, which is equipped with two movable machine guns in front and two flame throwers in the rear. Twelve tanks comprise a division.

The tank corps members, none of whom is more than 20 years old, wore black uniforms and berets decorated with silver death's heads. The insignia of the tank corps is a silver skull and crossbones displayed on black pennants.

Stresses Control Over Business.

The absolute dictatorship of the state over private business was stressed by Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, reich dictator of economics.

"The time is past," he said, "when business exists for itself and can do with its earnings as it pleases. It is true that individual enterprises cannot live without making a surplus, but business proceeds must now be used in the service of the entire nation. In fact, business must serve the nation.

"Almost none of the large nations can progress without a state directorship responsible to the nation as a whole. Nations have suffered too bitterly under the scourge of unemployment to leave the fate of the working masses to the mercy of the free play of economic forces."

Though he advocated state direction of business, Schacht meekly warned of the danger of burocratization.

Great Sacrifices Advocated.

Robert Ley, leader of the labor front, took up Schacht's cue and indicated that Germans must prepare to make great sacrifices.

"We can demand great sacrifices from the nation," he said. "We must only see to it that these sacrifices do not rest on the shoulders of a single class or on the weakest class, but that they are borne by the entire nation."

The leader of the labor front and its 23,000,000 members admitted that prices of commodities had increased. According to Ley prices of foodstuffs rose 13 per cent, although the housewife's estimates are infinitely bigger.

As leader of the "Strength Through Joy" movement, Ley announced that he intends to send 7,000,000 workers on vacation trips each year. To fulfill this plan Hitler has ordered him to prepare for three bathing resorts able to accommodate 20,000 persons each. A fourth health resort is planned in the country with 50,000 beds.

More than 1,000 persons were reported fishing in major park lagoons of the Chicago park district yesterday when the park fishing season was officially opened by Evan I. Kelly, chief of the special park service division.

"The season will be open until all the fish are caught," Kelly said.

Last spring the park lagoons were stocked with blue gills, pickerel, and bass, according to park officials. The parks in which fishing is permitted, according to Kelly, are Lincoln, Jackson, Garfield, Columbus, Humboldt and Douglas. Fishing will open in the Washington park lagoon on Sept. 21.

RUSSIANS TRACE SKELETON OF MAN BACK 40,000 YEARS

MOSCOW, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Skeletons of human beings, believed by scientists to date back 40,000 years, have been found in the Crimea by an expedition of the Soviet Historical museum, it was disclosed today.

The remains were found in an under layer of clay beneath the ruins of a settlement thought by archæologists to have been inhabited 15,000 years later. The party has been exploring the cavern of Zamil-Kobar, near the village of Cherkes-Kaman. At another point on the bank of the River Katcha members of the expedition found carvings on rocks depicting battle scenes. These were believed by scientists to be from four to five thousand years old. Near by were found traces of a habitation which is being examined carefully in the belief that it contains relics of the Neanderthal man.

Another expedition of the museum reported from the Kazak republic that it had discovered a sacrificial place of the bronze age, together with jars containing the charred bones of sacrificed animals, bronze knives, and the remains of oval shaped dwellings 80 feet long.

Pilot Burned as Plane Crashes Into Empty Ship

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Sam Sague, Cleveland sportsman pilot, suffered head burns today when the monoplane he was attempting to land in gusty winds at the Detroit airport crashed into an unoccupied plane on the ground. Both planes burst into flames and were considerably damaged. Sague said he lost control when the wind whipped the tail of his plane around. At a hospital here his burns were described as severe.

U. S. 'REGRETS' JUDGE'S ATTACK ON NAZI REGIME

Note by Hull Criticizes Magistrate.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—America today told Germany that it "regretted" the remarks of Magistrate Louis Brodsky, New York municipal judge, who provoked a Nazi protest a week ago by calling the Hitler régime a "throwback to barbarism."

Secretary of State Cordell Hull shortly after noon handed to Rudolf Leitner, German chargé d'affaires, a brief note in which he explained that the federal government had no control over Magistrate Brodsky. Nevertheless Secretary Hull gave the New York judge a verbal spanking for "going out of his way adversely to criticize the German government."

"Regrettable," Says Hull.

"It is to be regretted," Secretary Hull informed Germany, "that an official having no responsibility for maintaining relations between the United States and other countries should, regardless of what he may personally think of the laws and policies of other governments, thus indulge in expressions offensive to another government with which we have official relations."

The American note was in reply to a protest lodged with the state department last Saturday by Hans Luther, German ambassador. Acting on orders from the Berlin ministry of propaganda, Luther protested against Magistrate Brodsky's remarks likening the Nazi swastika to "the black flag of piracy," and terming the Nazi state "a revolt against civilization."

Brodsky's remarks were made when he handed down a decision freeing five communists accused of unlawful assembly because, on July 26, they ripped the Nazi flag from the liner Bremen and threw it into New York harbor.

Note Reviews Case.

Reviewing the case, Secretary Hull said:

"It appears that those accused were charged with the violation of the penal law of New York, prohibiting unlawful assemblies.

"The magistrate reached the conclusion, upon the correctness of which the department cannot undertake to pass, that the evidence submitted did not support the charge of unlawful assembly and dismissed the complaint and discharged the defendants on this charge.

"The complaint of the German government is specifically directed at the statements made by the magistrate in rendering his decision which that government interprets as an unwarranted reflection upon it.

"Criticism Not Relevant."

"The department is constrained to feel that the magistrate, in restating contentions of the defendants in the case and in commenting upon the incident, unfortunately so worded his opinion as to give the reasonable and definite impression that he was going out of his way adversely to criticize the German government, which criticism was not a relevant or legitimate part of his judicial decision.

"I may explain that state and municipal officials are not instrumentalities of the federal government. Although in this country the right of freedom of speech is well recognized by our fundamental law, it is to be regretted that an official having no responsibility for maintaining relations between the United States and other countries should, regardless of what he may personally think of the laws and policies of other governments, thus indulge in expressions offensive to another government with which we have official relations."

20 years without injury to a single user

If your hair is faded, streaked or gray, you are sure to be delighted with Canute Water. This is a pure, colorless, odorless and crystal-clear liquid of wonderful properties which actually recolors gray hair. By using Canute Water, lustrous, youthful looking hair can be yours once more.

There is as much difference between Canute Water and "old-fashioned" hair dyes as there is between an electric light and an old-fashioned kerosene lamp.

Easy to Use

Because of its safety, cleanliness and positive action, you can use Canute Water alone, in the privacy of your own room. No previous experience is necessary. Just wet the hair with it and allow it to dry. Could anything be simpler?

Canute Water re-colors gray hair in from 1 to 3 applications, depending on shade. The whole treatment can be completed in a single day, if desired. After that, a single treatment, once a month, is sufficient to keep it that way.

Canute Water is not sticky or greasy and leaves the hair clean and natural to the touch. It is not only a hair "darkener" but imparts a color similar to nature's own.

Are YOU Old-Fashioned?

Only a few years ago the father of a young girl discovered a box of rouge and lipstick on her dressing table. And he raised a howl about it. Today he brings these home as gifts . . . Which only goes to prove that times have changed. That today, it is considered a woman's duty to look as young as she can. If she neglects herself, she is considered unkempt . . . Nothing adds more years to your appearance than gray, streaked or faded hair. And there is nothing like Canute Water to bring them beauty, color and lustre.

Color is Permanent

The effect is so perfectly natural that there is not even the hint of a dyed appearance. Your most intimate friends will be unable to distinguish the re-colored hair from the natural. And it remains permanent against sun, air, salt-water or shampooing.

No matter what has caused your grayness, Canute Water will positively overcome it. There are no exceptions. Even if you have been using some other hair coloring preparation, it need not prevent you from trying Canute Water. It can be applied with equal satisfaction either during the day or at night and in all weather conditions.

Since Canute Water does not alter the texture of your hair, you may curl, wave or set it — or get a permanent — as usual.

Inexpensive

Even a very modest purse can spare the trifling cost of keeping the hair lovely with Canute Water. A bottle will last you for several months. If you wish to share the first one with a friend, you will find that it contains enough for both.

Here's a little secret. We made a survey in a number of Cities recently and found that over 40% of Canute Water users are men. Which only goes to prove that they, too, are recognizing the demands of society and industry for a youthful appearance.

MANDATES AND PROTECTORATES.

The mandate is the child of Wilsonian idealism deceived and betrayed by real politik at the quaintly styled peace conference of Paris. It was hailed by ingenuous liberals as a means of uplifting backward peoples and of substituting international altruism for the ruthlessness of competitive imperialism. Few if any of the peoples who had mandates imposed upon them were impressed by this optimism and subsequent experience has in most cases confirmed their fears.

It is not likely, therefore, that the Abyssinians, long an independent race and proud of it, will accept a mandate or a protectorate if they can resist it, even though it is wrapped up in the tinsel of altruistic rhetoric of which the league has an unfailing supply. What is, in fact, going on is a partition of their country, a division among great powers of the spoils of power.

Perhaps the adoption by modern diplomacy of the verbiage of pacifism and international altruism represents an advance in the conduct of international relations. We doubt it. It may be argued that it is at least a recognition of the force of higher motives and aspirations among peoples which, however ineffectual at this stage, will eventually compel governments to obey them. This theory rests, however, on the essential fallacy that governments are the only mischief makers and their peoples the victims of policies and enterprises with which they have little sympathy or do not understand.

This, of course, is in some measure, and sometimes decisively, true. Foreign relations are the branch of government whose proceedings are least known to the public, partly because the average man and woman are preoccupied with their own personal cares and partly because they are taught to assume that the conduct of foreign relations is too delicate a matter to be exposed to public discussion. Nevertheless, in the main, diplomacy must work with the actual currents of public thought and emotion so far as its major enterprises are concerned, and while governments may and often do inflame popular passions to win support for their plans and their continuance in power, they could not and would not succeed unless the passions were there.

The national ambitions, jealousies, rancors, and selfish particularism which have blocked the restoration of European peace, sowed the seeds of new wars and prevented the coöperation so critically needed within the economic framework of Europe are not the malevolent inventions of politicians. On the contrary, many statesmen have tried to mitigate them and some have been destroyed in the attempt. The present situation, it need hardly be said, is not one of these instances, and while there is covert objection to the Abyssinian adventure, the masses of the Italian people, even those who will have to do the fighting and dying, seem to be whole-heartedly for it. The pacifist and radical theory that the masses are always averse to war and expansion has as little support in this instance as in the innumerable others which history records in our own time as well as in the past.

The formulas through which diplomacy, especially since the great war, pursues its fundamental objectives are concessions to organized minorities—troublesome in politics but not decisive—not to that mythical world opinion which is supposed to demand justice and peace and express a lofty altruism. We think they conduce to self-deception, especially to that of the American people, inexperienced as we have been in international conflict as well as congenitally optimistic or negligent of the harsher lessons of the past on which we have always thought we had shut the door. So far as the hope of American assistance or moral support is cherished by foreign powers the new formulas are worth while. They also help to restrain internal dissent. But they cover realities which it were better for all peoples, and especially the American, to face and make their terms with.

Italy wishes anxiously and has need to expand and to increase its deficient resources. Its effort will not be paralyzed by world opinion, which does not exist in the sense assumed by those ardent theorists who rely upon it for international peace. It will not be broken by the protest of weaker nations rightly concerned over their own weakness and the failure of the much advertised machinery for the abolition of force in international affairs. If it is blocked or restricted it will be the work of powers strong enough to enforce their will and concerned with their own practical interests, however they may dress up their policy in terms of peace and justice among nations. If the face of the league can be saved by forms, the forms will be used, but the results will be the same as have emerged from past conflicts and arrangements among the powers.

ELECT MUCH BETTER MEN TO CONGRESS.

The eclipse of the national house of representatives was well under way before the New Deal rushed it to totality in jig time. Now the house is threatened with permanence in the shadow. It is an eclipse which means obliteration unless the various constituencies do something about it.

In many important industrial districts politics has used the house of representatives as a sort of dump heap. If a man made a bit of a stir in the organization and did not rate one of the better local offices he'd be shunted off to Washington, a tenth rate man for what ought to be a first rate place. The practice has filled the house with hacks who are contented with the life, the pay, and the perquisites. The size of the body, the quality of the personnel, and the rules which permit the herding and handling of the members combine to make the house of representatives an assemblage of registry clerks.

The central states have been the chief offenders and much against their own interests. In nearly every combination for logrolling the central representatives are found unconscious under the logs. Although the effect upon certain sections of the country is serious, what poor representation does to the country as a whole is a calamity.

Unless a considerable number of districts can obtain the services of better men representative democracy will lose its character by abandon and disuse. One branch of the government will become a rudimentary appendage. A determined executive perfecting his controls—money and jobs—will submit laws, as in fact is now done, and acceptance will be a matter of business routine.

It has become a matter of public duty for qualified men entering politics and public service to consider the congressional field as one inviting them in national interest. The continuance of the American form of government requires the restoration of congress to its standing as a deliberative lawmaking body which may receive advice and suggestions from the executive, but not orders and commands. Administrative control is fatal to representative government.

Realizing that this issue is to the front of American political action now, THE TRIBUNE has added to its platform the plank: "Elect much better men to congress." They must be "much better" men to be any good at all.

MINNEAPOLIS EXODUS.

Two persons were killed within the last few days in open warfare on the streets of Minneapolis between police and rioters. The slain were innocent passersby, which speaks less for the efficiency of the police than for their apparent good intentions to preserve order. Now the mayor of the city has been slugged by partisans of the rioters, who mask their disorders behind a labor dispute.

The city has reverted again to the law of club and fang, as it did a year ago during the truck strike. The proposal of Gov. Olson to call out the militia, in view of the conduct of that body in the previous strike, can be interpreted not as a move to suppress disorder but to foster it by military protection.

The extent to which Minneapolis subscribes to the un-American gospel of class warfare, the irresponsible utterances and violent acts of Gov. Olson in supporting civic disorder, and the continual campaign of that official and his party to destroy freedom of the press are sufficient to refute the claim of the city to a place among civilized communities. If the law-abiding citizens of Minneapolis find the politico-criminal alliance responsible for these conditions too strong for them, their obvious remedy is to take themselves and their businesses to more orderly communities. In view of his recent experience, Mayor Latimer may be willing to leave the radical ranks of his former associates and lead the exodus.

Editorial of the Day

SHINING MARK OF HONESTY.

[Elgin, Ill., Courier-News.]

Let us hope that the recording angel, ever alert for good deeds in a naughty world, failed not to record the singular virtue recently displayed by the municipality of Gilroy, Cal.

Gilroy undertook to install a public improvement—something having to do with waterworks—and got a $30,000 advance from the PWA for the purpose. Contracts were let and workmen were hired, and when everything was finished Gilroy discovered that the work had been done for about 5 per cent less than the estimated cost—and the surplus was sent back to the federal authorities.

PWA officials themselves say that Gilroy is the only city in the country which actually finished a PWA job for less than estimates and returned the savings to Uncle Sam. At a time when most cities look on Uncle Sam as Santa Claus' grandfather this example of municipal honesty ought not to go unnoticed.

FRATERNITIES AND SORORITIES

BY FRED H. TURNER.
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

College at a country club!

Palatial mansions, continuous social events, dance dates, parties, formal costumes, sports clothes, sleek roadsters, mixed drinking, underslung bulldogs, jeweled pins, college scandal, and university intrigue. This is the conception of college fraternities and sororities which the movies, the college novels and college stories in popular magazines have given us. And, unfortunately, some people believe them.

The Greek letter fraternity system has grown up with American education, and a number of fraternities are over or near the age of one hundred years, and several of the sororities are over or near seventy-five years of age. In these years the plan of the American fraternity has changed considerably; the fraternity of fifty years ago would scarcely recognize its organization of the present day.

Expressed in simple terms, the Greek letter fraternity or sorority is a club made up of college students. Men join fraternities and girls affiliate with sororities. The individual organizations usually have residences which they call chapter houses. Members are chosen and invited to join the various organizations, and each one has its own ritual. Pledges or prospective members are initiated when this ritual is read to them, and they subscribe to its aims and objectives.

The history of fraternities and sororities indicates that over the hundred years of their existence they have had a varied career. At the outset many colleges ruled against them. Then, as educators began to see the advantages in them, they were allowed to form chapters on various campi. At the present time there are not many colleges or universities of any standing which do not have them or organizations of similar character. They are especially strong and popular in the midwest, the south, and the far west.

Students who are entering colleges and universities in the fall of 1935 will be confronted with the problem, "Should I join a fraternity [or sorority]?" and if the answer is yes, "Which one?" It is wise therefore to consider the criticisms which have arisen from time to time against Greek letter organizations, to consider the points for which they have been praised, and, finally, to consider the question in the light of present day situations.

Some of the most common objections to Greek letter organizations have been repeated many times. They are undemocratic and out of harmony with the democratic spirit which is desired in the true educational institution. They tend to produce class distinctions, and the members are snobbish and look down on the nonfraternity, nonsorority, or independent students. They tend to destroy the individuality of the student and to recast him in the set mold of the particular organization. The rushing program of securing members interferes with the educational program.

Furthermore, the critics have said that fraternities produce an undesirable type of leader, who is more interested in activities and college politics than in educational standards. They are said to be expensive, and the boy or girl with little money is automatically excluded. They are satisfied with mediocrity in scholarship. They go in for extravagant social programs, encourage too much social life, and overexpenditures for dress. They have been said to be hotbeds of immorality, with drinking, gambling, and general looseness prevailing. They have built expensive homes, far too luxurious for the average student.

On the other hand, fraternities and sororities have been praised just as warmly as they have been criticized. The praise has come from members, from college and university officials, and from the knowing public.

In the first place the fraternity or sorority is a home away from home for its members, providing first class living quarters and good, well balanced meals. It satisfies the gregarious instinct and the desire for individuals to live in a social atmosphere. It provides an opportunity for association with like minds; minds and personalities interested in a great variety of subjects. It offers an interchange of ideas under satisfactory conditions between students, with faculty men, and guests. It contributes to the development of high personal and group ideals. It aids its members to engage in a sane social program, and encourages its members to participate in worthwhile extracurricular activities. It leads in the propagation of college loyalty and spirit. It brings alumni back to the campus and aids in the maintenance of college loyalty after graduation. It encourages worthy membership in terms of high scholastic endeavor, wholesome habits, and good living. It provides a closer discipline upon its members than nonmembers may experience. These are some of the points mentioned by those who favor fraternities and sororities, and who believe in them thoroughly.

Generally speaking, college administrators have found that the fraternities and sororities are a definite aid in the educational program, and the groups of students in them provide an easy and desirable unit for administrative problems. In many cases, where colleges and universities have criticized and eliminated fraternities and sororities, the institution has provided a similar plan of its own which it wishes to control either in the form of small living units or units within dormitories.

Many of the criticisms of the past have been met by the Greek letter organizations of today. In my opinion, however, the fraternal situation in the midwest at the present time is about as follows:

The financial condition of most chapters which have survived the past five years is safe and satisfactory and showing constant improvement. The costs of living in a fraternity or sorority are slightly higher than outside, although the average cost is about the same, with the exception of the initiation fee. The chapter houses, while comfortable, clean and safe, cannot be described as luxurious; some built in 1928-'30 are larger than they should be, but are working out their problems fairly well. There is no undemocratic spirit apparent, and better feeling prevails at the present time between independent and organized students than has in many years.

The general attitude of fraternities and sororities toward scholarship is more encouraging now than it has ever been. More attention is being paid to scholastic standings of prospective members than ever before, and many fraternities, with the aid of college officers, are installing tutors or preceptors in their houses to aid in scholarship. Conditions for study in the average fraternity are probably better than in the average rooming house or dormitory.

There has been no indication of losses of individuality among members; in fact, the outstanding different personalities are sought and considered as assets by chapters. Fraternities and sororities undoubtedly lead in extra-curricular activities; let a student show strength in this field and he is sought as a member immediately. The same is true for campus politics.

Individual chapters, national officers and the National Interfraternity conference have united with college and university officials who favor fraternities and sororities to make the best use of the organizations in the educational process. Membership in a fraternity or sorority is not essential to a happy and successful college career. Not all students desire to live in the "give-and-take" atmosphere of a group. But for those who desire it, it is available and may be very helpful. The student who is considering membership should ask the following questions:

1. Do I want to join such an organization?
2. Will my membership be mutually beneficial?
3. Is my budget such that I can join?
4. Have I found the organization with which I am willing to live and make my home for my college life?

If he will answer these intelligently he will solve his problem.

DOGS DO BITE.

DOGS will bark and bite, else they would not be dogs. We can no more change the nature of a dog than we can change the moons of Jupiter. Nor would we if we could. Along with the friendliness, faithfulness, and devotion of dogs we must accept their biting tendencies. This very trait perforce fixes upon dog owners the responsibility of so managing their pets that they will not or can not bite.

Some one may say: "What is the harm if Fido does nip a leg once in a while? It really doesn't hurt—much." Unfortunately dogs, along with certain other animals, are susceptible to rabies [hydrophobia]. For this reason the compulsory vaccination of all canines is advocated as a preventive measure. The satisfactory experience of the state of Connecticut is cited in support of this plan. In addition we should provide an adequate system of licensing all animals, guarding those that are ill, and properly disposing of strays.

Because of the steadily mounting number of wounds inflicted by dogs [nearly 20,000 in New York City in 1934], an educational campaign is urgently needed. In the first place, every dog is entitled to lead a dog's life. It is well nigh as cruel and inhuman to keep a large, active dog in a small apartment as to deprive him of food, since he is starved for the very things that his dogship craves, namely, opportunity for exercise and life in the open.

Furthermore, dogs should be trained not to bite. This can be done with most animals, but it takes time and patience and a knowledge of dog nature. If, however, the dog does injure some one it is often because the master has neglected some perfectly obvious precaution, either of muzzling or of keeping the animal in restraint. About 90 per cent of the dog bites that occurred in New York City were inflicted by unrestrained animals.

A dog bite is a distressing experience, particularly for a child. There is the onrush of the animal, the attempt to escape screaming with fright, the nervous shock, the actual wound itself, and sometimes a hospital ordeal. Then comes the doctor's bill. It is all so unnecessary if dog owners will concern themselves with the problem. A correspondent writes: "The philosophy of the dog owner is an odd one. He recognizes that dogs do bite, sometimes, but no dyed in the wool dog lover will admit that his dog will ever cause trouble."

Not all animals that bite are diseased, neither are the mouths and teeth of dogs clean. Infection can result from a bite even though rabies does not. "As clean as a hound's tooth" does not apply to pus forming bacteria, no matter how pearly white the animal's teeth may appear.

Bites should be cauterized as soon as possible after they have been inflicted, and fuming nitric acid is the most effective agent. The dog causing the wound should not be destroyed, but when located should be inspected by a competent veterinarian and released on parole, provided no signs of disease are detected.

A dog with hydrophobia lives about a week, but his saliva is poisonous several days before symptoms of illness appear. Hence a diseased animal, through licking the hands or face, may infect his master. The infection can enter the blood via cracks in the skin or about the finger nails.

Should any suspicious illness appear in an animal the Pasteur treatment should be administered promptly to all those who have been bitten within a two week period. We must recall that the Pasteur treatment will not cure hydrophobia once it has developed. If used in time, however, the vaccine will prevent its onset in a high percentage of cases. Bites about the head, neck, or face are particularly dangerous.

There is a group of individuals who have far too many practical experiences with biting dogs, namely, the army of persons who deliver milk, groceries, merchandise, messages, and mail. With these may be included collectors and meter readers. Only last week a meter reader in my neighborhood suffered deep lacerations on his right arm and a badly torn coat in addition. Often it is not the fault of the dog; he regards himself as the guardian of the premises and as such resents the intrusion of all and sundry.

The power of the human mind over the brute creation has been highly vaunted, but it just does not work when a delivery boy attempts to stare into submission a vicious dog. It should be, however, a relatively simple matter for dog owners to restrain their pets so that deliveries may be made safely.

MEATLESS DIET.

S. W. writes: Is it possible to omit meat from the human diet and yet develop normally and remain healthy?

REPLY.

Meat is used largely for its protein content. There are certain vegetable proteins that may be substituted. They do not, however, supply nitrogen in quite so available a form. Nitrogen is needed to replace body wastes.

FLABBINESS.

P. E. writes: Can you tell me why the flesh of some people is soft and flabby?

REPLY.

There are two factors. First, muscle tone is maintained by nerve impulses. Second, nutrition. Soft, flabby muscles are an indication that one is "out of condition." The muscles are not in "tone"; neither are they well nourished.

BALD SPOTS.

R. S. M. J. writes: About three months ago I discovered two bald spots on my head. These spots are growing larger all the time. I am 21 years old. Is this curable?

REPLY.

This is probably alopecia areata, the cause of which is unknown. The condition is thought to be associated with the destruction of capillaries in the affected area, depriving the hair of nourishment. Unfortunately, these areas may extend. The ordinary type of baldness usually begins on the forehead or on the crown of the head.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON.—The British moving picture industry has millions to spend on films, but almost nothing else. There are not enough studios, stars, technicians of all sorts, directors, writers or cameramen.

It is estimated that $12,500,000 will be spent on British films this year, but thousands of dollars cannot be spent because of the shortage of one thing or another.

Eight major producing companies are hard at work, some making as many as five films at once, and there are nearly twenty lesser companies at work. In all, some 200 pictures will be made this year, equaling nearly half of Hollywood's output, with the cost of each ranging between $30,000 and $500,000 apiece.

Independent producers who do not own studios find it hard to get floor space even at the average figure of $25,000 a week. This does not include the cost of light, though it does give some technical service.

One independent producer stated that he could not get space to make a film until next January unless he uses a studio which insists on the right to rent the film to the theaters later on.

To meet this shortage of floor space studios are being enlarged and schemes for new ones are being worked out. A new technicolor studio is to be built here, and it is believed that Alexander Korda will make the first picture, one based on the life of Lawrence of Arabia, for London Films.

Korda is using temporary studios at Isleworth, just outside London, while his new $1,500,000 permanent studios are being built at Denham, where he has bought an estate of 165 acres. Here six studios are to be built, each measuring 300 by 150 feet. When completed these studios will more than double the entire studio space in England.

These include a huge set for the H. G. Wells film, "Things to Come," representing the ruined center of a capital city as it has been imagined after the next world war in 1940. Close by is a realistic Scottish castle built for "The Laying of the Glourie Ghost," in which Robert Donat stars. This film is being made by Rene Clair, the French director.

Another ambitious studio scheme is the proposal of the Pinewood Studios to spend $1,250,000 on buildings at Iver hall, an old mansion and estate not far from London. The house will be preserved as a club and residence for film people.

Near by on the grounds, which cover 45 acres, are to be built four large studios, each capable of being made into two, with all the necessary technical buildings. British National Films are to use these studios next year and "paying guest' producers will be welcomed.

Charles Boot, who has bought the Iver hall estate and who is a wealthy building contractor, has left for Hollywood to obtain the latest ideas on studio construction.

The shortage, however, does not stop at floor space. Worthwhile stars with definite boxoffice appeal are becoming more difficult to procure as production grows, and there is a race to get the best. No longer are the British film companies satisfied with the Hollywood throw-outs and second raters. They are now competing for the best and offering "big money."

At present one American star of average popularity is being offered $100,000 to make a film in England. The movie company would also be willing to pay her expenses and those of her maid if she could get away to come to this country.

Twenty American players are working in British films. They include Madge Evans, Richard Dix, Eugene Pallette, Jean Parker, Walter Huston, and Helen Vinson. The two Beery brothers, Wallace and Noah, are also going to work in this country in several productions.

PARK TENNIS.

Chicago, Sept. 5.—[Friend of the People.]—I work hard during the day and in the late afternoon rush home to play a game of tennis. But due to the unfairness of the Indian Boundary park tennis system I am very fortunate if I play five minutes. For there are certain so-called gentlemen up there who inform you that there is a match to be held. You wait the required time, and you can go to another court up there and it will be the same thing repeated. My friend and I play a good game, but because I am not president of the club or a friend of his I'll just have to wait, and maybe some day I can play one game in peace. You wait an hour, but they step out of the car and in a minute the court is at their disposal. C. B.

Rules governing use of tennis courts at Indian Boundary park are the same as apply in all Chicago park district parks. Players must change on the even hour regardless as to the time person occupying court started play during past period. It is quite possible that some players are using rules that were in effect previous to park consolidation. An appeal to the policeman on duty will clear up this irregularity.

CHICAGO PARK DISTRICT.

ADDING TO POLICE FORCE.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—[Friend of the People.]—Will the remainder of the city of Chicago police list posted in 1932 be used? When can one on the list expect to be called for the position? I know this information will be deeply appreciated by each and every one of the 400 candidates whose name is on that list.

M. S.

It cannot be determined at this time whether the present list of patrolmen will be exhausted. This depends upon whether the commissioner of police requisitions additional men, he being governed by the appropriations that he is able to secure for this purpose.

I am sorry that I cannot furnish any more definite information.

JAMES S. OSBORNE,
Secretary, Civil Service Commission.

FIREMAN'S LIST.

Chicago, Sept. 5.—[Friend of the People.]—Please advise me when the next examination for city fireman will take place. Will it be this year, or won't there be any examination until 1936?

D. G.

The commission within the past few weeks posted a lengthy list of firemen, which register will remain in force for at least two years.

Secretary, Civil Service Commission.

A DEFENSE OF THE HARRISON ACT.

Chicago, Sept. 9.—THE TRIBUNE of yesterday permits itself to entitle an editorial "The So-Called Dope Evil." I am taking issue with every paragraph in this article, including its title. The use and illicit sale of narcotic drugs, instead of being so-called, is a very real and appalling evil in this country which if unchecked would devastate civilization. The casually used word "dope" stands for the more accurate and sinister words morphine and other derivatives of opium and cocaine.

The careless statement that the Harrison narcotic act has not appreciably decreased drug addiction and sales is not borne out by the facts. The enforcement of this act of congress, aided by international covenants between the United States and foreign countries, has limited the illicit supply crossing our boundaries and has made addiction a costly habit. It has brought nearer the day when production and manufacture of these drugs which destroy the souls as well as the bodies of their victims will be limited to the estimated amounts necessary to supply the medical and scientific needs of the world.

As for the alleged fact that legislation has harshly restricted the legitimate use of narcotics, the contrary is true. The physician who examines his patient and determines that he has a medical need of narcotic drugs can and does administer and prescribe them without governmental interference. Their use then is beneficent. Pain is deadened. Sleep rebuilds, and what has been called the Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde of medicine acts its benign part.

As for an alleged survey and report upon addicts made by a Chinese student of the University of Chicago, his study was made in Chicago at the branch of the United States bureau of narcotics supervised by me. I gave permission reluctantly for what could at best be but an imperfect and superficial survey of an age-old problem. No addict was seen. No names were taken away. There was only a copying of bare court records of addicts and drug peddlers who had passed through the courts of this district for a limited period. There could have been found no basis for sociological conclusions of any value whatsoever. His quoted statement that the mind of the addict is "infantile" is inaccurate. On the contrary, they are cunning, dangerous. They lie, they steal, and they will murder if necessary to obtain drugs. The majority of the underworld of crime are addicts. There is undoubtedly a psychologic, biologic, and sociologic problem of interest and importance behind the whole question of drug addiction, and the public health service of the United States has installed a large and perfectly equipped laboratory at the new government narcotic farm at Lexington, Ky., with trained scientific investigators who will consider the whole field of drug addiction, its cure and the rehabilitation of the addict into a normal social unit. They will report conclusions from time to time and will contribute valuable sociological material to the whole question.

Meanwhile I would suggest to Bingham Dai a proper field for research into the narcotic problem in his own China, which has recently become the drug menace of the world. After centuries of merely passive opium smoking, importing most of its opium, northern China has become a vast poppy field. It is also manufacturing morphine, heroin, cocaine, and sending thousands of pounds of them to seek illicit entrance to our shores. He will find, I believe, for one great fact, that the greed of nations for money lies festering at the root of every phase of this world problem.

ELIZABETH BASS,
Supervisor of the Bureau of Narcotics,
Ninth Federal District.

THE SO-CALLED DOPE EVIL.

Hammond, Ind., Sept. 8.—The admirable judgment and reasoning expressed in today's editorial, "The So-Called Dope Evil," should not pass unnoticed.

Before enactment of the Harrison act morphine sold in the wholesale markets for 30 cents a dram. Today, in a market where many chemicals and alkaloids are priced lower than they have been for thirty years, morphine sells for $1.85 a dram. Patients suffering from cancer, tuberculosis, arthritis, etc., many near indigency, must pay this more than sixfold increase in price.

The withdrawal of narcotics from addicts is just as sensible as would be the withdrawal of insulin from a diabetic, or, as H. L. Mencken states it, as denying a one-legged man the use of a crutch. Addicts do not use narcotics to relieve pain, nor do others who have used narcotics to control pain become addicts. Addicts must be recognized as natural phenomena. Attempts to redeem them by sumptuary legislation merely add great expense and suffering to the sick and make criminals of the addicts, who otherwise are peaceful citizens.

JOSEPH E. HANEY.

THE DOG STEALING RACKET.

Cicero, Ill., Sept. 4.—My little daughter and I returned this morning from our vacation blissfully expecting to be joyously welcomed by our year old bulldog. Instead, however, we were to learn that he had been ruthlessly stolen from our enclosed yard by some one totally hardened to the vision of a grief-stricken child.

I telephoned an Oak Park veterinarian in the hope that he might be of help in tracing the pet, and was told that he had just lost a valuable cocker spaniel in the same cruel fashion. A friend in Berwyn to whom I appealed cited the theft of two other valuable dogs.

The thief who stole our Lucky must be one of a ring of unscrupulous rats whose racket is not far removed from that of the lowest of criminals, the kidnaper. Is there no way to check this organized business of stealing dogs from loving owners and passing them to unsuspecting buyers who wouldn't tolerate purchasing stolen goods if they knew it?

H. L. ANDERSON.

THE PRICE OF CITIZENSHIP.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—C. J. V. writes that he (or she), like many other so-called aliens, would be proud to become citizens were it not for the price attached to the procuring of citizenship papers. If a person really wants to become a citizen he will certainly arrange to do so and not put forth the excuse that it is the price (which, all in all, amounts to not more than $10, of which $2.50 to $5 is required on taking out first papers, the balance in two years when receiving second papers) that stands in his way. A quarter or so put by now and then would in a comparatively short time provide the required amount. L. D.

HUEY LONG'S EXPENSES.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—Even though the man is dead, it would be interesting were you to tell us who paid for Huey Long's bodyguard and the tremendous personal expenses, politically, he was constantly incurring? Were they met by the state of Louisiana or were they added, as expenses, to the salary he received as United States senator?

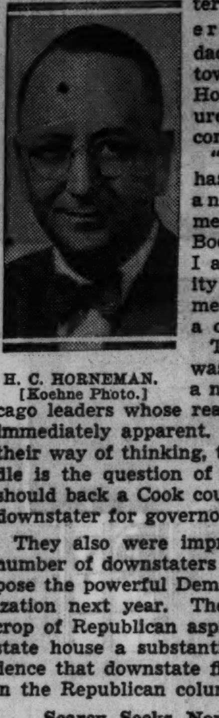
H. C. HORNEMAN OF DANVILLE IN GOVERNOR RACE

State G. O. P. Treasurer Backed by Bookwalter.

BY PARKE BROWN.

R. R. Bookwalter, Republican state committeeman from Danville, brought to Chicago yesterday the governorship candidacy of a fellow townsman, H. C. Horneman, treasurer of the state committee.



H. C. HORNEMAN.

"Mr. Horneman has not made any announcement yet," said Bookwalter, "but I am the authority for the statement that he is a candidate."

The message was delivered to a number of Chicago leaders whose reaction was not immediately apparent. According to their way of thinking, their first hurdle is the question of whether they should back a Cook county man or a downstater for governor.

They also were impressed by the number of downstaters willing to oppose the powerful Democratic organization next year. They see in the crop of Republican aspirants for the state house a substantial bit of evidence that downstate figures Illinois in the Republican column next year.

Searcy Seeks Nomination.

State Senator Earl B. Searcy of Springfield, Republican leader of the upper house of the general assembly, has issued a formal declaration of his candidacy. He is busy organizing and one of his definite assurances of help has come from an organization of Chicago real estate men attracted by his past performances and his promises of accomplishments in the 1 per cent limitation of taxes.

Otis F. Glenn, former United States senator, who, although he spends most of his time in Cook county, still is classified as a downstater because he votes in Murphysboro, is conceded great personal strength throughout the state and is believed to be on the verge of announcing his candidacy for the governorship. He has said plainly that he will not run for the senate.

Carlstrom Working Quietly.

Oscar E. Carlstrom, former attorney general, is in about the same classification, practicing law in Chicago and claiming Aledo as his residence. In a quiet way he is seeking to build up his old organization downstate. John G. Oglesby, former lieutenant governor, has said that he is willing to run, but so far as is known he hasn't done anything definite about it.

Bringing Mr. Horneman's name into this sort of situation did not create any noticeable stir, but it was recalled that when he accepted the treasurership of the Republican state committee last year, there was widespread comment that the entrance of this sort of man into politics would be a good thing for politics.

Business Man and Farmer.

Horneman is president of the Sugar Creek Creamery company, one of the largest establishments of its kind in the country. He also operates eight farms near Danville in close coöperation with as many tenants, the total farm area under his control being 1,600 acres. He specializes in Guernsey cattle and Belgian horses and has won prizes for both.

He is 51 years old and is of German parentage. He worked his way through the Des Moines High school and Iowa State college, receiving an agricultural degree from the latter. He is married and has one son. He was president of the Danville board of education for six years and is chairman of the executive committee of the board of the First National bank of Danville.

DEMOCRATS EYE MIDWEST FOR CONVENTION CITY

Washington, D. C., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Men close to the Democratic party leadership forecast today that the 1936 national convention will be held in some city of adequate size in the north central states.

Minneapolis, Chicago, and Cleveland received prominent mention.

San Francisco, which had been mentioned as a possibility, has lost ground because of its remoteness, despite pleasant recollections of the treatment received in 1920.

Atlantic City, another possible location, still has a chance because, although a coast point, it is nearer the homes of a larger number of delegates than San Francisco.

Party officers predict the convention will last but a few days. Chairman James A. Farley of the national committee has announced his belief that all states will have delegations instructed for the renomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Because of this confidence that the session will be brief, party leaders are represented as feeling that the convention city should be at a central point.

Girl Coughs Up a Pin and Recovers from Cold

Beardstown, Ill., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Doris Langdon, 11, coughed up a pin and recovered from a cold. She swallowed the pin four years ago, her parents said.

COL. ROOSEVELT SAYS PRESIDENT VIOLATED OATH

Warns People Have Not Forgotten Pledges.

McClure, Pa., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Col. Theodore Roosevelt, in an address here today, charged that President Roosevelt has been faithless in his campaign promises and has broken his "sacred oath taken on the Bible."

"You may have forgotten your promises, Mr. President," Col. Roosevelt said in addressing the 44th annual McClure bean soup celebration, "but we, the people, have not forgotten. We believe our constitution is our bulwark against dictatorship and mob rule. You will hear from us in 1936."

The speaker listed numerous pledges made by the President during his preëlection campaign. Outstanding among them was Mr. Roosevelt's promise to reduce expenditures of the federal government.

Recalls 1932 Speech.

"At St. Louis in October, 1932," Col. Roosevelt quoted, "You said: 'It is my pledge and promise that rigid governmental economy shall be forced by a stern and unremitting administration policy of living within our income.'

"You promised to reduce expenditures of the federal government 25 per cent and you have raised them 100 per cent. In three years you will have spent more than it cost to run the government of the United States for the first 125 years of its existence.

"In your pre-election campaign you said that the Hoover administration had 'piled bureau on bureau, commission on commission, and failed to anticipate the reduced earning power of the people.'

Cites Alphabet Rule.

"You have created more than 40 new government agencies. You have placed hundreds of thousands of people on the public pay rolls. You have augmented our expenses by millions of dollars a year by the payment of salaries to political henchmen of yours.

"You promised in 1932 that you would maintain a sound currency. You have reduced the value of the dollar, dabbled in silver and created a situation wherein neither you nor your aids really know what is going on or what the result may be.

"You attacked 'master minds in government,' saying in 1930: 'the doctrin of legislation by master minds in whose judgment all will of the people may gladly and quietly acquiesce, has been glaringly apparent in Washington during these last ten years.' During the last two and a half years you have placed over us appointees who have assumed infallibility and insisted that their will was law."

Charges Oath Violated.

More important than all these, Col. Roosevelt said, the President swore on a Bible before the Supreme court and congress at the time he took office to "preserve, protect and defend the constitution of the United States."

"But you have been faithless," the speaker said. "You have usurped the functions of congress, hampered the freedom of the press, removed men from quasi-judicial bodies for political purposes and striven to concentrate in your hands dictatorial powers.

"You have urged congress to pass laws which you know were unconstitutional. You said in advocating one of your measures: 'I hope your committee will not permit doubts as to constitutionality, however reasonable, to block the suggested legislation.'

"You seem to have forgotten that there was such a thing as a Democratic platform on which you ran and to which you pledged yourself, and your cabinet officers have patterned themselves after you. But we, the people, have not forgotten. You will hear from us in 1936."

Complete
at low cost

—easy to read—easy to say

—but it took one man, Dr. Joseph G. Berkowitz, twenty years of constant striving against almost insurmountable obstacles and bitter opposition to make it possible.

His first effort to provide low cost medical care was undertaken in February, 1920. Though confined to an expensive specialty and bitterly opposed, it became an outstanding success—the biggest effort of its kind in the world—providing low cost medical care to approximately 200,000 patients.

Fortified with this experience and the support of prominent lay individuals and members of the medical profession who were impressed by the success of his methods and the public need for low cost medical care, he organized in January, 1933—UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE, Chicago's first fixed fee low cost responsible medical service, where every field of medical care is available. Five complete floors are necessary for all diagnostic and treatment facilities.

Examinations and treatment are rendered by specially trained physicians aided by every modern facility which only complete medical equipment can provide. The X-Ray Department alone is one of the most modern and completely equipped in the Middle West, making every type of X-Ray Service available. Physicians at UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE make full use of these complete X-Ray facilities to check and verify their examinations.

All other departments are as completely equipped and as efficiently directed, including medicine, dentistry, optometry, pharmacy, clinical laboratory, hospital and all other associated activities. Low costs are possible because of the close association of these activities under one administration.

In the 2½ years UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE has been available to the public over 65,000 patients have been cared for and over 300,000 treatments given. Over 3,000 physicians and dentists in private practice have referred approximately 10,000 patients for X-Ray, Medical Laboratory tests and other diagnostic service. FORD'S RELICS OF STEPHEN FOSTER DECLARED 'BOGUS'

Song Writer's Kin Tells Story of Homestead.

Discussion over the authenticity of the Stephen C. Foster homestead, reconstructed by Henry Ford at Greenfield village of Americana, near Detroit, has received a new chapter furnished by the song writer's niece, Mrs. Evelyn Foster Morneweck, of Detroit. Mrs. Morneweck, in a letter to THE TRIBUNE, pronounces the Ford exhibit of the homestead "bogus."

The house in question was dedicated early in the summer to perpetuate the memory of the song writer who gave our language "My Old Kentucky Home." There is in Pittsburgh another memorial to Foster in the form of a brick house, which Mrs. Morneweck says is authentic inasmuch as it was built in 1864 on the site of the torn down frame cottage in which Foster was born.

The House's History.

Mrs. Morneweck tells the history of the house in dispute and of the real homestead, saying:

"In 1814-'15, William B. Foster built his homestead, the "White Cottage," on his farm two miles east of Pittsburgh, which he called "Lawrenceville." In this "White Cottage," my father, Morrison Foster, was born in 1823, and Stephen Collins Foster was born July 4, 1826.

On May 6, 1826, William B. Foster lost this homestead and a large tract of land to the Bank of the United States. The records of Allegheny county, Pa., show that William B. Foster and his family stayed on in the "White Cottage" paying rent to the bank, until the bank sold the property on Sept. 6, 1827, to Malcolm Leech.

"The Fosters moved to a house on Water street, Pittsburgh, where they lived approximately one year and then moved to Allegheny Town, across the river.

"Malcolm Leech built a large brick house beside the White Cottage, using the frame cottage as a wing. In 1864 the property passed into the hands of Andrew Kloman, a partner of Andrew Carnegie, who tore down the old frame structure, where my father and his brother Stephen were born, and replaced the whole building with brick.

Foster Memorial Home.

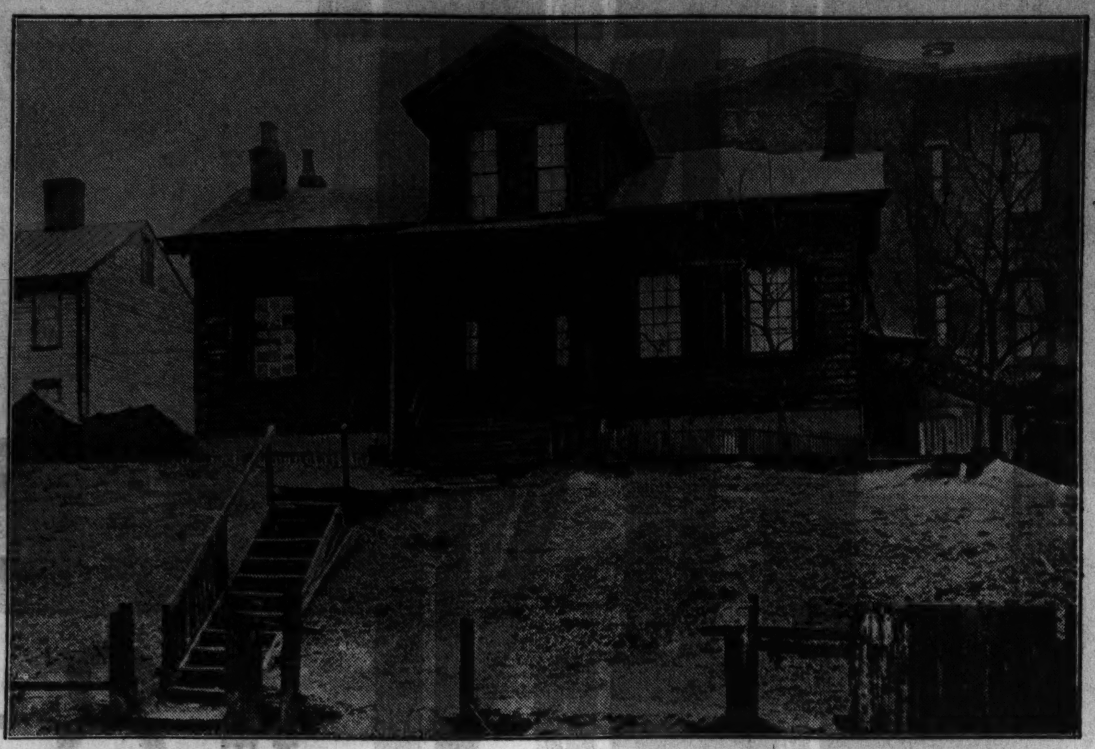
"And so it stands today—at 3600 Penn avenue, Pittsburgh, and is known as the "Stephen C. Foster Memorial Home." This property was purchased from the owner, Mrs. Samuel McKee, in 1914, by James H. Park, and presented to the people of Pittsburgh as a shrine to the memory of Stephen Foster.

"After the old frame "White Cottage" had been completely replaced by brick, another frame cottage of somewhat similar architecture [but ten feet smaller] built at the top of the hill, at the forks of the road, began to be mistaken for the "old Foster homestead." As the Foster family had moved away from Lawrenceville in 1829, it is understandable how many residents of a later generation have mistaken this house for the birthplace of Stephen C. Foster. The records of Allegheny county show that it was originally the William Toman homestead, built some time after Jan. 8, 1828, by Mr. Toman, a carpenter, who bought his lots from the Bank of the United States on that date.

"On March 21, 1901, in the hope of settling the mistake, my father, Morrison Foster [who died in 1904], went to see both places—he rejected the Toman house, and went on up the hill and identified the brick house, then known as the McKee mansion, as being on the site of the White Cottage where he and his brother Stephen were born."

Mrs. Morneweck then tells how Henry Ford's agents bought the wrong house in May, 1934.

FORD'S "FOSTER HOMESTEAD" CALLED BOGUS



Henry Ford erred in buying this house as the birthplace of Stephen Collins Foster, ballad composer, and moving it to Michigan, according to Foster's niece. She asserts this house was near the Foster home, but was never occupied by the Foster family. [Acme Photo.]

ARREST WOMAN AND HER ROOMER AFTER 4 FIRES

Mrs. Casmari Gewart, 43 years old, owner of a rooming house at 4716 Sheridan road, and Arthur Rockner, 35 years old, a roomer, were arrested last night after a fire broke out in the basement of the building. The blaze was the fourth in the house in ten days.

At the Town Hall station Mrs. Gewart was charged with being keeper of a disorderly house and Rockner with being an inmate.

Acting Fire Marshal James Cowhey of the third division ordered the pair taken into custody after he discovered a number of empty whisky bottles and alcohol cans in the basement. It appeared, he said, that the fires were all caused by cigarets and matches carelessly tossed by guests of the house. The damage from each fire was small.

She had become separated from her cousin, William Whitman, 35, with whom she had gone fishing. Her mother is the daughter of the late Walter Hines Page, United States ambassador to Great Britain.

HUNT AIRLPANE REPORTED DOWN IN HELL HOLLOW

Beacon, N. Y., Sept. 14.—(AP)—A searching party of more than 100 persons was organized tonight to hunt for an airplane believed to have crashed in Hell hollow, a deep ravine in the Fishkill mountains near here. Sergt. William Hamlin of the Fishkill state police, in charge of the search, expressed the belief the plane was that in which Lieut. Lincoln C. Denton of the naval reserve and Mechanic C. Hart took off from Albany airport at 5:45 p. m., eastern daylight time.

Hampered by fog which reduced visibility to five feet, rain and a high wind, the searchers could make little progress tonight. The hunt will not be abandoned, however, and the main search will be organized at dawn, Sergt. Hamlin said.

MEXICAN TROOPS RULE VERA CRUZ; REVOLT FEARED

Election Is Expected to Result in Fighting.

VERA CRUZ, Sept. 14.—(AP)—This city was placed under a military régime today preparatory to tomorrow's local election.

Police were summoned to barracks after Laborites announced they would uphold the candidacy of Garzon Cossa, a Labor leader. Authorities feared there would be fighting.

Fear Nation-Wide Revolt.

Tucson, Ariz., Sept. 14.—(AP)—The Tucson Daily Citizen said in a copyrighted story today it was informed by a source it considered reliable that a nation-wide revolt was scheduled to break out in Mexico next Tuesday morning.

"Recent friction among political factions has given rise to feelings of dissatisfaction and unrest, culminating in a plan, supposedly well organized, to overthrow the present government of Lazaro Cardenas," the newspaper said.

The newspaper said Mexican officials admitted over long distance telephone there is "much unrest," but claimed the situation "is well in hand."

Strengthen Border Garrisons.

"They said the border garrisons of Nogales and Juarez have been considerably strengthened, and that troops are moving northward into Sonora," the newspaper continued.

"Here in the high mountains and long desert stretches are gathering the malcontents described by natives as "the red raiders."

The newspaper said its correspondent at Hermosillo described "men on horseback wearing red shirts and black neckerchiefs, plundering far and wide through the ranch country."

The report said these bands have raged throughout Sonora for several months, raiding small towns.

CHILDREN START RETURN ALONE TO WEST AFRICA

Johnstown, Pa., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Charles Joder, 9, who claims the temporary title of "man of the family," and his sister Ruth, 6, set out tonight for French West Africa.

They are returning to join their father, the Rev. Fred Joder, stationed in Africa by the Christian and Missionary Alliance.

Waving good-bys to the school friends they made during their two year stay in Johnstown, Charles and Ruth boarded the train for New York. They will sail Monday on the liner West Kebar.

The children will remain back in the jungles until four years from now, when the Rev. Mr. Joder gets a year's furlough and brings them here again.

YOUNGER BLOOD FOR METHODIST PULPITS SOUGHT

Average Age Is 47; Nearly Half Baldheaded.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bloomington, Ill., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—The problem of how to reduce the average age of Methodist ministers in the Illinois conference in 112th annual sessions here occupied the attention of that body today. It was pointed out from the floor that the average age recently was discovered to be sufficiently advanced to necessitate modification of a group insurance plan for the conference.

Yesterday ushers of the conference sent word to Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf of Chicago, who is presiding at sessions, that 45 per cent of the 360 or more members are baldheaded. Today Bishop Waldorf announced that he is making studies of average ages of pastors in all conferences of his area. In one conference, he announced, the average age of active members is 47.

No Young Candidates Accepted.

Discussion of pastors' ages arose when it was announced that no young candidates for the ministry had been accepted this year due to "sifting processes" and increased educational qualifications. The Rev. Milton Wilson of Roodhouse declared that the conference, under such policy, would get the same criticism now leveled against New Deal crop limitation and little pig slaughtering. Bishop Waldorf added that no young men had been admitted to "trial membership" or candidacy for the ministry in the Rock River conference for three years.

The Rev. Arthur M. Wells of Decatur offered a motion to establish the policy that district superintendents should not use supply [temporary] pastors or retired ministers to the disadvantage of young men applying for candidacy.

The motion was tabled until Monday in order "to get more facts" bearing on the question. The Rev. Dr. H. W. McPherson, president of Illinois Wesleyan university, warned the conference that many young men are being lost to the Methodist ministry because of a rigid admission policy.

Salary Sharing Fails.

The conference was told that last year's attempt toward salary sharing among pastors had failed. The Rev. Edgar E. Atherton of Dwight, making the announcement, stated that while 75 per cent of the pastors had signed agreements to a salary sharing plan known as brotherhood sustentation," only 48 per cent of the pastors had paid up. Percentages of one-half of 1 per cent ranging to 3 per cent of salarys received, depending upon the amount, were to have been paid into the fund for distribution. The plan was abandoned.

The Rev. Mr. Atherton recommended that studies toward setting up a minimum salary for pastors be made. He explained that the brotherhood plan is now less necessary than a year ago due to a small degree of salary improvement throughout the conference.

Sessions in the 113th conference will be held in Rock Island next September.

White House Takes Suite in Commerce Building

Washington, D. C., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Commerce department officials said today the White House has taken a suite of five rooms in the huge department of commerce office building. They were unable to give the purpose of the expansion. Overflow work was suggested, but it was recalled that the executive offices were remodeled and enlarged a year ago. The suite of offices apparently was empty of personnel today. In the absence from the city of Stephen Early and Marvin McIntyre of the White House secretariat, it could not be learned to what use the space would be put.

Vanquishing other leading plowmen of Illinois, Carl Shoger of Wheatland township, Will county, yesterday was crowned the champion in the 58th annual plowing contest sponsored by the Wheatland Plowing association and held before a crowd of nearly 20,000 persons.

The match took place on the Martin Frey farm, 3 miles north of Plainfield, in Will county, and Shoger's victory made him champion in the prize winners' class for the sixth consecutive year.

One innovation was noted in yesterday's renewal of one of the oldest rural contests in the United States. For the first time not a single plow was horse-drawn.

Scores 92 Out of 100.

In recent years tractors gradually have supplanted the horse, but always before at least one or two of the contestants have used equine power.

Each contestant was given half an acre to plow in a given time, and point score was based on the depth, straightness, and even spacing of the furrows. Shoger made a score of 92 out of a possible 100 points.

Second place in this championship class went to Otto Mueller of Naperville, who scored 90.5 points. Third prize winner was Orvis Schroyer of Lily Lake with 90 points.

Winners in Other Classes.

The championship class is open to plowmen who have won first prizes in the lesser classes in previous years. The other classes, and the winners, were:

Talk of Assassin Plots Excites Islands.

MANILA, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Typhoon weather and talk of assassination plots complicated the Philippine political picture tonight as the islands' first presidential election campaign moved toward a decision Tuesday.

A storm of moderate intensity lashed Tayabas province, south of here, and moved northwesterly across Luzon Island.

The disturbance was expected to pass north of Manila, but accompanying heavy rains were preventing final campaign rallies elsewhere on Luzon.

Constabulary Mobilizes.

The constabulary, remembering the 60 deaths in the Sakdalista uprising last May, were preparing for any emergency at the election.

A president, a vice president, and a national assembly of 98 members will be elected to form a new commonwealth government, destined to take its place among the family of nations two months hence.

Managers of the powerful coalition backing Senator Manuel Quezon for the presidency have charged that followers of Emilio Aguinaldo, the national socialist candidate, openly have discussed assassination.

Aguinaldo Retorts to Charge.

"Propaganda," retorted Aguinaldo. An American official in close touch with the situation said if violence occurred at the polls it would come from followers of the extremist Republican candidate, Bishop Gregorio Aglipay, head of the independent Catholic church of the Philippines.

A vote of 1,500,000 was predicted.

DRIVER WINS PROBATION.

Judge Eugene J. Holland yesterday granted a year's probation to Conrad J. Mahoney, 26 years old, 2651 Newland avenue, on a reckless driving charge after he agreed to pay $50 for damage done by his car in a collision Friday night.

CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE

MEETING CALLED TO HEAR DATA ON TRANSIT SURVEY

Councilmen Laud Move in East to Suppress Noise.

Ald. James R. Quinn [50th], chairman of the city council local transportation committee, yesterday called a meeting of the committee for Wednesday, at which he and the four colleagues who accompanied him on a survey trip to New York last week will submit the information that they gathered regarding transit systems.

In the party, which returned to Chicago yesterday after a week's absence, were Aldermen George D. Kells [28th], B. A. Cronson [4th], George W. Robinson [36th], and John F. Healy [6th], and the committee's engineers, Maj. R. F. Kelker Jr. and Philip Harrington.

Survey Termed Profitable.

The party studied the transportation systems in Manhattan and Brooklyn, and in Newark, N. J. The aldermen were enthusiastic about the data collected, saying that the trip had been profitable in view of traction ordinance negotiations in Chicago, but said they were not prepared yet to give any conclusions.

"Street car tracks have been removed entirely from Madison avenue in New York," said Ald. Quinn. "The street has been repaved and bus operation started. Business interests and riders are well satisfied with the bus transportation, and a movement is under way to take up the car tracks on all Manhattan streets with the exception of Third avenue.

Brooklyn Services Combined.

"Brooklyn has a comprehensive system combining the operation of surface and elevated lines, a subway, and buses. The company is about to order 100 new street cars, similar to the new one seen in Chicago on Clark street. It has been adding bus lines during the last few years, but building no street car extensions.

"In Newark they use electric-gasoline buses that would fit our feeder bus system. These buses can operate on electric power trolley wires or by gasoline motors when the end of the trolley line is reached."

Ald. Quinn spoke of the elimination of noise through the substitution of buses for street cars and the improvement that it has made on Madison avenue in New York. Ald. Kells also got the impression that the buses had improved that thoroughfare, he said.

Accidents Show Decline.

"We were informed by business organizations," said Ald. Kells, "that since the buses went into service on Madison avenue there has been a 50 per cent reduction in accidents, business on the street has increased 30 per cent, and property values have increased.

"Hotels, whose patrons formerly objected to rooms on the Madison avenue side, favor the change. Hospital authorities say that the recovery of patients has been accelerated. The riders also seem to like the service."

CRASH KILLS 4; TEACHER AND 3 PUPILS VICTIMS

Youngstown, O., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Michael Fusek, 32, Canfield teacher and athletic instructor, and three eighth grade boys were killed, and three other Canfield students were injured, one critically, today in a collision between Fusek's car and a limeladen truck near Canfield.

The six boys, all riding in Fusek's car, were returning from North Jackson cemetery, where they had been pallbearers at the funeral of Wilbur Fishel, Canfield youth, who was fatally shot Tuesday night by a boy hunting companion.

Six Die in Crash.

Churchville, Pa., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—All six occupants of a sedan were killed today when a railroad train crashed into the car on a crossing 20 miles northeast of Philadelphia. Four of the dead are women.

Two of the victims have been tentatively identified as Franz G. Schoenfield and Mable G. Schoenfield, his wife, of South Langhorne, Pa. Clothing and papers of the other victims failed to reveal their identity.

Fragments of a lunch, with paper plates and napkins, found in the wreckage, indicated that the party may have been bound for a picnic.

FRANCE TO 'TAP' RADIO MESSAGES OF FOREIGN LANDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 14.—Stirred by the menace of war, the French government announced today the establishment of a "black chamber" on air communications in Fort Bicetre, just outside Paris. The chamber provides special facilities for listening to and controling foreign radio broadcasts.

The old fort, which played a prominent rôle in the Franco-Prussian war in 1870 and is still guarded by soldiers with fixed bayonets, has been linked with the ministry of communications by a special telephone cable. All news of a political nature broadcast from foreign stations henceforth will be available to authorities within twenty-five minutes after their emission.

Georges Mandel, minister of communications, former henchman of Georges Clemenceau, rushed the work of installation, which was completed in four days, although it involved laying more than six miles of cable from Bicetre to Paris. An official communique stresses that the new "listening center" will permit the government to "intervene effectively" against false news broadcast from foreign stations and that it is designed to serve "purposes of national defense." The system also provides authorities with a new method of controling and censoring wireless news dispatches.

ORDERS ARREST OF 'RED' GRANGE IN CAR ACCIDENT

A capias was issued by Judge Eugene Holland yesterday for the arrest of Harold [Red] Grange, professional football star, when he failed to appear in the South State street court to answer a charge of leaving the scene of an accident. A $50 cash bond which he gave at the time of his arrest, early yesterday, also was ordered forfeited by Judge Holland.

Grange was arrested on the complaint of Hjalmar Lenander, 4457 North Seeley avenue, who said that Grange drove an automobile into his car at Foster and Damen avenues, tearing the bumper off Lenander's car. According to Lenander, Grange drove away with the bumper dangling on his car. He later was seized by a police squad.

When the case was called yesterday, Miss Lenore Tierney, 1020 Lawrence avenue, who said she is a cousin of Grange, appeared in court and asked for a continuance. She said the defendant had to appear at 10 o'clock in a radio broadcast program. Judge Holland denied the request and dispatched detectives to arrest Grange. When they reported they were unable to find him Judge Holland ordered him held in $1,000 bond when apprehended.

FIND WRECKED PLANE, 8 BODIES IN PANAMA WILDS

PANAMA CITY, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Searchers completed a 15 hour jungle trek late today to report the discovery of a wrecked commercial plane with all eight occupants dead. The searching party reported from Bejuco that they were bringing the body of the American pilot, Robert Marstrand, 24, back to the Canal Zone where he resided. The bodies of seven passengers were either buried or cremated at the scene of the crash.

Natives at Bejuco reported to government officials yesterday they saw the big ship, of the Panama National Airways, en route from Panama City to David, Panama, apparently seek a landing during the storm and crash into trees after it had touched the ground.

It required more than eight hours for the searchers, with two mules, to reach the remote mountain from Bejuco, the nearest town.

Passengers aboard the plane were listed as B. Dahl, American resident of Puerto Armuelles; Juan Pino, mayor of David; Maria Bertoli and Juan B. Diaz, students of David and three Jamaicans, Clarence Campbell, Tsila Romero, and Antonio Joseph.

MAYOR SURE FAIR AND AIRPORT WILL GET U. S. FUNDS

Mayor Kelly said yesterday that the determination of President Roosevelt to speed the spending of four billion dollars of federal easy money, resorting to temporary projects and low labor costs to achieve this end, should not affect the city's application for funds for construction of the island airport and the permanent lake front exposition.

While officials of the Works Progress administration in Illinois refused to discuss the approval or rejection of the city's pending application for funds, Mayor Kelly, who recently conferred with President Roosevelt and Harry L. Hopkins, national WPA administrator, was confident that Chicago will get federal grants for the airport and permanent fair projects.

Projects Not Injured.

The decision of the President to entrust Hopkins with the spending of most of the works funds on projects requiring a maximum of labor and a minimum of material and equipment costs had been seen as a possible barrier to approval of Chicago's applications for $8,577,000 for the airport and $6,900,000 for the permanent fair.

"I don't feel that our projects are hurt by the President's decision," said Mayor Kelly. "I even believe that the fair and airport and some of the others should be strengthened by it."

Work Can Start at Once.

The mayor pointed out that work on the airport and the lake front exposition can be started with practically no delay. Both projects will employ much unskilled labor, and the work of building the island for the airport and preparing the ground for the fair could go forward immediately, in line with the President's insistence on speed.

Neither will plans for a south side filtration plant be abandoned, city officials said, notwithstanding President Roosevelt's indication on Friday that the bulk of the easy money will be spent on projects of non-permanent type.

The city has filed with the Public Works administration an application for a loan to construct the $18,000,000 filtration plant. In the President's announcement that most of the money would go to the Works Progress administration projects, he also stated that the permanent projects of PWA would be ready for construction by April 1. Mayor Kelly said he felt that the city would have a chance then to get the PWA loan.

2,000 Men on Job Tuesday.

The actual transfer of relief clients to WPA jobs in Chicago will be started Tuesday when 2,000 unskilled laborers from the relief rolls will be put to work leveling unimproved streets and surfacing them with a six inch crushed stone covering, 16 feet wide.

This is part of the street improvement project for which the federal government has advanced $32,000,000, to be coupled with $5,069,000 from city sources.

A week from Tuesday 2,500 additional men will report from the relief rolls for work on the streets.

SKIPPER, WIFE TO FACE COURT ON WAGE CLAIMS

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Capt. D. O. Lockhart, Detroit, and his wife must show cause in United States District court, Oct. 2, why their excursion steamer, Kittanning, should not be sold to satisfy the $269.50 wage claims of three members of the crew.

The order removing them from control of the 80 foot lake boat and ordering them to appear in court was served after District Attorney Howard L. Doyle agreed that the law allowed seamen the privilege of starting libel proceedings without posting bonds demanded of others. He originally instructed the deputy not to serve the monition until a $25,000 bond was posted. Taking charge of the boat that was docked here a few days ago en route to New Orleans, Deputy Ahrends placed it in custody of two shipkeepers.

The captain and his wife contend that Pilot Dennis Newman, Eugene T. Walden, and Clarence S. Lindsten signed on in Chicago under an agreement to work for a percentage of the proceeds from excursion trips.

Woman Hunted as Suicide Returns from Milwaukee

Mrs. Rose Kaufman, 60 years old, 4401 North Mozart street, was returned to her home yesterday from Milwaukee, where police detained her after her husband, Joseph Kaufman, part owner of the Kaufman-Brening corporation, 2801-07 Montrose avenue, had reported her disappearance last Wednesday. Police and coast guardsmen had started to drag the north branch of the Chicago river after the woman left a note saying she would never return.

Jury Exonerates Police Who Killed Ex-Convict

A coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict of justifiable homicide after investigating the death of George Schullo, 27 years old, 1307 Oregon avenue, ex-convist and notorious parole violator, who was shot by policemen Thursday night while being chased through west side streets in a stolen automobile. Policeman George Vasicek and William Griffin testified that they fired several shots at the fleeing criminal when he refused to stop.

FIRES AT WINDOW SMASHERS.

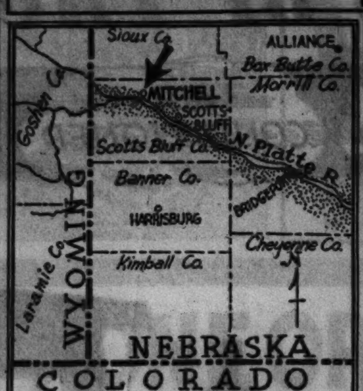
Scene of Disputes



Nebraska and Wyoming area embroiled in controversy over irrigation. Arrow points to the town of Mitchell, hot spot of the dispute.

WAR FOR WATER BRINGS TROOPS, COURT TANGLES

Long War Is Faced by Nebraska, Wyoming.

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—The cost of National Guard use in western Nebraska's August water war was $3,200, Adjutant General H. J. Paul revealed at Lincoln today. But the outcome of that expenditure and of the complicated dispute which led to it, awaits decision on three legal controversies, one of them in the United States Supreme court.

Basic in importance is the controversy between Nebraska and Wyoming, in which Nebraska seeks to enforce priority rights to North Platte river waters now also claimed by Wyoming. Varying interpretations of irrigation laws are involved. That suit, in the nation's highest tribunal, will not be decided for about two years. Meantime the Mitchell [Neb.] district dispute which led to use of the militia cannot be settled finally.

Ten Directors Cited.

Second court action including contempt citations against 10 directors of the Mitchell irrigation district is up for hearing.

The Mitchell district gets it water from the North Platte river, three-quarters of a mile west of the Wyoming-Nebraska line, and land irrigated from its canals lies entirely in Scotts Bluff county, Neb., in which the town of Mitchell is located.

Further downstream, to the east, are other districts to which the state granted water rights in years earlier than the Mitchell district began its use of water. Nebraska's official position upholds these rights in their historical order.

When water is plentiful there is no dispute. But this summer when the flow decreased to a point where Mitchell's priority gave way to others downstream, Mitchell was ordered to close it headgate just over the line in Wyoming. Refusal brought the flareup and subsequent martial law.

Refusal to heed the order was based upon similar ground to the defense in the contempt cases, the argument that Nebraska has no right to order actions in Wyoming, and the contention that Nebraska courts cannot punish for failure to act in another state.

When the gate remained open Nebraska dammed the Mitchell canal. Night riders cut the banks and Mitchell farmers got badly needed water for four days, while other districts suffered. Then came martial law, the ditch was redammed, and finally the headgate was closed.

Politics Enter Squabble.

Meantime politics entered the situation. Terry Carpenter, former congressman from Scotts Bluff and the candidate defeated by Gov. R. L. Cochran for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination last year, has condemned the governor for his martial law action. But the governor was commended in formal resolutions of several irrigation districts in that section.

Now Attorney General William H. Wright has filed suit in the Nebraska Supreme court seeking a $45,000 appropriation by the legislature to push the water suit against Wyoming. Contempt actions against the farmers who cut the ditch have been ordered, but not filed.

Bride of Month Admits Shooting Mate to Death

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Mrs. Edith Redding, 23, bride of a month, was charged today with slaying her husband, Jimmie Redding, 28, who, she said, "had been seeing another woman." "I did not mean to kill him," she said. "I just shot to scare him."

Review of the Week: Chicago: The Nation: The World

Foreign

War.

One after another eighteen members of the league of nations moved to stop Mussolini's Ethiopian war plans. Sir Samuel Hoare, British foreign secretary, drove the first spike. France followed Britain. Then yesterday came Russia and smaller nations. Mussolini was told that the league would stand solidly against him if he makes war on Ethiopia. France in return wants a promise from Britain guaranteeing its security in possible future troubles.

The United States reminded Italy and Ethiopia that they had signed the Kellogg-Briand treaty agreeing not to attack another nation.

Italy remained defiant. Its cabinet said no peaceful settlement in Ethiopia was possible. An official statement said that Mussolini had told his ministers that Italy's forces were prepared for war from any quarter. The statement hinted Italy might quit the league.

Ethiopia sent more troops to the borders.

The development of this scene began Sunday. Hoare arrived in Geneva. With him he had the approval of the British cabinet for a strong stand against war. In Rome Mussolini spoke twice. To one group he said "We will march straight on"; to another he said Italy wants peace with justice. Gabriel D'Annunzio [Gabriel the Announcer] wrote a letter to President Lebrun of France. D'Annunzio asked that France take Italy's part at the meetings of the league.

The assembly of the league opened on Monday.

On Tuesday the committee of five nations [Great Britain, France, Turkey, Spain, and Poland], named by the league council, asked Italy to promise not to go to war until the league acts. Baron Pompeo Aloisi, for the Italians, refused to promise. Italian newspapers printed editorials against Great Britain. They said Britain recognizes treaties in the way that will help it most. The prince of Wales and his American companion, Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson, planned to go across Italy on their way to Vienna. The British foreign office advised the prince to go around Italy.

The commission of five nations called Baron Aloisi. The commission wanted to offer Italy another plan to avoid war. He refused to appear. That made the other members of the assembly angry. Mussolini called 50,000 more men for the army. He announced that every Fascist in Italy will act as though the nation was at war. Someday, soon, every man, woman, and child in the party will take a war post for one day. He did not say what day. A Chicago firm announced it would send no more trucks to Italy. Trucks that were sent have not been paid for.

On Wednesday Hoare spoke before the assembly. He said small nations were entitled to their rights. To make sure they get them the British are ready to vote sanctions against Italy. He warned France that the league must stand solidly against Italy. If the league fails England may withdraw from engagements on the European continent. That would leave France alone against Germany. The rest of the British cabinet met in London. They approved Sir Samuel's speech. From Rome the order was given for Italian land and sea forces in Africa to work together. The navy was placed under the command of the high commissioner of east Africa.

On Thursday the "other senator from Idaho," James P. Pope, cabled Secretary of State Hull from Geneva. Pope asked Hull to call a conference of the nations that have signed the Kellogg treaty. Hull did not answer the cable. Instead he issued a statement. He reminded Italy and Ethiopia that they had both signed the treaty. The treaty is a pledge against war. The Netherlands, Belgium, and Sweden told the league they would follow Great Britain in taking action against Italy. Italy sent more troops to Africa. England sent troops to Malta.

On Friday Premier Laval of France spoke to the assembly. He said France would do as the league rules. That means France will vote for sanctions against Italy. Secretary Hull in Washington said he was glad France had joined the side of England. Italy announced that nothing would change Mussolini's plans in Africa.

Yesterday Russia, Portugal, Jugo-Slavia, Rumania, and Czechoslovakia joined the front against Italy. Maxim Litvinov, Russian commissar for foreign affairs, warned that a strong stand should be taken now because Germany may be next. Italy gathered her navy in the Mediterranean. England protested to Greece for allowing Italian warships to enter Greek harbors. [See main news section for latest developments.]

Uncommon News-Words

Sanctions—By the league of nations means united action against a warlike country by [a] cutting off all trade or [b] by sending combined troops against it.

Concession—A plan by which a government sells to a person or a company the right to deal in certain goods and [or] minerals, oils, lumber, etc.

Diplomatic immunity—An agreement between countries that their agents shall be free to ignore certain local laws.

Emperor Haile Selassie could do little in Ethiopia. He has no factories with which to make arms. He owns only seven airplanes. He has only a few machine guns. Uniforms for his army are made by native tailors who work in the open air. He sent 25,000 savage Galla tribesmen off to the northern front on Monday. American trucks carried the few supplies they had. On Tuesday he accepted the offer of a battalion of women to fight for Ethiopia.

Haile Selassie has not been entirely idle. He has been appealing to the world to take Ethiopia's side against Italy. On Tuesday Waizeru Mennen, Ethiopian queen, tried to broadcast a speech to the United States by radio. Interference was so bad she could not be heard. Waizeru, who took Haile Selassie as her fourth husband in 1912, has been doing her best to help. Haile Selassie was more fortunate on Friday. He could be heard in the United States when he appealed for aid against Italy.

Germany.

Tons of bread, cheese, meat, and sausage poured into Nuremberg, Germany, last Monday. So did Adolf Hitler and between a quarter and a half million of his followers. Tuesday was the opening day of the third annual convention of the National Socialist [Nazi] party. The leaders spent the week shouting their own accomplishments to the rank and file of the party. •• Hitler was given a sword on the opening day. It was just like the swords the old German emperors, including Kaiser Wilhelm, carried before the world war. It was given as a symbol of the unity and preparedness of Germany under Hitler. Wednesday he joined other leaders in speaking to 20,000 Nazis. He said that Germany was no longer a football of other nations. He said that the army was the nation's most valuable possession. Hitler's fourth speech was made Thursday before 52,000 youthful members of the labor service. He created a sensation by calling a meeting of the reichstag [congress] for today at Nuremberg. The reichstag usually meets in Berlin. Friday it was announced that Hitler would adopt the Nazi swastika as Germany's national flag.

Jews.

For hundreds of years Jews all over Europe were forced to live in ghettos. A ghetto was a section of a city with a high wall around it. Often there was not room enough for all the Jews, but they were packed in anyway. Some countries even made the Jew sew a badge of shame on his clothing, to be worn whenever he left the ghetto to go to other parts of the city. The latest rule of the Nazis may mean that they are going to put German Jews back in ghettos again. •• Beginning next spring no child who is even one-half Jewish may attend public schools. They must go to schools apart from the other children. Bernhard Rust, German minister of culture, issued the order on Tuesday. The Germans say this is just another step in their program to separate Jews from Aryans [Hitler term for pure Germans]. Another separation move was made in Berlin Sunday. After Oct. 1 no Jewish newspapers or magazines may be sold on the streets of the German capital. •• The aim to drive the Jew back to the ghetto may meet with armed opposition. A new Zionist organization met in Vienna Tuesday. It voted to organize a "Jewish Legion."

Greece.

Princess Marina of Greece is a cousin of George, former king of Greece. She is also the wife of the duke of Kent, fourth son of the king of England. She has been helping to build up British support for the return of her cousin to his throne. The British would like a king in Greece anyway. The Republicans, now in control of Greece, are favorable to Italy. The return of George to the throne, or even the placing of the duke of Kent there, would mean the Public Works.

The dispute between Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes and Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins over which should spend most of the 4 billion dollar public works funds ended Thursday night. President Roosevelt voted for Hopkins.

Hopkins is in charge of the Works Progress administration. This organization gives out money for such easy jobs as boondoggling, leaf raking, and beach combing. Ickes is head of the Public Works administration, which finances more lasting projects, such as roads and buildings.

At first most of the money was to go to PWA. But so far not one PWA project has been started. This is because every PWA project needs preparation, such as architecture, planning, buying of land, and buying of materials. The delay endangered the President's plan to have 3,500,000 men off the relief rolls by Nov. 1 and placed on public works jobs.

Hopkins and the WPA faced very little trouble. WPA jobs could be laid out overnight. Hopkins, therefore, wanted the biggest share of the 4 billion dollar fund.

Illinois felt the bitterness of the feud between Ickes and Hopkins. Hopkins, it was learned on Tuesday, vetoed 71 Illinois projects already approved by Ickes. The projects amounted to $42,705,161 and included five Chicago and five Cook county jobs. Among them was the south side water filtration plant.

Much of Chicago's work is tied up with the state. But funds have not been coming in. On Wednesday Mayor Kelly wired the President asking him to release $32,544,000 in WPA funds, already allotted, for resurfacing nearly 1,000 miles of the city's streets. In Washington, the next day, Controler General J. R. McCarl released the money. Soon afterward Robert J. Dunham, WPA administrator in Illinois, said that the street program would be started on Tuesday. About 900 men will be moved from relief to WPA rolls.

Mr. Dunham and his assistants put in long hours last week trying to speed the city, county, and state work programs. On Monday he announced an Illinois recreational program. This will take in athletics, singing festivals, dramatics, pageants, arts and crafts. This is to occupy young people so they will not get into trouble. On Tuesday Mr. Dunham approved a sewer program for Chicago that will employ 39,795 men and cost $32,709,014. On Wednesday he approved the lake front airport and permanent fair projects, which will employ 12,000 men. He also approved a project for an elevated highway in Chicago, to cost $13,750,000. This project was presented to the President by Mayor Kelly two weeks ago. He said it would speed trafic and save lives. On Friday Mr. Dunham told his aids to hurry their plans. So far he has sent 3,888 plans to Washington; only 45 have been approved. Only $35,000,000 has been allotted out of $450,000,000 asked.

President.

President Roosevelt's biggest job last week was to straighten out the differences between Secretary Ickes and Administrator Hopkins. [See Public Works.] Besides that he kept his eye on the Italo-Ethiopian war situation. He let it be known that he approved Secretary of State Cordell Hull's reminder to Italy on Thursday that the threat of war is a threat to the interests of all nations. [See War.]

Much of the rest of the President's time was taken up by callers. Among them were the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit radio priest; Frank N. Belgrano Jr., national commander of the American Legion; Gov. Herbert H. Lehman of New York, and various New Deal assistants.

Father Coughlin has been attacking the President's New Deal policies. Last year he was a strong supporter of the President. The priest visited the President at luncheon Tuesday. President Roosevelt said they just chatted.

Father Coughlin's meeting with the President was not reported until he himself mentioned it to reporters at Albany, N. Y., on Wednesday. He said he was the first to tell Roosevelt of Senator Huey Long's assassination. [See Long.] The President said he knew about it before he saw Coughlin. On Tuesday the President issued a statement saying the murder of Long was unAmerican. On the same day he issued a proclamation calling for the national observance on Oct. 11 of the 156th anniversary of the death of Gen. Casimir Pulaski with the revolutionary army.

The visit of Commander Belgrano was to invite the President to speak before the national convention of the American Legion in St. Louis on Sept. 25 or 26. The President will be on his journey to the west at that time, and will be passing through St. Louis,. The President told Belgrano he would give serious consideration to the invitation. The keynote speech at the convention is to be made by Bainbridge Colby, former secretary of state under Wilson and a staunch Democrat. For the last year Colby has been hammering the New Deal. On May 24, 1934, in New York, Colby said the New Deal was building a vast burocracy without authority. Late in May this year he was reported ready to unite with Republicans to return to constitutional government. In July, at Omaha, he said: "This high falutin' junk that seems to be raising in Washington is something that the American people have little stomach for." He said Roosevelt had repudiated his platform 100 per cent. In August it was reported Colby would form a new Democratic party. On Sept. 7, at Portland, Me., he said the New Deal was paving the way for soviet ideals.

AAA.

Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia continued his fight on the Agricultural Adjustment administration. At Atlanta, on Wednesday, he petitioned President Roosevelt to end the activities of the AAA. He called it a contrivance for stealing from the American farmers.

In Washington Wednesday Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, who has charge of the AAA program, exhibited several loaves of bread. They were made of low grade wheat by his department laboratories. Mr. Wallace said that if the bakers would use the low grade wheat and the housewives would buy the bread, it would not be necessary to import 30,000,000 bushels of high test hard spring wheat from Canada. The bread was a dingy yellow, with a rubbery texture. Mr. Wallace figured this year's American wheat crop at 592 million bushels, with a carryover from last year of 153 million bushels. The normal domestic consumption is 630 million bushels.

In Milwaukee, Wis., on Thursday, Mayor Daniel Hoan conferred with a committee to see what could be done about lowering the price of meat. Housewives in Milwaukee favor a meat strike, similar to that in Detroit. Stanley Miezo, spokesman for the housewives, told the mayor that their protests to Washington have not helped. "Unless something is done we may picket stores," he warned.

Navy.

The navy on Monday awarded contracts for the building of twelve ships in private yards and furnished money for the building of eleven other ships in government yards. The private yards will build one aircraft carrier, eight destroyers, and three submarines. The government yards will build one light cruiser, seven destroyers, and three submarines. The keel of the 10,000 ton treaty cruiser Honolulu was laid Monday at the Brooklyn navy yard.

Seeks Culture.

Representative William Sirovich, a New York Democrat, says don't be surprised if the President next January creates a new cabinet office—the department of science, art, and literature. In Cincinnati Monday he told reporters he had talked with the President about such a department and the President seemed to like it.

Representative Sirovich, who is a physician by profession, leans toward the arts, particularly the stage and literature. At the moment he is writing the twentieth or twenty-first chapter of a novel that he thinks will be great when it's finished. Once he wrote a play. In 1932 he started an investigation of drama critics. He charged they were killing the stage with their mean reviews. In 1933 he tried to start an inquiry into the movie industry. Earlier, he devoted much of his energy to the advocacy of concentrated wine bricks as a cure for prohibition. The bricks, put into water, made wine.

Hull Sorry.

Secretary of State Hull yesterday told Germany that the United States regretted the remarks of Judge Louis Brodsky of New York, criticizing the Hitler government. [See Jews, foreign, column 2 this page; also main news section.]

Religion

Monday was baptism day at the colored Baptist church in New Haven, Conn. The Rev. Jacob Williams was baptizing his converts in the shallow edge of a lagoon near town. The reverend and one of his deacons took hold of Erskine Kidd, 27. They ducked him once. He came up and flopped away from them. Kidd's body was recovered later in twelve feet of water.

One who has more than one wife is known as a polygamist. The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints [Mormon] once recognized polygamy. In the manifesto of 1890 the Mormons threw out polygamy. Some Mormons in Short Creek, Utah, were recently discovered to be still following the practice. For doing so six men and six women among them were put out of the Mormon church on Thursday. The same day County Attorney Elmo Bollinger, in Kingman, Ariz., said that three of them were fugitives from justice.

The City

MacVeagh.

Society columns of 1911 described Eames MacVeagh, then 36 years old, as Chicago's wealthiest and most eligible bachelor. Much was made of his lonesome life in a 72 room house while his father, Franklin MacVeagh, served in Washington as secretary of the treasury under Taft. No matter at what gay ball he had led the cotillon the night before, the only son arrived punctually at his office every morning to conduct his father's great wholesale grocery business. Many women wrote him scented proposals. Once he denounced Chicago men as crude and ill mannered. •• Time went on and Eames MacVeagh remained "eligible," stoutly denying engagement after engagement. Then in 1929, when he was 54, he astonished Chicago by marrying Miss Zelie Barthelemy in faraway Peterboro, N. H. She was the daughter of a former French consul general in Chicago. •• Greater was the surprise when Miss Louise Hagen, 47 year old New York artist, filed suit against him in December, 1934. Miss Hagen stated that for breaking his promise to marry her MacVeagh had agreed to pay her $250 a month for life. She asked $2,500 which she said was due. •• The trial was delayed, but when it came up before Municipal Judge Joseph H. McGarry last Monday a side of MacVeagh's life never known was bared in cold questions and answers. MacVeagh met Miss Hagen, a 16 year old manicure from Ottawa, Ill., in a State street shop in 1905. By 1911 they had become intimate and in 1912 Miss Hagen went alone to an Aurora, Ill., farm where she gave birth to a boy. From then on MacVeagh supported Miss Hagen and sent her to Paris to study art. They did not know what became of their child whose adoption they had arranged for. •• Tall, dignified, and bald, MacVeagh, now 60, appeared in court Monday. He wore pince nez eyeglasses and from his lapel dangled a charity day tag inscribed, "Have a heart." He heard the plaintif's attorney relate that the defense attorney, State Senator James J. Barbour, had offered Miss Hagen three contracts in Atlantic City a week after MacVeagh's marriage. A fourth contract in 1933 agreed to continue Miss Hagen's heart balm at $250 a month. MacVeagh did not pay up in 1934. Senator Barbour declared the contract void because his client received no consideration in return. •• Then MacVeagh took the stand. He testified that over a period of 23 years he had paid Miss Hagen $75,000. He denied that he had promised to marry her and had kept her waiting because his parents would object. [His mother died in 1916 and his father in 1934.] He said he and Miss Hagen had never lived together. Wednesday MacVeagh resumed and told how his $3,000,000 fortune had dwindled to an income insufficient for himself and his wife. •• Thursday, Sept. 12, the 24th birthday of their son and a day they once liked to call their "anniversary," Miss Hagen took the stand. Before the large, faded blonde and blue eyed woman finished her bitter testimony MacVeagh left and forgot his hat. In an eastern accent as fine as his Harvard manner she said he would have "loved to marry me" except for his father; that he wanted to resume intimate relations in 1922; that he feigned a dislike for publicity as the most eligible bachelor but really liked it, and that he ungenerously limited her to $100 a month until after the war. •• Friday and Saturday the attorneys argued whether or not the $250 a month was a gift or a contract, and late Saturday afternoon Judge McGarry decided in Miss Hagen's favor. [For details see main news section.]

Bridge.

Bids for part of the construction of the outer drive bridge were opened Tuesday. The first of a series of contracts will be awarded next Tuesday, and work will be resumed within two weeks, said Robert J. Dunham, president of the Chicago park district. A $6,700,000 fund from the sale of outer drive bridge bonds will pay for construction. This fund was used to maintain park district credit until the legislature passed refunding and refinancing bills. William I. Bell, park engineer, expects the bridge will be completed in 17 months.

Ickes.

The will of Mrs. Anna Wilmarth Ickes, who was killed in an automobile accident Aug. 31, leaves almost all of her $500,000 estate to her husband, Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes. The will, filed for probate Wednesday, bequeathed from $1,000 to $5,000 to four persons. Her four children's share of the estate is up to Mr. Ickes. On the following day the will of Charles J. Vopicka, widely known Chicagoan and former diplomat, who died Sept. 3, was filed. A $100,000 estate is divided in trust, 60 per cent for the widow, Mrs. Victoria Vopicka, and 40 per cent for six daughters, after $7,500 charity bequests are paid.

G. A. R.

The new commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic is Oley Nelson, 91 years old, of Slater, Ia., who fought in the 15th army corps during the civil war. He was elected on Thursday at the annual encampment of the G. A. R. at Grand Rapids, Mich. Albert C. Estabrook of Grand Rapids was chosen senior vice commander.

The Thursday session was exciting. The veterans — nearly 400 of them from thirty-two states—voted on two questions. One was whether the 1936 encampment should be held in Washington, D. C. The other was whether the G. A. R. should hold a final reunion in 1938 with confederate veterans at Gettysburg, Pa.

Quite a few of the boys didn't want to meet in Washington. They felt it was too much a part of Dixie. However, 180 felt otherwise, and so they will meet in Washington next year.

The Gettysburg reunion offered a tougher problem. The confederates have already accepted on the condition that they be allowed to fly their old flag. Zachary Taylor Bryant, 88, of Lebanon, Ore., said that the confederate flag was a symbol of violation of the constitution. The veterans liked the idea of meeting their old foes, but finally left the question to the 1936 and 1937 conventions.

The Grand Rapids encampment closed Friday. It was the army's 69th. It opened on Monday. Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald of Michigan was the principal speaker. He said that the constitution the veterans had saved 70 years ago needed saving again, this time from danger within. The veterans held their annual parade on Wednesday. One hundred and sixty of them marched on foot.

swing of Greek support from Italy to Britain. With war looming in Ethiopia the British want all possible support in the Mediterranean sea. ●● Monarchist feeling in Greece has been growing. Last Tuesday it popped into the open when Premier Panayoti Tsaidaris issued a proclamation. He said that Greeks would be given a chance to vote for their choice—king or a republican government—in a short time. He asked them to vote for a king. The next day the Greek president, Alexander Zaimis, said that he was ready to resign in favor of a king. Thursday the Republicans announced that they would take no part in the voting which may take place Nov. 27. They said that, since the monarchist sympathizers control the government now, the royalists would win no matter how many voted against the return of the king.

Poland.

When the late Marshal Josef Pilsudski, dictator of Poland, died he left behind him the machinery of a new form of government. Only one set of candidates were to run for election to the Polish parliament. They were to be nominated by the government. Under that system the government was assured of winning before the first vote was cast. In the first election under the new system last Sunday the government won. Less than half the voters voted. They said that, in theory, they defeated the government by not voting for its candidates. Some tried to stop the voting. Three of the objectors were shot and 300 were arrested.

Queen.

Former Queen Victoria Eugenia was quite lonely when she fled a Spanish throne under the threat of a republican revolution. She has been growing lonelier ever since. Former King Alfonso isn't seen much in her company. Last Sunday a London newspaper printed a report that the pope had annuled their marriage. The exiled king was in Brussels. His Spanish friends became angry when correspondents questioned them about it. "This is an affair which it were best to leave untouched," one of them said. The trouble between the former king and the mother of his six children began even before they were exiled from Spain in 1931. Since that time Alfonso has been having a grand time in all the playgrounds of Europe. His English born queen returned to her childhood home, Carisbrooke castle, on the Isle of Wight.

Foreign Notes.

For more than ten years Magda Lupescu, red haired Jewess, has been the mistress of King Carol of Rumania. She cost him his throne for a time. Because of her Queen Helen divorced the king. The peasants in Rumania accuse her of being the cause of all the trouble in the country. At a secret meeting in Bucharest last Tuesday they made plans for farmers to march to the capital next month. One man said farmers would keep marching into Bucharest until the government resigned and the king got rid of Magda.

Westmont, suburb of Montreal, Que., has always been a very high class place. It became even a little more English last Tuesday. Its policemen threw away their American type caps. Now they wear helmets like those of the British "bobbies."

Huey Long

Late in August Senator Huey P. Long, as he was leaving Washington, confided to Senator Donahey of Ohio: "I've got a hell of a fight down in Louisiana—they'll get me yet."

Late Sunday night as Senator Long was walking through a corridor of the 33 story statehouse in Baton Rouge with friends and bodyguards, Dr. Carl A. Weiss Jr., 33 years old, dressed neatly in white, put a revolver to Long's side and fired. Bodyguards shot Dr. Weiss. A coroner's physician counted 30 bullet holes in the front and 29 in the back of his body, and three in the head.

Senator Long died just before dawn Tuesday. His last words were: "O, God! Don't let me die; I have a few more things to do." He was buried Thursday afternoon in a special burial plot in front of the statehouse. Scores of thousands of persons looked on. Floral pieces came from everywhere. The principal mourners were Long's widow, children, brothers and sisters, and his close political friends, associates. Among the latter was Long's former secretary, Miss Alice Lee Grosjean—in private life Mrs. W. A. Tharpe. She is supervisor of public accounts for the state.

Long's assassination fetched comment all over the world. The London Star said Long left "no successor, no system, no ideas for development, but only a passion for guns."

With Long dead and buried Louisiana turned to two things. One was to pick his successor. The other was to find out whether the assassin Weiss was a member of a ring sworn to kill Long. The first inquiry developed reports that Dr. Weiss belonged to such a ring, that the conspirators drew lots—a straw or a black ball—to determine who should be the killer. Dr. Weiss drew the fatal token, the reports said, and had to kill Long or die himself.

But other facts indicated Dr. Weiss did a one man job. He was known as a dreamer, the kind who might sacrifice his life for ideals. Other people, closer to the scene, see a personal motive. Long was planning to remove Dr. Weiss's father-in-law, Judge B. H. Pavy. Judge Pavy was anti-Long.

Dr. Weiss was known at Bellevue hospital in New York, where he served from July 1, 1930, to July 1, 1932. Dr. Maxwell D. Ryan said Dr. Weiss always appeared to be level headed. A nurse who insisted that her name not be used disagreed. Dr. Weiss, she said, was very temperamental and just the man to do such a thing.

Dr. Weiss' family was most puzzled. His young widow, Yvonne, was heartbroken. His mother said he had lived seriously and was a great champion of "right being right." Dr. Weiss was buried Monday. Many political notables, including two ex-governors—almost all foes of Long—attended his funeral. A group of his friends want to erect a martyr's monument to him.

Long became dictator of Louisiana through many bills pushed through the state legislature.

Some of the more important laws did this:

Gave Long control of the election machinery of the state; control of almost all the taxing power in the state; control over the dock, levee and airport boards of New Orleans; control of the public utility companies; control of the parish and city prosecuting attorneys, and control of park and other boards in parishes and cities throughout the state.

One law put all firemen and policemen in any city or parish under the control of a civil service board to be named by the state administration. Another made it necessary for all liquor dealers to get state licenses, thus subjecting them to Long influence.

One gave legislative pardons to 450 of his election officials who were charged with law violations.

Another created a department of secret police.

Another placed the state highway commission under Long's control, enabling him to spend more money.

Another gave him practical control of public education; Long had himself appointed a member of the board of the state university.

Doheny

A feeble old man now in his seventy-fifth year received visitors Monday in the home at Three Rivers, N. M., that he has occupied on and off for the last thirty-five years. Around him stretched thousands and thousands of acres, part and parcel of his huge ranch. The feeble old man was Albert B. Fall, former senator and former secretary of the interior under President Harding. The visitors were newspaper men, calling to tell him of the death of Edward L. Doheny.

Doheny, 79, died in his home at Beverly Hills, Cal., Sunday. He was an oil operator, worth at least $75,000,000. Yet with all his millions it was Fall who made him a figure in the news. Doheny was Fall. It was Doheny, according to a jury several years ago, who gave Fall—secretary of the interior—a $100,000 bribe for a lease on the Elk Hills oil fields. For that Fall went to prison for a year in 1932. Doheny was tried twice in connection with the oil lease and the alleged bribe. He was acquitted twice. He contended that the $100,000 Fall got was a loan and not a bribe.

Curiously, it was Fall's huge ranch at Three Rivers that upset him. Investigators wondered how he could finance such a ranch. Their search turned to the oil leases and the alleged bribe. A month ago Fall's ranch rose again to perplex him. An action was begun in court by the Petroleum Securities company, controled by Doheny, to eject Fall. The company allegedly held a mortgage on the land. Fall denied this. He said he would fight eviction. And when he was told of Doheny's death he said: "I regret that Ed did not live to repair some of the wrongs being done at the present time. In good health he would not have permitted these things." But company officials declared that Doheny knew what was being done. Doheny was buried on Wednesday after services were held in St. Vincent's Catholic cathedral. The church was built with $2,500,000 of Doheny's money.

When it broke, she said, he became furious, and when she told him he wasn't a good chef he struck her.

Business houses write in red ink their losses of the week, month, or year. During the worst of the depression the ink makers sold more red ink than usual. Now, according to George H. Crime

Mrs. Frances Cugino, young and pretty, posed gladly for newspaper photographers at police headquarters in New York City on Monday night. In a cell downstairs her husband, Anthony Cugino, a Philadelphia gangster known as Tony the Stinger, wrote a note to her. Then he cut his shirt into strips and tied the strips into a rope and noose. About the time that Mrs. Cugino smilingly waved good-by to the photographers Cugino hanged himself. His note read: "My dear wife Frances: Please do not worry and just try your best to be happy. I'm going to end this life of hell. I will meet you in the next world. Your husband." Cugino was accused of eight murders. He denied seven of them, but admitted he killed Policeman Charles Stockberger of Philadelphia on July 14, 1933.

In a murder trial there must be proof of the existence of the body of the victim. Many slayers have escaped trial because the bodies could not be found. A court in Sydney, Australia, on Tuesday freed Patrick Brady, 42, of a murder charge because there was no proof as to the existence of the body of his alleged victim, James Smith. Smith, a yacht caretaker, and Brady, a sheep shearer, went fishing in April. Brady returned. Smith disappeared. A few days later fishermen caught a shark. They found a tatooed human arm inside the shark. Smith's widow and friends identified the arm as that of Smith. Brady went to trial on Monday, but the judge threw the case out on the ground that the tatooed arm could not be regarded as a body.

Twelve women jurors in Recorder's court, Detroit, on Tuesday returned a verdict of guilty against Max Himmelstein, charged with buying an automobile that he knew was stolen. Judge John A. Boyne was surprised. "Ladies, you can't do this!" he exclaimed. "Under the law Himmelstein is innocent." He pointed out there was no evidence that Himmelstein knew the car in question was stolen. Judge Boyne instructed the women jurors to reconsider the case. They did this and 15 minutes later found Himmelstein not guilty. Prosecutor McCrea, in a statement Wednesday, said the judge's action was very unusual.

Medicine

Tuberculosis.

The Journal of the American Medical Association in an editorial asked an age-old question: Is climate important in tuberculosis? "Yes" was the reply the Cowles commission for research in economics made last Sunday from Colorado Springs, Colo. Dr. Charles F. Roos, director of research, compared 150,000 tuberculosis deaths in 42 states. He found 19 influences on tuberculosis, but only six or seven that were important. Of these, climate provided four: hours of sunshine, altitude and humidity, rainfall, and daily temperature.

Paralysis.

Infantile paralysis in Illinois reached its peak since 1931 when on Monday 117 cases for the year were reported by the state department of public health at Springfield. Forty-one new cases were reported for the two weeks ending Monday.

Dr. Esposito said he would remove the right tonsil after next Tuesday's primary.

Flying

Howard Hughes, millionaire sportsman and movie producer, is an aviation enthusiast. Recently he spent $120,000 to build a superspeed plane. He told friends he hoped to establish a new world's land plane speed record. On Friday he made the test officially. In a series of six flights over a measured course, with National Aeronautics association officials checking him, he reached a speed of 352 miles an hour for an official world's record. He ran out of gas on the last test, and his plane crashed in a forced landing. Hughes was not hurt. The previous speed record was 314 miles an hour, held by Raymond Delmotte of France.

Hatters

Dietrich Edward Loewe, 83 years old, died Thursday in his home in Danbury, Conn. He was a retired hat manufacturer, a leader in the famous Danbury hatters' case.

In 1893 the Hatters' union tried to unionize his shops. Loewe, a native German, knew little about unions except that he did not want them in his shops. He fought the attempted unionization. Strikes, boycotts, and other troubles continued almost to 1908.

Meantime Loewe had sued the strikers, the unions, and labor officials in the federal courts. He asked damages on the ground that they had injured his business. The case dragged through the courts. Finally, in January, 1915, the United States Supreme court decided in Loewe's favor and awarded him $252,000 damages. The decision established a rule that "labor unions and their officers are personally liable for damages inflicked by boycott, and the victim may sue and recover threefold his loss."

Mr. Loewe set out to collect the damages. He obtained attachments against the homes and bank accounts of members of the union. Many of them suffered hardships to pay their shares of the damages. Finally the American Federation of Labor asked for contributions from all classes of American labor. They were given, saving the homes of many of the workers. Mr. Loewe received about $235,000 from the union men and the unions.

The long litigation left him broken in health and fortune. In 1926 his company went into bankruptcy. Three business competitors formed a creditors' committee and raised $90,000 to bring about a settlement of 40 cents on the dollar. The Manufacturers' Association of Connecticut offered him an annuity of $5,000.

Politics

The Republican national committee, in Washington, reported on a survey on Sunday tending to show that President Roosevelt has broken most of his major campaign promises. The committee asserted the President had promised to keep the country on a sound money basis and then had virtually taken it off the gold standard; that he had denounced burocracy and then had built up the greatest burocracy in history; that he had promised a reduction in federal expenditures and then had boosted them up to the greatest in history; that he had promised to remove the government from competition with private business and then had thrust the government into almost every field of private enterprise, and that he had denounced increases in state and local taxes and then had done his best to force such increases to bolster his New Deal.

Republicans grinned Monday when they learned the national committee had a surplus of $24,986 in the treasury. Democrats scowled two days later when they learned their national committee was $417,868 in debt.

Attacks on the New Deal continued last week. Representative Bertrand H. Snell of New York, Republican leader in the house, on Wednesday accused the President of violating his oath to support the constitution.

Early in the week former United States Senator Otis Glenn of Illinois told 2,000 Young Republicans in Glencoe, Ill., that the Democrats were losing public support. Hanford MacNider, former national commander of the American Legion and former minister to Canada, in a Chicago radio talk, said the New Deal amounted to a virtual dictatorship, "maintained half by fear and half by liberality with other people's money."

On Wednesday William Lemke, radical member of congress from North Dakota, told the Chicago Bar association that the New Deal would bankrupt the country if it continued to spend at its present rate. Mrs. George B. Simmons, wife of a Missouri farmer, said the people ought to defeat every representative or senator "who danced to the White House tune in 1935."

The only true political note of the week was struck in Kentucky. A week ago yesterday the state voted to nominate a Democratic candidate for governor. At Harlan thousands of free Americans voted under guard of the state militia, called out by Gov. Ruby Laffoon. The count of ballots was completed on Tuesday. It showed the winner to be Albert [Happy] Chandler, 37 year old lieutenant governor. He beat Laffoon's candidate, Thomas S. Rhea, 64, by 25,000 votes. Harlan county, in spite of the troops, gave Chandler a 3 to 1 majority.

LITTLE WINS NATIONAL AMATEUR GOLF TITLE

CUBS TAKE FIRST PLACE; WHIP BROOKLYN, 18 TO 14

GAIN FULL GAME HOLD ON LEAD AS CARDS LOSE

Pound Seven Dodger Pitchers.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Cubs, given momentum by Brooklyn Daffy Dodgers, leaped over the world champion St. Louis Cardinals yesterday into the leading rôle of the National league's pennant drama.

The Dodgers, invariably willing to accommodate, did their share in changing the setting by submitting to a bruising in which the new leaders, weary but willing, staggered to their eleventh straight victory by a score reliably reported to be 18 to 14. Eleven straight equals the Cubs' best previous streak of the season.

And the Giants did the rest by taking apart the world champion Cardinal machine for the second consecutive day, leaving the Cubs with a four point hold on the top rung and actually a full game ahead on victories and defeats. But the apparently revived New Yorkers are only 3½ games behind Grimm's young Bears.

Root Needs Help.

No heroics were unfolded as the Cubs went on to their eleventh in a row unless it was by the 13,328 individuals who took it without complaint. The Dodgers did things to prove the attachment of daffy to their trade name is not an injustice. Seven of their pitchers, at least they held that position, were shattered by 18 base hits, ten bases on balls, four errors and various blunders of commission for which there was no explanation except that the Dodgers frequently get that way.

Nothing of an unsavory nature could be charged against the Cubs as long as Charley Root was in there with his usual effectiveness. But that wasn't long enough. He pitched hitless ball for four innings. Then he fell apart despite a tremendous lead, and after three successive innings had sent nine of the daffy troopers home, the veteran was relieved by Ray Henshaw. And the midget southpaw promptly put on a ninth inning exhibition that rivaled the doings of the Brooklyn fellows. Lefty had to be yanked after five had scored.

Freddie Opens Up.

If there was anything heroic about ripping the Dodgers to ribbons, Freddy Lindstrom and Bill Herman probably are entitled to mention. Lindstrom reeled off two doubles and a triple, indicating he has been figuring the size of the world series pot. His hits drove in three runs and he scored thrice himself. And Herman hit a couple of times, both being two baggers, giving him a total of 51 doubles for the season.

The visit of the Cubs to first place is their first this season. Until now the Giants and Cardinals had held it to the exclusion of all others, barring the first couple weeks of the race. The Giants went into the lead April 27 and at one time were 9½ games in front. They remained ahead of the field until the evening of Aug. 25, when the Cubs whipped them and the Cards won a pair at Brooklyn. But the Giants haven't abandoned hope for themselves. After their impending series with the Cubs, they must contend only with second division opposition.

The Big Parade Starts.

Babich remained on the job long enough to try his skill on four batters in the first inning. One of these men was retired. The two run foray opened with a pass to Galan, who took second on Herman's infield out. While Lindstrom was at bat Lopez made a wide throw back at Babich and Galan skipped to third, whence he scored

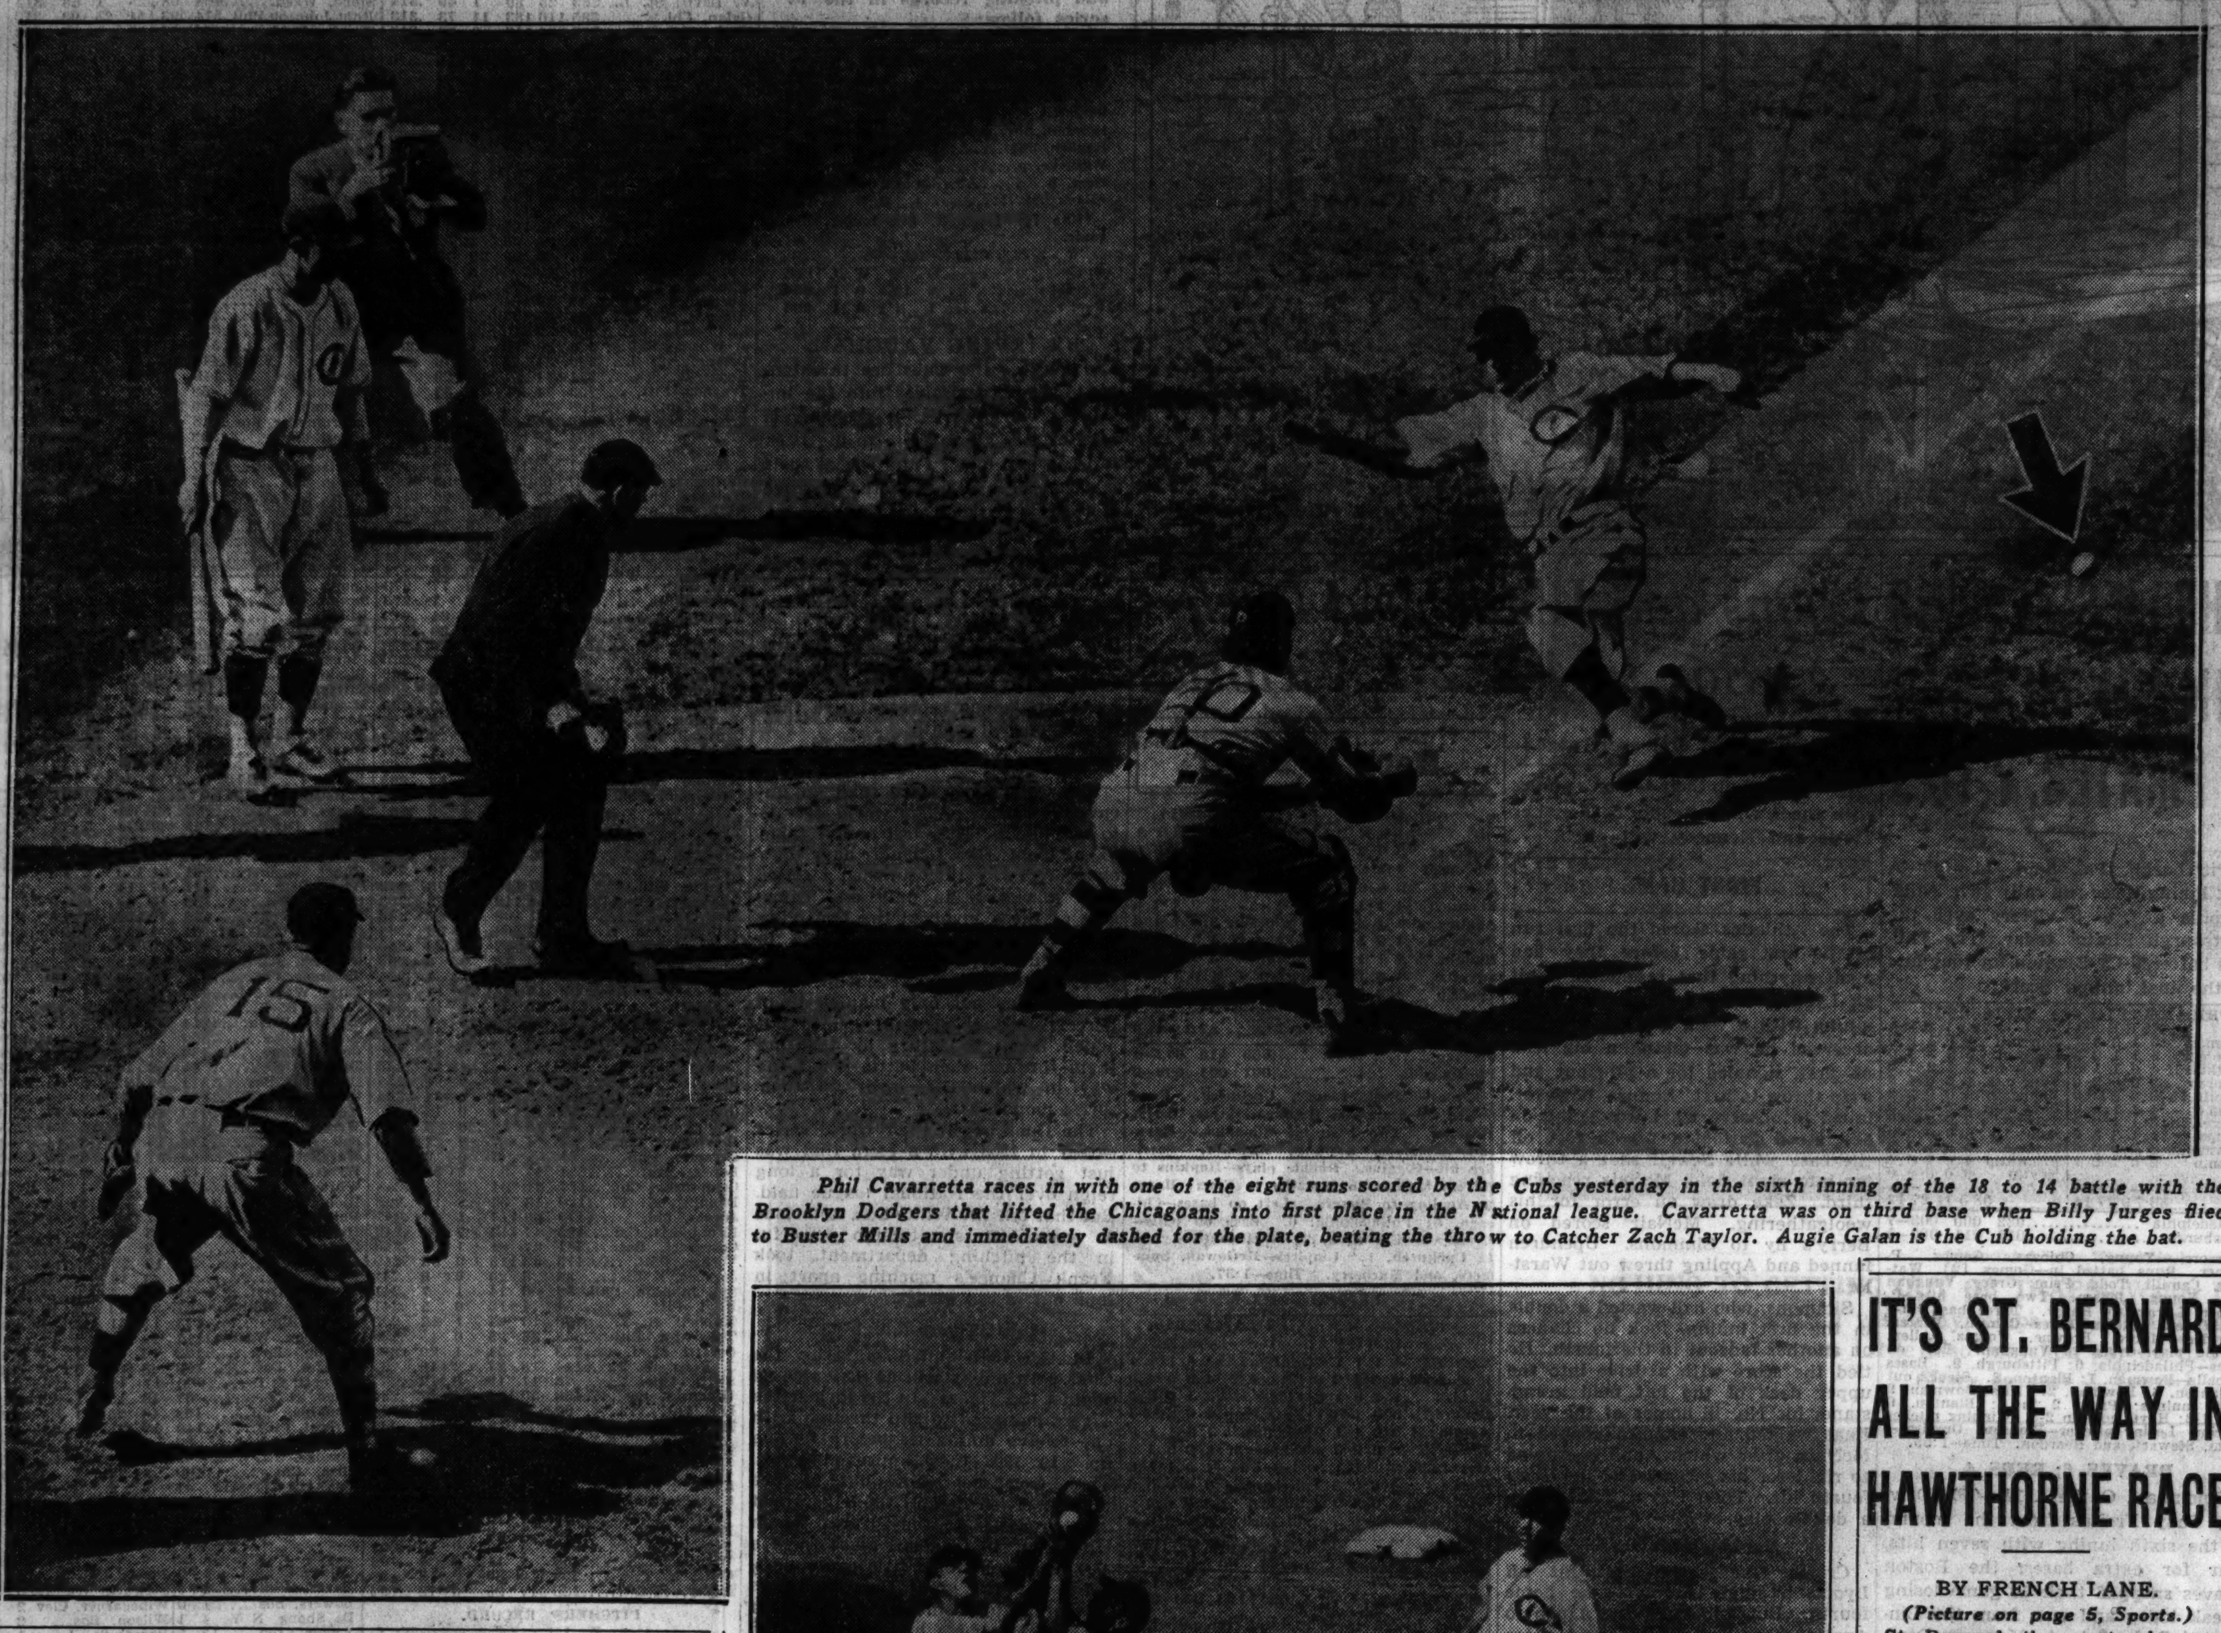
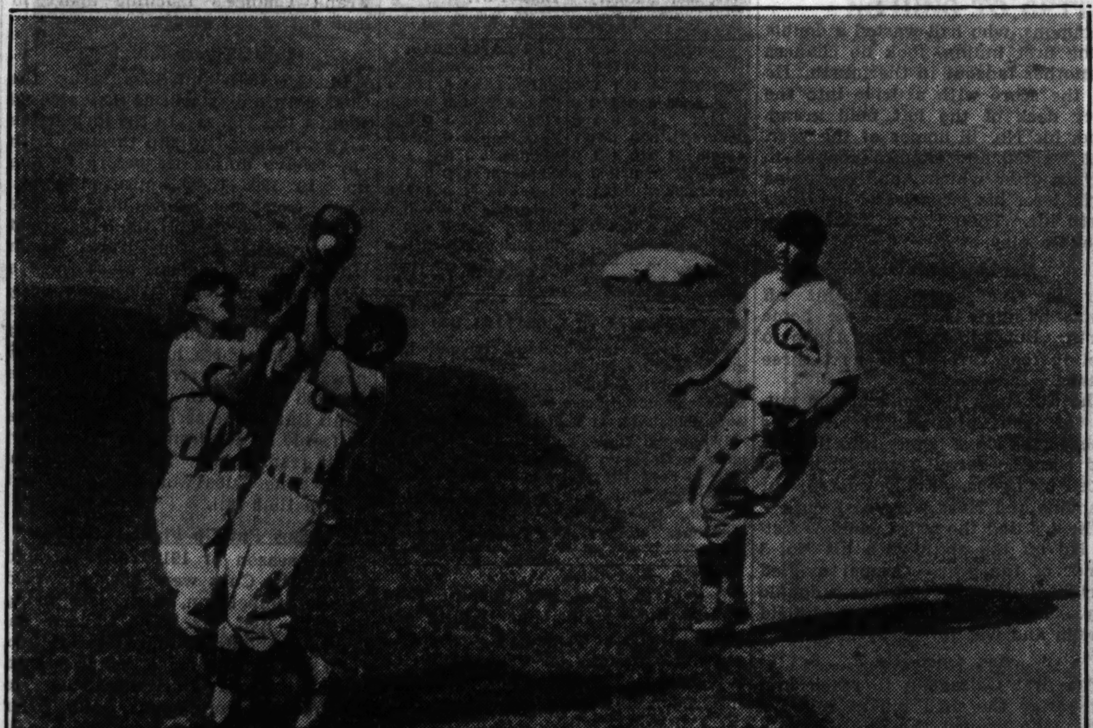
ELEVEN IN A ROW—NOW LET'S GET THAT PENNANT



Phil Cavarretta races in with one of the eight runs scored by the Cubs yesterday in the sixth inning of the 18 to 14 battle with the Brooklyn Dodgers that lifted the Chicagoans into first place in the National league. Cavarretta was on third base when Billy Jurges flied to Buster Mills and immediately dashed for the plate, beating the throw to Catcher Zach Taylor. Augie Galan is the Cub holding the bat.



Copying the daffy Dodgers. Phil Cavarretta gets his glove on Al Lopez' pop fly in the third inning, but Billy Jurges crashes into the Cub first baseman and draws an error for interfering with the play. Billy Herman is behind them.

Here's What Cubs Must Do to Beat Out Giants, Cards

The Cubs have 12 more to play, the Cardinals 16 more and the Giants 19 more in the National league pennant race. If the Cubs can win eight of their twelve, eleven of which will be against first division occupants, they would finish with a final mark of 98 victories and 56 defeats. To tie that the Cardinals would have to win 11 out of 16 and Giants 15 out of 19.

If the Cubs win 8 out of 12, the Cards 10 out of 16 and the Giants 14 out of 19 the final standing would be:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Chicago	98	56	.636
St. Louis	97	57	.630
New York	97	57	.630

If the Cubs break even in the 12 remaining games the Cards could beat them out by winning 10 out of 16. If the Cards break even in 16 the Cubs, by breaking even, would win the pennant by one game, provided the Giants were held to 12 wins and 7 defeats.

BRITISH RYDER TEAM LEAVES FOR U. S. MATCH

LONDON, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Confident of victory, Great Britain's Ryder cup golf team left London today. The British squad meets America's picked professionals in the international matches at Ridgewood, N. J., Sept. 28-29.

"We'll win," said the team captain, Charles Whitcombe. "I feel sure of it. It's the best possible side that could be chosen and all the players have shown remarkable form in recent weeks. We're out for a big victory and to restore British golfing prestige to the full."

A large crowd, including the veteran British pros, Abe Mitchell, George Duncan, and Fred Robson, bade the team farewell as it entrained on the boat train for Southampton to embark on the Empress of Australia for Quebec.

Bill Cox, one of the new members of the squad, revealed he is going to look for a brother in America as well as play golf.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 14—(AP)—The never give up spirit of the Giants, plus another big array of hits, carried them through to their second extra inning victory over the Cardinals today, 5 to 4, and cost St. Louis the National league lead.

The windup bore a striking similarity to yesterday's finish. For the second time a relief pitcher cracked a double that played the big part in winning his own game after an array of pinch hitters and runners had failed to come through. With two out in the eleventh, Clydell Castleman, the Giants' first year pitcher, who was batted out yesterday, hit a two bagger. He scored the winning run when Joe Moore singled. Then with the aid of a snappy double play held the Cards in check through the last half of the eleventh.

The resemblance to yesterday's 13-10 game ceased there, however. Despite the absence of Pepper Martin and Travis Jackson, regular third basemen, both teams fielded steadily, making only one error each.

Aurora Defeats Hurricanes, 11-10, in National Polo

Westbury, N. Y., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Aurora fought its way through to the final round of the national open polo tournament today in the most exciting game the series has produced so far by defeating the Hurricanes, 11 to 10. Leading, 6 to 1, soon after the third period started, Aurora found itself battling a team that did not stop until it had caught them and gone past them in the final period. It required a bitter fight for Aurora to win the match with two goals just before the close.

If one or two figures had to be singled out for special praise it would have to be the back field of the losing team and the No. 3 of the winners. Bobby Strawbridge and Cocie Rathborne, the No. 3 and the back of the Hurricanes, refused to admit defeat. Young Bobby Gerry of the Hurricanes, too, was all over the field.

For Aurora, Ebbie Gerry at No. 3 played about the most consistent game, but his teammates also found the courage and ability to answer the bid of the Hurricanes and come back.

In the final period, it was the Aurora captain, Seymour Knox, mounted on Helenita, who slid out in front and calmly scored the tying goal after his side had been forced to the rear. Billy Post, time and again, moved in to turn play at critical points.

Lyons and Whitehead Hurl Sox to 4-2, 2-1 Victories

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 14.—Ted Lyons and Johnny Whitehead this afternoon turned in two fine jobs of major league pitching and the infragrant sandlot aroma which has been hanging like a pall over the White Sox was swept away in two splendid victories, 4 to 2 and 2 to 1 in ten innings.

The first game gave Lyons his 15th favorable decision of the season. The great performance of Whitehead in his first start after a spell of illness was his 13th victory of the year.

Whitehead turned in the best pitching the Sox have seen since Vern Kennedy's no hitter and should have had a 1 to 0 shutout, in which event he would have had the added distinction of driving in the winning instead of the tying run.

Johnny Was Hot.

He allowed only five hits. One of these was a scoring mistake, and the ball in this instance should have been handled to prevent the one Philadelphia run. Whitehead walked only one, in the 10th, and except in the fourth and tenth innings, only three batsmen faced the Sox freshman in each inning.

The run with which the Sox tied the count in the seventh was scored on singles by Marty Hopkins and Whitehead and the winning run was fabricated on a single by Rip Radcliff, a walk to Al Simmons and a single by Zeke Bonura.

Lyons Nips Rally.

The first game was one of those hot-to-the-last-out affairs, in which Lyons usually is forced to exert all his skill. The first run was the result of a mental lapse by Bonura, a run which promptly was tied by Simmon's No. 16 homer. The Chicagoans went ahead in the fifth on Hopkins' No. 2 homer, but the score was tied at 2-all in the sixth when Warstler socked his No. 3 homer.

The Sox didn't get a runner to first base in the sixth, seventh, and eighth innings, but successive hits by Bonura and Appling at the start of the ninth panicked the A's and two unearned runs got home.

Singles by Foxx and Higgins, first two batsmen in the home ninth, had the tying runs on third and first with none down. Then Lyons got tough and held the A's away from the plate.

Two More Today.

By taking this afternoon's double header, the Sox equaled their previous victory total for the road trip which started on Sept. 2. Of the four games the Sox have won on the jaunt, Lyons has taken two, Sam Jones one, and Whitehead one. The Sox tomor-

BY FRENCH LANE.

St. Bernard, the spectacular race horse of a hundred moods in the stable of Dale Shaffer of Chicago, was a happy-go-lucky chap at Hawthorne yesterday afternoon, and while in this fine frame of mind he romped away with the eighth renewal of the $5,000 Hawthorne handicap.

A crowd of 17,000, the largest that has gathered at Hawthorne in nearly a half dozen years, watched St. Bernard leap out from his stall in the starting gate faster than his six rivals. They cheered him as he rounded the clubhouse bend under snug restraint a length and a half in front of Top Dog, Sweeping Light, Spanish Babe and the others in the field.

They cheered even louder as he kept to the same rhythmic stride and headed into the lower bend still a length and a half in front. He was running easily and to all appearances was complete master of the situation.

Rivals Can't Make It.

Then as the stretch run started there came one weak challenge after another from Top Dog, Spanish Babe, Sweeping Light and Prince Pest. St. Bernard shook them all off and the race was as good as over. Top Dog was faltering, Spanish Babe still was full of run, but could not run fast enough, Sweeping Light was dropping back. On went St. Bernard to the line of finish in the same even stride.

He had put on the whole show and had won one of the most cherished prizes offered each year at the old Hawthorne race course. Top Dog, closely related to St. Bernard and a former stable mate, hung on in true Bull Dog style and finished second. Spanish Babe took down third money and Sweeping Light was fourth, a nose ahead of Prince Pest.

The crowd gave St. Bernard a mighty reception when he came back to salute the judges and to have a garland of roses tossed over his shoulders, for he had been the favorite and paid $5.60 to win, $4 to place, and $3.40 to show. Top Dog was at $5.20 to place and $3.80 to show. Spanish Babe's show price was $4.40.

Keester Comes Back.

A rousing shout also went out for Jocky Paul Keester, who had piloted St. Bernard to his victory. Less than a week ago turfmen looked at Keester, shook their heads and said his riding career was over. He weighed close to 120 pounds at the time.

Keester's pride was hurt at the allegations. He went to work in gymnasiums and in cross country sprints. When he reported to Alex Gordon, who trains St. Bernard, yesterday, he was weighing 113 pounds.

BEATS EMERY, 4 AND 2; EAGLE 3 ENDS MATCH

Four Major Victories in a Row.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 14.—William Lawson Little Jr., the son of a San Francisco army colonel and himself a hard boiled soldier of the fairways, if ever golf has seen one, today won the 39th national amateur championship by defeating Walter Emery, 23 year old Shawnee, Okla., law student, 4 and 2 in the 36 hole final match at the Country Club of Cleveland.

Little's victory made him commander-in-chief of the world's golfers, and today's battle may be ranked as one of the most decisive in the history of the game, certainly as important as that which Bobby Jones scored at Merion in 1930 to complete his grand slam. The 25 year old Californian's triumph over Emery was his 31st in succession since he began a wearing campaign 16 months ago, which few other golfing troopers would have survived. It brought him his second straight American title, and his fourth consecutive major championship. It was the first double victory in successive years that the game ever has seen, a record not even Jones achieved.

First Prestwick, Then Brookline.

Little began his march toward the title of No. 1 golfer in the spring of 1934 when he advanced on the British amateur crown at Prestwick and captured that. Last September he laid siege to the American title at Brookline, and after six days almost as stirring as these last six, it was his. He moved his clubs to Muirfield this spring and won the British amateur championship again. Then came Cleveland, and a determined regiment of 200 golfers recruited from every corner of the republic marched against him. How well they fared may be seen by a glance at the scoreboard, or rather, casualty list of this six day engagement.

No longer is it sacrilege to compare Little with Jones, and by that is meant the Jones of 1930. Little was not even fortunate enough to draw a first round furlough in this battle, so that he went through eight separate skirmishes, two at the long route of 36 holes. During these matches, he was 19 strokes under par for the 155 holes he played. Until this morning, the broad shouldered, jutting jawed San Franciscan was never worse than even at the ninth hole in any of his matches.

Hardest Battle of Week.

Little's battle with Emery today was by far his hardest of the week, far more so than the semi-final struggle in which he eliminated Johnny Goodman, former open champion, yesterday. It called for every instinct of the soldier in Lawson, and he proved to be his father's son, even unto the final thrust, which should go down as a classic among finishing holes in championship golf. On the 34th green, he holed a ten foot putt for an eagle, an eagle born of a 290 yard drive and a full spoon that carried the rest of the 512 yards from the tee.

This stroke was made in the face of the courageous Emery's bravest shot of the entire day. The young Oklahoman couldn't match Little's cannonball drive, and was still short of the green. He took a No. 7 iron and calmly dropped the ball thirty inches from the pin for a certain birdie. Little met that challenge by stepping up to the putt, and with only a single preliminary sight at the hole, stroked the ball toward the cup. It went home as straight as a bullet, and Little's great campaign was ended in victory.

Emery a Fighter, Too.

From the opening gun this morning, Little discovered that this was to be no routine offensive in which he was engaged. During the week he had learned that Emery was something of a soldier himself, the dashing type which gallops up to headquarters with a file of birdies and eagles for prisoners. Until the semi-finals Friday, Emery, with his irons and a putter as his strongest weaon Lindstrom's triple to right center. Lindstrom galloped home on a single by Hartnett and Babich galloped out of the picture. Rescuer Reis brought a quick finish to the inning, but this effort apparently exhausted his supply of foolers.

The five run exhibition in the second, tainted considerably by an error, got under way with a single by Jurges. Root sacrificed and Galan flied to Mills. Then the thumping started. Herman lined one to left center for his 50th double, Jurges scoring. Lindstrom bounced to Frey, who fumbled. Hartnett pounded a single over second, Herman scoring. Demaree's roller slipped past Reis and Bucher for a hit, Lindstrom going home. A pass to Cavarretta filled the bases and Hack singled to send home Hartnett and Demaree. The services of Baker were needed to end the jamboree.

Dodgers Break Through.

Root's string of hitless innings was ended at four when Stripp led off in the fifth with a triple to right center. Mills beat out a hit to Jurges, whose hurried throw sailed into the Dodgers' dugout, Mills going to second and Stripp scoring. Old Zach Taylor singled to right and Mills scored. The fourth hit in succession was Baker's dribbler which eluded Root. Then the veteran took hold of the situation and set down the next three batters.

The Dodgers made four hits in their two run assault on Root in the fifth, but in the sixth they scored the same number on three hits. McCarthy, the Chicago lad who had supplanted Leslie at first, opened the sixth with a single to right and Koenecke's short fly dropped in front of Demaree for a single. They advanced on Skaff's infield out and held on while Mills was looking at a third strike. Then old Zach Taylor spoke up for the second time. He whistled a double over Lindstrom's head, McCarthy and Koenecke scoring. Jurges tossed out Baker to conclude the inning.

Eight More for Cubs.

The Dodgers had another of their attacks of daffiness in the sixth and the Cubs could hardly avoid scoring eight runs. The enemy gave the Cubs their start by letting Hartnett's high popup drop in the infield for a single. Demaree walked. Cavarretta beat out a bunt to Skaff, who heaved the ball into right field, Hartnett scoring. Hack scratched a single to Bucher and Demaree scored. Cavarretta counted on Jurges' fly. Hack went home when Root doubled. Root scored on a triple by Galan. After Herman had popped out, Lindstrom doubled and Galan scored.

The Lindstrom two bagger knocked Baker out of the picture and Green, the Kenosha phenom, dashed in to see what he could do about restoring order. His inspection was brief. He walked Hartnett, who retired to let O'Dea get on the merry-go-round. Demaree also walked, filling the bases. Cavarretta singled to right, Lindstrom and O'Dea scoring. Green went to the club house to talk it over with the previous victims. A lad who performed under the name of Barr then took over the thankless task and ended the inning on Jurges' grounder, after walking Hack.

Root Gets Relief.

With a lead of a dozen runs Root probably didn't mind letting the Dodgers have a little fun for themselves in the seventh, but Boss Grimm regarded it as a sure sign the veteran was tiring so he was relieved at the end of the inning. All the Dodgers did in this inning was to hit a couple of homers, a pair of singles and draw a pass. Bucher's homer scored the first of five runs. Singles by McCarthy and Skaff with a pass to Koenecke scored another. Then three slipped across when Mills punched his homer over the left field wall.

An error by McCarthy on Gill, the new outfielder who batted for Root in the home eighth, a double by Galan, a wild pitch and an infield out presented the Cubs with two more runs in their half of the seventh when Munns had to give Barr a helping hand. Mungo slipped the Cubs a couple of passes in the eighth, but they obliged everybody by not scoring.

After getting two out of the way in the ninth, Henshaw inflated his balloon and ascended. A single, a hit batsman, and a walk filled the bases. Two more walks forced in two runs. Frey singled and Pinch Hitter Dan Taylor scored. Bucher singled and two more registered. That was enough for Henshaw. Kowalik then fanned McCarthy to close the sorry exhibition.

The Cubs finish with the Dodgers today and that will conclude their season's work against second division teams. After that it will be four with the Giants, two with the Pirates and five at St. Louis with the Cardinals. Bill Lee, with a record of 17 victories and 6 defeats, will try to carry the load in today's affair. William Watson Clark, southpaw, will oppose him.

Prior to the start of the current winning streak the Cubs had won 5 out of 8, giving them a record of 16 victories and 3 defeats in their last 19 games.

Bill Jurges drew an error in the third inning yesterday for trespassing. Cavarretta had just closed his hands around a popup by Lopez when Jurges crashed into him, knocking the ball to the ground. Jurges also drew the only other error in the Cub defense. He tossed the ball into the dugout in the fifth inning.

Lyons and Whitehead Pitch Sox to 4-2, 2-1 Victories

FIRST GAME

The Athletics scored the first run of the first game before they had made anything that resembled a hit off Lyons. McNair started the third inning with a walk and Sewell, who observed he was taking a big lead off first, signaled for a pitchout and snap throw to first. Bonura, however, failed to observe what was going on and stood flatfooted fifteen feet off the base while Sewell shot a throw far into right field, McNair reaching third. Zeke drew an error for his woolgathering. McNair scored on Berry's fly to Simmons. Upchurch fanned and Appling threw out Warstler.

Simmons, who had wasted a double in the first inning, took no chances on another fadeout in the fourth. He tied the score with a drive into the upper deck of the left field grandstand, his No. 16 homer of the year. Haas walked and Bonura popped to McNair, after which Appling singled to right for his second, and the Sox's fourth hit. Then Hayes tapped into a double play.

Hopkins Hits One.

Cramer made the first hit off Lyons, a single to start the home fourth. But two fouls and a pop to Appling took care of the next three batters.

The Sox took the lead at the outset of the fifth when Hopkins knocked his No. 2 homer into the left field stands. Sewell singled but was forced by Lyons. Tauby walked, but Simmons and Haas were easy outs.

The A's tied the score when Warstler led off the sixth with his No. 3 homer of the year. Cramer singled to right, but Finney hit into a double play. Foxx beat out an infield scratch and was forced by Higgins.

Sox Open Up.

The first Chicagoan to reach first base after the fifth inning was Bonura, who opened the ninth with a single to center. Appling lined his third single into right field, putting Bonura on second. When Finney threw the ball past third, Bonura scored, and when Upchurch failed to cover third to take a throw from Higgins, who had retrieved the ball, Appling reached third. Hayes singled off McNair's glove, Appling scoring. Hopkins, Sewell, and Lyons supplied easy outs.

Foxx opened the home ninth with a single to left and went to third on Higgins' single to center. Johnson grounded to Bonura and Foxx was run down, Bonura to Hopkins to Sewell, Higgins reaching third and Johnson second. McNair flied to Simmons and Berry ended the game with a fly to Haas.

SECOND GAME

All the threatening in the first two innings of the second game was done by the White Sox on walks. Radcliff walked on four pitches to start the contest. Then Simmons and Haas struck out and Warstler threw out Bonura. In the second inning Appling and Hayes walked, but Hopkins, Shea and Whitehead were helpless.

Warstler got the A's fourth under way with a double off the wall in left center and went to third while Hayes was throwing out Cramer. Finney bounced to Bonura and Warstler was out at the plate, Bonura to Shea. Foxx got credit for a single when Hopkins failed to come up with his bouncer, Finney stopping at second. Higgins singled to left scoring Finney. Johnson forced Higgins.

The Sox tied the score in the seventh. Hopkins opened with a single to center and reached second on Shea's grounder to Foxx. Whitehead then knocked his second successive single, a smash to center, which scored Hopkins with the tying run. Radcliff grounded into a double play.

At the start of the eighth Simmons walked on four pitches, went to second on Haas' sacrifice, and was nailed at third on Bonura's grounder to McNair. Appling then flied to Cramer.

Radcliff singled to right to launch the tenth and Simmons walked. Haas failed in two attempts to bunt, then took a third strike, but Bonura singled to right, scoring Radcliff and putting Simmons on third. Dietrich replaced Doyle, and Appling tapped into a double play.

Zeke Gets Idea.

Foxx opened the home tenth with a single to left center, Jimmy thus becoming the first Philadelphian to reach base in six innings. Higgins walked on four pitches. Shea called for a pitchout on Johnson, and this time Bonura got the idea. Higgins was caught off first easily. Johnson then fouled to Bonura for the second out. Appling made a great stop on McNair's grounder over second and ended the game with a shot to Bonura.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

So long as the Cubs are threatening to push themselves into the impending world series, it probably is more or less appropriate to dig back into baseball history and reveal their experiences in others of the so-called post-season baseball classics.

It does not make pleasant reading for the partisans. The Cubs, in case your baseball memory doesn't go back far enough, have been in seven of the world title events. In five of them they were paid off as losers. In the two that turned out successfully they whipped the Detroit Tigers, the same American league representative they may meet next month.

Twice Win Only One Game.

The Cubs have more than an unenviable record of five world defeats to live down. They lost one of them to a team they should have outclassed. Twice they finished a series with a victory in only one game. One of these involved the terrifying ten run inning at Philadelphia in 1929. But the worst blotch on their series slate is the 1932 event in which the Yankees not only mauled them fiercely in four straight games but added insult to injury by taunting them through each battle about the way in which they split up their series money.

The Cubs began their world series career in 1906 with a team that was just getting under way for a long reign over the National league field. But that fall the White Sox, notorious as weak hitters, although powerful in the pitching department, took Frank Chance's machine apart in four out of six games.

Treat Tigers Roughly.

In the 1907 and 1908 series the Cubs did things about as they pleased against the Tigers. In the former the Tigers managed to slip through with one twelve inning tie before folding up. In 1908 they improved a bit. They won one game out of five played. Then in 1909 the Tigers lost another series to the Pirates, which with their 1934 defeat, gives them a .000 rating as world title contenders.

By 1910 the great Cub team was beginning to disintegrate. Some of the old stalwarts had departed and new blood had arrived. The mixture enabled Chance to win his last pennant. But in the series the Cubs were as feeble as children before the powerful team Connie Mack had assembled. The Cubs won one game out of five that fall.

They Put Up Fight in 1918.

The season of 1918 rolled around before the Cubs were back in world series competition, their foes being Boston's Red Sox. The Chicago entry was vanquished four games to two.

In the first game a fellow named Babe Ruth beat Jim Vaughn by 1 to 0. In the second game Lefty Tyler whipped Bullet Joe Bush by 3 to 1. In the third game Vaughn was nosed out again, this time by Carl Mays, 2 to 1. Those three battles were waged at Comiskey park. Then the scene shifted to Boston and Babe Ruth registered over Phil Douglas, 3 to 2. The next day Vaughn triumphed over Sam Jones, 3 to 0, and in the deciding struggle Mays returned to whip Tyler by 2 to 1. That's a total of 19 runs in six games.

The Cubs went into the 1929 series with the Athletics poorly prepared. They lost the first two games in Chicago.

Bush Beats Earnshaw.

In the first game, played at Philadelphia, Guy Bush put the Cubs back in the fight with a 3 to 1 victory over Earnshaw. The next day brought the most turbulent inning in series history. With an eight run lead the Cubs collapsed toward the finish. They lost balls that should have been grabbed, Hack Wilson being the chief offender, and a wild ten run inning blasted a golden opportunity to even the series. Then to cap it all the Cubs, with a two run lead, blew at the finish of the fifth game when Mule Haas hit a homer with one on off Pat Malone, who had pitched shutout ball.

The 1932 event was the most decisive ever played. The Yanks won the first game by a football score of 12 to 6. They won the second, 5 to 2. The last two were played in Chicago. The Cubs dropped the next one, 7 to 5, and the following day the New Yorkers made it four in a row, 13 to 6.

Squares Meet Spencer Coals in Two Games

The Logan Squares, winners of their last 8 games, will invade Spencer Coals field, 4200 North Central avenue, for a baseball double-header with the Coals this afternoon.

In another double-header, the American Giants of the Negro National league, will meet the Mills at Mills stadium, Kilpatrick and Lake streets. The Duffy Florals will be idle since Shewbridge field is being used for football.

Nate Shyer, manager of the Spencer Coals, has announced the resigning of Pete Beam for today's double-header while Manager Elmer Olson of the Squares has obtained Dungan Rigney, former Logan hurler, now the property of the White Sox. Rigney is expected back from St. Paul in time to pitch one of the games. Beam will team with Al Macik, Jake Sommerfield, and Marvin Carlson.

Rip Duncan and John Sokol will be the other Logan pitcher.

The Mills will be after revenge when meeting the American Giants. The Giants in an earlier meeting this season beat the Mills in a double-header.

Since that time Jim Vaughan has been added to the Mills staf and with Lefty Sullivan in good form, things look better. In addition to the games Patrick Thienes will walk around the bases in an attempt to break Dan O'Leary's record. O'Leary has circled the base 12 times in 10 minutes.

Games Today

American Giants at Mills stadium, Kilpatrick and Lake streets, 1:30 p. m. [2 games].

EVERYBODY'S RUNNING, AND WHY NOT WHEN SCORE IS 18 TO 14!—Stanley Hack hits a single in second inning with bases full, and look at them go! Gabby Hartnett is racing for the plate, Frank Demaree is on his way to third, and Cavarretta tears toward second while Hack speeds to first base. Hartnett and Demaree scored on the hit, bringing in two of the five runs scored by the Cubs in the second. Despite a big lead the Cubs only beat Brooklyn 18 to 14, but it was good for first place in the National league. (Story on page 3, Sports.)

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

AND HE CAN CATCH THEM, TOO!—Jay Berwanger, all around star of the University of Chicago football team, who now is in his senior year, prepares to grab a lateral pass. He is counted upon to lead the Maroons to many victories this season. (Story on page 8, Sports.)

HOW CHAMPION APPEARS IN TROUBLE—Lawson Little as he studied a bad lie in the woods on the way to third hole in national amateur tournament. Sort of perplexing, eh, champ? (Story on page 3, Sports.)

NOTHING TO GETTING OUT OF TRAPS—Walter Emery, who was beaten in final of national meet at Cleveland yesterday, chips out of sand hazard to the 17th green, where he holed out in par. Lawson Little also matched par on this hole. (Story on page 3, Sports.)

GIANTS' MANAGER CHASED BACK TO BASE—Bill Terry, who singled and later scored on Hank Leiber's hit, darts back to base as Ed Heusser, St. Louis Cardinal pitcher, tries to pick him off with throw to First Baseman Jim Collins in first inning of yesterday's game at St. Louis. The Giants won, 5 to 4. (Story on page 3, Sports.)

DOWN GOES CHAMPION—Barney Ross of Chicago, welterweight titleholder, sinks to canvas for no count after a right to jaw from Ceferino Garcia at San Francisco. After being floored again, Ross rallied to win decision.

Little Orders Long Cool One to Celebrate

Cleveland, O., Sept. 14.—"No, make it a double Scotch and soda. No more singles for me."

These were the first words from the smiling lips of a sturdy young man as he replied to an invitation to a drink—and a well deserved one—in the crowded locker room of the Country Club of Cleveland. He was William Lawson Little Jr., the 25 year old San Franciscan who had just scored his fourth straight major victory in golf in the American amateur tournament, making him the only double winner in the history of the game.

Little took the double drink and then turned to Johnny Goodman, his pal in spite of the fact that Lawson eliminated the little blond from Omaha in yesterday's semi-finals, and said, "Well, I didn't throw you down today, did I, John?" Goodman grinned and slapped him on the shoulder.

One of Toughest Matches.

Little had little time to say more than a few words into the microphone thrust into his hands as he sank his putt for the winning eagle on the 34th green of his match with young Walter Emery, but he did not mind saying a thing or two after he had found a chair in the locker room.

"That was one of the toughest matches I have ever had," he said when asked about the final battle, "and I mean in my life, not just in the last two years. At least four times I thought I had Emery down, but he hung on until I began to wonder if he ever was going to let go. The only time I felt relaxed during the match, and especially in the afternoon, was on that spoon shot to the last green. I really let some steam off on that one."

Little appeared relaxed in more than one way for the first time during the six days in which the pressure of the whole tournament rested on his broad shoulders. He smiled constantly once he was seated in the locker room, probably more in that happy half hour than he had in the entire week. Gone was the fixed expression about the lips and the slight frown which the Little brow wears during a match. They were missing, and with reason, for he had completed one of the greatest feats in the records of golf—a string of 31 consecutive victories which had brought him four of the biggest titles in amateur golf within sixteen months.

Will Rest in Chicago.

The four time champion announced that he will spend the next few days in Chicago resting, and then will continue on to San Francisco. He has not made up his mind as to whether he will continue his studies at Stanford university, where he is scheduled to complete his senior year, but is almost certain that he will play no more golf until February; then he will begin tuning up for the third annual Masters' tournament at Bobby Jones' course in Augusta, Ga., next April. In his first appearance in the Masters' this year Lawson finished with 288, even par for 72 holes, to be the low amateur.

pons, had been better against par than Lawson.

Little met the tall, good looking Sooner with every item of golf warfare in his bag. His siege gun, of course, was the driver which has made him the equal of Jimmy Thompson and other long tee performers.

Through the fairways, he dispatched details of iron shots to the greens, and at close quarters he called upon a rusty bladed putter which must have some kinship with Jones' Calamity Jane. These might have sufficed in themselves but to them, Gen. Little, now a master strategist as compared to the Corp. Little of five and six years ago, added a military intelligence which spared him more than one embarrassment during the day.

All Even at Noon.

That cunning enabled him to beat a smart retreat from the withering fire of three birdies which Emery laid down on the first three holes of the morning round. It served him well throughout that first eighteen, and enabled him to call a noontime truce with his foe all even, after Emery had recaptured a hole by winning the 18. Little had a medal of par 72 to show for the first half of the battle, against Emery's 73.

Little was out in 34 during the afternoon, against Emery's 36, and the genius which had carried him through the battles of Prestwick, Muirfield, and Brookline came through again. It aided him in turning back Emery's last charge, a gallant surge which saw the Oklahoman cut Little's lead to 1 up at the 31st. Little then called a council of war, and smashed back with the three straight blows which crushed Emery.

Forward March, Lawson!

Lawson made his move at the 32d. He relied on par to carry the hole, and it did. Emery, distraught at the 33d by an officious marshal who pushed a photographer into a creek, wavered in getting to the green and surrendered to Little's birdie. Then followed the final three shots from the Little artillery, the three that carried the day and ended the most remarkable march in amateur golf. First, the thundering tee shot, 290 yards down the fairway. Next, the full, whistling brassie, which found its mark ten feet from the cup. Last, but hardly least, the deciding stroke from ten feet for a champion's eagle.

MORNING ROUND

First hole, par 4, 354 yards—Little, using an iron off the tee, was in the left rough, while Emery, with a wood, was even with him on the fairway at 250 yards. Emery's second shot was less than four feet to the left of the cup, and Little's was 14 feet to the right. Little missed his putt by two inches, while Emery dropped his for a birdie. Emery, 3; Little, 4; Emery, 1 up.

Second hole, par 5, 467 yards—Emery found his tee shot a yard from the rough on the left break of the dogleg, Little's being on the fairway at the right, and 30 yards ahead. Lawson faded his second shot into a trap at the right, and was on the green seven feet from the pin, but needed two putts from there. Emery was down in two for another birdie. Emery, 4; Little, 5; Emery, 2 up.

Little in the Woods.

Fourth hole, par 4, 325 yards—Both were straight off the tee, Little being 60 yards ahead of Emery. Each was on in two about 30 feet above the pin, and each left himself a tough putt of four feet, but got it down for the first half of the match. Emery, 4; Little, 4; Emery, 3 up.

Fifth hole, par 3, 200 yards—Emery reached the green with his drive, 15 feet over the pin. Little's tee shot struck in front of the green and bounced into the left hand trap. He made a magnificent recovery from there to eight inches over the pin. Emery was down in two putts for a half. Emery, 3; Little, 3; Emery 3 up.

Little Gets Birdie.

Sixth hole, par 4, 416 yards—Both were on in two, with a pair of regulation shots, Little leaving himself a 30 foot sidehill try, while Emery was twelve feet over. Lawson holed his for a birdie and won the hole. Little, 3; Emery, 4; Emery, 2 up.

Seventh hole, par 4, 465 yards—Emery drove into the left rough, while Little was straight and 50 yards ahead of him. The Oklahoman took a spoon and was short with that. Little was ten feet to the left of the green with an iron. He chipped to within four feet of the cup and sank the putt. Emery was seven feet away with his chip, but dropped it to match Little's par. Emery, 4; Little 4; Emery, 2 up.

Eighth hole, par 5, 520 yards—Both smacked out 260 yard drives. Emery's second was 75 yards short of the green, Little being 60 yards ahead of him. Both chipped up to within twelve feet. Emery missed his first putt, and Little's putt, being off line, caromed off Emery's ball and left him a dead stymie. Walter couldn't negotiate it with a chipper, and lost the hole. Little, 5; Emery, 6; Emery, 1 up.

Ninth hole, par 3, 148 yards—Both were on the green with their drives, about 20 feet away. Each grazed the cup on their first putts, and they halved the hole. Emery, 3; Little, 3; Emery, 1 up.

Tenth hole, par 4, 381 yards—Emery was straight and short of Little, whose drive found the rough. Lawson's recovery was on the right back corner, 30 feet from the cup, while Emery was ten feet to the left with a fine No. 6 iron shot. Each needed two putts. Emery, 4; Little, 4; Emery, 1 up.

Eleventh hole, par 3, 164 yards—Little had a great drive to within six feet of the cup. Emery was 16 feet away with his and he was two inches over on his first putt. Little missed the deuce, overrunning the hole by two feet. Emery, 3; Little, 3; Emery, 1 up.

Twelfth hole, par 5, 588 yards—Both were straight off the tee, about 270 yards down, and were short on their seconds. The champion's third was over the green at the left corner, while Walter was on the left border, 30 feet off the cup. Lawson, using a putter, nearly holed out. Emery putted to within a yard for a half. Emery, 5; Little, 5; Emery, 1 up.

Little Squares Match.

Thirteenth hole, par 4, 390 yards—Little outdrove the Oklahoman by 50 yards and put his second shot seven feet from the pin, Emery was 20 feet short. He was still four feet away with his first putt and then missed that to lose. Little 4; Emery, 5; match all even.

Fourteenth hole, par 3, 184 yards—Emery was on the green, 35 feet short of the cup with his drive, but Little's drive went to the left. He used his putter again, and after rolling the ball up nine feet short ran his putt down for a half. Emery, 3; Little, 3; match all even.

Fifteenth hole, par 4, 417 yards—Little was 20 yards ahead of Emery off the tee and then put his second shot on the green, 20 feet over the pin. Emery's second was shy by 30 feet, and he rolled 25 feet over the hole with his chip. Little sank his putt for a birdie to go up for the first time in the match. Little, 3; Emery, 4; Little, 1 up.

Halve 16th in 5's.

Sixteenth hole, par 5, 512 yards—Playing into a strong cross wind, Little drove the left rough and used a spoon out of it. He was short, but put his next on the green 16 feet over the cup. Emery's drive was straight, and he was just short with his next two shots. He rolled one up to within four feet and got it down for a half. Little, 5; Emery, 5; Little, 1 up.

Seventeenth hole, par 4, 383 yards—Little smashed out a 275 yard tee shot which carried him 50 yards ahead of Emery. Walter sliced his second shot into the rough. His recovery was 25 feet short of the pin, but he holed it, his best putt of the morning, for a half. Little, 4; Emery, 4; Little, 1 up.

Eighteenth hole, par 4, 413 yards—Little was ahead by another 30 yards on the drive, while Emery was in thick deep rough at the left. He took a No. 5 iron and put it on the green, 40 feet short of the cup. Little shanked his iron into the right trap, and then boosted the recovery over to the back apron of the green. He nearly holed out from there, the ball striking the cup. Emery was down in two to square the match. Emery, 4; Little, 5; match all even.

AFTERNOON ROUND

Nineteenth hole, par 4, 354 yards—Emery outdrove Little by 15 yards, but was in the rough at the left edge. Emery got a break when his pitch struck a gallery marshal and fell on the edge of the green instead of finding the trap back of it. His putt from 30 feet was inches short. Lawson was 30 feet shot of the pin, but played wide around a partial stymie. Little, 4; Emery, 4; match even.

Twentieth hole, par 5, 467 yards—Little's tee shot was perfect to the fairway corner of the dogleg, but Emery's found a bunker at the right. His second was still far short of the green and in the short rough. Lawson's second was on the green 60 feet away, and his first putt was still ten feet shy. Emery hooked his third to the left of the green. He was on, 4 feet away, and sank the putt for a half, Little three putting. Emery, 5; Little, 5, match even.

Twenty-first hole, par 4, 315 yards—Emery's drive struck a tree and dropped on the fairway. Little's drive was 40 yards ahead. Both made great pitch shots, Lawson's halting only four feet above the pin and Walter's rolling 14 over. He took two from there, but Little sank his for a birdie. Little, 3; Emery, 4, Little 1 up.

Another Birdie for Little.

Twenty-second hole, par 4, 325 yards—With a brisk following wind, Emery was 275 yards down the fairway, while Little was closer to the green. Emery's pitch rolled forty-five feet over the pin, but Lawson's chip was only six over. He sank it for another birdie. Little, 3; Emery, 4. Little, 2 up.

Twenty-third hole, par 3, 200 yards—Emery had the better drive, landing fourteen feet to the left, while Little's No. 3 iron was forty feet to the right. Emery sank his putt for a winning deuce. Emery, 2; Little, 3. Little, 1 up.

Twenty-fourth hole, par 4, 416 yards—Emery reached the green, about 12 feet above the pin, with two accurate shots. Little hooked his tee shot to the rough and then boosted his recovery to the back edge of the green. His approach putt was a foot and a half to the right of the cup. They halved it in pars. Emery, 4; Little, 4; Little, 1 up.

Twenty-fifth hole, par 4, 465 yards—Emery found the right rough with his tee shot, outdriving Little, who was straight and on in two, twelve feet to the left. Walter's recovery was still in the spinach to the right of the green. His third sped 40 feet over the hole. He made a fine try for a four, the ball halting two inches short, and laying Little a partial stymie. The latter played safely around that for a win. Little, 4; Emery, 5; Little, 2 up.

Twenty-sixth hole, par 5, 520 yards—Both sliced their tee shots into the rough at about the same spot. Emery's second, a No. 4 iron, was out in the fairway, but still short of Little's. Each reached the green in three, about 30 feet from the pin. Their approach putts also were identical, less than a yard away. Little, 5; Emery, 5. Little, 2 up.

Twenty-seventh hole, par 3, 148 yards—Emery drove 40 feet to the left of the pin, while Little was practically even with him. Walter's first putt was a foot short, while Lawson's crossed the cup one inch. Little, 3; Emery, 3. Little, 2 up.

Little Increases Lead.

Twenty-eighth hole, par 4, 381 yards—Emery's ball turned up in the deep rough at the right after he had pulled his second shot. Little's pitch was on the green less than four feet short. Emery was still short with his second, and after getting on with his third and missing a five foot putt he conceded Little a three. Little, 3; Emery, 5. Little, 3 up.

Twenty-ninth hole, par 3, 164 yards—Little's drive went into a trap at the right, but Emery was on the green, 22 feet to the left of the cup. The champion made another typical recovery, exploding to within less than a yard of the cup. He missed the putt, however, to lose the hole. Emery, 3; Little, 4. Little, 2 up.

Thirtieth hole, par 5, 588 yards—Two straight wood shots left each in position for a short pitch to the green, with Little, as usual, having a 40 yard advantage. Emery made a handsome shot, and his ball stopped 12 feet to the left. Little was on also, but 25 feet short, and was still over a yard shy on his approach putt. Emery sank his putt for a birdie and the hole. Emery, 4; Little, 5. Little 1 up.

Thirty-first hole, par 4, 390 yards—Both were straight down the fairway, with Little up again. Emery was on, 25 feet to the right of the flag. Little outdid him on his second, laying his ball about six feet above the cup. Emery's try for a birdie missed by a half inch. Lawson needed two to get down. Little, 4; Emery, 4; Little 1 up.

Little 2 Up Again.

Thirty-second hole, par 3, 184 yards—Emery bent his tee shot into the trap at the right of the green, while Little was on, at the upper left hand corner. Emery was too strong coming out and the ball sailed across the green. His next putt was four feet past. Little's first putt was 15 inches short. Emery dropped his 4 footer for a 4, and Little sank his for a win. Little, 3; Emery, 4. Little 2 up.

Thirty-third hole, par 4, 417 yards—Both drives were straight to the bottom of the slope leading up to the green, each about 240. Emery's second rolled off the upper left corner, but Little's was only four feet from the cup. Walt took two putts from the edge and conceded the hole. Little, 3; Emery, 5. Little 3 up.

Thirty-fourth hole, par 5, 512 yards—Little outdrove Emery, who was also short with his second, while Lawson was on in two, 10 feet to the right of the cup. Emery then made his best shot of the day, a pitch to 30 inches for a sure birdie, but Little holed out his putt for an eagle, the match and the title.

CARDINALS OPEN WITH PACKERS AT GREEN BAY TODAY

New Stars Take Posts Under Creighton.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

The Chicago Cardinals today will open the championship race for which they have been preparing since last September. Their opponents will be the Packers, whom they meet at Green Bay. The kickoff has been set for 2 o'clock, central standard time.

One year ago Charles Bidwell, then entering his first season as owner of the club, ordered Coach Paul Schissler to release all except four of the members of the 1933 team and build from the ground up with new men fresh off the campus. Schissler rounded up a corps of highly efficient performers.

Creighton Made Coach.

Schissler resigned last spring, after the Cardinals returned from a triumphant tour of the Pacific coast, which they concluded with a decisive victory over the Bears. Milan Creighton, regular end, was elevated to the coachship, and he made further changes in the personnel, filling in with stars from last June's graduating classes where the regulars of 1934 failed to meet expectations.

Today, after four weeks' practice at Mills stadium, Creighton has fashioned a team which he is confident will be the best to represent the Cardinals since Ernie Nevers was tearing up the professional league. It is a fast team, one of the fastest in the league, and is well fortified at each position with the weight necessary in a professional league race.

Veterans Start in Back Field.

The starting back field assignments, which will be handled by veterans of last season until the newcomers have had an opportunity to get their feet under them in the pro league, will be intrusted to Paul Pardonner, Doug Russell, Dave Cook, and Mike Mikulak. Russell, the former Kansas State star, is one of the fleetest men in the league. Last year he opened the season with a 102 yard run against Cincinnati and galloped 87 yards through Detroit for the Cardinals' first touchdown in the futile fourth quarter rally at Wrigley field.

Mikulak at full back is regarded as one of the best defensive men in the league. Cook, a former Illinois star, is blocking half back and Pardonner is a field goal expert who directed Purdue's attack for three years.

In the line Creighton will start players who established themselves last year. The only men with more than one year experience will be Lou Gordon, tackle, who has been in the league six seasons, and Tipton. Tony Blazine, Illinois Wesleyan star, who was the outstanding lineman in the All-Star game promoted by THE TRIBUNE, will relieve Gordon.

Nichelini and Berry Will Aid.

Al Nichelini, St. Marys All-American who also distinguished himself in the All-Star game, and Gil Berry, former Illinois half back who did not play last year, will help out in the back field.

The Cardinals are out to win a championship. In New York and Brooklyn, where fans had an opportunity to see them whip the Dodgers last year; in Detroit, where they remember the two narrow escapes the Lions had, and in Green Bay, where fans are trying to forget the two whippings administered the Packers last season, the Cardinals have been definitly declared in the championship race. Chicago, where the Bears have become the favorites because of repeated success, also will vote for the Cardinals if they can get past their first three foes. These are the Packers tomorrow, Detroit next week, and the Bears the following week.

Green Bay, according to reports, will not be at its full strength for today's game. Roger Grove, George Sauer, Arnie Herber, and Clark Hinkle, all backs, and George Maddox, tackle, are out with injuries. Nevertheless, the Packers are said to be considerably improved over last year and will be represented by sufficient able bodied men to make the 1935 debut a severe test for the Cardinal team, which hopes to dethrone the New York Giants. Probable lineups:

A special train will carry Chicago fans to Green Bay next Sunday for the Bears-Packer game. The train will leave over the Milwaukee road at 8:55 o'clock Sunday morning and will return immediately after the game, reaching Chicago at midnight. It will be an all-expense special, price of a ticket including a box seat at the game, and will be run by George Deverall, Room 400, 37 South Wabash.

Allison Loses in Exhibition at Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Sept. 14.—(AP)—In his first appearance on a tennis court since he won the national title, Wilmer Allison was defeated today in an exhibition mixed doubles match.

Teamed with Miss Carolyn Babcock, Wightman cup team member from Pasadena, the champion was beaten in straight sets by Mrs. John Van Ryn, Philadelphia, and Jacques Brugnon of France, 6-1, 6-4.

Allison arrived from the east by airplane this morning. He said he had been without sleep for two nights and his play indicated it. He had difficulty getting the ball across the net, and Miss Babcock gave him little help.

WHO WOULDN'T SHIP UNDER THESE PILOTS?

Yacht Notes

Commodore Nathaniel Rubinkam, Chicago lawyer, yachtsman, deep sea fisherman, world war veteran, and a lieutenant commander in the U. S. Naval reserve, has local sailing men speculating on the untried possibilities of his new ship, the Rubaiyat.

This 43 foot 7 inch cutter has many innovations. The loose-footed main sail and double-clewed jib are only two features. Special cleats, designed by Henry Rubinkam, and a trick bowsprit have caught the attention of yachtsmen who have inspected the boat. There are 13 winches, taking care of every piece of running rigging. The galley even has a specially cast roaster on a stove which is mounted on gimbals. Whenever the boat heels over the stove also swings and remains level.

Intensive tuning up will make Rubaiyat a contender in the next Mackinac race. Miss Eileen Shaw, senior at Northwestern university, who has been sailing for two seasons on Lake Michigan, will be at Rubaiyat's helm in the Lady Skipper's race of the Jackson Park Yacht club this morning. It will be the first race for this yacht.

The sale of the Detroit schooner, Suez, was announced yesterday by Frank Combiths, local yachtsman and broker. Howard Grant, of Detroit, was the former owner who relinquished the yacht to a Milwaukee Yacht club member, Charles Reilly.

Women Take Tillers Today in Yacht Race

One of the most interesting events of the Chicagoland yachting season will be conducted by the Jackson Park Yacht club today in the club's 25th annual Lady Skipper's race.

The starting line is off the south shore outer harbor entrance. Class C, Seawanhaka, Stars, and all smaller craft will start at 11 a. m. The class A and B cruising craft get the starting gun at 11:05 to be followed in five minutes by the Universal racing division. The race will be sailed on time allowances over seven nautical miles. The finish line is at the Van Buren street gap. Following the race crews will gather at the Columbia Yacht club for presentation of prizes by Commodore Robert Williamson.

Sailing craft of all Chicago clubs have been invited to send their best yachtswomen.

Yachtsmen Will Be Aboard.

While yachtsmen will be aboard their boats unofficially, no man may touch the tiller or wheel. On several of the boats, yachtswomen will hoist the sails and trim the sheets. Twenty-five or more boats will sail.

The skipper of Circe, 55 foot yawl owned by Wade [Red] Woodworth, former Northwestern football star, will be Miss Calesta Dougherty, yachtswoman from the Atlantic coast.

Aboard Ken Ball's 30 foot yawl, Tern, will be Miss Lilyan Witzel, who has been sailing for six years.

Mrs. McDermott Will Sail.

Mrs. Michael McDermott, wife of of the former world champion breast stroke swimmer, will be at the tiller of John P. O'Rourke's 8 meter sloop, Shamrock. Skipper McDermott has appointed as her main sheet man Mrs. Malcolm J. Proper, whose husband is also one of Shamrock's racing crew.

Robert Benedict's sailing daughter, Farady, will sail Dr. R. Robinson Duff's yawl, Mary Lou, in the race. Miss Benedict has had three years of racing experience on her father's former yachts, Bagheera and Valkyrie. The cutter Voyageur is owned by two yachtsmen, who have been conducting an elimination contest to pick the skipper for today. Mrs. Emmett Parker won out over Mrs. Tom Nanninga for the right to sail Voyageur. The skipper on Bob Conklin's racing schooner Blue Moon will be Miss Virginia Bromstedt, sailing her first race.

Miss Friend Youngest Skipper.

The youngest skipper in the race today will be Miss Betty Friend, 15, who won the 1934 Lady Skipper's race. Her father, Milton Friend, Chicago merchant, is rear commodore of the Columbia Yacht club. Their 36 foot ketch, Betty Bro, recently won all three legs of the 162 mile triangular race, and also was victorious in its class in the Mackinac race. Miss Friend is a qualified helmswoman.

Edith III., the J. P. Y. C. flagship, will be sailed by Mrs. Robert Williamson, wife of the commodore.

Summer's Over, but Fishing in Fall Has Thrills

BY BOB BECKER.

Although Labor day invariably is a marker for the fisherman in that it represents the end of his summer fishing program, the day also is a beginning since it starts the autumn angling season, one of the most beautiful and delightful times of the year to visit northern lakes and woods. What we like about the northern lakes during September and October is the lack of hurrying vacation crowds. Gone are the crowds found on the lakes during the hot months. A fellow with a casting rod can poke around to his favorite fishing spots and enjoy a little quiet and relaxation in the stern of the boat as colorful vistas of autumn foliage fill the eyes.

In view of the many attractions of the north country it is surprising that more outdoor fans have not taken either September or October vacations. Just to see the maple, birch, basswood, and poplar trees after Jack Frost has touched up the leaves is in itself a good reason for driving several hundreds of miles into the Wisconsin or Michigan lake country. Possibly this season an increased number of motorists and fishermen will get a look at the gold and red tints in the autumn landscape due to the broadcasting of a slogan originating in the north country. This slogan reads "See the North Woods in the Autumn of 1935." The urge is to see the woods after the frost has turned the leaves.

Of course, not all fishermen are unaware of the fun of fishing during the autumn months. We know of hundreds of bait rod enthusiasts who purposely delay their departure for northern lakes until frost has touched up the birches, poplars, maples, sumac, and other vegetation in the fishing region. They know that the muskies take a new lease on life as soon as the hot days of summer give way to snappy fall weather.

The boys go north armed with plenty of muskie tackle and enjoy some of the snappiest fishing of the year. Some of the fishermen who like to scrap with lake trout also choose the fall season when the big fellows are moving out of deep water and thus can be hooked without scraping the bottom of a lake with a spoon and heavy sinker.

We like the fall season for pike fishing, too, and also because one of the pleasures of an autumn trip is in sitting around a big grate fire after sunset. The nights are snappy at this season, but usually the days are warm.

This fall there are scores of lodges or camps keeping open for the convenience of the fishermen who appreciate the beauty and the good fishing of an autumn trip. All through Wisconsin up to the Canadian boundary line the grate fires will be burning and the outboards ready for anglers who want to try for big muskies, catch wall-eyes, or connect with scrappy lake trout.

RAIN POSTPONES PLAYOFF.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 14.—[U.P.]—The fifth game of the playoff series between the Montreal Royals and the Buffalo Bisons was postponed tonight because of rain.

G-R-R-R! THAT IS THE NEW BAER SNARLING A BIT

Ex-Champ Has Best Drill of Training Period.

Speculator, N. Y., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Max Baer is a changed man. The former heavyweight champion demonstrated that today as he went through a strenuous workout in preparation for his 15 round bout with Joe Louis at Yankee stadium Sept. 24.

Throughout six rounds of boxing against Tony Cancella, Willie McGee, and Paul Pross, Baer displayed a ferocity that was most surprising to the 300 who braved a heavy dowpour. He also showed he still possesses his murderous right hand punch and that he has acquired a modicum of boxing skill. He was a fair target for a left hook, and he absorbed several of them, but all in all he went through what his closest followers declared was the best workout he has had.

Mike Jacobs, who is promoting the fight, attended today's workout and was elated. "That's the best I've ever seen Baer," he declared. "You can mark my words, he'll be the favorite in the betting when the bout rolls around."

A scare ran through the camp when Buddy Baer, who is training to meet Ford Smith on the same card, threw his arm out while boxing with McGee. Trainer Frank Pacassi quickly rubbed out the injury, however, and Buddy continued boxing.

LOUIS EASES UP

Pompton Lakes, N. J., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Joe Louis resumed training today after a layoff of two days, but contented himself with an easy workout through seven rounds of boxing against four sparring mates.

Jack Blackburn, his trainer, explained that Louis is now so near the top of his form that he is guarding against overtraining, and from now until the day for breaking camp his daily schedule will be arranged according to how Louis feels. It has been decided not to take on any more sparring mates as Louis will take things easy and the present staf will suffice.

The best test for Louis came in the two rounds he boxed with Paul Cavalier. Louis showed that he could get inside long rights, and he met Cavalier with sharp left counters.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Mrs. Dorothy Andrus of Stamford, Conn., won her way into the singles finals of the Philadelphia district women's grass court tennis tournament by defeating the defending champion, Miss Eunice Dean of San Antonio, Tex., 6-4, 6-2. She will meet Miss Anne Page of Haverford in the finals tomorrow.

WRIGLEY FIELD

COME OUT—PULL FOR THEM!

Clang Breaks Record for 6½ Furlongs.

Just to show Gordon and his critics that his career had not come to an inglorious close he jumped into the saddle on No More earlier in the afternoon and sent that aged campaigner on to easy victory.

Nears Track Record.

Keester rated St. Bernard to perfection. He sent him the first quarter in :24 1-5, the half in :49 2-5, the six furlongs in 1:13, and the mile in 1:37 3-5. He rounded out the mile and a furlong in 1:50 3-5, which was a second off the track record.

It was the first victory St. Bernard has scored since he won the Kenner stakes at Saratoga. Later on he was beaten in the Travers and in the Hawthorne Sprint handicap. Earlier in the year he had run second to Omaha in the rich Arlington Classic. He ran in front of the 3 year old champion in the Classic for the first mile.

Clang Sets New Mark.

Clang, holder of the world's record at 7 furlongs, added new laurels to his season's work when he shattered the Hawthorne track record for 6½ furlongs while winning the Garfield purse.

He skipped over the distance in 1:17 3-5, running the quarter in 23 seconds, the half in 46 1-5, and the three-quarters of a mile in 1:10 3-5. He had been scratched out of the Hawthorne handicap to go in the shorter race, and was the shortest priced favorite of the year in Chicago. He paid $2.20 to win, $2.60 to place, and $2.20 to show.

He trailed Brown Feathers for a quarter of a mile and then tore out into a lead of four lengths. At the line of finish he was well in hand and still three lengths in front of Brown Feathers. Cotton Club was a length back in third place.

It's Mansco Again.

Tom Worden's Mansco defeated a band of leading candidates for the Hawthorne Juvenile handicap in the South Bend purse. The son of Polymelian-Griselda was outrun by the Dixiana stable pair of Rollin Home and Erin Torch in the early stages.

When the Dixiana colts raced wide into the stretch Mansco came through on the inside and won by a head from Sir Emmerson, which also had saved ground after the flying Dixiana color bearers went to the outside. Kentucky Blues was up in time to beat Erin Torch by a head for third money.

Mansco, despite the fine record he has made here, paid $6.80 in the betting. He had to be a little lucky to win this one.

Roller Skating Derby to End Next Sunday Night

The roller skating Derby, which got under way at the Coliseum a month ago, will end next Sunday night. The original field of 25 teams has been reduced to ten, mainly because of injuries, disqualification, or fatigue. The race, being sponsored by prominent loop merchants and business men, is the first of its kind in Chicago. The contestants glide around the slate bowl daily from 2 o'clock in the afternoon until midnight.

POLYPHOTE, taken back slightly on the turn, came out in stretch and closed well in a good performance. SKIPPY McGEE, well up from the start and taken to inside on the turn, was under pressure the final quarter and weakened slightly in late stages.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $200; third, $75; fourth, $25.

†Field. Time, :23, :46 4-5, 1:13 3-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Airy Heiress, $12.80 straight, $7.20 place, $5.80 show; Wee Emma, $11.80 place, $10.00 show; Peter J. Peel, $9.80 show. Winner trained by A. J. Tansor. Went to post at 3:01½. At post three minutes. Start good from Bahr gate. Won easily; place driving.

AIRY HEIRESS, quickest to begin and having the most speed, saved ground after three-sixteenths, responded to light pressure in stretch, and held WEE EMMA safe to win with something left. The latter, on inside early but taken out after reaching the turn, was slow to respond to pressure, but rallied stoutly in final eighth and finished fast. PETER J. PEEL, far out of it for five-eighths, swerved to inside when making up ground, fast thereafter.

NO MORE, well up from the start and under strong restraint for a half mile, was forced wide by OURAY entering stretch and, after taking command quickly when straight, was kept under vigorous hand riding to the end. KANEPA, away slowly, bettered his position gradually and, holding on well in the drive, outstayed GRAND WAY. The latter, in close quarters repeatedly, was lucky to secure room between horses in stretch and finished resolutely.

Postage Due Is Stake Victor in Maryland

Havre de Grace, Md., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Postage Due, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt entry, sent Maryland's major fall racing season off to a thrilling start today by driving down the home stretch to come up from third and win the $10,000 Eastern Shore handicap by half a length.

H. H. Hector's Wise Duke was second and Maeriel, owned by Maemore farms, third, a nose back of Wise Duke. Postage Due paid $7.40 straight. Postage Due's time of 1:13 was well above the six furlong record of 1:10 3-5 set here last year by Time Supply. The feature had a net value of $10,725 to the winner, $2,000 to second, $1,000 to third and $500 to fourth.

More than 10,000 turned out for the first day here, which inaugurated the mile track season which lasts through Thanksgiving. Bowie, Laurel and Pimlico have meetings following the 13-day meeting here.

GOOD GOODS IS VICTOR

Pawtucket, R. I., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Despite two claims for foul against the Brookmeade stable's Good Goods, the horse won the second running of the Rochambeau handicap, a mile and three-sixteenths for 3 year olds and up, before 45,000 here for the last day of meeting.

Running well back of the pace set by the favorite, Whopper, the Brookmeade colt started to move as he passed the three-eights pole and rushed along on the outside to finish a length in front of Whopper, with Mrs. Walter E. O'Hara's Howard third, two lengths more behind.

GOOD GAMBLE WINS

New York, Sept. 14.—[Special.]—The luck of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt was good enough today to survive a bad start, a disqualification and a nose finish to give him his 29th stake of the season. Before 15,000, at the end of a bitterly fought Aqueduct handicap, which was the concluding feature of the Aqueduct meeting, Vanderbilt's Good Gamble was first by a nose over Mrs. John Hertz's Count Arthur.

Three lengths back of Count Arthur was the favorite, King Saxon, which landed third only to be disqualified. He was set back by the stewards for bearing over on Esposa in the stretch when the filly was leading and Cal Rainey was driving hard with King Saxon on the outside.

The official action established William Woodward's Vicaress third and Esposa next. Back of these horses the order of finish was Only One, Good Harvest, and Chicstraw. Over a fast track Vanderbilt's Daughter of Chance Play and Triangle was timed in 1:43 3-5.

17,000 Fans Bet $480,000 at Hawthorne

The 17,000 persons who gathered at Hawthorne yesterday wagered a total of $480,000 on the eight races. It was the biggest racing day at Hawthorne in four years. Should the crowds continue to grow the Hawthorne track may top all other race courses in Chicago in attendance and bets through the mutuel machines.

That "off again—on again—gone again" hearing of J. D. Mikel before the Illinois racing commission will be resumed next Wednesday, it was announced yesterday. Mikel is charged by the board of stewards at Lincoln Fields with running a 3-year-old in a 2-year-old race. Race fans are beginning to snicker every time the Mikel case is mentioned. They thought there would be some definite action on the part of the commission long ago.

Roy Carruthers, general manager of the Arlington Park and Washington Park tracks, was on hand to see St. Bernard win the Hawthorne handicap. He was accompanied by Warren Wright, Charley McCulloch, and Dr. Charles Strube, head of the Santa Anita track in California.

Jocky Paul Keester, who staged a comeback yesterday by riding two winners at Hawthorne, plans to leave soon to fill engagements in Maryland, but probably will return to Chicago to ride St. Bernard in the Illinois Owners' handicap.

The selling plater Fitkin, which rolled up his third victory of the Hawthorne season when he won the first race yesterday, will be shipped to Texas late today for a campaign there during the autumn and fall months.

Ohio Varsity Eleven Runs Over Reserves

Columbus, O., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Ohio State football teams were put through a regulation game today with the varsity running over the reserves, 34 to 7. It was the first scrimmage of the year and after it was over, it could be seen that the laterals, forwards, and open field running which made the Buckeyes so dangerous last year again will be in evidence.

Joe Williams and Johnny Bettridge stood out as ball carriers for the first string team while Nick Waselyik, 151 pound sophomore starred for the second stringers. The scrubs scored first on two long passes, one thrown by Waselyik and the second received by him, for a 7 to 0 lead at the end of the first quarter. The regulars came back strong to win as they pleased.

How Varsity Lined Up.

The first team lined up with Capt. Gomer Jones at center, Karcher and Smith at guards, Hamrick and Roush at tackles, and Wendt and Rees at ends. In the back field Fisch was at quarter back, Heekin and Boucher at halves, and Kabealo at full back.

In the second half the varsity was composed of Miller, center; Chrisinger and Zarnas at guard, Harre and Georges, tackles; Busich and Cumisky at ends, with Pincura and Dye alternating at quarter back, Antenucci and Beltz at halves, and Williams and McDonald at full back.

INJURED GOPHERS RETURN.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Coach Bernie Bierman sent the Minnesota football squad through a two hour drill this morning and another this afternoon. Bud Wilkinson, Vern Oech, and Kenton Glen Seidl, guards and quarterback, respectively, have recovered sufficiently from injuries to take their places in the lineup. They were not in the whole session, however, Bierman preferring to avoid chance of further injury as he experimented with other candidates.

The most notable feature of the drills was the running of Sophomore Tuffy Thompson. He made several long runs.

IOWA SOPHS SHINE.

Iowa City, Ia., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Two hard scrimmages completed the first week of Iowa football practice today. Indications are that Iowa will have a sophomore quarter back. Leading candidates for the position are Dick Bowlin, Chicago, 165 pounds; Bush Lamb, Newton, 160 pounds, and Lawrence Haltom, Creston, 160 pounds. Haltom is the only veteran of the trio.

The work of several veteran backs, including Capt. Dick Crayne, Dwight Hoover, and Ozzie Simmons, appeared improved over last year.

NOTRE DAME SCRIMMAGES.

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—The first scrimmage of the year sent eight Notre Dame football teams into action this morning and afternoon. The first four skirmished in a rigorous morning session and the other four worked in the afternoon.

MAROONS FACE TWO BIG WEEKS, THEN NEBRASKA

Completing the first phase of its pre-season drill the University of Chicago's small football squad emerged from the locker room after yesterday's drill in top physical shape and fairly familiar with Coach Clark Shaughnessy's offensive plans.

After a rest today the candidates face two weeks of the most laborious grind of the season, including scrimmage on both offense and defense, in preparation for one of the hardest opening games ever scheduled by Chicago, against Nebraska at Lincoln on Sept. 28.

Veterans in Limelight.

Competition for the first team jobs has been at a minimum, for Shaughnessy is concentrating on his veterans in an effort to get by the encounter with the Cornhuskers successfully. The principal battles are between Harmon Meigs and Earl Sappington for the left guard job, and between Gordon Peterson and Bill Gillerlain for right end.

Maroon coaches have been pleased this week with the work of the four first string backs, Berwanger, Bartlett, Nyquist, and Skoning. The teaming of Berwanger and Bartlett is new this year and may prove embarrassing to opponents, for if they devote too much attention to stopping Berwanger, Bartlett is capable of breaking up the game.

Skoning and Nyquist are capable blockers. Berwanger, who is in fine physical trim, appears to be learning the signal calling job quickly.

MICHIGAN NEEDS SCRIMMAGE.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—More work including a lot of scrimmage is necessary before Michigan will be ready for its opening game, Coach Harry Kipke decided after watching his squad scrimmage for two hours this afternoon. Kipke was disappointed by the work of some of the boys expected to come through, but was gratified by performances turned by others.

Several touchdowns were scored by the team on which the better players worked, passes by Bill Renner and Joe Barasa to the ends, mostly Patanelli, Savage, Stabovitz, and Valpey, figuring largely in the gains. Barasa, Bill Barclay, Doug Farmer, and John Smithers were among Kipke's best working backs. Bob Cooper, Stark Titchie, Ferris Jennings, and George Bolas were out of uniform.

N. U. GETS SCRIMMAGE

Northwestern's football team concluded the first week's practice yesterday with a heavy line scrimmage that served to give the boys a preliminary taste of what awaits them during the coming two weeks before the opener with De Paul on Sept. 28. The first actual scrimmage is slated for next Tuesday.

Hugh Duvall, veteran full back, appears completely to have recovered from the leg injury sustained in the spring practice game. The husky line plunger underwent treatments all summer and after the first week of practice has shown no ill effects.

The full back position is further fortified by the presence of three sophomores who are expected to be ready for first string duty this fall. Heading this group is Fred Vanzo, 215 pounder from Universal, Ind., who at the present time is operating on the second team. The other first year full backs are Bob Carter and Newton McGrew.

Apprehension is shown, however, regarding the ends. Bill Henderson, regular from last season, has been unable to work out due to an ankle injury sustained a month ago. He may report next week. This leaves only two letter men available. They are John Zito and Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

BADGERS STRESS SPEED.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—The Wisconsin football squad concentrated on speed and offensive play this afternoon as the varsity went through its second scrimmage against a full defensive team.

INDIANA UNCOVERS PASSER.

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Frank Filchock of Braznell, Pa., sophomore half back, stood out today as one of the most accurate passers on the Indiana university squad. Filchock's throws placed him in class with George Fowler and Don Yoder, who have been sharing the passing duties in dummy scrimmage with Vernon Huffman. If Huffman's leg holds up, Coach Bo McMillin believes he will become one of the leading passers in the conference.

In the opinion of Dr. J. E. P. Holland, university physician, Huffman's ankle, which was fractured early last season, is now as strong as ever.

Punters came in for some attention today, with Corbett Davis holding the edge over competitors. He has been averaging 35 yards. George Hecko was shifted from end to tackle, and George Miller, who has been playing guard, was tried out at center.

NEW TRACK MARK EXPECTED TODAY AS ROBY OPENS

50 Mile Big Car Event Attracts 40 Drivers.

Assured of fair skies today, Promoters Carl Stockholm and Emmett T. Howard are prepared to present the opening racing program at the new Roby speedway, after two postponements because of rain. Approximately $20,000 has been expended on the plant, which is considered one of the country's finest dirt track ovals.

Prize money of $2,000 for a five race card has attracted more than 40 of the nation's leading drivers to the rebuilt track at Roby.

Among the driving stars who will compete today are Wild Bill Cummings, 1934 national champion and winner of last year's Indianapolis 500 mile classic; Billie Winn, with victories at Springfield and Altoona just added to his list; Maynard Clark and Billy Devore, first and second, respectively, at Atlanta in the Labor day 100 mile event, and Wilbur Shaw, second at Indianapolis this year. Babe Stapp, who finished in the money in eight of the last ten Indianapolis races, also will face the starter.

New Track Record Predicted.

The present track record was made by Billy Arnold five years ago at 43.2 second for the mile. This mark has fallen repeatedly during practice this week and it is certain that a new record will be marked up during this afternoon's program.

Basis for this belief comes from the rebuilt track, which has been reconstructed to a depth of three feet. New clay has been laid over the old dirt and 15,000 gallons of oil have been spread over the 50 foot racing strip. The turns have been slightly banked.

Four 10 Mile Events Carded.

Today's program will consist of three ten mile races to qualify for the 50 mile feature. Another ten mile race will be staged for drivers failing to qualify for the main event.

An emergency hospital has been established in a building 200 yards south of the grand stand where emergency aid to both patrons and drivers will be available under the direction of a competent medical staf.

Racing will begin with the time trials at 10 o'clock this morning. Qualifying heats begin at 2:30 o'clock.

No cars will be permitted to cross the track to the infield during the time trials this morning, but may go into the inner circle as soon as the trials are completed. After the racing starts this afternoon, however, no cars or individuals will be permitted on the track. An attendance of 20,000 is expected for the opening.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 14.—(AP)—William E. Benswanger, president of the Pittsburgh Pirates, tonight announced the signing of Harold Joseph [Pie] Traynor as manager for 1936.

The contract runs for one year. Neither Benswanger nor Traynor would discuss the financial terms.

"We are well satisfied with Pie Traynor as manager of the Pittsburgh club," said Benswanger. "I have found through close association with Pie that he is a fine business man, a rare judge of human nature, and a manager who has a very fine sense of baseball values. Moreover, and just as important, his loyalty is unquestioned."

Traynor, serving his 14th year with the Pirates, said:

"I feel you will be safe in saying that the Pirates will go higher and play better ball next season."

Cubs Capture League Lead

Week's Review of Sports

The major league baseball races last week had reached the stage where statisticians annually start figuring how many games the leaders need to win to clinch the pennant and where a single misstep may mean disaster to any one of the contenders.

The St. Louis Cardinals made four missteps last week, and the two and one-half game lead in the National league which they held at the close of the preceding week had dwindled to a one gme deficit as the Chicago Cubs swept relentlessly through all opposition to climb into first place. The Cubs, by pouncing on the Boston Braves and the Brooklyn Dodgers while the Cardinals had their hands full with the New York Giants and the Philadelphia Phillies, ran their string of consecutive victories to eleven. Only the fact that the Cards had played fewer games kept the Cubs from going into a tie at the close of Friday's games, and yesterday's victory while the Giants were beating St. Louis gave the Chicagoans the lead.

Cards Hit Snag, but Cubs Are Rained Out.

The Cardinals ran into a snag at the outset of the week's play when they dropped the second game of a double-header to the Phillies, 4 to 2, after Dizzy Dean had pitched his 25th victory of the season in the first game, shutting out the Phillies, 11 to 0, on four hits. While the divided result made no difference in their relative standing with the Cubs, who were rained out that day, it deprived them of a rare opportunity to gain a game. The Giants defeated the Pirates the same day, 3 to 1.

The Cubs showed their appreciation of the Phillies' work the following day when they opened their series against the Braves with a double victory while the Cardinals made their second misstep and lost the second in a row to Philadelphia. This combination of events cut the Cardinals' lead by a game and a half and the Cubs were only one game out of first place.

From then until Friday the Cubs and the Cardinals marched along step for step, striking blow for blow in their battle for the lead. On Tuesday the Cubs trimmed the Braves again, 4 to 0, and the Cards stopped the Phillies, 4 to 2, Paul Dean pitching his eighteenth victory of the year. The victory made a total of 43 for the Dean brothers. The Giants cut into the lead of both teams by taking a double-header from the Pirates.

On Wednesday it was the same. The Cubs ran their winning streak to eight games by bombarding the Braves, 15 to 3, and the Cardinals pounded the Phillies, 10 to 2. The Giants slipped back a game by losing to the Pirates, 10 to 7.

Cubs Win, 13 to 3, but Dizzy's Still in Form.

Then came Thursday and the opening of the all-important Cardinal-Giant series. The Cubs, inspired by the prospect of a big gain while the other two leaders were cutting each other's throats, lambasted the Brooklyn Dodgers, 13 to 3. In St. Louis Dizzy Dean opposed the great Giant ace, Carl Hubbell, and when it was all over Dean had gained his 26th victory, 5 to 2; the Giants were three and a half games behind, and the Cards were still only a game away from the Cubs.

Friday brought the break for which the Cubs had been waiting. They ran their string of victories to ten by again trimming the Dodgers, 4 to 2, and settled back to wait for the returns from St. Louis. With their customary ruthlessness the Cards leaped away to a 5 to 2 lead in the second inning. Then the Giants set to work. Run by run they whittled down the lead and went out in front in the sixth. The Cards tied it up in the eighth. But the Giants broke loose again in the ninth, and when the half inning was over the Giants had pushed over the apparently unsurmountable total of four runs. Undaunted the Cardinals matched it with four runs of their own, and when the tenth opened Dizzy Dean was on the mound, seeking his second victory in two days. When the tenth inning was over three runs had been scored off Dean, he had suffered his ninth defeat of the season, 13 to 10, and the Cubs were only four percentage points behind the Cardinals.

Then came Saturday's upheaval.

Browns Keep Going in American League.

Again, as in the preceding week, the St. Louis Browns were the sensation of the American league. With six victories and only two defeats, they lifted themselves out of last place and were glaring threateningly at sixth place, only three games behind Washington. The week's record of games won and lost:

Chicago	7	0	Washington	6	1
New York	5	2	St. Louis	6	2
St. Louis	4	4	New York	5	4
Philadelphia	4	4	Detroit	4	4
Brooklyn	3	4	Chicago	3	6
Cincinnati	3	4	Philadelphia	3	6
Pittsburgh	2	5	Cleveland	1	7
Boston	1	6

Allison Dethrones Perry; Helen Jacobs Wins Again.

The tennis record books of the future will show that on Wednesday of last week, Helen Hull Jacobs won the women's national tennis championship for the fourth consecutive time by defeating Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabian, 6-2, 6-4, and that on Thursday, Wilmer Allison won the men's championship on the same Forest Hills court by whipping Sidney B. Wood, 6-2, 6-2, 6-3.

What they will not show in all their dramatic high lights are two upsets that rank among the most surprising in all the history of tennis in this country. When the week opened, Fred Perry of England, generally conceded without argument to be the greatest of the amateurs of today, was still the favorite to repeat his victory of the two preceding years when he won the United States title with little difficulty. He met and vanquished Francis X. Shields, the California actor-tennis star, on Sunday.

On Monday the first of the two upsets was in the making. Little Bryan Grant of Atlanta, scarcely five feet tall, but a giant in tennis prowess, met Donald Budge, a red headed young Californian who had been the sensation of all the earlier tournaments this year. Grant, who frequently has vanquished the mightiest though he never has reached the heights himself, ran through two sets against Budge, 6-4, 6-4, and was leading two games to one in the third when the rain halted the match. They finished up on Tuesday. Budge won the third set, 7-5, but Grant came back to take the fourth, 6-3, and America's brightest hope of wresting the championship from Perry was gone.

Miss Jacobs' Triumph Almost Overlooked.

On Wednesday, Miss Jacobs went through the motions of winning her title and becoming the first woman ever to win the crown four consecutive times, but her achievement was all but overlooked in the hullabaloo over the men's semi-finals match which preceded it.

When Wilmer Allison of Austin, Tex., took the court against Perry in that contest there probably wasn't a person in the stands who expected Allison to win. A victory for the young Texan, despite his ranking as No. 1 player in America—a ranking which many thought should have belonged to young Budge—would have been as stunning as a defeat for Bill Tilden in his hey-day as an amateur.

Dethroned Champion Weds Just Before Friday the 13th

But it was a new Allison who opposed the Briton that day. He fought Perry on even terms through six games, and with the score tied at 3-3, he smashed the ball far to Perry's left in the seventh game. The Briton raced for it, slipped and fell heavily. He said nothing of the injury, but it obviously bothered him, and Allison eventually ran out the set, to win, 7-5. He kept up the pressure in the second set and won again, 6-3. He repeated in the third, 6-3, and the match was over.

Meanwhile, Wood eliminated Grant, 6-3, 4-6, 12-10, 6-2, and Allison's first championship was assured. It took him just 49 minutes on Thursday to run through to a straight set victory over Wood, 6-2, 6-2, 6-3, and the title.

Perry had no alibi for his defeat. He was absent from the finals match and Thursday night the public learned why. At 11:55 p. m., just five minutes before Friday the 13th, he married Miss Helen Vinson, screen star, in the office of Justice of the Peace Leo Mintzer in Harrison, N. Y.

Football's in the Air! Pros Begin Schedule.

The resonant plunk of a stout cow hide shoe against inflated lether sounded over the central west on Tuesday when football practice opened at the ten Western Conference universities and at the University of Notre Dame. Nearly seven hundred young men were in uniform at these eleven schools. Notre Dame with 85 had the largest squad. In the Big Ten, Illinois led with 78, Minnesota was second with 73, and Northwestern third with 72.

The National Professional Football league opened its season Thursday night as the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Philadelphia Eagles, 17 to 7, at Philadelphia.

C. Y. O. TO MEET LOUISVILLE FOR TITLES TODAY

Games Will Decide North, South Catholic Crowns.

White Sox park will be the scene of a double-header today as the baseball leaders of the Louisville, Ky., C. Y. O. and the Chicago C. Y. O. meet to determine north-south Catholic amateur baseball honors. The first game, between St. Adrian, Chicago, and St. Elizabeth, Louisville, will start at 1 o'clock, to be followed by the meeting between Good Shepherd, Chicago, and Holy Cross, Louisville, at 3 o'clock.

The Kentucky squads arrived in the city yesterday morning at the Union station. In the afternoon the boys spent a couple of hours practicing in Grant park.

Louisville Teams Favorite.

Louisville will be the favorite when the teams take the field against each other this afternoon at Comiskey park. Last year the local C. Y. O. winners traveled to Louisville, and were handed a decisive defeat.

Holy Cross, which defeated St. Elizabeth for the Louisville C. Y. O. title, has won 10 games and lost only one this season, and is reputed to be one of the strongest amateur teams in the south. St. Elizabeth has won nine and lost two games.

Of the Chicago nines, Good Shepherd, with a season record of 13 victories and two defeats, appears to have a narrow margin over St. Adrian, which won 12 and lost two.

Too Early to Get Big Bowling Scores? How About These?

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

At this time of the bowling season many complain that it's too warm to get large totals and others attribute mediocre showings to the fact that they have not had enough practice. But there are at least two young men who have nothing to moan about, even if there are resurfaced alleys and new pins to contend with.

Take Wally Bruder of the Archer-Kedzie Junior league for example. Bowling with the F. C. Patka Undertakers team he stepped out with a 279 game and then came back with 209 and 213 for one of the first 700 series of the season. He exceeded that lofty total by one pin.

Unwilling to let a junior leaguer have the honor alone, George Morrison of the Monarch team of the Classic league smashed the pins for 701 with games of 236, 220, and 245.

Who said the boys can't get hot early in the season!

Classic League.

The Miller High Lifes went into a tie for first place with the Monarch Beers in the Classic league at Stack and Ryan's last night. The Millers totaled 3,002 for high series, 1,050 for high game for the evening, and Ed Kraft annexed 680 for high individual honors as the Baby Ruths were beaten 3 games. The Moulding-Brownells also swept their series with the Edelweiss while the Monarchs took two from the Pabst and the Oak Leaf Motors were winning two from the Ben Bey Cigars. The scores:

About the Women.

Scoring as a whole was low in the Congress Women's league, Mae Ebert with 607 being the only one who had much success. Bess Fender registered a 593 that helped the Alberti Jewelers record the only clean sweep. Among other leading series were: B. Kleine, 551; P. Waterman, 524; L. Stellmacher, 533; M. Gordon, 573; C. Coyle, 517; C. Ehrns, 515; L. Reinking, 524; C. Grob, 559; H. Wilman, 518; I. Engel, 558; M. Warmbier, 533; R. Albrecht, 505; T. Morris, 528; E. Munzel, 512; A. Weiller, 548; E. Kirg, 526, D. Burmeister, 557.

Here and There.

Rickelman Drugs, last year's champions, won three games from Chatham Coals as the American league got under way at the Stevenson and Shalk alleys. All ten teams found the going fairly difficult. . . . The Rex alleys have opened under new management, with Ben Vornerck and C. W. Anderson in charge. . . . The 12 team Butler Brothers' league opened Friday evening and will keep going until April 24. . . . Samuelson's Arcade, 25 years in the northwest side, will stage a silver jubilee celebration Sept. 28 to Oct. 6. Here's the program arranged by Jack Samuelson:

Sept. 28 at 8 o'clock—Andy Veripapa, Brooklyn, vs. Frank Benkovic of Milwaukee.

Sept. 29 at 2:30 o'clock—Samuelson Kids vs. Chicago All-Stars, picked Chicago's school boy bowlers.

Sept. 29 at 8 o'clock—Budweiser Girls vs. Samuelson All-Stars.

Oct. 5—Women's team sweepstakes.

Oct. 6—Men's team sweepstakes.

North End League.

Rudy Pehrson of the Milfords turned in a 264 game and a 677 series as members of the North End Traveling league hit their stride. Other good individual shooters were Ray Dickover with 667, Bill Zelasko, 664, and Al Wang, 650. The Schamberger Schlitz team again was high with 3091, good for two victories. With the Milfords and Westers sweeping their series and the Birks winning two out of three, first place is now shared by these three teams and the Schambergers with five won and one lost. Tomorrow's schedule:

Schamberger Schlitz vs. Michelobs at North Town, 7 p. m.; Birk Brothers vs. Reed's Butterscotch at Lincoln Square, 7 p. m.; Kaadland at Milford, 9 p. m.; P. J. Westers vs. Roosevelt Brewing at Gold Coast, 9 p. m.; Samuelsons at Idle Hour, 9 p. m.

Windy City League.

Bud Wright collected a 629 series and W. Reading a 258 game, but otherwise the opening of the Windy City Major league saw few scores good enough for bowlers of this league's caliber. The Mineralites, Blazek Tailors and Soper Brothers started off with three victories apiece while the Burlington Zephrys, G. and W. Whisky, and Betinis Boosters each won two out of three. Tomorrow night at the league's second session higher scores are predicted. The schedule:

Alleys 1 and 2, Lauterbach Coals vs. Serrano Cigarros; 3 and 4, McKessons Old Crows vs. J. M. Kralovecs; 5 and 6, Betinis Boosters vs. Blazek Tailors; 7 and 8, G & W Whisky vs. Pilsen Olympia; 9 and 10, Strachan Coals vs. Mineralites; 11 and 12, Vogel Brothers vs. Almanaris Waters; 13 and 14, Tom Currans Blatz Beer vs. Burlington Zephyrs; 15 and 16, O'Keefe Coals vs. Soper Brothers.

On North Side Alleys.

The pins weren't sticking when the Chicago Junior Traveling league opened. Joe Pulaski helped himself to a 616 series, P. Barak had 611, and L. Winger turned in high game of 235. In the 190 average class are L. Schranz, 195; Winger, 194; P. Panzek and W. Kott, 191, and H. Vrooman, 190. . . . Every one of the ten teams won at least a game in the inaugural of the Gold Coast Major league. Scores were none too high although Wray totaled 641 and Kimble had 628; Schaefer, 627; Zajac, 613, and Ploch, 601. Kimble's 256 was the best individual game.

O'MAHONEY WILL RISK MAT TITLE WITH SAVOLDI

Bout Heads Stadium Card Tomorrow.

Wrestling gets preference over boxing on this week's Chicago ring schedule for the reason that Danno O'Mahoney will defend his heavyweight mat title tomorrow in the windup bout of a show which will mark the fall opening of the freshly painted Chicago Stadium. O'Mahoney's opponent in the match, set for one fall with a 90 minute time limit, will be Joe Savoldi, the former inexperienced and undiplomatic tellow who stunned mat followers two years ago when he dethroned the then seemingly invincible champion, Jim Londos, in the same Stadium.

Whether or not Savoldi is likely to embarrass the current ruler of all the wrestlers as he did Londos previously is doubtful. Nevertheless one can never tell what is likely to happen during a wrestling struggle. As a result fans are becoming excited over the impending affair and Stadium promoters are making arrangements to handle a crowd of at least 10,000 who would gross approximately $20,000 through the turnstiles.

First Appearance Since October.

Savoldi has not wrestled in Chicago since he kicked Ed [Don] George in the face and was disqualified in a bout at the Coliseum Oct. 24, 1934. He was booked to clash with O'Mahoney at Mills stadium last July 16, but at the last moment he decided he was injured or wasn't in condition and didn't appear. George Zaharias substituted and Joe was suspended for one year. His encounter against O'Mahoney was rescheduled at the Stadium after the Illinois athletic commission lifted the ban against Savoldi and placed him on probation instead.

Danno Aloysius O'Mahoney was born at Ballydehob, West Cork, Ireland 22 years ago. He received his opportunity to make good in this country through the efforts of Jack McGrath, Worcester, Mass., manager, and Paul Bowser, Boston promoter. Seeking a new mat attraction McGrath was sent to Ireland by Bowser to sign to a management contract Dr. Patrick O'Callaghan of Dublin, winner of the hammer throw in the 1932 Olympic games. Inasmuch as Dr. O'Callaghan was not a wrestler and did not particularly care for the game the quest appeared unsuccessful until the former recommended O'Mahoney as a possibility.

Private in Free State Army.

O'Mahoney a private in the Irish Free State army and an all around athlete, became interested in McGrath's proposition. He obtained his release from the army and accompanied McGrath to London where he was given a test against Ed [Strangler] Lewis at the Stadium club there last December. The match was scheduled for four rounds at five minutes each, O'Mahoney was pinned in the second round, but news dispatches sent to this country gave the impression Danno had more than held his own against Lewis. Accordingly, McGrath and his young protégé, Dan, docked at New York shortly after the Lewis bout.

Danno made his American debut Jan. 4 at the Boston garden against Ernie Dusek. He threw Dusek twice, the first time in 10 minutes 17 seconds and the second in 16:50 before 15,000. Since then he has won more than 50 bouts in this country. His victims include Billy Bartush at Buffalo, July 1; Charley Strack, Indianapolis, July 10; Ray Steele, St. Louis, July 11; Gino Garibaldi, Detroit, July 12; Floyd Marshall, Worcester, Mass., July 19; Jim Browning, Philadelphia, July 18; George Zaharias, Chicago, July 16; Lou Plummer, Minneapolis, July 17; Chief Little Wolf, New York, July 8; Don George, Boston, July 30; Browning, Toronto, Ont., Aug. 9; Bartush, Hartford, Aug. 26. Dan won the crown by throwing Jim Londos before 30,000 at Boston June 27.

New York, Sept. 14.—[Special.]—United States government bonds drifted lower today on a fair turnover for the two-hour trading period on the New York stock exchange.

Trading interest lagged in the market for domestic corporation bonds, however, and with the exception of a few individual issues, prices fluctuated within a narrow price range. Foreign issues displayed a somewhat better undertone. Total transactions amounted to $5,176,000, compared with $6,713,000 on the preceding Saturday.

Some concern is apparent in dealer circles over the way in which the federal obligations yield ground against meager resistance.

Federal Farm Issue Lower.

Losses today ranged from 1-32 to 10-32 point with the Federal Farm Mortgage 3s 1944-'49 the heaviest losers. The Fourth Liberty 4¼s eased 1-32 to establish a new low for the year at 100 16-32.

With the general run of corporation bonds showing only minor changes gains of 2½ points in Bethlehem Steel refunding 5s of 1942 and points in Warner Brothers Pictures convertible 6s, attracted some attention. In contrast, Utilities Power and Light 5½s and 5s dropped 3¾ 1¾ points, respectively.

N. Y. Traction Issues Rally.

cal traction issues made further ress today toward recovering their recent setback. Manhattan way issues rose ⅞ to 2½ points, Interborough bonds moved up 1½ points. The market for ad liens was quiet with some taking in the second grade list ing in moderate recessions. man government loans extended advance, while Italian govern- 7s yielded a point.

BRITISH POLICY PUSHES LONDON STOCKS LOWER

Views on War Important Market Influence.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 14.—Great Britain's friendship for Italy, as stated in a broadcast by Sir Samuel Hoare, foreign secretary, Friday night, depressed the stock exchange. The feeling seemed to be that it was a frail influence as far as Premier Mussolini is concerned, and not the best possible strategy.

That section of the market which contends that war is inevitable and that the British empire is threatened by it, renewed its pressure upon British government stocks and the whole gilt-edged list declined.

The Financial News index of fixed interest stocks sank to 135.6, the lowest since Oct. 29, 1934. The index of leading industrials, which stood at the peak of 104.2 just a month ago, eased to 99.6.

Other Side Has Support.

However, there is a thoroughly articulate crowd which insists that Geneva does not matter, that unofficial penalties as to credits already have been applied against Mussolini, and that he is being driven by financial stringency to localize his war and make it merely a face saving "punitive expedition."

The fact that stocks in Milan twice slumped severely is interpreted as confirming their contention that the Ethiopian adventure already has alarmed Italy.

Huey Long's death had astonishing repercussions in the city. It increased the flight of foreign funds from London to New York on the theory that his death removes a pronounced radical from the scene and makes it easier for President Roosevelt to "swing to the right." This weakened sterling against the dollar, and as the United States has—in the London view—no desire to see a further depreciation of sterling, authorities at Washington have had to support sterling, and the only way they could do this was by buying silver. Hence the removal of the picturesque "kingfish" caused the sterling price of silver bullion to rise.

Cocoa "Marketed Orderly."

Cocoa is the latest empire product to be brought into the sunshine of "orderly marketing." Various Gold Coast farmers' associations after years of disagreement have formed a joint selling agency in London to control the sales of this important market.

This may reasonably be attributed to pressure from the colonial office. Of 1,358,628 hundredweights of cocoa beans imported in the first seven months of this year, 91 per cent came from the Gold Coast. Last year world consumption slightly exceeded the supply, reducing stocks, but this year promises to see a small surplus, and the Gold Coast is determined it shall not unduly influence prices.

Foreign exchange "bears" have marked the Czechoslovakian crown for further devaluation, possibly for abandonment of gold and membership in the sterling bloc. London has a weakness for harrying the gold bloc.

LEVER BROTHERS CLEARED ON SOAP PATENT CHARGES

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Federal Judge Thomas W. Slick, ruling today on a patent infringement suit involving several million dollars, held Lever Brothers, Hammond, Ind., had not infringed upon patents held by Procter and Gamble and the Colgate-Palmolive-Peet companies.

The complaining companies alleged Lever Brothers, a British concern, infringed upon patents owned by them for the spray drying of a liquid soap.

Judge Slick said the question of patent infringement involved the approximation of certain variables used in manufacture of a product called Rinso.

"The rational answer," he said, "would seem to be that they may be approximated within a reasonable degree."

It was indicated the case will go to the United States Supreme court.

Barrett announced yesterday. This is the third payment to be made to depositors since the bank closed, raising total restitution to 25 per cent.

Furniture Mart Advances Date of Its Fall Market

The board of governors of the American Furniture Mart has advanced the date of the opening for the fall market from Nov. 4 to Oct. 30, Lawrence H. Whiting, president of the mart, announced yesterday.

ALL LIVE STOCK SLUMPS WHEN RECEIPTS GAIN

Live stock markets slumped last week when an earlier rise in prices attracted heavier shipments from the country. Combined receipts of cattle, calves, hogs, and sheep at Chicago for the week totaled 179,000 head, a gain of 42,800, or 31 per cent.

Prices of most beef steers tumbled 50 to 75 cents, those selling within a range of $10.50 to $12.25 being effected most. Steers under $10 and hefers below $9 dipped only 25 cents. Top steers reached $13.15 in midweek, equaling the highest mark since mid-June, but that kind also was pounded down on the final session with the closing top at $12.50.

The week's average price of good beef steers at $10.65 compared with $10.70 the preceding week and $10.80 two weeks ago, which was the highest weekly average since May. Cows fell 25 to 40 cents, but calves closed 25 to 50 cents higher.

Hog prices during the first half of the week made a creeping advance to new nine year highs, but there was little to support the rise, and with cattle and lambs on the run buyers found it comparatively easy to erase the earlier advances.

Earlier advances, however, held the week's average to $13.30, including tax, or 15 cents above a week ago.

SALES AND CREDIT STRONG; DENOTE AUTUMN UPTURN

Cities Report Less than Usual August Lull.

An encouraging basis for better business in the autumn months is seen by the National Association of Credit Men in a September survey of sales and collection conditions throughout the country during August.

Continued resistance to seasonal declines was shown as 22 of the 78 larger cities contacted reported both sales and collections as "good." Ten others reported good sales and nine more reported good collections. Slow collections were reported by only six of the cities and slow sales by five. The others fell in the "fair" classification.

Chicago was one of the 22 cities reporting both sales and collections as good. The others included St. Paul, Minneapolis, Boston, Washington, Los Angeles, San Diego, Indianapolis, Fort Wayne, Sioux City, Des Moines, Grand Rapids, and Lansing.

Other Cities Report Good Sales.

Reporting good sales were Peoria, Louisville, Duluth, Helena, Mont., Grand Forks, N. D., Portland, Ore., Sioux Falls, S. D., Austin and Waco, Tex., and Norfolk, Va.

Good collections were reported by New Orleans, Detroit, Milwaukee, Fort Worth, El Paso, Dayton, Spokane, Wash., Jamestown, N. Y., and Great Falls, Mont.

A simiiar report by the National Retail Credit association for 42 cities showed an average increase of 10.2 per cent in credit sales for August, when compared with the same month a year ago. Collections in the same cities increased 6 per cent.

The report on collections listed 36 of the 42 cities with increases. Muncie, Ind., and San Diego, Cal., had the largest gain with 23 per cent each. One city reflected no change and five had decreases, the greatest of which was 25 per cent in Idaho Falls, Idaho.

Report Increased Credit Sales.

Thirty-five of the same cities enjoyed increased credit sales, with the peak of 29.6 per cent set at Fort Worth, Tex.; Grand Rapids, Mich., with a 7 per cent loss, had the greatest decrease. Six cities were unchanged.

The report said collections were only fair in New York, Pennsylvania, and the adjacent area, although sales were good, particularly at Syracuse. Manufacturing activity in the south brought gains in both collections and credit.

A heavy tourist trade in the Denver area and in the far west helped both divisions of business in those sections, although there were occasional spots where losses occurred, due to local conditions.

CHICAGO STOCKS CLOSE WEAK IN LISTLESS TRADE

Chicago stocks closed weak in listless trading of 18,000 shares in yesterday's two hour session. Of the 65 issues traded, only 16 advanced. Twenty-eight lost ground and 21 were unchanged. The only new 1935 high was made by Club Aluminum, which closed up ⅜ at 2½, more than double its price of 1⅛ a week ago.

While the local market was irregular for a large part of last week, 38 issues made new 1935 tops. The trading pace quickened to 285,000 shares, compared with 239,000 the previous week, and 100,000 a year ago. A total of 166 issues were traded, 16 more than in the preceding week.

SELLING PRESSURE CUTS BUTTER AND EGG PRICES

Butter futures on the Chicago Mercantile exchange dropped ⅛ to ⅜ cents yesterday under pressure of liquidation and new selling, and the close was at the low points, with the November delivery quoted at 25⅜ cents. Sales of 149 cars were the heaviest since May 31. Purchases of 75,000 pounds of spot butter by the AAA raised the total for the week to 450,000 pounds, but failed to attract any attention.

The four leading markets reported a net increase in cold storage stocks, while receipts were heavy and the spot markets ¼ to ¾ cents per pound lower.

Liquidation likewise developed in egg futures, which closed ⅛ to ⅜ cents lower, October being down to 25⅜ cents per dozen. The cut of storage movement in eggs was 7,000 cases less than during the corresponding period last year. Sales were 196 cars. Prices follow:

REALIZING SALES BALK EFFORT TO BOOST STOCKS

Final Prices Show Little Change.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 14.—Balked by week-end realizing sales in an early effort to extend its advance, the share market put in most of today's short session idling around its previous closing levels. Metal shares provided about the only relief to the monotony, and even they were content to settle back to easier levels after a show of strength in the first hour.

At the close net declines exceeded gains by a modest margin. Sales for the two hour session totaled only 632,130 shares, or less than half the total of last Saturday. It was one of the dullest markets in weeks.

Copper Situation Is Factor.

Early buying in the mining issues was predicated on expectations of a rise in the price of copper metal as a result of the extraordinarily good demand reported during the last week or so. The demand has been a surprise even to the copper trade, coming as it has on top of a large movement in August.

Inflation hopes continued to stimulate the silvers. Both United States Smelting and Cerro de Pasco registered new highs for the movement, each maintaining a net gain of a point or so on top of yesterday's advance. American Smelting, Anaconda, and most other issues of the group were able to score further slight improvement, in spite of the burden imposed upon them by profit taking sales.

Rail Tone Is Steady.

Railroad shares had a steady undertone, although they were not as active as some other groups. Wall street looks forward to a good carloading report next week.

Traders who have been banking on an agreement on New York's rapid transit unification proposal seemed to have recovered their composure somewhat after their recent upset on the news that the stock exchange had been asked to investigate the "rigging" of these stocks. At any rate, the group showed a firmer tone, Interborough Rapid Transit pecovering a fraction of its recent losses and Brooklyn-Manhattan closing unchanged.

Auto Group Listless.

In the automobile sector General Motors ignored the favorable predictions made by President Alfred P. Sloan. Other motors were also indifferent.

Foods showed a slight tendency toward lower levels. Standard Brands, still laboring under the onus of its recent dividend reduction, bumped a new low for the year, and National Biscuit yielded a major fraction on fears that its current rate may not be maintained.

FOREIGN MONEY GAINS SLIGHTLY AGAINST DOLLAR

New York, Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Most of the leading foreign exchange rates recovered slightly today in terms of the dollar. The franc moved up ⅜ point to 6.59⅛ cents, or slightly above the gold shipping point, and placed the value of the dollar at $1.0058, against $1.0064 yesterday; the guilder closed unchanged at 67.38 cents, a level well below the gold point. The Swiss franc at 32.54 cents rose 1 point on the day. On the week the franc was ⅜ point higher, the guilder off 23 points and the Swiss franc up 2 points.

The federal reserve bank received word today of the engagement of $11,223,000 additional gold for shipment here, $4,125,000 in Holland, $3,538,000 in Canada, $2,600,000 in India, and $960,000 in England. Word was also received that 10,425,000 ounces of silver were shipped from England on Sept. 12.

Sterling rallied ⅛ cent today to close at $4.95⅛, up 2⅜ cents on the week. The mark rallied 5 points to 40.30 cents, to gain 6 points on the week. The lira gained 1 point at 8.16 cents, and on the week was 2 points net higher. The belga at 16.89 cents was up 2 points today and on the week was up 7 points. Japanese and Scandinavian rates, moving in concert with sterling, were 8 to 10 points higher on the week.

INDUSTRY INDEX DIPS, DUE MAINLY TO AUTO LETUP

New York, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The Associated Press index of industrial activity this week continued the downward movement that started three weeks ago.

The most important factor contributing to the setback was the sharp curtailment of automobile output as makers prepared for new models. Other more than seasonal declines were registered in cotton manufacturing and car loadings. Steel mill activity and electric power were above seasonal expectations. As a result the index dropped to 70.2 from 72.7 last week.

The index, based on 1929-'30 as 100 and adjusted for seasonal variation, follows with the corresponding index figures for its component parts:

	Latest week.	Previous week.	Year ago.
Composite index	70.2	72.7	59.1

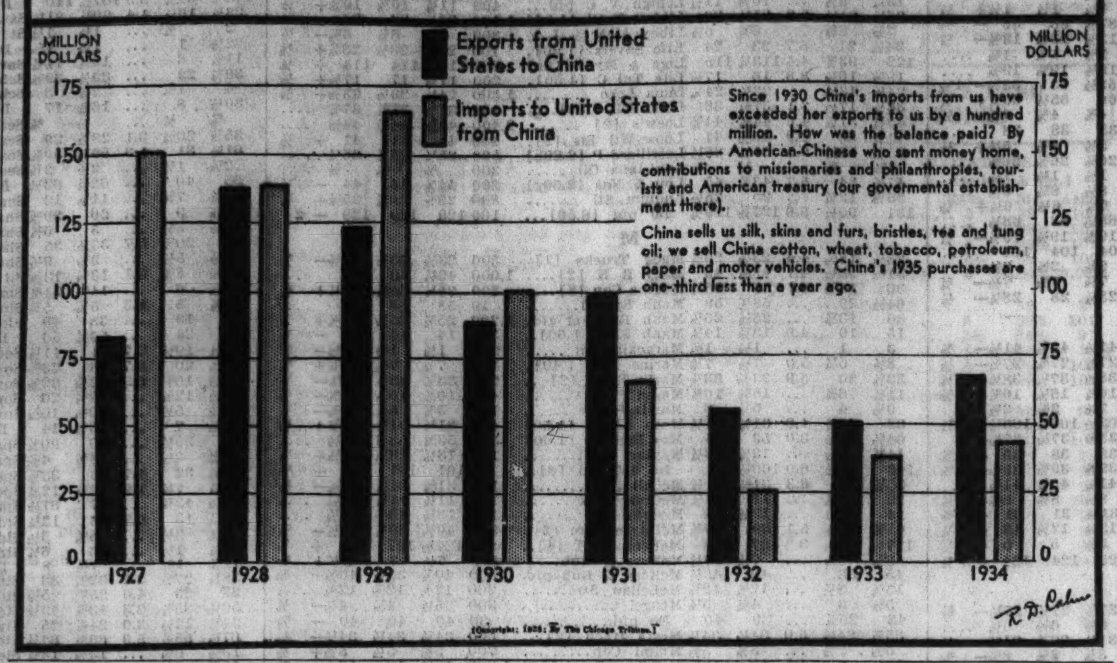
Trade of the United States With China for Eight Years Compared



Since 1930 China's imports from us have exceeded her exports to us by a hundred million. How was the balance paid? By American-Chinese who sent money home, contributions to missionaries and philanthropies, tourists and American treasury (our govermental establishment there).

China sells us silk, skins and furs, bristles, tea and tung oil; we sell China cotton, wheat, tobacco, petroleum, paper and motor vehicles. China's 1935 purchases are one-third less than a year ago.

COMMODITY PRICES MOVE AIMLESSLY IN WEEK; CHANGES SMALL

Leading commodity markets fluctuated in a somewhat aimless manner last week, with net changes at the close of the week largely confined to small fractions. Speculative interest in all commodities was at a low ebb, with political uncertainty in Europe a factor.

Corn, oats, rye, barley, coffee, and cotton sold close to the lowest levels of the season, while December wheat in Chicago was around the highest levels since trading in that delivery started. The Winnipeg markets advanced to a new high, reflecting the establishment of a minimum price of 87½ cents per bushel for No. 1 northern wheat, Fort Williams basis, by the Canadian wheat board, combined with an active export demand.

NEW OCEAN LINER MUST BE BUILT, SEC. ROPER RULES

Washington, D. C., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—A contract for the building of a new American trans-Atlantic liner to be constructed with all the latest safety devices must be made by the United States Lines before Dec. 16, Secretary Roper ruled today.

In a contract made with the government on March 18, the company was permitted to withdraw the Leviathan from operation, provided that a new vessel of an acceptable type was constructed at the earliest possible date. The company will get a government ship construction loan to aid in building the ship and must pay a $1,000,000 fine, if it does not do so.

While the secretary did not insist that a final contract for construction of the ship be executed until Dec. 16, he specified that a preliminary application for construction should be sent to the shipping board bureau by Oct. 10, that plans and specifications be sent simultaneously to ship yards for bids, and that ship yard bids be received and opened by Nov. 12.

SEC REPORTED PROBING AUBURN SHARE TRADING

New York, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The New York Sun says it learned today that trading in Auburn Automobile stock on the New York Stock exchange is being investigated by the securities and exchange commission. The commission was also reported to be inquiring into recent transactions in shares of General Bronze.

The floating supply of the Auburn issue is small, and it has long had a reputation in the market as an erratic performer. It turned active last week and advanced more than 4 points to 38¾ a week ago. This week it was quieter, and closed today at 37¼.

Auto Output Cut by New Model Work

Automobile production in the United States and Canada last week fell to the lowest level in 1935 and well below that prevailing in the same week of 1934, as output was curtailed by preparations for new models which will start rolling from assembly lines soon.

Production amounted to 13,470 cars and trucks, according to Cram's Reports, Inc. A week earlier the total was 34,140 while a year ago 42,960 units were produced.

1936 Models Due Soon.

"Last week's record," says the agency, "clearly indicates that manufacturing of 1936 models soon will be under way among companies that will announce new models at national automobile shows and which are working on a departmental basis in preparation for resumption of assembly line operations in a short time. Weekly production may drop still lower before large schedules are under way."

Output of the entire industry in the first eight months of this year totaled nearly 3,000,000 cars. The three leading competitors in the low priced field—Ford, Chevrolet and Plymouth—assembled 1,845,000 units of the total. In the eight months last year, 2,318,000 cars were turned out, of which the three leaders manufactured 1,630,000.

Change in Trend.

A significant trend this year has been the inroads made on total sales by higher priced cars. While the cheaper models account for the bulk of output, a marked upturn in the field outside the three heaviest producers is indicated in the production figures.

Packard, which some months ago brought out a medium priced model, is an outstanding example of the trend. In 1934 the company's total output was 6,496. For the eight months to Sept. 1, it produced 30,052 cars, most of which were the new model.

Nash, which introduced its lower priced LaFayette model some time ago, had an eight months output of 56,800 units. Production for all of 1934 was 33,258 cars.

CHECK VOLUME INDICATES NEW BUSINESS GAIN

Business activity last week, measured by the value of checks changing hands, continued to run above the preceding week and the same period of 1934, the federal reserve board reported yesterday. Debits to individual account in all federal reserve districts amounted to $6,810,063,000, compared with $6,782,554,000 in the preceding week and $6,033,236,000 a year ago.

In the Chicago area the volume fell below the preceding week, but held above 1934. Debits by 161 banks in 41 clearing house cities of the seventh reserve district aggregated $939,960,000, against $1,073,040 the week before, a loss of 12.4 per cent. Excluding Elgin, Ill., which was not included in last year's compilation, the volume of the 40 cities amounted to $938,505,000, compared with $804,123,000 last year.

Chicago reported its check volume at $575,511,000, against $505,809,000 in 1934. Des Moines' total was $23,312,000, against $18,901,000; Detroit, $131,898,000 against $99,757,000; Indianapolis, $34,370,000 against $32,607,000, and Milwaukee, $51,637,000 against $46,202,000.

39 Favorable Dividend Actions Set 8 Month High

New York, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Favorable dividend changes during the last week totaled 39 against 20 the week before, Standard Statistics company reports. This figure is higher than in any week of the last 8 months. Unfavorable announcements numbered 5 against 4 in the previous week.

[Copyright: 1935: By the United Press.]

Waterbury, Conn., Sept. 14.—[U. P.]—Three of the country's largest brass and copper rolling mills which provided much of the raw materials used in munitions making during the world war have gone on a 24 hour a day production basis in the most pronounced spurt in business in six years it was learned here today.

It also was reliably reported that machinery for turning out rifle, pistol, machine gun, and artillery shells are being shipped from here directly to the Italian government; that rush orders have been received for special aviation instruments, and that one plant is prepared to commence the manufacture of munitions on a large scale on 24 hours' notice.

PRICE UPTURN EXPECTED.

New York, Sept. 14.—(AP)—A renewal of active demand for copper and reports of restricted offerings by producers accompanied rumors of a pending price advance in this metal this week.

Although leading producing interests were said to have given assurance that no rise in quotations was contemplated, the demand from domestic consumers was unabated.

Electrolytic was still being quoted at 8½ cents a pound, Connecticut Valley points, or ½ cent above the summer low level but still ½ cent under the old NRA code price.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK SHARES CLOSE HIGHER

First National stock lead the over the counter trading in bank stocks last week. The issue closed at 177 bid and 181 asked, up 5 points for the week, after two days of violent fluctuations based on news that the stock would be restored to a $4 annual dividend basis and $10,000,000 of the $25,000,000 preferred stock held by the Reconstruction Finance corporation would be retired.

The price of the stock rocketed on Thursday to a top sale at 193. Friday's quotations varied widely, after the directors met without taking dividend action. Low sales were recorded at 169 before yesterday's rally from the reaction.

Declaration of a $1 quarterly dividend, the first since 1933, sent Chicago Title and Trust company shares up sharply. High sales of 141 were recorded, with the low transaction at 124. The issue closed at 134 to 137, up 11 points.

Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company stock closed down a point at 68⅛ bid, 70½ asked, after a large turnover. Harris Trust and Savings shares held unchanged at 250 bid and 260 asked. Northern Trust company also was unchanged at 525 bid, 535 asked, although some houses said none was offered at less than 540.

Merchandise Bank and Trust company was in demand at 88 bid and 93 asked, up 2 points, following regular dividend action. Terminal National was firm, with bids of 21 failing to attract sellers.

GRAINS WEAKER HERE IN SPITE OF RISE ABROAD

Chicago Prices Move in Narrow Range.

There was a noticeable lack of aggressive buying in grain futures on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday, with a good part of the business consisting of buying of one delivery month against sales of another. Prices in all pits held within relatively narrow limits with closing prices fractionally under those of Friday.

Further advances were scored in foreign wheat markets and prices in Liverpool, Rotterdam, Buenos Aires and Winnipeg reached new high levels for the season. It was the seventh consecutive day for the upturn in Buenos Aires. The drouth in Argentina was reported to be the worst in many years.

Cash Wheat Strong Abroad.

A strong cash wheat situation prevails in Europe, according to Liverpool cables. The October delivery in the English market went to a premium over Winnipeg for the first time in many weeks.

Hedging sales in wheat are going largely into the May delivery, which led the downturn in the Chicago market. Winnipeg was unsettled, with the October and December futures off fractionally. Minneapolis and Kansas City showed little change.

Closing prices of principal December futures here follow:

	Yesterday.	Friday.	Wk. ago.
Wheat	$ .93⅞	$ .94	$ .94½
Corn	.56⅝	.57⅛	.56½
Oats	.27¼	.27⅜	.27
Rye	.44⅛	.45⅛	.44¾

High premiums for choice grades of hard winter and spring wheat continue to prevail in leading markets. According to estimates made by the department of agriculture there is an actual deficit in production of these varieties this season as compared with theoretical requirements.

Total available supplies of hard winter wheat for the season, including the crop and carryover, are officially estimated at 269,000,000 bushels, while requirements are 225,000,000 bushels, leaving a prospective 44,000,000 bushels for carryover at the end of the 1935-'36 season.

Spring Wheat Close to Balance.

Stocks of hard red spring wheat, without allowance for the extremely low test weight per bushel, are 133,000,000 bushels, while requirements are placed at 128,000,000 bushels.

There are reports in the grain trade of a concentrated holding in September corn by an Illinois industry. Stocks of cash corn in local public elevators are nearly exhausted. At the close of business on Sept. 7 there was a total of 545,000 bushels in store. Shipments since then have totaled about 250,000 bushels, and warehouse receipts covering 146,000 bushels were canceled for shipment on Friday. This leaves slightly above 100,000 bushels in public elevators unaccounted for and available for delivery on September contracts. The open interest in September contracts at the close on Friday was 5,892,000 bushels.

BALABAN & KATZ DECLARES $1.75 ON ARREARAGES

Directors of Balaban & Katz corporation yesterday declared a dividend of $1.75 a share on account of accumulations on the preferred stock, payable Sept. 28 to stock of record Sept. 23. After this disbursement arrearages on the stock will amount to $5.25 a share.

Burdines, Inc., Miami, Fla., department store, declared a dividend of $2.40 a share on account of arrears on the preferred stock, and a regular quarterly payment of 70 cents a share on the preferred, both payable Oct. 10 to stock of record Sept. 27. After the payment on arrearages the accumulated dividends on the stock will be reduced to $3 a share.

Wabash Railroad, Workers Agree; Strike Canceled

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 14.—(AP)—A threatened strike of 4,500 employés of the Wabash railroad, and the Ann Arbor railroad, a subsidiary, was averted late today when the road and the employés entered into an agreement and the strike call was canceled. The road agreed to accept wage schedules and other phases of a working agreement asked by the big four brotherhoods, and upheld by the national railroad adjustment board, on many individual cases with the stipulation they were not to serve as precedents.

BUSINESS NEWS IN REVIEW

Week's business gains further—Retail trade upturn exceeds expectations—Dividend news favorable—Morgan bond firm active—Utilities begin to fight.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Business continued to score more gains last week. Retail trade was expanding at a rate faster than had been expected, clear cool weather in most sections of the country sending customers into stores to make purchases totaling 15 to 20 per cent more than in the preceding week, and 10 to 25 per cent above a year ago. Wearing apparel, dry goods, groceries, house furnishings, hardware, and electrical appliances were particularly favored, according to Dun & Bradstreet. Steel mills, getting back into stride after the Labor Day lull stepped up to the best rate of production since February. Consumption of electric power was 12 per cent above the 1934 level.

Freight Above 1934.

Railroad freight car loadings, reported for the preceding week, were above year ago levels, but in some sections the Labor Day decline was a little more than seasonal. American Telephone and Telegraph reported a sharp gain in operating revenues for July. Dividend news continued on the good side. With their checks for quarterly dividends of 50 cents a share, instead of the 25 cents formerly paid, General Motors stockholders received letters from President A. P. Sloan Jr., saying: "A rate of dividend when once declared carries with it the desirability of continuity." Also, they received 25 cents per share in extra dividends. American Rolling Mill company resumed dividend payments. National Gypsum and Goodyear Tire declared initial payments.

Big Bond Deals.

Morgan Stanley & Co., the new investment banking house which was formed a week ago as a separate venture by former partners of the commercial banking house of J. P. Morgan & Co., proceeded to get some big bond deals with people who had formerly done business with the House of Morgan before the banking act of 1933 took it out of the bond business. First deal, it was announced, would be the handling of a 19 million dollar financing operation for Consumers Power company. Consumers Power is a subsidiary of Commonwealth and Southern, big utility holding company. Big stockholder in Commonwealth & Southern is United corporation, in the formation of which J. P. Morgan & Co. played a prominent part. The last financing operation for Consumers Power had been handled by Bonbright & Co., another New York bond house.

New Morgan Firm.

Head partner of Morgan Stanley & Co. is Henry S. Morgan, 35 year old younger son of J. P. Morgan, who was graduated from Harvard in 1923 and went into his father's business as a messenger boy. As mentor young Morgan will have Harold Stanley, 48. Other partners are William Ewing, also former J. P. Morgan partner, and two resigned partners of Drexel & Co., the Morgan branch in Philadelphia, Perry E. Hall and Edward H. York Jr. On the heels of the Consumers Power announcement F. H. Hale, president of Illinois Bell Telephone company reported that Morgan Stanley & Co. would handle a 48 million refinancing deal for his company, the job being to replace that amount of 5 per cent bonds with new bonds paying less than 4 per cent.

Rail Dissection.

The piecemeal dissection of the Minneapolis and St. Louis railroad, a 1,600 mile line operating in Minnesota, South Dakota, Iowa, and Illinois, proposed several weeks ago by Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, moved nearer to accomplishment with the definite proposal for dismemberment offered by a new corporation, Associated Railways company, stock of which is owned by Burlington, Great Northern, Great Western, Illinois Central, Milwaukee, North Western, Rock Island, and Soo Line railroads. Some trackage would go to each. A third of it would be abandoned. The RFC would lend the money—about 8 million dollars.

Utility War.

Leaders of the public utility industry upon whom President Roosevelt has waged relentless war moved to fight the New Deal utility program on all fronts, acting through their national association, the Edison Electric institute. Constitutionality of various phases of New Deal legislation will be fought out in the courts. John W. Davis, Democratic nominee for President in 1924, was selected to conduct the case which will test the constitutionality of the public utility holding company act. Newton D. Baker, secretary of war in the cabinet of President Wilson, will conduct the case which will test the validity of gifts and loans of federal money to municipalities to compete with private companies. James M. Beck, former solicitor general, and Forney Johnston were retained to argue the unconstitutionality of the Tennessee Valley authority act now pending before the Supreme court.

Trains Speeded.

The Chicago and North Western railroad's "400" train since Jan. 1 has been averaging 63 miles per hour between Chicago and St. Paul. The Milwaukee's Hiawatha, which in August carried 25,003 revenue passengers, and the Burlington's twin Zephyrs go slightly faster over longer routes. Eyeing the success of these fast trains the New York Central and Pennsylvania last week decided to step up their Chicago-New York flyers to 16½ hours, and hinted that ultimately they may run even faster. New York Central's Twentieth Century will average 58 miles per hour, and the Pennsylvania's Broadway Limited 55 miles per hour on the new schedule beginning Sept. 29.

Advertise!

Because of the punishment they have taken during the last few years of senate investigations and corporation and bank failures, financial men have decided that a campaign of public education is needed to show the citizenry that unsound management, fraud, and failure are the exception rather than the rule. This was the keynote of the annual convention of the Financial Advertisers association at Atlantic City. Said Frank F. Brooks, president of the Pennsylvania Bankers' association: "I propose the most gigantic advertising campaign America ever saw, regardless of expense, to promote a greater degree of economic literacy. All measures for recovery are palliative and temporary until the blood stream of America's mass thinking is permanently inoculated against the pleasant but poisoned wines of economic fallacies." Charles R. Gay, president of the New York Stock exchange, advocated aggressively combatting "prejudice and misunderstanding." Robert V. Fleming, vice president of the American Bankers' association, said: "Get the government out of business."

Postal Savings.

Big New York banks found themselves between the devil and the deep blue sea in the matter of interest rates on postal savings deposits. Fifty million dollars accepted by the postal authorities from small savers and redeposited in the banks is involved. Under a recent ruling by the New

When purchase was advised these stocks were described as "the split-up stocks of the future." In this list were Chrysler, Westinghouse, United Aircraft, Johns-Mansville, Air Reduction.

Apr. '33 to June '35 Recommended the purchase of mining issues for inflation profits: Dome Mines for its advance from 15 to 43, McIntyre, 23 to 45, Alaska Juneau, 12 to 30, Homestake, 135 to 380.

Feb. '34 to Mar. '35 Consistently recommended a short position in Rails and Utilities throughout this period. (This position proved very profitable—Utility average made new depression low in March, 1935.)

OFFER NEW PLAN TO REORGANIZE C. & E. I. SYSTEM

Road Says No New Capital Is Needed.

A plan for reorganization of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois Railroad company under section 77 of the bankruptcy laws without need or raising new capital was submitted to Federal Judge John P. Barnes in United States District court here yesterday. Consummation of the plan would require use of $82,000 of the estimated $850,000 cash in the treasury on Jan. 1, 1936.

The proposal will be given to the interstate commerce commission tomorrow, preliminary to the opening of hearings in Washington next Tuesday on reorganization of the properties.

Ernest S. Ballard, attorney for the debtor company, said the plan can be supported on present earnings of the road. With moderate improvement in income, bondholders will obtain full return on their investment.

Bondholders May Take Control.

Or, if they prefer, bondholders may convert their proposed new income bonds into new common stock and obtain an 80 per cent control of the company. Through sinking fund provisions, Ballard continued, the entire mortgage debt can be retired in a little more than 50 years with only a slight increase in earnings from the estimated $13,300,000 gross for 1935. Fixed charges, except for rent of facilities of other roads, would be $465,000 annually, compared with present requirements of $2,000,000.

The company plan differs principally from one previously proposed by the bondholders' committee in that the Reconstruction Finance corporation would receive fixed interest instead of contingent bonds for its $5,761,000 loan and that income bonds would be issued to present bondholders.

Bond Group Asks Senior Stock.

The bondholders' committee, representing $12,000,000 of the $50,709,036 general mortgage issue, proposed that they receive preferred stock trusteed for 10 years with privilege of electing a majority of the board.

Carroll M. Shanks, chairman of the bond committee and representing the Prudential Life Insurance company, is expected to present a new plan at the interstate commerce commission's hearing on Tuesday. Shanks, together with a representative of the RFC and the Railroad Credit corporation, and Kenneth D. Steere, chairman of the C. & E. I. board, are proposed as reorganization managers in the company plan.

OFFER NEW PLAN TO REORGANIZE C. & E. I. RAILWAY

Road's Proposal Says No New Capital Needed.

None of the interests in the road is expected to take any particular notice of the proposal of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific preferred stockholders that these two roads and the "Frisco" system merge as a joint solution of their difficulties. All three are in process of bankruptcy reorganization.

Want Plan Operative Jan. 1.

Figures used in the plan are based on its consummation on Jan. 1, 1936, and the proposed treatment of obligations generally would be made effective from April 18, 1933, the date on which the original reorganization petition was filed.

The new company would be authorized to issue $15,000,000 in new prior lien bonds in two series, each maturing in 40 years and bearing 4 per cent interest. The RFC would receive $5,760,000 of series A bonds, equal to the face amount of the road's debt to it, and 9,319 shares of new no par common stock in satisfaction of interest, computed at 4 per cent and on a basis of $25 per share for the stock.

Interest on 4 per cent trustee certificates would be paid in cash and principal amount of $231,000 converted to series A bonds.

Provision for Other Obligations.

The Railway Credit corporation would receive $1,871,000 of series B bonds, equal to the principal amount of its obligation. Accrued interest would be paid in cash.

The 5 per cent equipment trust certificates of series A and B would be assumed without change. Similar treatment is accorded $142,000 in 5 per cent Evansville Belt bonds.

First consolidated mortgage bonds due Oct. 1, 1934, and carrying a 6 per cent interest rate would be assumed with the $2,736,000 principal unchanged but with maturity extended 40 years and interest reduced to 4 per cent from April 18, 1933.

Five per cent income bonds of $20,709,000 would be issued for the present general mortgage bonds of like amount. Interest accrued to April 18, 1933, and earned since that date, amounting to $759,061 would be satisfied by issuance of 30,362 shares of new common stock on the basis of $25 a share. The bonds are convertible into common stock on a $25 a share basis.

Common Stock Offered for Preferred.

Holders of 220,461 present preferred shares of $100 par would receive a like number of new no par common shares. This includes satisfaction of all cumulative dividend claims.

Holders of 238,453 present $100 par common shares are to be given 79,484 1-3 new common shares, the exchange being based on one new for each three old shares.

Summarizing, provision is made for immediate issuance of $7,862,000 of the new prior lien bonds, $30,709,000 income bonds, and 339,626 1-3 shares of common stock. Sufficient additional stock is authorized to take care of income bond conversion. Remaining prior lien bonds authorized may be issued later by the new company for any corporate purpose. Obligations assumed without change aggregate $806,000 and those assumed with changes amount to $2,736,000.

Continued good weather for picking and hauling of the new cotton crop, combined with moderate hedging pressure, carried prices off 10 to 12 points, or around 50 cents per bale, in leading markets yesterday. Closing trades were at the bottom, with a noticeable lack of aggressive buying either of a speculative or trade character.

Further selling orders in American markets were said to have been received from abroad, presumably closing spreads with Liverpool. Spot cotton closed 5 to 10 points lower, with New Orleans 10.60 cents and New York 10.65 cents per pound. Prices in cents per pound follow:

PAN-AMERICAN AIRWAYS GAIN OCEAN TRAFIC

Develops Routes Leading from United States.

[Because of the big increase in air passenger business this summer the finances of aviation companies have attracted the interest of the business world. Following is the fourth of a series of articles on individual aviation companies.]

The Pan-American corporation is the United States entry into the field of international air lines. It operates 139 planes, the well known "Clipper" ships, Sikorsky amphibians, over 32,552 miles of airways. Mileage flown has been extended about 2,000 since December, 1933.

Its planes connect the islands in the West Indies and Bahamas, and Central America, South America, and Alaska. Rapid development of the United States-China route, via Hawaii, is under way, and it is expected regular service will be commenced within the next few months. The company competes with steamships, whereas the other transport lines compete with railroads.

Farley Seeks to Cut Mail Pay.

In June, James A. Farley, postmaster general, recommended that payments to the company for air mail to Latin America be cut 25 per cent, which would lop off about $2,000,000 a year from total revenues.

On the company's board of directors are Robert Lehman of Lehman Brothers, bankers; L. B. Manning of the Cord corporation, W. H. Vanderbilt, Donald Douglas of Douglas Aircraft, and Oscar Sutro of the Standard Oil Company of California.

Gross revenues have grown every year since 1928 and the company has operated at increasing profits ever since the 1928-'30 losses. Gross revenues in 1934 were $9,642,569, against $8,992,515 in 1933; $8,387,114 in 1932, and $7,913,587 in 1931. Net income in 1934 was $1,064,471, against $898,488 in 1933; $698,527 in 1932, and $105,452 in 1931.

Passenger Trafic Shows Growth.

Indicative of the growing popularity of the company's service is the fact that in 1934 approximately 108,000 passengers were carried, against 80,500 in 1933. Passenger miles flown aggregated 35,000,000, against 27,511,000 in 1933.

The company had $2,925,336 of current assets on Dec. 31, 1934, and current liabilities were $988,826. Capitalization is represented by 631,640 shares of $10 par stock. In addition, 13,513 shares were optioned, the option being exercisable at $37 a share at any time to Feb. 26, 1936.

MINE CONGRESS WILL MEET HERE SEPTEMBER 23

Practically every major company in the metal industry will be represented at the American Mining congress, which will be held at the Palmer house Sept. 23 to Sept. 27, inclusive.

Among those scheduled to speak to the 2,000 representatives expected to attend are Ralph E. Flanders, president of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers; F. H. Brownell, chairman of the American Smelting and Refining company, who will discuss the world silver situation; Silas H. Strawn, attorney, who will talk on fallacious methods used to reach prosperity, and Harper Sibley, head of the chamber of commerce of the United States, who will speak on federal industrial legislation.

A. E. Petermann, vice president of Calumet and Hecla Consolidated Copper company, will give his views on labor problems, and Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior, on the public land policy.

Thirteen states that have large stakes in the mining industry will have exhibits.

UNITED AIR LINES COMPLETES 85 MILLION MILES

United Air Lines yesterday announced completion of 85 million miles of scheduled flying over its New York-Chicago-Pacific coast route. This was claimed to be a world record for a single air line. Of the total mileage, 35 million were flown at night, W. A. Patterson, United Air Lines president, said.

The mileage has accumulated since 1926, the first year United Air Lines operated on regular schedule. In that year less than a million miles were flown, compared with 15 million in 1934. On the present schedule the air line will complete its 100 millionth mile next summer.

TRADE MAKES FURTHER GAINS IN LAST WEEK

York state banking board the banks are not permitted to pay more than 2 per cent on time deposits. At the same time postal savings authorities in Washington, poring over a stock of laws, were of the opinion that they could not legally permit the banks to pay less than 2½ per cent on postal savings funds. Unless the federal reserve board issues a new ruling the banks will be forced to give up the 50 millions before the end of the month.

Interest Cut.

The United States government has been reducing the interest rates on some of its bond issues, particularly the high interest coupon Liberty bonds issued during the world war, by exercising its right to call in such bonds for payment, getting the money by selling new bonds at lower interest rates. Many other nations do not have the legal right thus to force bondholders to take less interest. They appeal to bondholders on grounds of patriotism and national necessity. Great Britain and Australia have successfully refinanced at lower interest rates in that manner. Last week Canada's Premier Bennett, who faces a national election this fall, decided to do likewise. Canadian holders of dominion, provincial, Canadian National railways, and municipal bonds will be asked to exchange them for bonds paying much less interests—the new rates to be announced later. British, American and other foreign holders will not be asked to participate in the conversion vscheme. Bennett is anxious to maintain Canadian credit abroad.

Seeks Freedom.

The First National Bank of Chicago hopes to be the first big American bank to work itself free from the Reconstruction Finance corporation which has bought more than a billion dollars of preferred stock and notes of banks, big and little, throughout the country. On Thursday a wave of excitement surged through the market for bank stocks as shares of First National soared to a maximum of $19, one transaction being made at $193 per share. President Edward Eagle Brown, who last year succeeded the late Melvin Traylor as chief officer of the First, had no comment to make. Chairman John P. Oleson said cryptically: "When the time comes to act, the directors will act from a conservative point of view."

It was learned on good authority, however, that the bank expects to restore dividends—at $4 per year—about the first of next year and that it further expects to use 10 millions of its 15 millions of surplus and reserves to pay off that amount of the 25 millions of preferred stock held by the RFC. The First National has already squeezed 200 millions of cash out of the assets of the Foreman-State National bank which it took over in 1931, assuming 227 millions of liabilities. Remaining Foreman assets were estimated to be able to produce a large part of the deficiency.

Advises, "Buy Now."

"My advice is to buy now," said Roger Babson, nationally known economist, at the twenty-second annual National Business conference held at his figure factory in Wellesley Hills, Mass. "We are involved already in credit inflation." Anent President Roosevelt's assurance of a "breathing spell" for business, Prognosticator Babson said it was like the act of a man whose supply of liquor has been exhausted and who then takes the pledge. Commenting on the political aspect of the President's expenditure of billions for relief, Babson said: "I'm not in the least worried about all this money Roosevelt has been given. The only enemies I've got in the world are the people I've tried to help."

Machine Tool Boom.

The machinery industry as a whole is still operating at only half of the 1929 rate, but the 4 per cent of the machinery industry which is represented by machine tools—contraptions like lathes that are used to manufacture other machinery — is close to boom levels. The reason, say experts, is that factories of all kinds, their operating expenses soaring because of increased labor costs and mounting taxes, are buying new gadgets which will turn out their products faster and more cheaply. It's a matter of keeping down overhead. The makers of machine tools are ready for a harvest. At the national machine tool show in Cleveland last week leaders said that the lean depression years had given tool makers time to adopt new methods and new inventions. Advances in machine tool design, they said, had been greater in the last five years than in the preceding twenty. Visitors were shown the "largest machine shop in the world"—a display of four million dollars' worth of new machine tools. The machinery industry as a whole is held down by low volume of production for railroads, buildings, and other heavy industries.

H. C. L.

The wage earner's cost of living in August began to rise again, after three months of slight declines, according to the monthly report of the National Industrial Conference board. The rise was caused principally by increases in rent, food, and coal. Necessities that would cost a wage earner $82.60 in July, cost him $83 in August. The sharpest rise was in rents. Men's clothing was the only important item to decline. Women's clothing prices remained steady. In computing the averages, food accounts for 33 per cent of the family budget, housing for 20 per cent, clothing for 12 per cent, and fuel and light for 5 per cent.

FAULTY VISION HAMPERS 15 PCT. OF AUTO DRIVERS

Physician Makes Series of Tests.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Fifteen per cent of American motorists, a scientific investigation has shown, are not safe drivers because they can't see well enough.

Dr. R. E. Mason, in a report in the current issue of the Journal of the Missouri State Medical association, related the experiments which led him to that conclusion.

With the aid of a police lieutenant who stood in the road as a target, the ophthalmologist found a driver with normal vision at night can see a dark clothed pedestrian at 150 feet. A driver with vision 60 per cent of normal cannot see the pedestrian until he is 78 feet away.

Only 6 Foot Margin.

Traveling at 50 miles an hour, an average driver, according to a chart in the report, cannot stop an automobile in less than 144 feet, a safe margin of 6 feet for the normally visioned motorist. Hypothetically, the driver with 60 per cent vision could not stop in time to avoid striking the pedestrian.

This test was made by the specialist himself, experimenting by using spectacles with lenses of different strengths.

In another series of tests he found that with normal vision he could see the regulation U. S. highway stop sign at 255 feet in the daytime and 155 feet at night.

With his vision fogged to 90 per cent of normal, he could see the sign at 200 feet in the daytime and correspondingly as follows: 65 per cent, 100 feet; 50 per cent, 75 feet; 30 per cent, 50 feet. At night the distances were cut almost in half.

Doctor's Conclusion.

These results prompts Dr. Mason to the conclusion that no one should drive an automobile who has a vision of less than 85 per cent of normal in one eye and 50 per cent of normal in the other. About 85 per cent of Americans can meet this requirement.

A survey, which he conducted prior to his tests, showed that most states have no minimum visual requirements before issuing a license to drive an automobile. Several, including Ohio, Minnesota, Maryland, and New York, have requirements more severe than those suggested by the specialist.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Condemning the "watch your car, mister" racket as a vicious practice and a form of shakedown, M. J. Lanahan, Dodge and Plymouth dealer and director of the Chicago Automobile Trade association, last week praised the police drive against this evil.

"The police have taken an important step in the right direction," he said, "in putting an end to the 'watch your car' racket. There never was any reason for this practice because motorists pay for the right to park their cars unmolested on the streets wherever and whenever parking is permitted.

"Proof that many of these so-called watchers of cars have records as convicts is a revelation. Regardless of that, the best we can say of the practice is that it is vicious and a form of shakedown.

"I would like to see the police drive extended to cover public events, sports and otherwise. Alleged car watchers could easily be ordered away and prohibited from preying upon motorists on the streets wherever large numbers of cars are attracted by important functions.

"Considering the amount of money the motorist pays in the form of taxes, he is certainly entitled to relief from this 'watch your car' racket."

With the nation's maze of surfaced highways and rutted rural roads serving as a practical "proving ground," test drivers for Plymouth will travel close to two million miles in road tests this year.

"We've increased our operations this year," said Paul C. Ackerman, head of the road test department. "We have a minimum of 35 drivers on the roads constantly, 24 hours a day, at the present time. They will cover nearly 2,000,000 miles during the twelve months of this year."

An integral unit of the engineering laboratory, the road test department plays an important part in the development and perfection of all new cars. Every detail worked out and tested in the laboratories is submitted to thousands of miles of testing under driving conditions.

Production has started by Auburn on a line of new twelve-place, limousine type buses designed primarily for airline use, Roy H. Faulkner, president, announced last week. This bus is of ultramodern design with roomy body and luxurious interior. The body is conservatively streamlined, and access is through sedan type side doors.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

CROWN POINT [IND.] ARREST.

Mount Morris, Ill., Sept. 6.—I would like to tell you of my experiences while passing through the city of Crown Point, Ind., on Thursday, Sept. 5.

We were driving slowly on the streets of this enterprising city near the city limits at a speed of somewhere near 28 miles per hour, and not more than 30 at the maximum, when the sound of a police siren smote upon our tender ears. To our surprise the cop pointed his finger at us and then at the driver of the car in front of us and made motions that we were to turn around and follow him. He conducted us amid great noise and ceremony to the office of the city clerk and made more motions which we translated as meaning that we should follow him into this office.

I tried to get more information from the polite officer as to the magnitude of my offense and the speed of the car as clocked and shown on the speedometer of his motorcycle. He glared at me through a series of yellow goggles and in a very hard tone of voice asked: "Do you want the minimum or maximum charge for this offense?" I replied that I would greatly prefer the minimum charge, whatever it might be. He then replied in the same tone of voice, "Then keep still."

I found that by posting a bond of $7.35 that I could be on my way. If we did not appear in court at the designated time the bond would be forfeited. I paid the amount and went on my way.

The other man did not happen to have the amount of the bond and was hunting for a bondsman when I left.

HORN BLOWER.

Chicago, Sept. 5.—The person who drove his car through the loop this afternoon about 3:45 literally "blasted" his way through the trafic. His horns could be heard for blocks, but this made no difference to him; he just kept on blowing. Wonder how he would like to be exposed to the same kind of selfish treatment?

COLORED TAXICABS.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—There ought to be a law compelling those colored taxicabs to use the inside drives on Grand boulevard from 51st to 39th street. They block the trafic stopping on corners to pick up and let off passengers. Cruising slowly to try to pick up passengers they cause accidents and are a nuisance.

NEED STREET SIGNS.

Chicago, Sept. 9.—I observe with interest that the federal government has appropriated $32,000,000 for various improvements in the city of Chicago.

THE TRIBUNE would confer a very great favor on the citizens of our community if it would strongly advocate that part of this money be used to give us new, decent, readable street signs of durability that will last and withstand our rigorous weather.

I know the city familiarly, still in my rounds as a salesman I am constantly at loss to locate the various streets.

BUT EXPERTS ARE SOMETIMES RECKLESS.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—As an attempt to prevent as far as possible the "massacre," how would it be to suggest to the legislators that hereafter none, meaning none, be allowed to drive a car unless properly trained, and secondly, that the license be put on the driver for him to carry in a conspicuous manner while driving and ready at any time to produce proof of being properly trained.

HORN BLOWERS.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—Of course I read the recent articles in THE TRIBUNE, particularly relative to the Chicago official's trip to New York, and believe it is a great start toward at least eliminating the unnecessary noise in Chicago. I have imagined that there was less noise shortly after the articles appeared, but if you lived on South Shore drive where I do and could observe the terrific speed past the South Shore Country club and be forced to listen to the terrific horn blowing, you would doubt whether much had been accomplished. I wonder if there has been a single fine imposed for unnecessary horn blowing.

As the writer has lived in New York for many years until recently I do know that a city ordinance was in effect prohibiting horn blowing by a line-up of cars in any part of the city and this was strictly enforced.

Here the horn blowing drivers evidently think they can blow the cars ahead of them out of the way.

STATE TO TEST READABILITY OF LICENSE PLATES

May Lead to Change in Numbering System.

BY HAL FOUST.

How well can you read Illinois license plates with the numbers as high as seven digits? How well can you remember these long numbers after getting a glance at them in trafic?

Prof. C. C. Wiley of the University of Illinois school of engineering is going to try to answer these questions with the assistance of psychology and physiology professors. Tests are to be conducted with part of the student body acting as subjects.

The tests may lead to a change in the Illinois numbering system. The states using combinations of letters and numbers on their plates are increasing.

"I Gotta Drag" Numbers.

"Are we retaining our numbering system solely to save the 'I Gotta Drag' low numbers and trick numbers for the politically influencial?" Secretary of State Hughes was asked by this reporter last week.

"No," said the secretary, whose own number is 200. "I'm inclined to believe that in our system a plate is easier to read and easier to remember—even when the number is larger than a million. A letter or letters of the alphabet mixed with the numbers confuse the eye and the memory."

"But by including two letters and three numerals," said George Barton, engineer for the Chicago Motor club, "you could label 12,000,000 plates without having more than five digits. And there's the advantage in police work of having each letter designate the car owner's residence in some particular section of the state, with certain combinations issued solely to Chicagoans."

No Tests Made.

"But the main purpose of the license plate—aside from the revenue to the state—is in identifying automobiles on the streets and highways," Mr. Hughes replied. "So, certainly, the best plate is the one that can be read easiest and remembered easiest."

"Have any tests ever been made?" the secretary was asked.

With the negative answer to this question came the suggestion, that the problem be turned over to Prof. Wiley, who has been active in reresearch in all branches of highway and trafic engineering. Over the long distance phone, the professor said he would be happy to tackle the job.

Any reform that would take favored license numbers from their present holders might be opposed by many of the favored for selfish reasons. The 1933 legislature authorized the secretary of state to revamp the numbering system at his own discretion. Mr. Hughes' discretion told him to avoid the issue.

Cherished Low Numbers.

Cherished low numbers are held by influential persons as well as by politicians. No. 1 is held by Sidney S. Gorham, Chicago lawyer who includes the Chicago Motor club among his clients. He drafted the licensing act. Former Gov. Louis L. Emmerson has No. 3 and No. 23. Former Lieut. Gov. John G. Oglesby has No. 7. P. A. Nash has No. 15. No. 99 is listed to Florence Pullman Lowden, and 153 to Laurence H. Armour, and 159 to Harold F. McCormick.

In addition to the low numbers, owners also value poker hand combinations, straights, full houses, and four, five or six of a kind. Other motorists retain plates that are of the same number as their street address or as their telephone number.

Giving special attention to these whimsies occupies much of the automobile license bureau's time each year. It is part of the patronage of the office of secretary of state. He is able to do a small personal favor to a large number.

Indispensable to carefree driving the 1935 Chicagoland Road Map is now on sale at the Chicago Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and Tribune Tower, Price, 25 cents; by mail, 30 cents.

On Monday night, an aged sedan with license 1-128-873 was traveling at 25 miles an hour on the left lane for north bound trafic in the outer drive between Byron street and Foster avenue. This is a 45 mile an hour zone and the majority of trafic was approximating this speed. There was no tail light on the laggard and its exhaust was belching smoke. License 1,128,873 was issued to John E. Rees, 2519 Winnemac avenue.

COUNTY TO PUSH 15,000 SUITS FOR PERSONAL TAXES

'33 Levy Only 42% Paid; Seek Small Bills First.

With opening of the fall term of the courts tomorrow, the state's attorney's office announced yesterday, it will start the prosecution of approximately 15,000 suits which have been filed in Municipal and Circuit courts to collect delinquent 1933 personal property taxes.

State's Attorney Courtney said a determined effort will be made to get judgments against property owners who have failed to pay their bills. He declared that a report of tax collections received from the county treasurer showed that only 42 per cent of the 1933 personalty tax levy had been collected as compared with a 68 per cent collection of real estate taxes.

Assistant State's Attorney William Tuohy, who is in charge of the civil division of the state's attorney's office, said that last spring and since the first of September tax suits against delinquent taxpayers have been filed in the Municipal court at the rate of 200 a day. These suits are directed toward the collection of bills of less than a $1,000.

In the Circuit court where suits for collecting delinquent bills of more than $1,000 are filed, Judge Thomas J. Lynch has been assigned to hear the cases.

Mr. Tuohy made public yesterday a report of the collection of 1932 personal property taxes through the trial of tax suits since Sept. 1, 1934. During that period, the report shows, 23,884 suits seeking a total of $17,388,257 were disposed of in the various courts.

$2,623,828 Judgments Paid.

Of that amount, the state's attorney's office won judgments totaling $5,440,987 or approximately a third of the amount sought. Only $2,623,828 has been paid, however.

Disposal of these cases in terms of the total amounts involved is shown in the following table:

Paid judgments	$2,623,828
Unpaid judgments	498,124
Unpaid default judgments	2,319,035
Judgments refused	7,452,153
Non suits	3,761,682
Cases quashed	44,993
Findings for defendants	677,217
Cases dismissed	11,225

Faulty Assessments Blamed.

Mr. Tuohy said that the high number of nonsuits and judgments refused was due, in part, to faulty assessments made by the assessor's office. In many instances, suits were dismissed or judgments refused because the assessment was excessive or because of duplicate assessments, he said. In a great number of cases, he added, deputy sherifs were unable to find the parties named in the bills.

JOHN SPENDS HIS EMBALMING FEE ON WRONG FLUID

Mrs. Susan O'Leary, 2563 Emerald avenue, gave her son, John, 26 years old, $5 on Friday night for his registration fee at the Englewood High school's night course in embalming. Instead, John took the money and spent it all in taverns, thereby getting embalmed in a different manner.

En route home on a State street surface car he wondered what to tell his mother about spending the money. At 14th street he put his hand in his pocket, pretending he had a revolver, and robbed the conductor, Edward C. Anderson, 7510 Emerald avenue, of his money changer containing $5.25. O'Leary then leaped off the car but was caught by Laurie Arden, 743 North Michigan avenue, a private watchman.

O'Leary was taken to the Central station and admitted the robbery. The money was recovered.

SHRINE TO SANTA WILL BE ERECTED IN INDIANA TOWN

Park and Huge Image Feature Project.

Workmen moved about the task of landscaping the 32 acre site today.

The project embraces:

Establishment of a park dedicated to the children of the world and the perpetuation of the yuletide spirit. Erection of a 25 foot granite statue of old Kriss Kringle—in his traditional costume, smiling benignly through his frosty whiskers and opening a bountiful bag of toys—on a knoll. Construction of a doll house with exhibits from all parts of the world, and toy shops. Creation of "Reindeer lake" and a wishing well, where hopeful juveniles may voice their Chirstmas desires.

Plan Yule Tree Lane.

Carl A. Barrett, a Chicago insurance man who is a native of nearby New Harmony, Ind., donated the tract. His friend William Young, announced details of the undertaking today. He said Barrett had organized the Santa Claus Good Fellowship club, to facilitate the work on a non-profit basis and had underwritten the initial expenses.

The organization plans to aid the postmaster of the town in handling the annual avalanche of letters and packages sent here for remailing with the timely Santa Claus, Ind., cancelation stamp.

Expect Many Tourists.

Barrett and his associates expect the new shrine will attract a number of tourists. They hope to induce President Roosevelt to press a button in the White House next Dec. 25 and, by remote control, unveil the stone image of Santa. They propose to invite the governors of Indiana and Kentucky to the ceremony.

They anticipate an appreciable gathering of children at the foot of the statue when the curtain slides back so they may read this inscription on its base: "Honor thy father and thy mother that thy cup of life may be overflowing with happiness."

FILIPINOS HALT EVICTION OF JAP FARM HOLDERS

MANILA, P. I., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Vigorous protests of Japanese brought a temporary halt today to the Philippine government's program for canceling allegedly illegal subleases of rich farm lands in Davao province. Most of the leases are held by Japanese. More than 13,000 Japanese are concentrated on Davao, most of them working on farms.

After a seven hour mass meeting at Davao, Eulogio Rodriguez, insular secretary of agriculture and commerce, announced there would be no evictions until he holds further conference with Japanese representatives.

It was reported Japanese plantation owners of Davao, who produce the bulk of the hemp sold to Japan, were prepared to offer $4,500,000 to legalize the subleases. The cancelation program, approved by Gov. Gen. Frank Murphy, represents an attempt to clear up an old problem.

CROSS-EXAMINE IOWA MAYOR IN OUSTER ACTION

Sioux City, Ia., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Cross-examination of Mayor W. D. Hayes was begun today by H. M. Havner, special prosecutor, in the ouster suit against the mayor.

Havner questioned the mayor about trips he made to Des Moines, Ames, Chicago, and Washington on city business during 1930 and intervening years and asked how much time he spent out of the city on the trips. The mayor was able to tell of a few specific trips but asserted he could not, from memory, tell of all of them.

The prosecutor sought to show that the mayor had purchased a large quantity of liquor from the state liquor store, but this was denied by the mayor, who asserted bills for such liquor, said to have been used at a convention, had been presented to him but that he had refused payment.

Woman, 68, Ill, Plunges 4 Stories to Her Death

Mrs. Alice Torregrossa, 68 years old, plunged four floors from her bedroom window to her death early yesterday at 645 Oakdale avenue, where she lived with her son-in-law, Dr. Arthur Duplantis, a physician, and other relatives. Dr. Duplantis, who has offices at 1646 Sedgwick street. told the police that Mrs. Torregrossa had returned from a sanitarium two years ago and because of illness frequently had threatened suicide.

August Suburban Building Gains 339% Over the Same Month Last Year

MONTH'S TOTAL TOPS MILLION FOR SIXTH TIME

Eight Months' Permits Are $9,058,000.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

For the sixth consecutive month building permits in the Chicago suburbs have exceeded the million dollar mark. The August total, according to the suburban survey of the Straus Securities corporation, just completed, was $1,558,357. This is a gain of 339 per cent over the same month last year, when the total was $355,107. Compared with the preceding month, which had a total of $1,916,458, the August, 1935, figures show a decline.

PURDY HAZELTON.

The eight months of 1935 already have piled up the impressive total of $9,058,000 in building permits. This is the largest for any similar period since 1931. In that year the total for the first eight months was $19,170,000. In 1932 for the same period it slid down to $3,313,000 and the year following, 1933, it dropped still further to $2,571,000. In 1934 it climbed a bit, rising to $3,648,000.

March Is Turning Point.

March, this year, was the turning point in monthly records. Prior to March to find a million dollar month one must, with one exception, go back to December, 1931.

What happened between that date and March, 1935, compared with what has happened since March, this year, gives perhaps the most illuminating evidence possible of the upturn in suburban building.

"Building in the 38 months from January, 1931, to March, 1935, inclusive, averaged $449,062 per month—roughly, a half million dollars," the survey states. "In March to August, inclusive, of this year, the average is $1,510,288 per month, or approximately a million and a half dollars.

"In brief, since March there has been each month an average of three times as much suburban building as there was in the three years before."

Spend $550,000 on Plant.

The outstanding total of the month is the estimated $550,000 expended thus far in the construction of the Diesel locomotive plant being erected at McCook by the Electro-Motive corporation, a subsidiary of General Motors.

Home building and modernization are the principal factors, however, in the recovery of suburban building. River Forest appears to be taking the lead, with Purdy Hazelton reporting four new residences costing $57,500 and four residential improvements for $11,850, a total of $69,350 in various kinds of home construction.

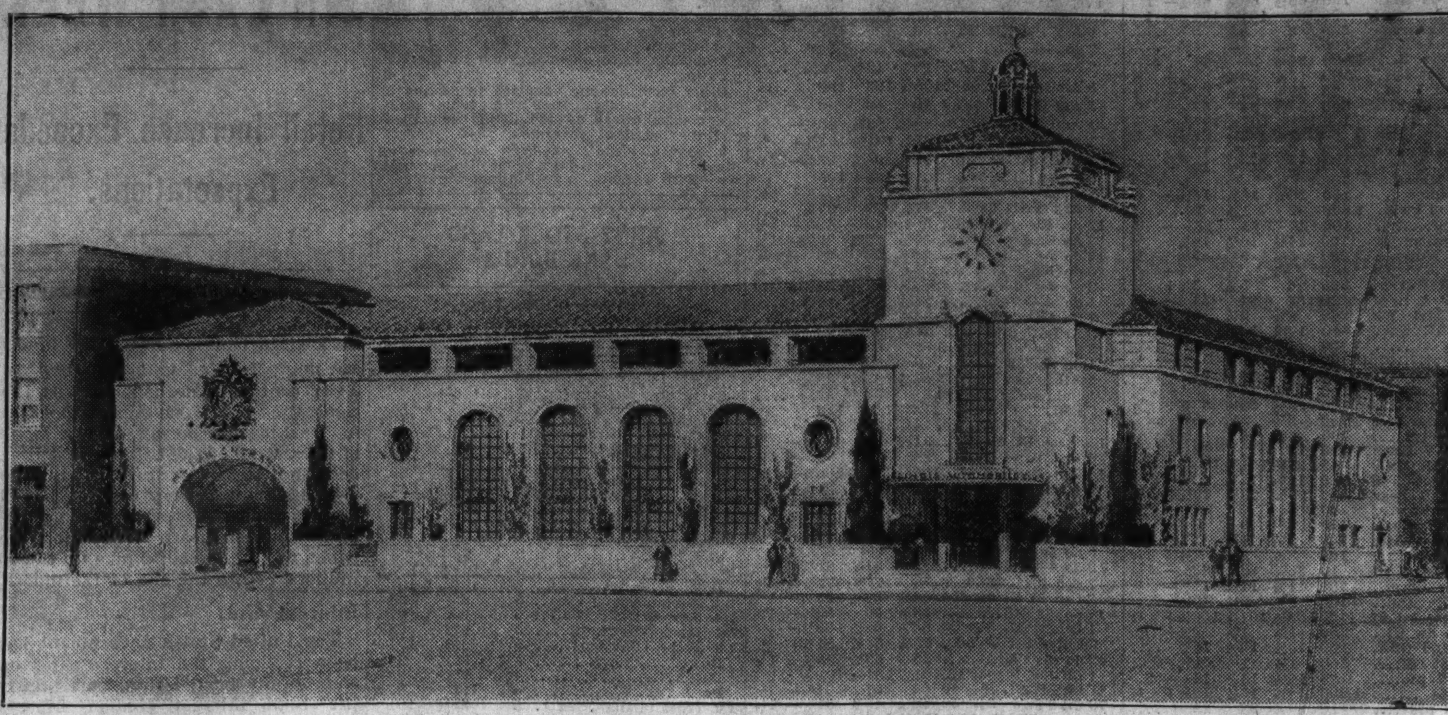
River Forest is typical of the survey as a whole. It had no building whatever in January and February, construction beginning in March. In the six months from March to August, inclusive, permits have been issued for $328,740. This amount, according to Hazelton, represents almost exclusively home building.

Reports for Other Suburbs.

Evanston's residential figure, $67,500, runs close to that of River Forest and, according to E. M. Goodman, building commissioner, represents $32,000 for four new residences, $33,750 for sixteen permits for residential repairs, and $1,750 for a garage.

Winnetka's residential permits, reported by Norman E. Schmidt, totaling $39,150, included three new residences costing $24,350. R. D. Hamms, city clerk of Park Ridge, reports four residences for $30,000 and alterations for $5,900.

NEW DESIGN FOR ILLINOIS AUTOMOBILE CLUB



Philip Maher, architect of the above proposed building for the Illinois Automobile club, of which Carl A. Barrett is president, announced yesterday that working drawings are nearing completion and bids will be taken within a month. He estimates that the completed project will represent an investment of about $400,000. The building, to be erected at the southwest corner of Michigan avenue and 24th street, will be entirely different from the tentative sketch of a proposed clubhouse published in this department on Sunday, Dec. 9, 1934. The only similarity is that both are of Spanish design.

In addition to housing the executive offices of the club the new building will contain the City Athletic club, an affiliated organization, which will provide members with a swimming pool, handball court, bowling alleys, steam rooms, showers, etc. There will be space for parking cars in the patio of the new building. Allen M. Weary made this perspective.

The club still owns the northeast corner of Michigan and Erie, where a tall clubhouse at one time was contemplated. This site will be sold.

Washington Shirt Rents Loop Corner

The Washington Shirt company yesterday leased the northeast corner of Randolph and La Salle streets from the Hotel Sherman company, and after considerable remodeling will open its 23d unit there. The premises, which front 20 feet on Randolph and 60 feet on La Salle, formerly were occupied by the Hotel Sherman liquor store.

A few weeks ago, with the opening of the Washington Shirt company's new store at Jackson and Dearborn, Fred L. Rossback, chairman of the board, said his concern was embarking on an expansion program which would take in several of the outstanding loop corners.

The Real Estate corporation represented the lessee in yesterday's lease, which is for five years on a minimum guaranteed and percentage basis.

Baird & Warner Open New Office on the North Shore

As a result of increasing business, Baird & Warner have opened a real estate office at 799 Elm street, Winnetka, to serve the Kenilworth, Winnetka, and Glencoe districts, previously cared for by the Kenilworth and Glencoe offices. John Newhall is in charge and continues as district sales manager for this north shore territory. William H. Johnson Jr., who has been in charge of the Kenilworth office, has been made district sales manager of the Evanston office.

Real Estate Bonds

The general upward trend of real estate bond prices was particularly evidenced during the last week in the issues of well known office buildings, according to Kneeland & Co., Inc., Chicago dealers in unlisted securities. Bankers Building certificates of deposit rose 2¼ points, while those of One La Salle Street were up 3 points. Weakness characterized the market on the hotel buildings as shown by Eitel Central block [Bismarck hotel] bonds selling off 2 points.

Obligations of apartment buildings remained unchanged, but careful buying has continued. Reopening of court hearing toward the end of the month and the subsequent announcement of many reorganizations now pending should cause considerable market action.

The following quotations are supplied by Kneeland & Co. Figures by other concerns will alternate with those of Kneeland & Co. on subsequent Sundays:

All Shops Rented Before Building Gets Under Way

With every shop leased for some time by national chain concerns, construction has started on a one story air conditioned building at 4016-24 West Madison street, by Walter P. Powers, west side merchant and property owner, at a reported cost of $150,000. According to J. E. Ehrenhalt & Co., agents for the property, there were many times more applications for space than provided for by Leichenko & Esser, architects.

The five lessees are Sally Chain Stores, Inc., Berland Shoe Stores, Inc., Katz Exclusive Millinery, Inc., Three Sisters, Inc., and Arnold, Inc., who operates Lanathan's.

The new building will have a frontage of 100 feet and a depth of 175, with a sales basement throughout. It will be of reinforced concrete construction capable of carrying additional stories. The exterior will be of black granite with aluminum trim and is scheduled for completion about Nov. 1.

The design of each of the five stores will be different. The tenants will use neon signs, all in harmony.

AD FIRM TO HAVE AIR CONDITIONED ENLARGED SUITE

Reincke-Ellis-Youngreen & Finn yesterday completed negotiations for additional space in the McGraw-Hill building, which will give that advertising agency the entire eighth floor, comprising 9,300 square feet. Additional space on other floors, aggregating 1,000 square feet, also was rented. The total is 4,000 square feet larger than the old offices.

The new quarters are to be remodeled, redecorated, and completely air conditioned. The office layout is being planned by Thielbar & Fugard, Chicago architects. A feature will be a complete radio reception room for clients having radio programs.

The Reincke-Ellis company was founded by Arno B. Reincke in 1907 and was expanded several years later as Reincke-Ellis-Youngreen & Finn. It has been in the McGraw-Hill building since it was erected. The new lease is for five years starting Oct. 1.

Building at Michigan and Ontario Now 100% Rented

George d'Arlier, importer of paintings, antiques, bronzes, and other art objects, has leased the last vacant shop in the Michigan Avenue building at the northeast corner of Ontario street for a term of years through the Bowes Realty company. The two story building is now 100 per cent rented, it was stated.

Home Building in 37 States Has Big Gain

Steady and healthy increase in residential building is taking place in thirty-seven states east of the Mississippi, according to Col. F. Charles Starr, of the Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Architects. Basing his statement on figures obtained from the Dodge Statistical service, Col. Starr points out that as usual after depressions, returning prosperity is well under way before the fact is generally realized.

January	830	$ 5,185,000
February	923	5,328,000
March	1,715	10,212,000
April	2,408	14,312,000
May	2,786	17,338,000
June	2,876	18,757,000
July	3,130	20,881,000

In June, 1934, there were only 1,247 houses, costing $8,143,000 and in July there were 1,192 houses, costing $7,619,000.

"Since Jan. 1, 1935, improvement has continued uninterruptedly, with the net result that the total number of single family structures started between that date and July 31 was exactly double the number started during the same period of 1934," said Col. Starr. "The increase in value of these residences was 90 per cent."

The congress will be in session from Sept. 22 to the 28th. Wright is a son of Frank Lloyd Wright.

FORECLOSURES SHOW DECLINE IN COOK COUNTY

August Total 36% Less than Year Ago.

Foreclosures filed in the Superior and Circuit courts of Cook county during August declined approximately 36 per cent in number as compared with the same month last year. The total last month was 728; for August, 1934, it was 1,134. The total consideration of foreclosures also decreased approximately $2,000,000.

In August, this year, there were foreclosures amounting to $8,056,458 filed. During August, 1934, there were foreclosures totaling $10,039,213 filed in the courts.

Less Than July Values.

Comparison of August figures with the preceding month showed a slight increase in number—from 714 to 728—but a good sized drop in the total consideration, from $9,399,357 in July, to $8,056,458 in August.

With the exception of July, this year, the August total of 728 foreclosures filed is the lowest in number for any month since May, 1931. On that date there were 675 bills filed.

The total consideration on foreclosures of trust deeds and mortgages in Cook county during August, which was $8,056,458, compares with $10,039,213 in August, 1934; $22,144,376 in August, 1933; $47,913,630 in 1932; $40,166,363 in 1931, and $16,660,097 in 1930.

Eight Months Less.

Comparison of the eight months of 1935 with the same period in previous years disclosed a definite decrease in the consideration. So far this year the total consideration of foreclosures filed was $77,993,458. Last year the foreclosures for the same period amounted to $105,300,213. In 1933 they were $267,029,376, and in 1932 they reached a record total of $337,004,630.

The thirtieth floor, originally reserved for the executives' offices of the Furniture Mart, has never been completed. Work will start at once to divide the space into a large studio, lounge room, and sales offices, all in Gothic design. Howard L. Storch of Ross & Browne was broker for all parties in the lease negotiations.

"The success of the Hammond electric organ since its introduction at the Industrial Arts' exhibition at Rockefeller Center, New York City, last May has resulted in the creation of a new industry centered in Chicago," said Penny. "Within five months it has given employment to more than 300 men at the factories at 2915 North Western avenue. The production schedule is behind the order total and many departments are working on three day shifts.

THORN CREEK POLLUTION TO END

S. SIDE PUPILS ANSWER SCHOOL BELL TOMORROW

178,000 Will Enroll for Fall Term.

When vacation days end tomorrow for the city's school children 178,000 will return to classes in south side high and grade schools. Of this total 132,360 will be enrolled in the grade schools and 45,434 will enter the 14 high schools in that section. The city-wide school attendance is estimated at 476,000. This figure includes 342,000 in the elementary grades, 129,000 in the high schools, and 5,000 in the three junior colleges.

In addition to the 178,000 to be enrolled in high school and grade courses, Chicago Normal college will have a registration of 500, Normal Junior City college an attendance of 1,474, and three special schools, Parker, Moseley, and Christopher (for crippled children), a total attendance of 2,099.

Forty south side grade schools will open tomorrow under the direction of new principals. The changes have been brought about as a result of the retirement of former principals and transfers to fill vacancies.

Open Oakenwald School.

The opening of the new Oakenwald Elementary school, 41st street and Oakenwald avenue, will eliminate 14 portables and relieve crowding at several other schools. The Oakenwald was built at a cost of $225,000 and will accommodate 750. It has 15 classrooms, a kindergarten, and a gymnasium.

Lindblom leads the 14 south side high schools in enrollment with 5,173, and Tilden is second with 5,020. The other high schools and their estimated attendance are: Calumet, 3,509; Englewood, 4,687; Fenger, 3,837; Hyde Park, 4,135; Parker, 3,076; Bowen, 3,014; New Phillips High, 2,912; Old Phillips, 691; Harper, 1,913; Hirsch, 3,020; Kelly, 2,352, and Morgan Park High, 2,095.

Enrollment in the city's three junior colleges is expected to show substantial increases this year, according to Supt. William J. Bogan. The social value of the work offered by these schools is attested by the fact that few students dropped out during the last school year. The total membership at the close of each semester was almost identical with that of the opening, Mr. Bogan said.

Courses offered in the junior colleges, Mr. Bogan explained, are not only college preparatory but also terminal, to fit the student for vocational and recreational needs. Secretarial training is among the new courses to be introduced this year.

Open Trafic Safety Drive.

With the opening of the schools a trafic safety campaign is to be started, Mr. Bogan said. All motorists are to be urged to pay particular attention to trafic signals and other warning signs.

Under projects for which the board of education has submitted applications to the federal Works Progress administration for funds, 185 south side schools will be renovated, which will include painting inside and out and rehabiltation of grounds.

Additional high and grade school facilities will be provided for the south side under projects to be financed from Public Works administration funds, for which applications have been submitted by the board. On this program are two new high schools, four new elementary schools, additions to 10 grade schools and one high school.

South Side Germans to Join in Vast Festival Next Sunday

GUSTAVE A. BRAND

Nineteen German organizations of the south and southwest side and south suburbs, will be among the hundreds of like groups which will take part next Sunday in the German day celebration, the yearly event at which Chicagoland's citizens of German birth and extraction pay tribute to their forefathers and the "Fatherland" from which they sprung.

The celebration will be in the Chicago Stadium, 1800 West Madison street, and is sponsored by the German Day association, Inc., of which the south side and south suburban organizations are a part. Gustave A. Brand, city treasurer and resident of South Shore, heads the association.

"German day is a festival and, as it is to be celebrated on this occasion, is an institution typical of the German race, deeply rooted in a German characteristic best described as 'the joy of living,'" says Mr. Brand.

Dates to Pioneer Days.

"It is by no means modern, dating back to pioneer days; nor is it confined to America, but can be found all over the world wherever Germans gather. In our country it sprang from the harvest festivals at which the pioneer German farmers gathered for the yearly merry-making.

"In Chicago, where German blood courses in more or less degree in 20 per cent of the population, the yearly festival has taken a great hold. It is in such manner that we keep alive the traditions, customs and culture, in short, the soul life, of that vigorous race which traces its ancestry back to the hills and valleys of old Germany. Together with the old we blend the new; allegiance to America, the country which gave shelter to our forefathers, is an integral part of German day observation."

Dances and Songs.

This year's celebration has been divided into two parts. Part one, which features music and folk dances of the "Fatherland," opens with a festival march, the "Jebel Overture," of Karl Mario von Weber, by the orchestra. Folk dances in costume, massed choruses, ballets and athletic exhibitions by the various turnvereins, also are offered.

Part two deals with the new land, America, and covers the period from the time of the first settlers to the present day. The westward movement of the settlers, together with the growth of the mechanical age, is coupled with episodes of the past, when trading with the Indians was a major item in commerce. The periods of the revolution and the world war also are presented.

Will Sing Anthems.

The evening culminates in the singing of the national anthems of the United States and Germany, with scores of American Legion bands and fife and drum corps and German musical organizations taking part.

The south side and south suburbs will be well represented in the celebration. Taking part are: Blue Island Leiderkranz, Edelweiss Damenchor der Suedenseite, Gesangverein Frohsinn Mozart, Hammond Saengerbund Fidelis, Columbia Damenchor, Kriegerverein, Gesangverein Calumet, Gesangverein Vorwaerts-Schiller, Chicago Wanderers, Weiner Waedler Saenger club, Grand Crossing Turnverein, G. CHICAGO HGTS. BEGINS SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANT

Four Communities to Be Benefited.

DANIEL P. BERGIN.

Chicago Heights' long awaited sewage disposal plant came a step nearer actuality Tuesday when ground was broken in the presence of local officials and representatives of business and civic bodies.

The $300,000 plant is to be completed in 13 months through a bond issue approved in October, 1933, by voters of the Bloom sanitary district, and by a grant of $81,000 made a year ago by the Public Works administration. John Mackler & Co., of Chicago Heights are the contractors, and Greeley & Hansen of Chicago, consulting engineers.

Daniel P. Bergin, president of the sanitary district, turned the first shovelful of earth in the presence of Mayor Joseph Gannon of Chicago Heights, city commissioners and representatives of the Manufacturers' association, the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs, and the Izaak Walton league.

Source of Offense.

The plant is destined to end the pollution of Thorn creek, which for several years has been a source of offense to the communities of Thornton, South Holland, Lansing, and Harvey.

For more than a decade citizens of those coummunities and property owners along the creek have sought to end the pollution of the creek and organized the Clear Stream association to that end.

In 1928 the Bloom sanitary district was organized to meet the problem, but efforts were ineffectual, owing to a lack of funds. No less than a dozen suits were filed against the city of Chicago Heights by owners of riparian lands on Thorn creek, and one judgment of $7,500 still stands unsatisfied against the city, according to Howard P. Roe, attorney for the sanitary district.

Injunction Is Issued.

The city has been cited numerous times before the sanitary water board of the state, and several years ago an injunction was actually issued against the city restraining it from further polluting the creek.

Trustees of the sanitary district, besides President Bergin, are Oscar F. Yanson, treasurer, and Philip H. Knusman, secretary. E. H. Ashdown is engineer and Howard P. Roe attorney.

I. W. CRANMERS OBSERVE 60TH WEDDING DATE

Recall Romance of Post War Days.

While a shy girl with curls on her shoulders and a serious faced youth with a Byronic haircut gazed down on them from tintypes wreathed in roses on a faded marriage license of Sept. 9, 1875, Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Cranmer went back last week over the long road they had traveled together since that wedding day 60 years ago at Brownville, Neb.

They had grown up on nearby farms and attended the same Sunday school, but it was not until young Cranmer came back home on a vacation from his school teaching and found that his little neighbor had grown up into a pretty 18 year old miss who also was teaching and also was interested in books and ideas that romance blossomed.

But the Cranmers passed lightly over the details of their long ago courtship and wedding and over the first years of their marriage, when both taught and studied together.

Gathers Data on U. S. Dams.

There are too many interesting things in the present for either to dwell in the past. Mr. Cranmer has just completed a long trip preparatory to lecturing on the Boulder dam, the Grand Coulee dam, and other new developments in the west.

A lecturer for more than 30 years before lodges and at chautauquas, at 83 he is looking forward to continuing this work, and was making a talk before a lodge Monday evening, the very night of his anniversary.

Since he was 81 he has published a volume of 100 poems, which opens with a tribute to his wife. When he is not lecturing this winter he will be working on another volume.

Painting Is Her Hobby.

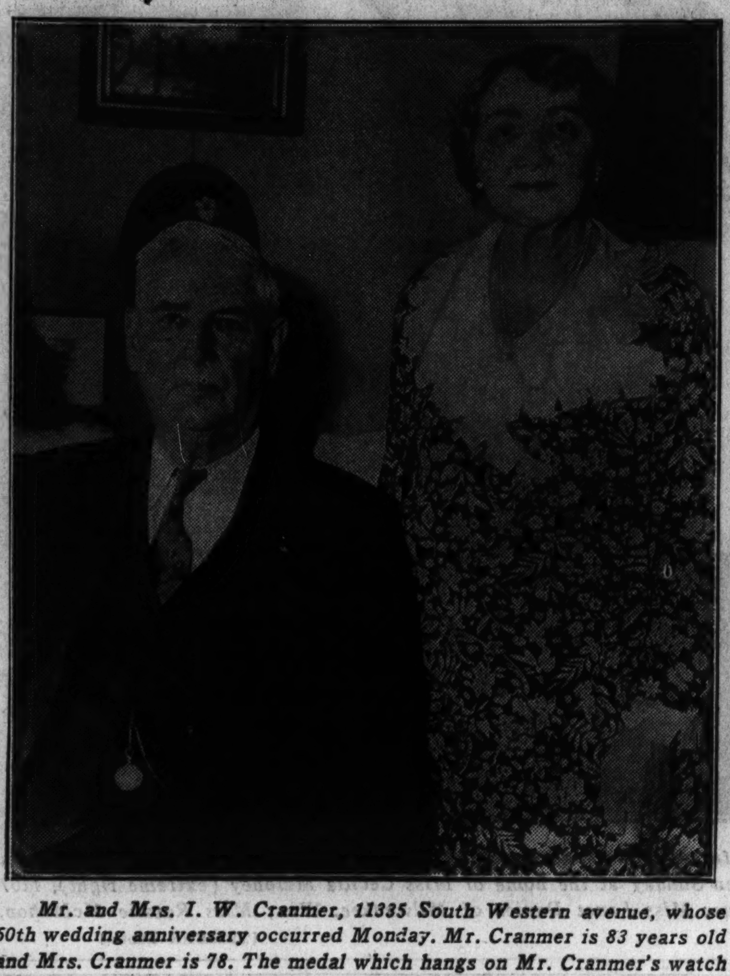
Mrs. Cranmer has as many interests. Several of her landscapes and still lifes adorn the walls of their apartment at 11335 South Western avenue, and although she herself no longer paints, she is deeply interested in the work of a daughter and of a niece, Frances Cranmer Greenman, famous portrait painter. She does, however, still attend meetings of the W. C. T. U., in which she was for years a leader.

Mr. Cranmer was willing to reminisce a bit over the gold medal which hangs from his watch chain. This was given him for oratory while he was working his way through college in Missouri.

Three of the couple's five children gave an anniversary dinner for them Sunday at the home of their daughter, Mrs. R. H. O'Connor, 8120 Oglesby avenue. There are 10 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. Mrs. Stella McDole, 701 Drexel avenue, and Mrs. George Crandall, 7345 Phillips avenue, also were at the dinner, but their son, Hugh B. Cranmer of Detroit, and another daughter, Mrs. Beulah Swensson, New York artist, were not there.

Asked her recipe for retaining her youth, Mrs. Cranmer smiled from eyes still like those of the girl pictured on the marriage license. "Work and temperance—plenty of work. I kept house for 57 years, brought up five children, did all my own work, even the baking."

WED THREE SCORE YEARS



Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Cranmer, 11335 South Western avenue, whose 60th wedding anniversary occurred Monday. Mr. Cranmer is 83 years old and Mrs. Cranmer is 78. The medal which hangs on Mr. Cranmer's watch chain was won by him for oratory in his college days and he still frequently addresses lodges and civic bodies.

SEEK 36 MILLION FUND FROM WPA FOR NEW SEWERS

Sanitary District Files PWA Request Also.

Application for federal funds with which the sanitary district would construct an intercepting system of sewers for the south side, have been lodged with the local offices of the Public Works administration and the Works Progress administration. Without this intercepting system most of the proposed system of lateral sewers to be constructed by the city cannot function. The city's application for WPA funds has been approved by the local office and forwarded to Washington for final action.

The amounts asked for are: From the WPA, $36,899,000; from the PWA, $25,930,000. These sums include several small projects for other parts of the city, but the major portion would be spent on the south side. The difference in the two figures represents the increased cost of construction under WPA as compared to PWA.

In filing bids with both government agencies the sanitary district is attempting to make sure of obtaining the funds it seeks. According to observers it has no chance whatever of getting money from the PWA, inasmuch as all available sanitary district collateral has been pledged on other PWA loans. Under WPA requirements, no collateral is necessary. Any money granted by WPA is an outright gift.

Most of the projects which are listed in following paragraphs, have been under consideration since 1928, when the United States Supreme court ruled against the sanitary district in the Great Lakes water diversion case. Construction of these projects, together with several treatment plants, is necessary in order to comply with the order of the court.

Seek Pumping Station.

Racine avenue pumping station, known as Project No. 23, would be located near the northwest corner of Racine avenue and Pershing road. Included in an agreement between the city and sanitary district arrived at in 1928, as a necessary part of the south side intercepting sewer system, the station would pump sewage into the southwest side intercepting sewer and would discharge storm flow into the south fork of the south branch of the river. Specifications and partial plans were prepared seven years ago and bids accepted, but were rejected when financing of construction proved impossible. Estimated cost of the station is $4,000,000.

South side intercepting sewers, Project No. 24. Divided into five sections, this system would serve the area between 39th street and 87th street, Loomis street and Kimbark avenue. Construction of the city's planned south side lateral system is contingent upon this project.

This project in its five sections, is as follows:

From Pershing road and Racine avenue, to 50th and South Morgan streets along Racine, Aberdeen, and Morgan streets. Two sewers, each 17½ feet in diameter, would be laid.

To Cost 15 Millions.

From 50th and Morgan streets, along 50th street to Ellis avenue, and up Ellis avenue to East 62d street. About half the sewer would be 16½ feet and half 15½ feet in diameter.

From 62d street and Ellis avenue to Marquette road, [66th street], and Stony Island avenue along 62d street, Kimbark avenue and Marquette road. The sewer would be 14½ feet in diameter.

From 50th and Morgan streets along Morgan street to 64th street. The sewer in this stretch would be the largest of all, 18½ feet in diameter.

From Morgan and 64th street along Morgan street to 72d street and from there along 72d street to Indiana avenue. The sewer would be 18 feet in diameter.

The cost of this project is estimated at $15,000,000.

Blue Island Project.

Project No. 25. Blue Island intercepting sewers. Sewers ranging from 7½ feet to 3½ feet in diameter would be laid from the Calumet sewage treatment works and along the banks of the Calumet-Sag channel in a westerly direction to the western part of Blue Island. A branch of the sewer would cross the channel at Division street in the suburb and extend along the west bank of the Little Calumet river to Ashland avenue.

This sewer would serve as the outlet for two other proposed projects, the California avenue-Oak Forest sewer and the Evergreen Park sewer, directly intercepting the sewage of Blue Island and Dixmoor. Future extensions would collect the sewage of Harvey and Markham. Estimated cost, $1,600,000.

California avenue-Oak Forest sewer, project No. 26. This sewer, varying would extend from 153d street and California avenue, east of the Indian Boundary line, to an outlet in the Calumet-Sag channel, with a branch at 143d street west to Kedzie avenue.

Cost of the project, which would carry the sewage of Posen, Midlothian, the western part of Harvey, Markham, and Oak Forest, is estimated at $1,000,000.

Evergreen Park sewer, project No. 27. An intercepting sewer to carry the sewage of the Mount Greenwood section of the city, lateral sewers for which are to be built by Chicago if expected federal funds are granted. The sewer would run from 116th place and Central Park avenue, beneath the latter street, to the Calumet-Sag channel. An extension northward would intercept the sewage from Evergreen Park. Estimated cost of the project, which would contain sewers ranging from 4 to 5½ feet in diameter, is $580,000.

Argo sewer, project No. 30. This sewer would divert sewage from existing local sewers in the suburb to the southwest sewage treatment works. It would run along the south bank of the main drainage canal from Natchez avenue in the city to Argo.

Place Cost at $700,000.

Size of the sewer would range from 4½ to 7½ feet. The cost is estimated at $700,000.

Remodeling at 39th street pumping station, project No. 31. This project provides for the construction of a bypass around the pumping station from the lake front intercepting sewer to the 39th street conduit, the installation of sluice gates in the bypass, and the necessary remodeling of the station. Improved handling of sewage would result, according to the sanitary district's engineers. The cost is estimated at $500,000.

EMIGRANTS OUT OF LITTLE EGYPT TO HOLD REUNION

Club of 6,000 Assembles Today for Picnic.

The Chicago Egyptian club, a city-wide organization of former residents of the 34 extreme southern Illinois counties known as Little Egypt, will hold its annual picnic this afternoon on Wooded island in Jackson park. The club has a membership of more than 6,000 men and women.

MRS. MEDORA SMITH WELSH.

Today's picnic will commemorate the building of the first courthouse in Illinois. The structure, originally erected in St. Clair county, now stands on Wooded island, where the picnickers will gather. The courthouse was brought to Chicago at the time of the Columbian exposition.

The program this afternoon will include a talk by Dr. Harold Meyer, a member of the faculty of the University of Illinois medical school, who has been associated with the efforts of the Illinois Historical society to have markers placed along the old Kaskaskia Indian trail.

How Name Was Applied.

The trail, now largely obliterated, extended from the old Kaskaskia in Randolph county, to Vincennes. The Mississippi river, its channel changed, now flows on the site of the old Kaskaskia.

The lower tier of Illinois counties was dubbed "Little Egypt" early in the state's career, when a severe drouth in northern and central Illinois forced settlers to go down "into Egypt, land of milk and honey" for provisions to keep them alive.

Judge Hood Is President.

$900,000 ASKED BY PARK BOARD FOR SOUTH SIDE

New Play Spot for Avalon Proposed.

Requests for grants from the Works Progress administration totaling over $900,000, to erect new buildings, create a new park, construct bicycle paths and rehabilitate present structures on the south side were filed last week by the Chicago Park district. Acting in his dual capacity of park board president and state WPA administrator, Robert J. Dunham, placed his approval on the measures and sent them on to Washington for final action.

The new park to be established, if the grant is made, would be placed in Avalon Park, just east of the Illinois Central railroad tracks. It would lie in the area bounded by Woodlawn and Kimbark avenues, 83d and 85th streets.

The request for funds was $370,097 and the park district will add $74,945 to that if the grant is made. Residents of the community, through the Calumet Gateway-Avalon Park Civic council, have been lobbying for a park ever since the region was first subdivided. A few years ago the old South Park board had the matter under serious consideration, but the park consolidation act killed the measure's prospects.

Calumet park would benefit by a comfort station and other items to the amount of $453,020, to which the park district would add $46,800.

In addition all present buildings in need of repair would be rehabilitated and the recently revived cycling movement would be safeguarded from danger on the boulevards and city streets, through the creation of bike paths in the parks. These two aspects of the program, as applied to south side parks, would cost around $100,000, it is estimated.

Get Business Course at School of Commerce.

Seventeen young men and women, chosen by competitive examination from among the elect of recent south side high school graduates, were enrolled on scholarships last week at the Chicago College of Commerce, 62d place and Halsted street.

In the group are Miss Kathryn Reuter of Mercy High school, Miss Lucille Radigan of Englewood, Miss Doris Gustafson and Millard McClanahan of Fenger, Paul Kampf of Tilden, Miss Helen Axelson of Lindblom, Miss Anne Burek of Kelly, James Leopold of Hyde Park, Miss Shirley Reading and William Stephens of Calumet, Miss Dorothy Stahnke of the Academy of Our Lady, Miss Cecilia Yore of Loretto High school, Miss Anna Mae Maloney of Visitation, Miss Mary E. Cosgrove of Parker, Miss Gertrude Melchior of Aquinas, and Herbert Dotterer and Jack Anschuetz of Hirsch.

Six Months' Course.

The scholarships are valued at $150, and provide for a six months' commercial course. An examination for mental alertness is the basis on which they have been granted, although the students' high school records also are considered.

Miss Reuter was active in athletics and literary work at Merch, besides being an honor student. Miss Radigan was president of Englewood's Girl Reserves, won a school letter for her work on the library staf and was a worker for the school paper.

McClanahan was chairman of Fenger's program committee for the graduation exercises of his class, and a leader of the school honor society. Miss Gustafson was literary editor of the school annual.

Interests Are Varied.

At Hirsch Anschuetz's activities ranged from the dramatic club to the cross-country and tennis teams and the senior chorus. Dotterer was active in the Hirsch chemistry and mathematics clubs.

Stephens represented Calumet at the high school leaders' conference at Northwestern university, was a baseball star and a member of the national honor society. Miss Reading was active in the Calumet Writers' club and the Girls' Athletic association.

Miss Stahnke's flute playing and her work as conductor of the school orchestra won her fame at the Academy of Our Lady, and Miss Maloney divided her time between the Glee club and the Literary club at Visitation. Miss Yore was active in most of Loretto's organizations, being accounted one of the most popular girls in her class.

Has Musical Scholarship.

Music, dramatics, and writing claimed Miss Melchior's attention at Aquinas. She won honorable mention and membership in the Interscholastic Writers' guild, was a member of the school orchestra for four years, and belonged to the Dramatic club. She also received a musical scholarship to Mundelein college.

Miss Cosgrove was president of the French club at Parker, and won a gold pin for her four year scholastic record. At Hyde Park Leopold made a name for himself in the student court and on the swimming team, and was treasurer of the Stamp club.

A major letter was earned on the Tilden skating team by Kempf, and interclass baseball and basketball, and the Aero, Arx and Arts and Civic Industrial clubs also claimed his attention. Miss Burek was one of Kelly's honor students, interested also in athletics and the civic forum. Miss Axelson was editor-in-chief of Lindblom's annual.

St. Stephen's church, 113th and State streets, was the scene yesterday of the marriage of Miss Phyllis Hepburn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hepburn, 11133 Normal avenue, to Kenneth Stephens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Stephens of Chesterton, Ind. The Rev. Mark Obenshain performed the ceremony, which was followed by a reception for seventy-five guests at the home of the bride's parents. The occasion was doubly significant as it marked the 35th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Hepburn. The newlyweds will spend a short honeymoon in Holland, Mich.

CALVARY CHURCH OBSERVES 25TH YEAR THIS WEEK

A congregation that had its beginning in a meeting of a handful of pioneer residents of West Auburn Park in a South Halsted street store this week will celebrate its 25th anniversary 80 strong.

Calvary Methodist church, 78th and Morgan streets, the oldest Protestant church in the vicinity, will mark its silver jubilee with a banquet Wednesday evening, a homecoming Friday evening, and two services Sunday, when Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf of the Chicago area will speak.

The following Sunday, Sept. 29, the Rev. Olin Clarke Jones, pastor since 1932, will complete his first twenty-five years in the ministry. He has served six churches in as many states.

Dr. Frank W. Barnum, district superintendent, will speak at the banquet Wednesday, with the Rev. Jesse D. Hickman of Good Will center and the Rev. A. Turley Stephenson, president of the Chicago Methodist Ministers' meeting, both former pastors.

Others Who Will Speak.

Eli M. Cruse, Burton D. Roy, Mrs. George Cox, and Hayden Smith, members, also will speak, and James T. Greenlee, vice chairman of the official board, will be toastmaster.

Mrs. Ida Becker Munch, since the church's founding an active member and chairman of the anniversary committee, will preside at the homecoming Friday evening.

The Rev. Harry E. Morrow of Hopkinton, Ia.; the Rev. William C. Godden of Sterling, Ill., and the Rev. Dr. Francis J. Thomas of Morris, Ill., all former pastors, will speak, and Albert W. Heatter, Mrs. John R. Horton, Fred T. Murley, Mrs. Olin Clarke Jones, V. R. Hawthorne, and W. H. Merritt of the congregation also will speak.

Sunday morning Bishop Waldorf will preach, and that evening a special commemorative service will be held, with former choir members assisting the present choirs in a program under John D. James' direction, with Miss Bessie Scott at the organ.

History Is Written.

"Calvary's First Twenty-five Years," a history of the congregation, has been prepared for the anniversary by Mrs. Munch. She is the daughter of the late Rev. Bernhard Becker, a former German Methodist preacher, who in the summer of 1910 called the attention of the Methodist City Mission society to the fact that there was no Protestant church in the West Auburn Park area.

A biblical student, Harry E. Morrow, who is to speak Friday evening, canvassed the area and assembled a few residents, who held their first service Sept. 18 in a store at 7704 South Halsted street. A month later the Rev. Mr. Hickman was sent out by the conference.

Ground for the first church building was broken on the present site just a year after the church was formed, and in March, 1912, the congregation moved from the store into its own building singing and with banners waving.

Outgrow First Church.

This $30,000 structure was outgrown in the next ten years, and in 1923 the present building was dedicated. In 1928 the church parsonage was purchased and two additional rooms were added for the Sunday school a year later.

Dr. Jones, who came to this church just three years ago, is chairman of the committee on young people's work of the board of education of the Rock River conference and also ministerial adviser of the Chicago Southern district of the Epworth league. He served in Cleveland and Willoughby, O.; Wichita, Kas.; Syracuse, N. Y., and Oil City, Pa., before coming here.

During the war he was camp religious work director for the Y. M. C. A. at Camp Sheridan, Chillicothe, O., and was a chaplain with the American expeditionary forces in France.

OCTOBER BRIDE

Miss Florence Susan Goergen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Goergen of 10144 South Hoyne avenue, Beverly Hills, has chosen Oct. 12 as the date of her marriage to James Richard Fleming of Evanston. Miss Goergen is a graduate of the Academy of Our Lady, Longwood. The ceremony will be at St. Barnabas church.

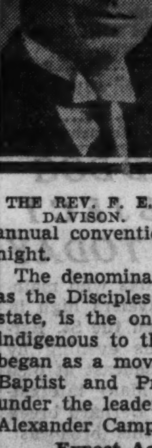
OPEN CONVENTION OF DISCIPLES OF CHRIST IN CANTON

28 Congregations to Be Represented.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Pastors and delegates from the 28 Disciples of Christ [often known as Christian] churches of Chicago and vicinity will arrive at Canton tomorrow for the opening of the 13th annual Illinois convention of that church. The meeting will close on Thursday. The Rev. Dr. Frank E. Davison, pastor of the Austin Boulevard Christian church, Oak Park, president of the convention, will deliver the annual convention sermon tomorrow night.



THE REV. F. E. DAVISON.

The denomination, officially known as the Disciples of Christ, historians state, is the only major communion indigenous to the United States. It began as a movement mainly within Baptist and Presbyterian churches under the leadership of Thomas and Alexander Campbell.

Expect Action on Issues.

As the denominations gradually came into being it was known at first as the Christian church, although for a time it was spoken of as the Campbellite church. The Disciples of Christ, however, should not be confused with the Christian church, which recently merged with the Congregational church.

Dr. Perry J. Rice, executive secretary of the Chicago Disciples union, 77 West Washington street, announced that the coming convention will probably take definite action concerning present day issues, such as war, temperance, economic and social justice, and religious freedom. The program announces many notable speakers, including Dr. D. W. Morehouse, president of Drake university and president of the International Disciples convention.

Speakers Are Listed.

Other speakers include Prof. Arthur E. Holt of the Chicago Theological seminary, Dr. John H. Booth of Indianapolis, the Rev. Dr. W. H. Walker of Bloomington, Prof. Edward Scribner Ames, formerly chairman of the philosophy department of the University of Chicago. The program includes a memorial service for the late Dr. Harry H. Peters, who for 20 years was secretary of the Illinois Christian Missionary society. More than 600 delegates are expected to register for the sessions.

Fifty-five men, all college graduates, compose the entering class at Presbyterian Theological seminary. Returning middlers and seniors bring the attendance of the seminary this year to the 150 student limit.

Opening ceremonies included the installation Tuesday of Dr. R. Ames Montgomery, former president of Lane Theological seminary, as professor of homiletics, succeeding the late Dr. Alfred Barr.

"We are delighted with the type of men who have come to the seminary this year," said Dr. John Timothy Stone, president. "Among them are several honor men from colleges of the country."

FROLIC CHAIRMAN

Miss Vera Kohen, 5006 Harper avenue, is chairman of the annual "Frolic" of Phi Rho Delta sorority, to be held this evening in the clubroom of the Palmer House.

CALUMET TENNIS CLUBS WILL HOLD DANCE ON FRIDAY

A., Bessemer, and Calumet parks, are to combine Friday in presenting the first annual Calumet region tennis ball and reception. The event will be held in the South Chicago Y. M. C. A. building, 3100 East 91st street. Warren L. Ingraham, president of the Calumet park club, has been chosen as chairman to direct promotion of the ball. Assisting him are Miss Phyllis Ingraham, Instructor David Barder of Calumet park, George Weinberger, Miss Lorraine Zimmer, and Russell West of Bessemer park.

EVENING PUPILS MAY STUDY HATS OR OIL ENGINES

Courses Varied at Fenger and Englewood.

Want to know the workings of a Diesel engine? Or how to achieve that Paris perkiness in the new hat you're making? Or how to play the piano?

These and scores of other adult problems will be met in the enlarged courses of study which Englewood and Fenger Evening High schools are offering in the new semester beginning this week.

Following registration last Thursday and Friday, both schools are beginning classes tomorrow evening. A total enrollment of 4,500 is anticipated at Englewood, and at Fenger more than 2,000 are expected.

College, high school, and elementary classes are offered at Englewood, in addition to special classes for the foreign born who wish to learn English or prepare for naturalization.

Offer Advanced Work.

High school graduates who are unable to attend college classes in the daytime will find available advanced courses in such subjects as algebra, trigonometry, composition, literature, psychology, and economics.

Home planning and management will be the subject of another new course, and still another will deal with automotive theory, covering both gas and Diesel engines, and such problems as free wheeling, braking, and transmission systems.

The 109 high school subjects offered also will include aid conditioning and refrigeration, oil painting, banking, contemporary literature, real estate and property management, anatomy, advanced theory of electricity, orchestra, home mechanics, and civil service preparation, all offered last year for the first time.

Plan Activities Fee.

Principal Robert I. White and Dean Joanna Zander have worked out a plan whereby extracurricular activities will be provided the students at a price within the range of almost every purse. A ticket is issued providing a school dance and movie each month, a play and a feature assembly each semester, and a subscription to the biweekly school paper.

General demand by the public has led to the addition of a course on Diesel engines to the Fenger curriculum, according to Principal Z. A. Chandler. A similar demand is occasioning a course in millinery. Courses in lip reading, interior decorating, radio construction and theory, and piano and keyboard harmony will be other innovations.

MARRIED RECENTLY

Mrs. Lillian Morris, 9957 May street, announces the marriage of her daughter Florence Lucille to Paul Francis Metzinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Metzinger, 1516 West 103d street. The ceremony took place at St. Margaret's church and was followed by the wedding breakfast at the Shoreland hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Metzinger took a wedding trip through the west and will reside on the south shore.

COMPLETE UNION OF TWO COLLEGES ON SOUTH SIDE

The merger of two south side institutions of higher learning—George Williams college and Kendall College of Physical Education—into one unit which will carry the name of the former, was announced last week by the trustees of George Williams college through the college secretary, Donald M. Typer.

Both schools have been through transitory periods. George Williams was once the Y. M. C. A. college and Kendall college from its founding in 1903 to 1932 was known as the Chicago Normal School of Physical Education.

The regular curriculum of George Williams colleges, which offers a two year junior college course, a two year course in physical education and a graduate school, will be continued. Graduates will receive a bachelor's degree in physical education. Kendall college offered classes only in physical education and kindred subjects and graduates had to attend other colleges for a year to obtain a degree.

All classes from Kendall college, situated at 51st street and Greenwood avenue, will be transferred to the George Williams college building, at 5315 Drexel avenue. Miss Edith Jordan, who taught gymnastics and dancing at Kendall college, will continue her work in these subjects in the combined schools. The fall quarter will open Oct. 1.

Builders Tee Club Will Hold Golf Tournament

The Builders Tee club, an organization of building contractors, supply houses and building operators, will hold its 8th annual golf tournament Tuesday, at the Oak Hills Country club. Roy E. Olin president of the club, has charge of arrangements for a banquet in the evening following the tournament.

In addition to the meet, several outstanding swimmers of the south side will demonstrate the form which has brought them victory. Among these are Miss Elizabeth Betts, Lake Shore Athletic club swimmer and winner in swimming contests sponsored by THE TRIBUNE, and Miss Emma Shemaitis, also of the Lake Shore club, marathon swimmer and member of the American Lithuanian Olympic team.

From the following eight girls in two classes, midget and junior, will be chosen two winners, to be crowned as the most outstanding campers.

HOST OF RADIO FAVORITES DUE BACK THIS WEEK

Grace Moore to Return at 8:30 Tomorrow.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Mid-September is at hand and a flock of radio favorites are shortly due back on the airways. Ed East and Ralph Dumke, known both as the "Sisters of the Skillet" and a "Ton of Fun," will launch a new sponsored show over WBBM-CBS at 12:45 today. The boys, who weigh well over 250 pounds apiece, oddly enough will go on the air in the interests of a corset maker.

Radio is a merry-go-round. Five years ago they got their start on W-G-N. Then they went to NBC where they were stationed for several seasons. They tried free lancing thereupon, radio writing, and even produced a play. And now they are making their first appearance for Columbia.

Grace Moore Back Tomorrow.

Home from command performances before the king and queen of England, a party thrown by the prince of Wales, and a vacation at her villa at Cannes glamorous Grace Moore will be back on the air at 8:30 tomorrow night over WMAQ-NBC. The show, as last season, will be titled "Grace Moore's program" at Grace Moore's request. Just before she started her show last season I asked her what her sponsor was advertising. She said she thought it was chewing gum. It turned out to be a cold cure.

Jessica Dragonette on CBS.

Another notable première of the week is scheduled for 7:30 Thursday evening over WBBM-CBS when Jessica Dragonette will initiate the new Atwater Kent series. William Merrigan Daly's orchestra will provide the music. Miss Dragonette is only a guest star on this hour. It is her first appearance on CBS. She will continue her Friday evening series on NBC. Like Amos 'n' Andy, and fortunately so, her program seems to run on forever.

Lombardos Back Thursday.

Folks who have been complaining over the fact that Guy Lombardo has been missing from the local schedules for several months will be happy to know that the Royal Canadians' smooth dance rhythms will be aired again over WBBM-CBS starting Thursday. They will play from 10:15 to 10:30 and also a half hour spot at 9:30 on Saturday evenings. Their sponsored show will continue without a local outlet.

American Songs for Tibbett.

Lawrence Tibbett, the Metropolitan opera baritone, has announced that he will draw on the works of Tin Pan alley, cowboy ballads, and Negro spirituals for his forthcoming CBS series. Tibbett will be heard at 7:30 Tuesday evenings over WBBM-CBS, starting Sept. 24. Don Voorhees' orchestra will support him. Tibbett will also introduce guest vocalists and choral groups.

Music for Scenery.

A Few Indorsements.

The CBS Monday evening Radio Theater has become just about the finest dramatic program on the air. The choice of plays is admirable, casting and acting is distinguished. Wish the sponsor would take a cue from the promoters of the G-Men series, another dramatic program that has become a top notcher, and omit the plugs between the acts. They ought to be kept confined to the beginning and the end. G-Men is a model so far as advertising copy is concerned.

Of all the arrangements of the new English ditty, "The Gentleman Obviously Doesn't Believe in Love," Ben Bernie's is the most attractive heard to date. It's the work of Harry Bailey, one of his pianists. . . . Lynn Cole, who sang with Bernie last Tuesday night, has a velvety voice that is just right for radio purposes. You will hear more of her. And of Jerry Cooper, CBS' latest Crosby.

Sigmund Romberg's orchestra is about the finest for all around purposes on the networks. It is one of the few that has a sufficiency of strings. His new program is satisfactory in every respect.

ISHAM JONES TO OPEN WGN-MBS SHOW ON OCT. 1

Isham Jones, whose orchestra will become a W-G-N and Mutual Broadcasting System feature, at 7:30 Tuesday, Oct. 1, is one of the few orchestra leaders who actually creates his own tunes. Unlike most bandsmen, Jones won considerable fame as a song-writer before he became prominent as a baton wielder.

To name a few of the numbers that have come from the Jones pen one must first include his early success, "Swingin' Down the Lane," which was followed by "The One I Love Belongs to Somebody Else." Then came his greatest song hit and one that still creeps into orchestra repertoires, the ever popular "I'll See You in My Dreams."

Other numbers by Isham are "It Had to Be You," "Spain" and "Indiana Moon."

In this new Mutual network feature presenting Isham Jones and his orchestra, Loretta Lee and the Eton Boys will also be heard.

JACK MAJOR GUEST FOR WEEK ON HOUSE PARTY

A singing westerner with refreshing personality will join "The W-G-N Friendly Neighbor's House Party" at 10 a. m. tomorrow when Jack Major, "The cowboy singer" joins this popular program as guest star for one week.

Famous on network shows, in moving pictures, and on the continent for his original singing, whistling, yodeling, and for his authentic western stories, young Major is a friend and protégé of Irvin S. Cobb and of the late Will Rogers.

"LOOKING GLASS" HEADLINES

Three girls who will be the principals in W-G-N morning feature, "Through the Looking Glass," a favorite program of last season which will return to W-G-N on a Monday, Wednesday, and Friday schedule at 10:15 o'clock. Left to right are Eleanor Nangle, author and commentator on the program; Alice Blue, pianist, and Dorothy Day, who works with Miss Nangle.

MUSIC MAKERS WILL MOVE TO THURSDAY SPOT

The Money Music Makers octet will be presented for the last time at 1 p. m. today on W-G-N. Beginning Thursday the Music Makers will be heard at 9:15 o'clock. The octet, directed by Frank Bennett, is composed of Mark Love, Dwyane Carnes, Paul Mallory, Robert Burns, Edwin Kemp, Robert Morris, Earl Johnson, and Paul Nettinga. Cathryn Bennett is the accompanist. This afternoon's program will consist of "Mascot of the Troop" by Victor Herbert, "The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise" by Seitz, "There Is a Tavern in Our Town" by Hill, and "Wait Till Ah Put on Mah Crown."

THEME SONGS OF 8 BANDS ON 'GLOOM DODGERS'

Theme songs of eight different bands will be featured by Leonard Keller's orchestra during the first part of the "Gloom Dodgers" broadcast over WBBM at 10 a. m. today. Guests starring on the program will be Leonard Balsamo, formerly with the Chicago Civic and the Milan Opera companies; Kea Rea, torch singer; the Three Kings, Royal Harmony team and Dixie Mason, soprano—all of whom are making return appearances. Faye Parker, whose whistling versions of current hits have made her a favorite, will also be heard.

Brina Ravel, Mary Alcott New Singers.

Three new soloists will be featured on the variety shows with the W-G-N dance orchestra under the direction of Harold Stokes this week. All three have enjoyed radio success elsewhere. Brina Ravel has been starred both as an actress and songstress in New York radio circles; Mary Alcott has been a featured soloist on many musical productions over WLW, Cincinnati, and on several Mutual shows, including the Crosley Follies and the Music Box Hour, and Larry Johnson, who sang with several of the leading orchestras on the west coast including Orville Knapp's unit.

Miss Alcott and Johnson will be heard on the Tuesday "Parade of Melody" at 7 o'clock. Miss Alcott will sing "Accent on Youth" and "I'm in the Mood for Love." "I Wished on the Moon" and "Paris in Spring" will be Johnson's numbers. "Porgy," a dramatic ballad, will be the highlight of Brina Ravel's debut with the orchestra at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday night. Miss Ravel will also sing "Two Sparkling Eyes" and the popular tunes, "Paris in Spring" and "April in Paris."

Sally Jo Nelson and Ken Strong, heard regularly with the dance orchestra, will be soloists at 7 o'clock Thursday night. "The Mardi Gras," a pot pourri of popular melodies, will be heard at 8 o'clock Friday night. On Saturday "The Fall Football Frolic," a new show, with Harold Stokes, the orchestra, Ronnie Mansfield, and Carolyn Rich, will be heard.

Boguslawski to Present All-Chopin Program Today

Continuing his presentation of Sunday afternoon recitals of music of the masters, Moissaye Boguslawski, popular Chicago concert pianist, will be heard in an all-Chopin program from 5 to 5:30 p. m. today over WJJD. Included in this program will be a group of Chopin waltzes, études, Pollanaise, and three Scotch dances.

Armies of England, France, and Germany Engage in War Maneuvers—British Royal Guards Participate

MECHANIZED FRENCH ARMY IN MANEUVERS—The importance of motorized units was stressed in recent French war games. Here a heavily armed tank type armored car proceeds with motorcycle escort. The French staged what they termed the "third battle of the Marne" during the maneuvers.

[Acme Photo.]

GERMAN CAVALRY IN WAR GAMES AT STETTIN—While other units of the German army were engaged in maneuvers throughout Germany the cavalry staged exercises near Stettin. Here is a mounted detachment on the move. Despite increase in motorized units horse cavalry still is used.

[Acme Photo.]

PARADE OF HOWITZERS AT BRITISH MANEUVERS—Six inch howitzers drawn by dragoons on the move at Sutton, watched by men resting along the wayside. The opposing armies fought several engagements on Salisbury plain, where 30,000 troops massed for war games' decisive battle.

MARINES GUARD BRITISH PALACE IN LONDON FOR FIRST TIME—Although they have been organized for more than 300 years, the Royal marines until recently had never been selected to stand guard outside the royal palaces of Britain. The marines were placed on guard while the foot guards were absent from London on training duty and in maneuvers. The Royal marines are shown as they crossed Lambeth bridge while on duty.

LOOK FAR AHEAD
WHEN YOU BUY FAUCETS

The selection of faucets for your home, building or plant should not be an off-hand matter. You don't buy faucets often; therefore, when you do buy, look far ahead. It is not purchase price, but final cost that determines faucet economy. Chicago Faucets cost a little more to buy, but their purchase cost is virtually their only cost. They will serve you without trouble or expensive repairs year after year for as long as your building stands. Thousands of installations in all parts of the country, many of which have been in service for five, ten and even twenty years without trouble or expense, are indisputable evidence of Chicago Faucet reliability and economy. Be sure to examine Chicago Faucets before you buy any kind.

YOUR PLUMBER will gladly show you Chicago Faucets, Fittings and Combinations for every sanitary purpose. Or, see our complete downtown display, 213 N. La Salle St.—sidewalk level. Phone BELmont 0300 for name of nearest dealer.

LIFEBUOY HEALTH SOAP

WHEN your skin looks dull and cloudy, generally it's because little specks of dirt and impurities have become lodged in the pores. Lifebuoy's rich, searching lather deep-cleanses pores of these clogged wastes, freshens the skin.

So mild and gentle

Lifebuoy is actually more than 20 per cent milder than many so-called "beauty soaps", as "patch" tests on the skins of hundreds of women show. Lathers abundantly in hardest water, purifies pores, stops "B. O." (body odor). Its own clean scent rinses away.

What's behind the Swing to Powder?

Seeing is believing . . . watch CALOX foam into

"The Forgotten 60"

(HIDDEN SURFACES BETWEEN THE TEETH)

IF you are still using an old-fashioned dentifrice there are parts of your teeth you never clean. The side surfaces between the teeth are too close together to be reached by ordinary brushing. Food collects there and ferments. Germs breed. Decay and bad breath are the natural results. Hopeless? Not at all! You can prevent this condition with Calox Tooth Powder.

Purifying Oxygen Bubbles

Try Calox, and discover why the swing to this great powder has become nation-wide. You can actually see the white foam of oxygen bubbles it releases in your mouth. They sweep into the crevices, cleansing hidden areas, hunting out germs, deodorizing food particles. The gums are soothed and toned. The enamel is whitened and made lustrous with the safest known polishing material. If you are a smoker, you will find that Calox removes the telltale edging of tobacco stain around the teeth, and sweetens the breath.

People of all ages enjoy the pleasant, refreshing taste of this scientific dentifrice. Children are eager to brush their teeth with it. And dentists advise its use as an ideal cleanser for artificial teeth.

Amazingly Economical

You can buy Calox at any good drug store. The handy-size package costs no more than an average tube of tooth paste and gives you three times as many brushings! In the family-size package there are six times as many!

THE GUMPS
ROW, MEN, ROW! WE'RE BEING SWEPT BACKWARD BY THE CURRENT-LOADED WITH SUPPLIES TAKEN FROM THE TERROR BEFORE IT SANK, THE SMALL BOAT IN WHICH CHESTER AND HIS PARTY SAILED FROM ETAH IS NOW SO HEAVY THAT IT CANNOT MAKE THE RAPIDS ALONG THE ROUTE BACK —
SIDNEY SMITH
IT'S NO USE - WE CAN'T MAKE IT THROUGH THIS PASSAGE - WE'LL HAVE TO TURN AROUND AND FIND ANOTHER ROUTE-
GEE CAPTAIN DUKETTE - A COUPLE MORE MINUTES AND WE'D HAVE BEEN SWAMPED-
THIS CARGO IS TOO PRECIOUS - WE CAN'T RISK LOSING IT - KOODLOO - WHERE DOES THAT PASSAGE AHEAD LEAD TO ?
KOODLOO NOT KNOW - NEVER GO THIS WAY BEFORE-
GREAT SCOTT! AND WE HARDLY DARE RELY ON THE COMPASS -
WHY NOT, CAPTAIN DUKETTE? WHAT'S WRONG WITH THE COMPASS? IT STILL WORKS - DOESN'T IT -
I'M AFRAID NOT, MY BOY - YOU SEE, THE MAGNETIC COMPASS DOESN'T POINT TOWARD THE NORTH POLE - IT IS ATTRACTED TOWARD A TREMENDOUS ORE DEPOSIT KNOWN AS THE MAGNETIC POLE -
NOW THIS MAGNETIC POLE IS OVER A THOUSAND MILES FROM THE NORTH POLE - IT IS CALCULATED TO BE IN THE ISLAND OF BOOTHIA -
BUT THAT'S RIGHT WHERE WE ARE NOW - EXACTLY - NOW JUST LOOK AT THIS COMPASS - SEE HOW IT WHIRLS AROUND AND WAVERS -
GOOD NIGHT! WE'LL NEVER BE ABLE TO FIND OUR WAY BACK IF WE HAVE TO FOLLOW THAT COMPASS-
THAT'S EXACTLY WHAT'S BAFFLING ME - THIS PASSAGE ISN'T EVEN SHOWN ON MY MAPS - THERE'S NOT AN INDICATION OF THAT BAY AHEAD - OR THAT TALL MOUNTAIN - THEY'RE NOT EVEN NAMED - WELL - GEE - YOU HAVE MAPS THERE - WE OUGHT TO BE ABLE TO TELL WHERE WE ARE BY FOLLOWING THEM -
CHESTER - I FIRMLY BELIEVE THAT WE ARE THE FIRST MEN EVER TO SEE THIS BAY AND MOUNTAIN - THEREFORE IT'S YOUR RIGHT TO GIVE THEM WHATEVER NAME YOU CHOOSE -
AND YOU MEAN THAT NAME WILL BE ON ALL THE MAPS AFTER THIS FOREVER -
FOREVER AND EVER, MY BOY - SO THINK WELL BEFORE YOU DECIDE - AND JUST TO MAKE IT OFFICIAL WE'LL SEAL THE NAMES IN THIS TIN BOX AND BUILD A CAIRN ASHORE TO MARK THE DISCOVERY - HEAVE TO MEN! WE'RE GOING ASHORE -
BOY! WAIT TILL THE KIDS BACK HOME HEAR ABOUT THIS -
I KNOW WE'LL CALL THIS UNCLE BIM'S BAY - AND ALL THE LAND ALONG THE SHORE WE'LL CALL GUMP ISLAND - NOW, YOU NAME THE MOUNTAIN, CAPTAIN DUKETTE - WHAT'S A GOOD NAME?
I'M GOING TO NAME IT AFTER ONE OF THE BRAVEST HEROES I KNOW -
FROM NOW ON - FOR ALL TIME TO COME - THAT MOUNTAIN WILL BE KNOWN AS MOUNT CHESTER!
GEE - WHO COULD THAT BE ?
JUST THINK OF THAT - A GREAT ARCTIC MOUNTAIN NAMED AFTER CHESTER - AND WELL DOES OUR BRAVE LITTLE HERO DESERVE THE HONOR -

IT'S HARD TO SAY, RIGHT NOW - BUT IT LOOKS LIKE APPROXIMATELY TWENTY FATALITIES AND SEVENTY-FIVE WOUNDED.
TEAR GAS VICTIMS! IT WAS OUR ONLY WAY.
IF I'D ONLY GOT HERE SOONER! I'VE GOT PAPERS FOR THE RELEASE OF TOBY TOWNLEY! BLAKE CONFESSED THE DONOVAN MURDER AND CLEARED HER.
SHE'S NOT IN THIS CROWD, DICK.
YOUR ONLY CHANCE IS THAT -- SHE'S AMONG.. THESE!
SHE'S NOT HERE, DICK!
GREAT SCOTT! THE WORST HAS HAPPENED!
HOW LONG BEFORE THOSE RUINS WILL BE COOL ENOUGH TO SEARCH, WARDEN?
PROBABLY AT LEAST ANOTHER 24 HOURS!
LISTEN! WHAT'S THAT?
HEAR THAT TAPPING NOISE?
TAP TAP
THAT'S A CLOSET WE USED FOR SUPPLIES!
GIVE ME THAT AX!
TOBY!
GREAT SCOTT! THE PLACE IS FULL OF TEAR GAS!
A GAS BOMB MUST HAVE ROLLED IN THERE AT THE SAME TIME SHE ENTERED... AND THE DOOR HAS A SPRING-LOCK ON IT.
TOBY.. YOU'RE FREE! YOU'RE CLEARED... BLAKE CONFESSED! CAN YOU HEAR ME?
YES.. YES.. YES.. I HEAR YOU.. BUT I.. I....

WOULDN'T THAT GIVE YOU A PAIN!
I'VE GOT AN IDEA — AVERY'S PAIN ERADICATOR!
DON'T YOU TRY TO BE FUNNY AT A TIME LIKE THIS!
DON'T YOU SEE? PUT PAIN REMOVER IN THE RADIATOR!
I WAS JUST GOING TO THINK OF THAT MYSELF.
IT WON'T HURT THE WATER PUMP WILL IT?
NO IT'S MOSTLY WATER ANYWAY.
HOW MANY?
TWO GALLONS AND A HALF — ALSO DRAIN THE RADIATOR AND SAVE WHAT YOU GET.
AVERY! YOU'RE NOT GOING TO BOTTLE WHAT COMES OUT OF THAT RADIATOR?
WHY NOT!

Sari Severt, brilliant young opera star, is "choo chooing" to Hollywood for her movie debut—to sing Paul Gordon's music in "Spring Melody." Sari is "that way" about Paul—but the handsome musician has ears but not eyes for her!

MOVIE NEWS

Why has production on "Spring Melody" been postponed? What was the outcome of screen tests made of Sari Severt? Goldman won't talk. Neither will Raquel Torres, movie star with whom Sari is staying while in Hollywood.

SMILIN' JACK
Y'SAY THERE'S A SPOT NEAR YOUR LODGE. WHERE I CAN LAND, PROFESSOR?
YES! I LANDED A PLANE THERE ONCE!
THERE IT IS, JACK!
WHAT! DO YOU MEAN TO SAY YOU LANDED ON THAT POSTAGE STAMP?!!
SURE! YOU CAN MAKE IT!
I DON'T SEE HOW I CAN CLEAR THOSE TREES -- BUT IF HE DID IT I CAN!
WOW!! WAS THAT CLOSE! SAY, PROFESSOR, HONESTLY, DID YOU EVER LAND HERE?
SURE! SEVERAL YEARS AGO. IT WAS EASY!
EASY? DIDN'T ALL THESE TREES BOTHER YOU?
OH, THE TREES! WHY THEY WERE JUST BUSHES THEN!
ULP!

SONNY, YOU WERE A VERY BAD BOY THIS MORNING- YOU DISOBEYED YOUR PARENTS
BUT YOU WERE SORRY FOR WHAT YOU DID AND SO I DIDN'T PUNISH YOU-

GEE, POP, I WAS SO SORRY FOR BEING BAD-
THAT I WANTED TO DO SOMETHING FOR YOU, TOO-
WHY, THAT'S WONDERFUL, SON--

SO LUCY VISITS THE DENTIST-
YOU MEAN. THAT MOST BAD BREATH COMES FROM IMPROPERLY CLEANED TEETH?
EXACTLY! ODOR BREEDING FOOD DEPOSITS COLLECT BETWEEN THE TEETH UNLESS YOU USE PROPER CLEANING METHODS. PERSONALLY, I USE COLGATE DENTAL CREAM BECAUSE OF ITS PENETRATING FOAM!
COLGATE'S MAKES MY MOUTH FEEL SO SWEET AND CLEAN... AND HOW BRIGHT MY TEETH ARE NOW!

COLGATE RIBBON DENTAL CREAM

Most Bad Breath Begins with the Teeth!

How Colgate Dental Cream Protects You!

"DON'T warn me about bad breath!" you say. "I'm not guilty!" But—don't be too sure.

For in the precautions you take you may very easily be overlooking the real cause of most bad breath—improperly cleaned teeth.

Yet dental authorities agree: Food residue and acid deposits collect in the hidden crevices between the teeth . . . they decay—and the result is offensive breath!

So use Colgate Dental Cream. Its penetrating foam gets into every tiny crevice . . . emulsifies and washes away the food deposits that ordinary cleaning methods fail to reach.

At the same time a soft, grit-free polishing ingredient gently and safely cleans and brightens tooth enamel. Thus Colgate's makes your teeth cleaner and brighter—your breath sweeter and purer.

DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK
If you are not entirely satisfied with results after using a single tube of Colgate Dental Cream—send the empty tube to Colgate, Jersey City, N. J. We'll refund TWICE what you paid.

When you see these exciting picture cards you'll be sure to want a complete set. Start your collection now! If you get duplicate pictures, trade them with your friends.

After you obtain the full set, you'll want a handsome album to keep these pictures permanently. Later, we explain how to get this FREE!

Millions of red-blooded boys and girls eat Heinz Rice Flakes every morning. Crisp and crackly, they have a flavor that just makes your mouth water. And they're packed with health and quick energy.

Mothers, too, are glad to have their children eat Heinz Rice Flakes regularly. They contain all the "peppy" food value of rice put up in attractive, easily digested form. In addition, they have a gentle regulative effect that promotes health-habits.

Heinz Rice Flakes are delicious with milk or cream. Covered with fresh fruit and berries they make a tempting luncheon or after-school snack for growing children.

When Mother goes to the store today, ask her to bring home a package of Heinz Rice Flakes. Open the package and get your first airplane picture. If you eat Heinz Rice Flakes every day, you'll be surprised how quickly you'll own the full set of world-famous airplanes!

I Have No Jobs to Offer

—But Something Better.

Let's face facts. A new season is starting. Business is better. Men who want to make real money are up against a vital decision. What they get into now will determine their financial success for the coming years of plenty which are surely ahead.

Jobs do not pay big money—perhaps $20 to $25 a week. I want men who think in terms of unlimited opportunity and incomes that will earn for them the luxuries of life; a home, an automobile, good clothes, money to travel, etc.

THAT IS THE KIND OF AN OPPORTUNITY I OFFER YOU NOW!

What I have is not a job. It is a high class sales position with a national organization manufacturing an electrical unit renowned from coast to coast. It is something which will ride along in ever increasing sales volume as the tide of business continues its upward swing.

Commission earnings you will make right from the start should be sufficiently gratifying to prove everything I have said here without further question.

IN ADDITION

I want three experienced men to assist me; salary and bonus.

FURTHERMORE

All men signed on contract and bonded on or before Sept. 23, 1935, will qualify in my prize contest, the winner of which will be made manager of Chicago AIRWAY Branch on Dec. 30, 1935. This will be worth $100,000 to the winner. Qualify now; contest ends midnight, Dec. 28, 1935. Runner-up and fifteen others will be made division managers on new schedule of bonus and commission.

Fred Riebel Jr.
VICE PRESIDENT.
AIRWAY ELEC. APPLIANCE CORP.,
10th floor, 75 E. Wacker-dr.
Call at 10 a. m. Monday, Sept. 16.

MEN—

IT'S RIDICULOUS

to be out of work and without any income, if you have ambition and are sincerely seeking a real money maker.

IT'S INTERESTING—

The product of this established and well rated company offers an amazing demonstration that will thrill you with its possibilities.

IT'S NOVEL—

So many startling and advanced features have been incorporated in this revolutionary electrical unit that it makes the old fashioned devices seem as obsolete as a 1906 automobile.

YOU'LL PROFIT—

Because others from all walks of life are making more in many cases than they ever made before. Because it's new, amazing, marvelous, years ahead scientifically and mechanically. Because it guards health, is noncompetitive—and pays you a profit-sharing percentage [no investment] that can easily put you AT ONCE in the BIG INCOME class.

Waiting for a "natural"? Here it is. If you're between 25 and 50, aggressive enough to take real advantage of an opportunity, see Mr. Wilson, 3973 Milwaukee-av., downstairs, 11 a. m. Monday, September 16th.

Would you be interested in starting in business for yourself without one cent of investment on your part?

Well, that is exactly what we have done for many men in this territory.

These men are previous storekeepers, doctors, lawyers, shop workers, mechanics, etc., and are now earning and receiving in percentage as much as $50 a single day.

We are an old line, nationally known manufacturer of electrical units that defy competition and for which there is a constant increasing demand.

Now here are our requirements—you must be under 50, preferably married, honest, reliable, possess a neat appearance and possess at least a grammar school education.

At this time we will only interview men living on the South Side of Chicago, northern Indiana, and northeastern Illinois.

Every man answering this advertisement will be given a confidential interview and, if selected, will be trained at our expense in our methods which are successful.

There are no strings attached to this offer, as we even pay rent, light, heat, telephone girl hire, consign your merchandise, and finance your accounts.

Apply Monday only between 1 and 3 p. m. Ask for Mr. Lovell, Suite 404, Maryland Bldg., 63d-st. and Maryland-av.

ON THE LAKE SHORE

IN EVANSTON.

It's rather nice to live in a house built high on a walled-in terrace where every room is flooded with sunlight and where the views from the north and south are over lawns and into woods, and to the east, out over the colorful waters of Lake Michigan. A beautiful, secluded spot where you never feel lonesome or isolated, for it is right in the midst of Evanston and only 25 minutes by motor or train from Chicago's business district. A real retreat for a busy business man who can not afford to spend much time commuting. 12 rooms, large living rooms, huge porches, garage with living quarters and everything that goes to make up a marvelous home. You may not believe it, but a pair of cardinal birds nest in the shrubbery and stay the year round. They like it.

It's wonderful to live where you can get home early to dinner, and when you go out in the evening, still get home in time for a full night's rest, and it is only a short walk to the office in the morning. Studios with high ceilings, in a little lamp lighted court, perhaps a bungalow, apartments with a little charm about them that makes you glad you live there, all with fireplaces and not so far from the lake. We are glad to make little changes that you personally may suggest. Also shop space.

REAL ESTATE SERVICE.

IN THE LAST SCORE OF YEARS THERE have been several millions of dollars worth of vacant property sold out of the city around Chicago, at enormous prices, and the values in most cases have always been very questionable. A good many people have realized this only after it was too late. To some person that has a vacant parcel of property out of the city, clear or part paid for, South, North, or West, we have a way of using such a parcel of ground. We don't want a valuable lot. We will explain why the value makes no difference when we contact you. Our plan is not to take you out of the frying pan into the fire, but a plan to salvage that frozen money, every cent of it, in a reasonable period of time. We have a sensible plan, and can do just what we say. And it doesn't cost you a cent to learn about it. If interested give full details about your lot, price, loc., etc. If we can use it we will get in touch with you. No brokers. Address A T 256, Tribune.

MAY WE ASSIST YOU IN DISPOSING OF lots, farms or acres; will pay you to investigate now. Quick service.

SOMEWHERE IN CHICAGO ARE 5 WOMEN who have been waiting all their lives for this announcement. A large, successful manufacturer of a line of women's necessities is about to open 5 new ground floor shops. They will be part of a national chain of 34 shops [2 already in Chicago], in operation for many years. The products are well known and have wide acceptance and sale because of definitely superior quality, lower prices, better service to customers. Through this announcement the manufacturer expects to locate the 5 fortunate women who will be made owner-managers of these new shops. To succeed, these women must be self-starters, able to shoulder responsibility capable of carrying through factory-initiated ideas. They have probably come up from the ranks in department stores or specialty shops and want to go in business for themselves. They would be willing and able to make a modest investment in a sound venture which offers financial independence and a definite future. An executive of the company will be in Chicago soon. Interested women are invited to write for personal interview. Letter should give full details of experience. Include phone number. Hat Styles Mirror Complex Drama of the Modern World

Designers Find Their Inspiration in Everything from Politics to Movies and Musical Shows.

By RHEA SEEGER.

THE most interesting headlines to any shopper . . . what the newest models are and where they can be found! And probably the most exciting adventure is the first tryout of a dashing new style or color combination. New high records come every season. Especially important are the first fall arrivals. after months of big, shadowing cartwheels of straw and thin transparencies of chiffon or other summer materials.

Everything influences the hatmakers The latest international crisis that involves a country whose natives wear tricky bits of headgear that can be modified more or less for feminine American headlines. Minor events in our own country, such as a successful show or musical comedy, and, of course, the unlimited inspirational resources of the movies and the feminine movie stars play no small part in the rather delirious business of hatting a hungry stream of shoppers insistent upon a new chapeau.

Small Hats Given Height.

Small hats are revived successfully season after season, but how they achieve distinctive height and smart outline and a brand new skyline is the secret of genius. Bows are perennial favorites. Bows that slant rakishly up in the air, bows that bunch well down in front, and those that cover the hat in a complicated mass of tied bows.

Veils are airy distractions and sheer wisps of flattery that do grand things for the simplest sort of a hat. The most reticent male waxes enthusiastic over the alluring effectiveness of this manner of decoration that magically turns a mere hat into a creation. And this fall you'll wear veils that are not the microscopic trifles of last season or the season before that, but that are long lengths of net artfully caught at the brim and left to hang almost down to the waistline. Big chenille dots are playing return engagements on both black and colored veils . . . some of the newest novelty veils are huge circles with a pie shaped wedge covered with graduated size dots.

Velvet Hats New Arrivals.

Velvet hats are the first to arrive. Velvet in gorgeous new colors. There are intricately draped turbans copied from the East Indian prince's headgear. There are the comparatively simple affairs of swathed halos. Tight turbans of velvet use fragile and dramatic contrasts of lacy halos attached straight across the back headlines, slightly askew, achieving a rakish new angle for such ethereal extras. Off-the-face models, perennial charmers for youthful faces, feature velvet and felt They are, in most instances, plain and unadorned but for the small bow of the velvet or felt.

Smart street hats are outstanding models this season, casually smart affairs to wear with street tweeds and high colored wool costumes and ensembles. Velour felt and novelty weave woolens make the best of these hats, and the colors are varied and plentiful.

Three New Fall Models

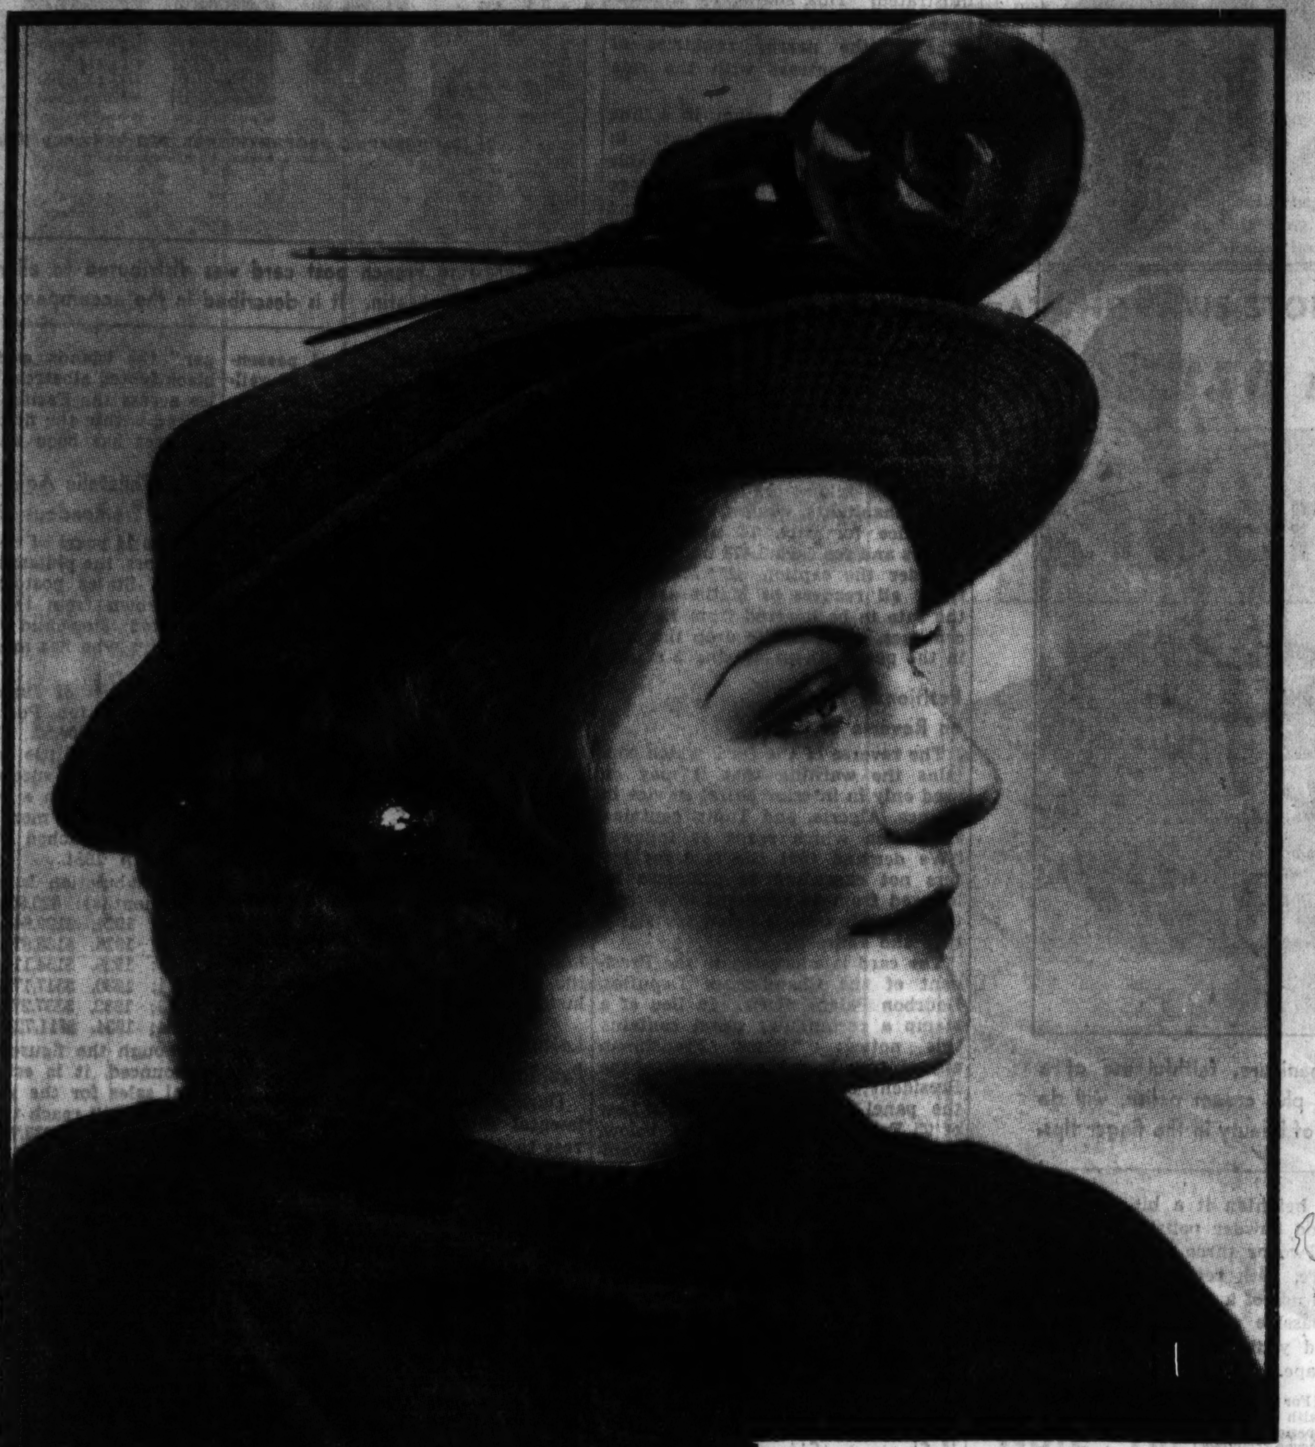
At the upper right . . . a duet fashioned in colorful, Scotch plaid velvet. The neckerchief scarf is lined with taffeta and ties at the back. The two points in front are tucks and the deep point front reaches half way down the chest. The cocky little bonnet hat has been carefully copied from the Glengarry bonnets of the Scots, both in height and general shape. A long, curling feather trims the side.

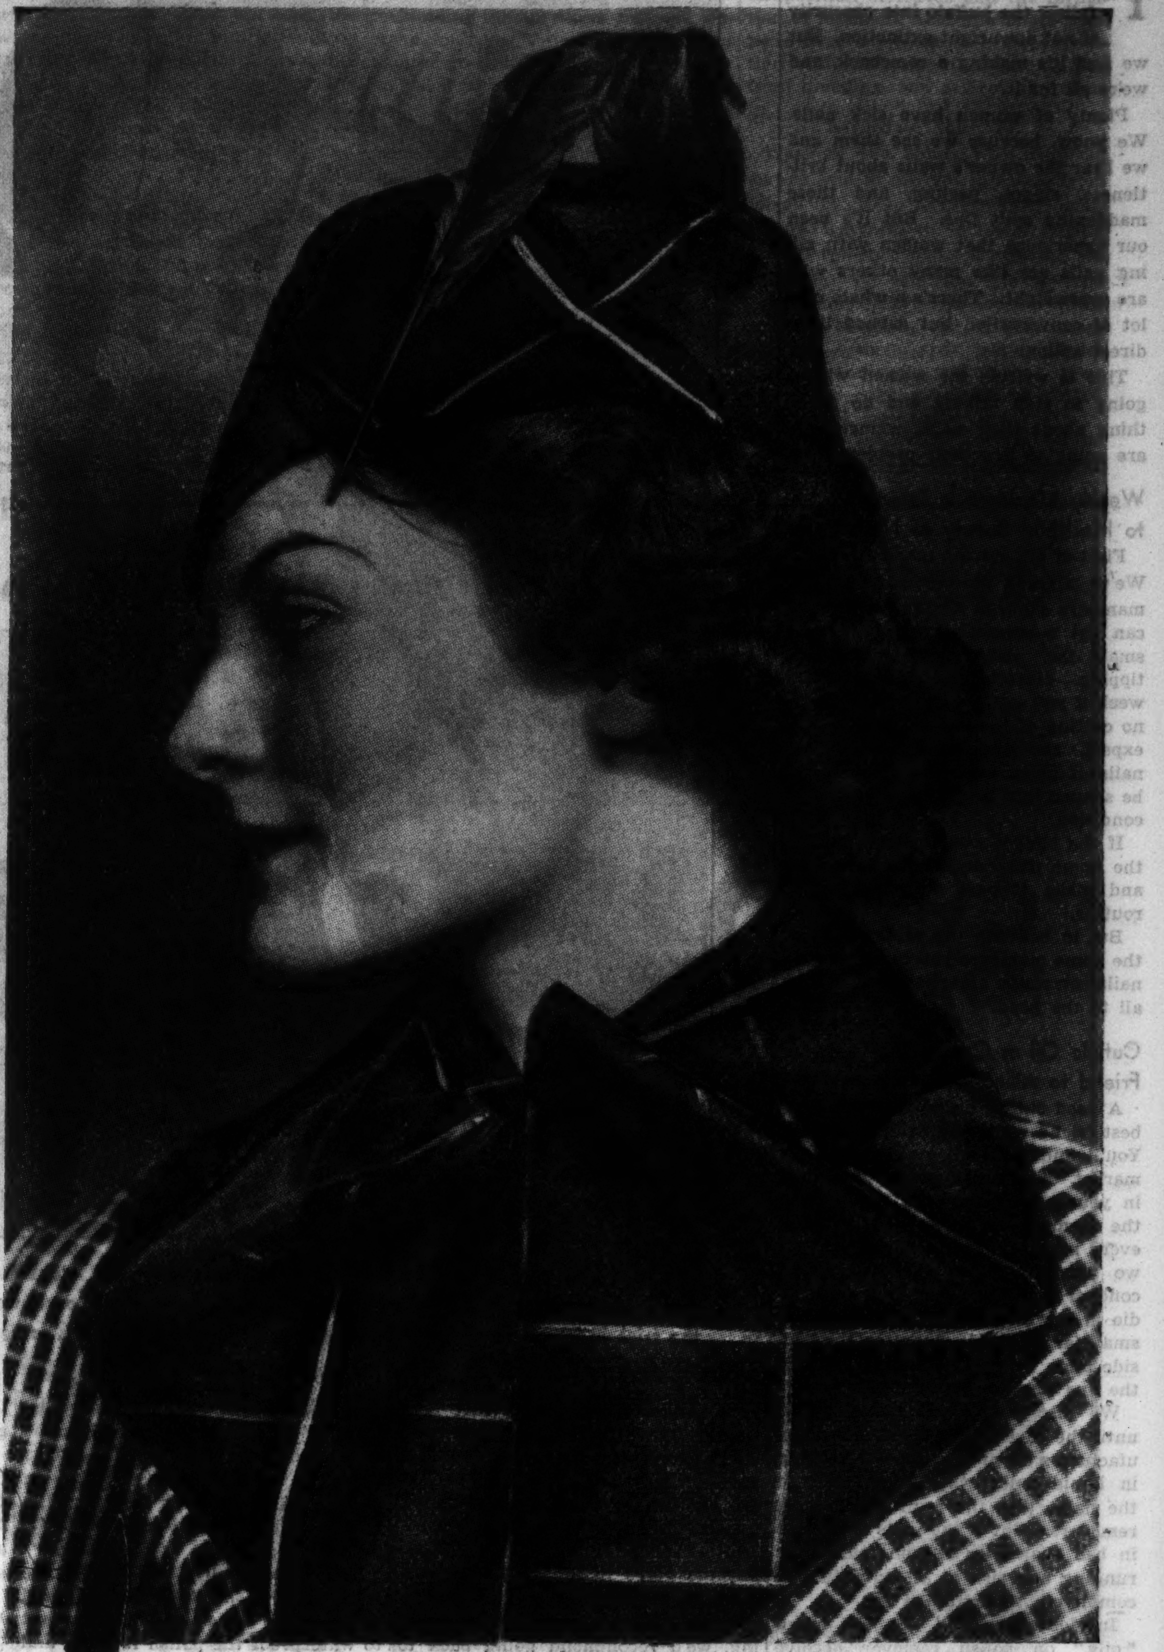
The lower right photograph depicts the find of the season, a soft velour street and spectator sports hat combined. The brim is edged in corded ribbon and can be turned either up or down. The peaked crown is banded in grosgrain ribbon and there is a dashing feather.

[For information on any item described in this article call Rhea Seeger, Superior 0100.]

HEADLINE FOR A FALL ENSEMBLE

Below: A brimmed street hat for wear with tailored wool or velveteen suits and dresses. The turned-up brim is moderately wide and stitched for stiffness. The low, flat crown is trimmed with two double curls of flattering coq feathers.





Above: Scotch plaid velvet fashions this unusual neck scarf and jaunty Scotch bonnet hat. The scarf is tied at the back. The hat is high and trimmed with a long, curling feather, as in Glengarry.

Eggplant Provides Special Thrill in the Substantial Menus for Crisp Autumn Days

By MARY MEADE.

WHY the regal hue and pleasing symmetry of the eggplant didn't inspire some long forgotten soul to do a better christening job is something we've never been able to decipher. Of all the colorful fall vegetables vieing for attention in the market windows, its eye appeal is, perhaps, the most completely satisfying, and yet, to obtain one of the beauties for your own, you have to stoop to the prosaic name, "eggplant."

Still, once having uttered the lowly term, the smooth purple sphere is yours to take home and gloat over. If you can resist the temptation of featuring it in a great wooden bowl as the right autumnal touch for your living room, your gloating can even change from the visual to that of sheer epicureanism.

As a cooking scribe, perhaps we'd better stick to the latter plane of enjoyment. In fact, we really ought to begin again with the eggplant marketing and approach it from the cook's angle, not the color reveler's.

Small and Medium Sized Plants Best.

In the first place, it's well to remember that size is a pretty good criterion of a good eggplant, but that, actually, the reverse of "the bigger, the better" maxim is true. Large eggplants are likely to be pithy, while the medium sized and small ones are much better eating. For slicing and frying you also will want to check the shape of the vegetable. Long, cylindrical ones usually are preferable for this purpose to the thicker, more chunky varieties.

The skin of the vegetable is the second index of quality. It should be smooth as satin, for the presence of wrinkles often denotes age and the development of a bitter flavor.

In planning your market order it also is well to remember that a whole eggplant should be used at one cooking, if possible. After the vegetable is cut it keeps but poorly. If you're in doubt as to the serving capacities of an eggplant, here's a tip: A one pound eggplant usually will yield about eleven slices, cut a half inch thick, or 4½ cups of diced raw eggplant, or almost 2 cups of cooked diced eggplant.

Frying Most Common Way of Cooking.

The most common way of preparing eggplant (and one of the nicest) is frying. The way you go about this depends on your own whims or family customs, for the procedure varies with the household. Some excellent cooks do no more than pare the vegetable, slice it (some say thick, some say thin), sprinkle it with salt and pepper and flour, and sauté it slowly until crisp and brown. Others season the slices and dip them in a thin fritter batter and then drop them into hot, deep fat. And still others, also holding forth for the deep fat frying, with the temperature of the fat around 370 degrees F., prefer to coat the slices first with flour, then egg, and finally sifted crums.

No matter which method you choose, the general aim remains the same—a crisply browned coating over a tender and well seasoned interior. As a vegetable accompaniment to the meat course, fried eggplant knows few equals.

Eggplant Fritters Fine for Luncheon.

The same golden rounds provide an excellent basis for a main luncheon dish, if you don't mind unconventionality among your sandwiches. The eggplant slices, as they come from the skillet or deep fat kettle take the place of the usual bread, while between each two crisp rounds is placed a slice of ripe, peeled tomato and a couple of slices of broiled bacon. A sprinkling of grated cheese tops the sandwich, and it's served immediately after a minute or two under the broiler.

Eggplant fritters make an excellent luncheon mainstay. The pared, diced eggplant is cooked, drained, mashed, and mixed with a stiffish fritter batter, and then dropped by spoonfuls into hot fat. The

Any Mother's Poise Upset by Overwork

Chronic Weariness Often at Bottom of Parent-Child Difficulties.

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

"SOME day, perhaps," writes a mother, "you will point out the source of greatest trouble in the lives of thousands of plain, conscientious mothers with too small incomes—overwork.

"I believe most behavior problems start with a tired mother who has not enough recreation."

I, believe it, too — or if not most behavior problems, then a great many of them.

Let's give today to the tired mother. This will give us an opportunity to state something which writers on child training are far too apt to overlook. It will give us a chance to acknowledge that parents can't always be held responsible for the behavior of their children in every particular. No—it's not heredity I'm thinking of, but circumstances. Often circumstances over which parents have little or no control are responsible for perfectly normal children becoming real behavior problems.

All Triumphs Partial.

Now, of course, if we were to begin to discuss the situations which affect the upbringing of children—situations over which we have no control—we should not be able to stop short of a week's articles. Illness, separation, divorce, unsympathetic relatives in the family, interference from others outside, or the death of one parent, are only some of the circumstances which

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

By Eleanor Nangle

FOR a while there it looked as though the buffer were going to follow the buffalo into obscurity if not downright extinction. But we find it's making a comeback, and we're all for it.

Plenty of women have sick nails. We know, because we see them and we hear the owner's wails about brittleness, ridges, peeling, and those maddening split tips. But it's been our experience that women with ailing nails are like many others who are overweight. There's a whale of a lot of conversation but darned little direct action.

This is written for women who're going to stop talking and do something about their nails, women who are going to lick their problem.

Weekly Manicure Is Essential to Healthful Beauty of Nails.

First of all, get the manicure habit. We've already told you about the manicure salon in Chicago where you can get a corrective manicure at a small fee, and where there's no tipping. Have your manicure every week if you can. At this salon there's no cutting of the cuticle, the work is expert, and the most unattractive nails, if given regular attention, can be shaped into healthy and attractive condition.

If the budget won't permit, master the home manicure as best you can, and make it part of your regular routine.

But in between the professional or the home manicure you can give your nails corrective attention that will be all to the good.

Cuticle Oil or Cream Best Friend to Ailing Nails.

A good cuticle oil or cream is your best friend when the nails go wrong. You'll find them all over the beauty market, but you'll have to find right in your own little head the will or the memory to massage your nails every night. A stunt we tried when we firmly resolved that we would conquer two stubbornly split nails, or die in the attempt, was to plant the small jar of cuticle cream on the bedside table where it would be right in the line of vision every night.

We also abandoned liquid polish until the cure was effected. The manufacturers claim that there is nothing in liquid polish that is harmful to the nails, that the fault lies in acid removers. But if the nails really are in bad shape, we see no reason for running any risk at all until they're completely straightened out.

Incidentally, don't let the word "oily" on polish remover deceive you. All so-called aren't what they should be. It's sad but true that many manufacturers simply toss in a bit of an inert oil, which is no help at all, and stamp their product "oily."

Sick nails can be restored to health by regular care. The weekly manicure, faithful use of a cuticle softener, and polishing via the old-fashioned route of buffer plus cream polish, will do the trick in a couple of weeks. Simple but faithful attention is secret of beauty in the finger tips.

Polish Achieved by Buffing Permits Nails Reconditioning.

So, for the purposes of conditioning the nails when they need nursing, we'd recommend going back to the old-fashioned polish achieved by buffing. The buffing is good for the nails, provided it isn't overdone to the point where it heats them. Buffing one way all the time is best. It really assists circulation and helps make the nails healthier.

The cream polish used with the buffer does a bit to supply oil and luster at the same time. If you want to waterproof the polish it gives, and to heighten it a bit, follow with a good powder polish.

Two or three weeks of intelligent care, with regular manicures, faithful use of a cuticle lubricant, regular "passive exercise" with the buffer, and your nails will be in excellent shape.

[For information about these aids to nail health and beauty, telephone Eleanor Nangle, Superior 0100, or write her care of the Chicago Tribune.]

THE STAMP COLLECTOR

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning value. Do not ask where stamps may be sold as the Stamp Exchange contains offers to buy and sell. Enclose a stamped, self addressed envelope for reply.

ONE morning in 1902 each subscriber of Matin, the popular French newspaper, found in his paper a copy of the card illustrated. This shows, by illustrations, the various domestic postal rates in the nearby countries of Europe, in contrast with the rate required in France.

Below each illustration is a line showing the equivalent rate in French money and the allowable weight of each letter. These range from a maximum in Switzerland [Helvetia] of 250 grammes for 10 centimes, down to 15 grammes carried for 15 centimes in France.

Some of the continental rates are based on the 15 gramme weight but charge only two-thirds as much as the French postoffice. Evidently the laws prohibited the illustration of the French stamp.

At the bottom of the card is a comparison of postal service which shows that France has one office for each 51 square kilometers and for each 3,718 inhabitants, while Germany has an office for each 14 square kilometers and for each 1,478 inhabitants.

Under the caption of "Manifestation," all readers of Matin desiring the rate to be lowered from 15 to 10 centimes, are asked to drop the card in the post without affixing a stamp.

Petition Is Printed on Reverse of Card.

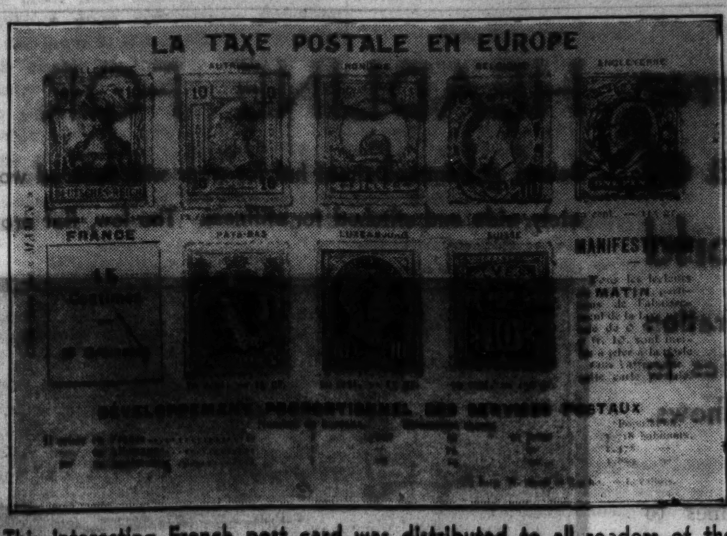
The reverse of the card, which contains the warning that it may be used only in interior postal service in France, Algeria, and Tunis, contains a petition which reads as follows: "We demand that the rate for letters not exceeding 15 grammes be lowered from 15 centimes to 10 centimes," with a space below for signature and address.

The card is addressed to the President of the Chamber of Deputies, Bourbon Palace, Paris. In lieu of a stamp a rectangular panel contains this notice: "Every Frenchman enjoys free postal service with the President of the Chamber." Above the panel is the inscription: "Law of 25 Frimaire 8th year," and below, "Ordinance of the 17th of November, 1814."

The first inscription refers to the calendar adopted by the French in 1793 following the revolution and abandoned in 1805. The month Frimaire in the 8th year [1799-1800] began on Nov. 22, and the 25th day would be Dec. 16, 1799. In the year following the appearance of this card the postal charge for domestic letters was lowered to 10 centimes.

Belgian Mail Coach Is Shown on Stamp.

The latest addition to the commemorative stamps of Belgium is shown in the illustration herewith. The subject of the design is an early mail coach, such as was used in many countries to carry mail and passengers prior to the advent of the railroads. Three values were issued: 10c, 25c, and 35c, each being sold at a premium over face value. They were printed by a photogravure process and should not be placed in benzine in a search for watermarks. Many less ruined by a soaking in any one printed by photogravure, or rotogravure, as we know it, will be more or collectors fail to heed the repeated warnings and ruin nice stamps with benzine. Perhaps all recent issues of the various watermark detectors, for one or more of these very liquids is used to thin down the printing ink. Mr. J. J. Neis of Chicago lent the cover from which this stamp illustration was taken.



This interesting French post card was distributed to all readers of the newspaper Matin. It is described in the accompanying article.

Letters May Cross Pacific in 3 Days.

During the last five months experimental flights have been in progress to determine the feasibility of a trans-Pacific mail and passenger service in flying boats. Postmaster General Farley has asked for bids by Oct. 21 for a service from San Francisco to China, a distance of almost 9,000 miles.

The route, according to preliminary plans, will pass through Hawaii, Guam, and the Philippine Islands, with intermediate or emergency landing fields at other American possessions such as Wake Island and the Midway Islands. It is estimated that service across the Pacific may be reduced to three days, instead of as many weeks.

The cachet on the cover carried back from Midway Islands in June shows the Sikorsky flying boat "Clipper," the islands, and a "gony," or black footed albatross. Regular service across the Pacific will not be required within the first year after the contract has been awarded.

U. S. Philatelic Agency Shows Tremendous Growth.

In its 14 years of catering to stamp collectors, the philatelic agency of the United States postoffice department has grown from the position of a tolerated step-child to that of a daughter who has married a wealthy man.

The report of June 30, 1922, says the Washington Post, showed total sales of $20,906.50. This covered a period of a little more than six months. During succeeding years the sales have shown a general increase, which became more important in 1929, and reached "big business" status in 1934.

The tabulation is as follows: 1922 [six months]: $20,906.50; 1923, $105,317.03; 1924, $129,646.51; 1925, $108,813.51; 1926, $135,675.94; 1927, $176,157.95; 1928, $154,119.68; 1929, $283,983.04; 1930, $317,173.32; 1931, $254,797.13; 1932, $337,277.20; 1933, $302,619.54; 1934, $811,723.

Though the figures have not been announced, it is estimated that the total sales for the year ending June 30, 1935, will reach the sum of $2,650,000, of which $1,633,717.66 is accounted for by the sale of "Farlines" during the period between March 15, and June 15, 1935.

Coming Issues.

The bulletin of the Universal Postal union as distributed by Catherine L. Manning of the Smithsonian institution includes several new commemorative issues of more than passing interest. These include a new series of seven values for Belgian Congo, the designs showing the four kings of the Belgian dynasty, to be issued on the 50th anniversary of the establishment of the Congo Free State, and a series of five values to be issued by Bulgaria in connection with the dedication of a monument to Vladislav, king of Hungary and Poland, who fell while defending Christianity in the battle of Varna, A. D. 1444.

Cachet Notices.

The 170th anniversary of the first Colonial congress which met in New York City on Oct. 17, 1765, will be observed by a cachet to be applied by the Westmont Cover club, Westmount, Ill. Send stamped and self-addressed covers, unstuffed and unsealed, by Sept. 28, with 1c per cover, forwarding fee, in loose stamps. Commemoratives on wrappers appreciated.

The 6th annual Mountain State Forest festival will be held on Oct. 3, 4, and 5, at Elkins, W. Va. The cachet committee will apply a cachet, differing in color each day, to all stamped [airmail or regular], self-addressed, unstuffed, and unsealed covers received. Address your packages to Charles F. Harper, Secretary, Elkins, W. Va., and prepay with commemoratives if possible.

Cachets to commemorate the death of Edith Cavell, and the granting of self-rule to China, will be sponsored by N. A. Critchett, 370 Manhattan avenue, Apt. 6-B, New York, N. Y., and covers will be mailed from Brussels and Shanghai, respectively. Collectors are requested to obtain information from Mr. Critchett.

The motor schooner Philatelist will be christened soon at San Francisco, Cal. E. C. Sharpe, Dollar Steamship building, San Francisco, Cal., will apply a cachet to stamped, self-addressed, unstuffed, and unsealed covers received by Oct. 5. Limit of one cover and it must be a standard 6¾ size envelope.

To commemorate the founding of Bishop Hill, Ill., Evelyn S. Craig, postmaster, will apply a cachet to all covers, stamped and addressed, which are received by Sept. 23. Bishop Hill was founded as a Swedish communistic settlement in 1846 and maintained that status until the civil war.

Overwork Is Dire Menace to Mother's Poise

are partly or entirely out of a parents control.

One would need to be a superwoman to be stronger than some circumstances, and few of us are superwomen. We can do a tremendous amount if we have the will, but we cannot override all obstacles. Our triumphs are of necessity only partial ones.

Small Income Is Basis of Problem.

But it is not about those rather special circumstances that we're going to talk today. It is instead about that simple one which is the lot of far too many mothers—much too small an income, which is usually synonymous with overwork and overtiredness.

But it's not the occasional tiredness that creates a problem. Or at least it shouldn't be. The mother isn't worth her salt who can't control the irritability or shortness of temper that accompanies the occasional overfatigue that follows a too busy day. But with the mother who is always overworked, who is chronically tired, it's another story.

For when you're overworked and tired all the time you're not normal.

"I feel so depressed, and I know that when I get well I won't be able to cope with things," said a woman who was ill to her husband, who was a doctor.

"O, yes you will," he answered. "You always forget, when you're having one of these attacks, that it's hard for your mind and emotions to be normal when your body isn't."

Tiredness Destroys Perspective and Sense of Humor.

So it is when you're continually overworked and tired out. It's hard then even—to see clearly—to hold your love of fun and your sense of humor—and to keep your perspective.

When you're in that state little things that the children do, but shouldn't, seem big. And things that are really big seem absolutely mountainous. Actions that you wouldn't notice or would laugh away—noises that you wouldn't hear—situations that you could manage with a turn of your wrist and your eyes shut if you were yourself become unbearable when you're always overtired.

Then your smiles become less frequent, frowns take their place, your temper grows short, and even your voice may change. The children are hurt, or bewildered, or unhappy, or withdraw from you, and they become less and less manageable. And often actual problems in behavior arise.

It is quite true, though, that the same circumstances won't tire out all women equally. The housework and cares that will floor one woman will be handled with ease by another.

Then there are the two opposites—the woman who loves housework and the woman who hates it. And I'm not speaking of "homemaking," the art, but of housekeeping, the mechanical job. The woman who loves housework is not so apt to be tired by it. But we all know that work we abhor is apt to set up a resistance that wears us down.

Self Pity Devastating to Poise and Serenity.

In writing articles or in giving advice in letters I have in mind always that the average mother has her hands full, and that ideal circumstances, as far as home surroundings, income, and family relationships are concerned, are the exception, not the rule. So, with this real understanding of her difficulties, I believe I can make a few suggestions to the mother who is overworked which may bring relief to her, even if, in the pessimistic attitude that accompanies her state, she doesn't think it possible.

First, don't be sorry for yourself. Self-pity is devastating. Next, be ready to size up your situation with a cool, appraising eye! Perhaps, for instance, in your case overwork isn't due to too much work. And perhaps your overtiredness isn't necessary.

If you would like to check up on yourself, we have just written a leaflet containing hints which might be helpful. A stamped, self addressed envelope will bring it to you.

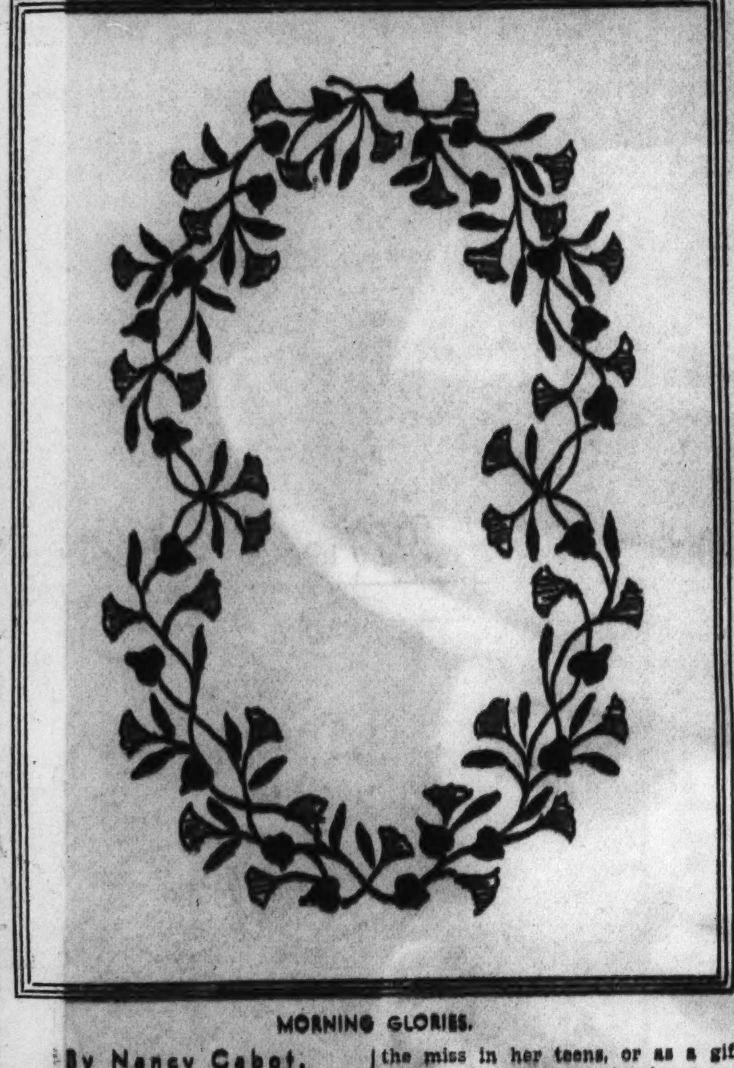
Morning Glory Block Provides Range of Quilting Ingenuity



MORNING GLORIES.

By Nancy Cabot.

"MORNING GLORIES" is a divergence from the usual form of quilt blocks offered in these columns and it affords an excellent opportunity for quilting ingenuity. Modern manufacturers have given us materials with colors as true as the blooms themselves. This quilt is ideal for the miss in her teens, or as a gift for the girl who is starting her trousseau. This quilt is not difficult to applique, and the patches are simple to cut.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

Eggplant Gives Special Thrill to Fall Menus

same mixture may be sautéed in a skillet, forming flatter, more regular pats.

Baked, stuffed eggplant is another seasonal possibility that simply can't be overlooked. We've two special favorites among all the eggplant dishes of a lifetime, and they go like this:

STUFFED EGGPLANT DE LUXE.

1 medium eggplant
1 tablespoon chopped onion
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
3 tablespoons bacon drippings
⅔ cup coarse, dry crums
½ cup tomato pulp
¼ cup chopped broiled bacon
1 egg
¼ cup grated cheese

Parboil the whole eggplant for 5 minutes. Cut in halves lengthwise and scoop out the center, leaving a shell about a half inch thick. Chop the removed inner portion and sauté with the onion in the hot bacon fat for 10 minutes. Season and blend with the bread crums, tomato pulp, chopped crisp bacon, slightly beaten egg, and grated cheese. Refill the two shells, sprinkle with additional crums, buttered, and bake in a hot oven, 400 degrees F., for 30 minutes.

EGGPLANT TURQUE.

3 small eggplants
1 tablespoon minced onion
3 tablespoons salad oil
3 tablespoons uncooked rice
½ clove garlic, chopped fine
1 cup well seasoned tomato sauce
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1 egg
Buttered bread crums

Halve the eggplants lengthwise and fry in deep fat at a temperature of 370 degrees F. for 10 to 12 minutes. Drain the fried halves and scoop out the inside, leaving a half inch shell. Sauté the minced onion in the hot oil until yellow, add the rice and garlic, and continue cooking for 5 minutes. Mix with the diced eggplant scooped from the halves, the tomato sauce, salt, and nutmeg. Bake this mixture for 45 minutes in a 350 degrees F. oven. After baking, mix with the well beaten egg and stuff the eggplant shells with the mixture. Sprinkle with buttered crums and return to the oven until the crums are browned.

Air Conditioning Unit Bars Pollen

AN air conditioning unit which completely air conditions three rooms in a loop hotel, this scientific equipment not only cools and removes excessive moisture from the air, circulates and cleans it, but also filters the air which enters the rooms, thus removing pollen, that pollen which causes so much misery to hay fever sufferers.

Scientific strides are carrying us rapidly ahead in this air conditioning field. Such a unit as shown above, in conjunction with the air filter, also can heat and humidify the rooms in winter. Indoor comfort and health are the aims of modern air conditioning in its complete form. And when, to heating and cooling, washing and circulation, dehumidifying and humidifying, one adds such a filter as shown above, one may be assured of pure, health affording air.

It is claimed now, that by the use of an adequate air filter in a room, much relief, and sometimes quite complete relief, is afforded to those suffering from hay fever.

Don't Be Fat!

says IRENE RICH
Lovely Lady of the Screen

"DRINK 4 GLASSES OF WELCH'S DAILY EAT SENSIBLY THAT'S ALL!"

Tests, under a leading doctor's direction, prove that now you can safely lose fat the Welch way—pleasantly, too—without diet or exercise.

Simply mix ¾ Welch's with ¼ glass plain water. Drink a glassful before every meal and one before retiring. Then eat sensibly—that's all! Weight goes down; you actually build quick new energy at same time. So there's no strain, no discomfort. Soon you look—and feel—like a new person!

The reason is simple. For the sugar in delicious Welch's Grape Juice is the same kind the blood uses for energy. It is quickly, easily burned. It not only helps the body burn up fat, but also satisfies craving for rich, sweet foods. Hence, it helps you lose weight naturally. Get Welch's from your dealer today. Drink 4 glasses a day—eat sensibly. Keep fatigue and fat away.

Beware of Cheap Substitutes

Get only genuine Welch's. For the secret Welch process retains the essential healthful properties of ripe Concord Grapes. Welch's is also one grape juice that is Certified-Pure, Pasteurized; contains no adulterants, no artificial coloring, no preservatives, no added water. Always full strength. Can be diluted and still be delicious. Hence Welch's goes farther, too. Ask for it by name.

Irene Rich, past 40, still has her slim, lovely figure of 16.

Proper Use of Color Is New Beauty Field

Loveliness Is Especially Dependent on Hues of Wardrobe and Makeup.

By Antoinette Donnelly.

WHAT would be your guess as to the one almost totally unexplored field by means of which every woman may become more beautiful?

Pogany injects into his remarks a hint of future beauty guidance, relative to color. The color photography of the future will have an important influence on the makeup and dress colors of the world. From the "Becky Sharp" movie one already learned about the effect of color tones in the general ensemble of the stars.

Use of Color for Beauty Still Is Unknown Field.

Pogany says that color still is almost an unknown field. Only recently has any attempt been made to study and organize it. There are few color experts, even among painters, who have not been in the habit of hitting upon a scheme that pleases and then becoming stereotyped with it.

It's no wonder, then, thinks Pogany, that color in dress and makeup is woman's weakest point. Certainly she is not to blame, he extenuates, for not making the most of its possibilities, when even famous painters have to use hit or miss methods before they can get the desired effects.

Bette Davis and Dolores Del Rio, stars of widely different types, are two of Pogany's favorite examples whom he uses as illustrations for telling the average woman what to do and what not to do in the realm of color.

Two Stars Entirely Different Types of Beauty and Coloring.

Bette is the perfect, petite blonde, Pogany explains. Dolores is the opposite; stately, dark, exotic. Between them they cover all the territory except that of the red heads, who comprise a small minority. Therefore, to use Bette and Dolores as a basis for remarks designed for the average woman supplies a fairly universal application.

Bette, with her blue eyes, blonde hair, and white skin, is exceedingly feminine. Feminine as to figure, too, with sloping, graceful shoulders so often seen in paintings. These are the qualities she must emphasize. Her makeup should be suggestively delicate in coloring. Nothing emphatic. Girls like Bette should avoid highly colored lip rouge, which will kill the type entirely. On the other hand, Dolores Del Rio can stand a strong, dark lip rouge.

The Bette type is strongly advised against penciling on the eyebrows. The Del Rio might be given latitude in this respect, that is, if any latitude ever should be extended. But the anti-penciled blonde brow objection is based on the fact that, when the eyes are light, artificiality ruins them, makes them hard.

White Skinned Blonde Should Wear Makeup That Is Warm.

General makeup color on the white skinned blonde should be warm, delicate, on the creamy side, Pogany hints. The "drowned mouse" or utterly bedraggled look of so many blondes comes from the use of cold makeup colors. By which Pogany explains his meaning to be that the more yellow in the makeup, the warmer it is; the more purplish, the colder it is. The brunette like Del Rio may be pale or flamboyant, as she wishes, without losing any of her charm.

Pogany joins the crusade against strong lip rouge and its too lavish use. He says it destroys the modeling of the lips. It is unnatural. The dark, vivid type, true, can get away with more of it than can a blonde, but overdone, says Pogany, it always reminds him of a black hole in a blanket.

Artist Advises How One May Determine Best Colors to Wear.

Use rouge, yes, with the artist Pogany's hearty indorsement. In our modern day the city girl has no opportunity to get color elsewhere. A Bette Davis type of blonde should use rouge with the "warm" color accent, perhaps a delicate orange, but none with blue, red, or purple in it.

To determine our best colors, Pogany advises deciding upon the individual skin color. This he divides into white, pink and white, creamy, pink, golden, and olive. The best way to find this out is to hold two pieces of material against the face, one of pinkish hue and one of olive. Then the skin will take on the complementary color so clearly that any one with a good color sense will have no trouble in deciding the category which should form the basis of her wardrobe's color scheme.

"Your dress always will throw your facial skin toward the complementary shade," Pogany comments, "or from warm to cold, unless, of course, the material is so shiny that it reflects itself upon your skin. In a red dress the face will take on a more olive cast than it really has. With yellow the skin changes to a purplish shade. So the thing to do is to find out the natural skin tone and emphasize it by the complementary color to your gown.

Trying to attain a complete harmony in one color, Pogany thinks, is difficult. He likes the modern tendency to put all sorts of colors into one costume, a practice which, he says, "helps to kill the face complement if it is disagreeable."

Another interesting way to find the complementary color, Pogany divulges, is to take a piece of white paper, put a blotch of color on it, stare at it a while and then cover it up with another sheet of white paper. The complement will appear at the next glance as a sort of "halation."

Navy blue, black, and dark brown are safe neutral colors for the average woman, because they will not interfere with the complexion. White, Pogany, thinks, is a dangerous color and to be avoided by white skinned blondes because it makes them too pale.

For Dolores Del Rio, green with a silvery cast gives an appearance of sweetness and naïveté, while emerald and jade make her vivid and startling. Scarlet and metallic gold do the same thing. In brown and dull black she is nunlike and severe. In tans she is quiet and demure, and glinting coppery browns and lustrous blacks give her elegance.

Bette Davis, in warm ivory, is sweet and girlish; in emerald green she is striking; to be demure, yellow would best serve her, and to be nunlike the darker tones of beige and brown would be recommended to her by Pogany.

Silhouette lines do not escape the artist's observation. Says he: "If you get the wrong color you can doctor up your makeup. But no makeup will cover up bad lines."

Soft Woolen Fashions This Tailored Frock Ideal for Office or Campus.

By Clotilde.

BOTH the business girl and the young woman completing her wardrobe for college will welcome this smart addition to the realm of winter fashions, and the model is so simple to sew that even the novice may attempt it with the greatest success. Sleeve details usually are the most difficult with which to cope when one is creating a dress, and this pattern obviates this possibility by having the sleeves cut in one with the shoulder line.

The original of this pattern, No. 2634, is created in soft rabbit's hair woolen, in rust and brown shades. The novel buttons carry out the brown color motif, and the belt is of brown suede.

Velveteen, wool jersey, and wool-like silks are other fabric suggestions for this most practical frock for late autumn and winter.

Style No. 2634 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years. Size 16 requires 3⅝ yards of 39 inch material for a frock with long sleeves.

Clothes conscious? Of course you are! And the autumn and winter edition of the Chicago Tribune Book of Clotilde Fashions is right on time to guide your seasonal wardrobe to the latest in style. Coats, day and evening frocks, indispensable tips on fabrics and colors, and fashion news for the youngest set, all are presented in this fascinating volume, now on sale for 15 cents, 10 cents when ordered with a pattern. Hand Knit Rug Boasts All Virtues of Ideal Nursery Floor Covering

By Jean Macdonald.

KNITTING now enters the home to become a part of the scheme of interior decoration in the form of rugs. Especially in the children's nursery are these hand knitted rugs a boon. They are soft and smooth for the baby to play on and they do not gather the dust as does a pile rug. Most important—they launder beautifully.

Not only for infants' quarters but for other rooms does this rug do stanch duty. In the bathroom, for the sun porch, for some types of bedrooms and as scatter rugs they are extremely attractive, knitted either in solid colors or stripes. The rug illustrated today was made for a nursery which was decorated in white, and it furnished the only color spot in the room. The stripes were lemon yellow, china blue, white, and scarlet. Large needles and heavy wool work up quickly. The rug, when finished, measures 36 by 60.

HOW TO ORDER

If you wish instruction for knitting the striped rug, illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Jean Macdonald, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago. Be sure to send name and address with your letter.

Coming Home

By Eleanor Jewett.

I do not like to say "good-by"
And yet I must to butterfly
And buzzing bee and spider black
And tell them I shall not be back.

The car is waiting at the door.
We have to drive a day or more
To go from summer into fall,
And I don't like the change at all!

It's sweater now and heavy coat
And "button it around your throat"—
You'd see me driving every day
TOWARD summer, if I had my way.

THIS WEEK IN THE GARDEN

Monday, Sept. 16.

It is an excellent time to observe the kinds of hardy roses that are blooming. The colors are more intense than at any other time, and a selection can be made. Some of the hybrid perpetuals are the best and most dependable for the home garden. Transplant pansies sown some time ago into frames for protection during winter. Fine plants will be ready for planting next spring. Frost may be expected around Sept. 20, and it is wise to move material ready for protection of tender plants. Plant a few bulbs of paper-white and yellow paper-white narcissus bulbs in bowls of pebbles and water. They make fine displays for the house.

Tuesday, Sept. 17.

Many kinds of perennials may be increased from cuttings at this time. The small, short growths along the stems may be removed and rooted in sand and later transplanted. Make the lawn now before it is too late. Apply a good commercial fertilizer to the lawn to stimulate growth. This will enable it to pass through the winter with a minimum of injury. Do not delay in planting autumn crocus. It is a good subject for the rock garden. The bulbs make an interesting novelty when flowered on a saucer, for they will bloom without soil.

Wednesday, Sept. 18.

Do not neglect to make a plan for planting shrubs and perennials. It is economical to have a plan which may be changed as occasion demands. About this time many kinds of hardy annuals may be sown for flowering early next season. Much time is saved and the plants have a good start. Among these annuals are bachelor's button, California poppy, tickseed, larkspur, sweet alyssum, and others of a similar nature. Buy ferns for house culture now.

Thursday, Sept. 19.

Climbing nasturtiums may be enjoyed for some time if cut into long lengths and placed in water to which is added a bit of charcoal and salt water. Add fresh water as required. Before severe weather see that all plants are securely labeled. There is nothing quite as annoying as to find labels missing in springtime. If home grown seeds are saved see that they are thoroughly dried. Spread them on a newspaper while drying and the seeds will drop from the pods. Tomatoes and similar pulpy pods should be washed and the seeds extracted before drying.

Friday, Sept. 20.

Order Japanese lily bulbs to insure that you have them. Keep down all insects by spraying, remove all rubbish, and keep the place up to the minute at all times. Mixing them with wood ashes will hasten the decomposition of leaves and the formation of leafmold. Acid phosphate scattered over a pile of decaying vegetation will kill maggots, prevent flies from breeding, and destroy the odor.

Saturday, Sept. 21.

Washing the hands with naphtha soap is said to prevent infection from poison ivy. Keep newly planted evergreens watered to prevent drying out. If the corn plant is growing too large cut off the top, tie up the leaves, and insert the top in water or a pot of sandy soil or pure sand. Place in a warm spot, but in direct sunlight, and roots will appear, after which the cutting should be potted in rich soil, well drained.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Women who have tailored suits are wearing them again, and the printed dresses and straw hats which still clog the streets seem jaded and unappetizing. September is the reigning month of the jacket, whether it is part of a suit or something to wear over a dress.

Fashion and fashion makers have little to do with the thing, though they keep on conceding the rights of the jacket ensemble to first place for this month and next. The Paris fraternity of style creators once more manages to turn out new jacket ensembles with what must be enthusiasm, they are so fresh and attractive.

Dolman Jacket Worn with Woolen Frocks.

Any woman with a simple, strictly tailored suit or a jacket and dress on hand can bridge the seasons in September and October without any important outlay, and be chic as the best of them. The plain suit and the dress with a swagger jacket are perennial in fashions these late years.

In the way of new jacket ensembles there are a few striking costumes in Paris. The dolman jacket, which is no longer than the normal waistline, worn with an uncomplicated woolen frock, appears different when I see it along the avenues of Paris. This is a new style, and one distinctly September. The sports suit, so called, with a dark jacket buttoned up on ten buttons, double breasted style, and a striped skirt, is a second style item that has come in with the asters and the goldenrod. A third jacket ensemble in the ranks of fresh styles is the woolen dress with a cutaway jacket made of flat fur and trimmed largely with cloth.

Parisiennes and tourists coming back to Paris from London are wearing tweed suits that are as bright as a beach costume. Such mixtures of color as red with Veronese green, woven into staid and husky tweed, give to the tweed suit a style value. A blouse, shirtmaker type, made of the red or the green, is worn with this suit. Women order two blouses, one of each color, when they can.

Berets Swoop Upward and Outward.

The beret has recaptured its lead in millinery, now that the suit and jacket ensemble is on and going strong. The new berets swoop up and out in front in a way that makes them unlike berets of the past. The milliners got this beret from the Italian paintings shown in Paris in summer. Swagger felt hats repeat their spring success, and are worn with the tailored suits I see everywhere. Draped turbans—and what years it has been since they were in fashion!—are worn by the most fashionable of the women in Paris with jacket ensembles of the more formal, or dressy, kind.

Slippers that come up in a long point, narrowing from the tips of the toes to a strap around the ankles, and with moderately low heels, are the best shoe fashion for fall. They look a little bit like the pointed slippers worn by court jesters ages ago, but they are not the least bit comic. They make any foot look longer and more slender.

Short gloves are the fashionable kind to wear with jacket ensembles. There is but one exception, the dolman jacket, which is worn with quite long gloves.

Carbon Paper Blue a Supremely Smart Shade.

Excepting the gaudy tweeds from across the English channel, jacket ensembles and suits this fall are rather quiet and sober in shade. The new dark, carbon paper blue I have spoken of before is a supremely smart color for these September suits. Rich Veronese green, sienna, or red-brown, dark wine red, and black are the shades that make the best ensembles of this type.

The Maggy Rouff jacket ensemble, shown in No. 1, is made of Veronese green semi-sheer wool, and it has that dolman jacket mentioned as a new fashion. The halo collar and the wide, sleeve bands are bordered with black Alaskan seal fur. The jacket is so short that the wide draped girdle of the dress shows. It fastens on a big square buckle set with red and blue and green stones. The dress has flowing Renaissance sleeves and a round, flat collar. Its skirt is widened with circular cutting.

No. 2 is Marcel Rochas' swagger jacket and dress ensemble that is trimmed with bands of black astrakhan, interlarded with narrow bands of rose and green velvet. This trimming covers the large revers of the jacket and the small band collar. It also stripes the big, triangular shaped patch pockets on the dress. A scarf of the black wool of the ensemble, striped with rose and green velvet, is tucked into the square neckline of the frock. The buttons, square with knobbed corners, are made of black patent lether, and the wool belt is fastened with a patent lether lattice buckle.

No. 3 is a green wool frock from Maggy Rouff, with sleeves set halfway up the shoulder in plaits, and a blouse buttoned down the back, and a skirt with three box plaits. The jacket of black Alaskan seal has a standing collar and revers covered with padded rolls of the green wool, and the cutaway lower edge is covered with a band made of these padded cloth rolls.

No. 4 is a suit from Lucile Paray made of carbon paper blue wool. The hiplength jacket has a wide, draped collar of black astrakhan, and the front of the jacket below is almost covered with the same fur. The cloth belt has a gold buckle. The soft blouse is made of pale blue crinkled crêpe with a jabot effect under the chin and large sleeves.

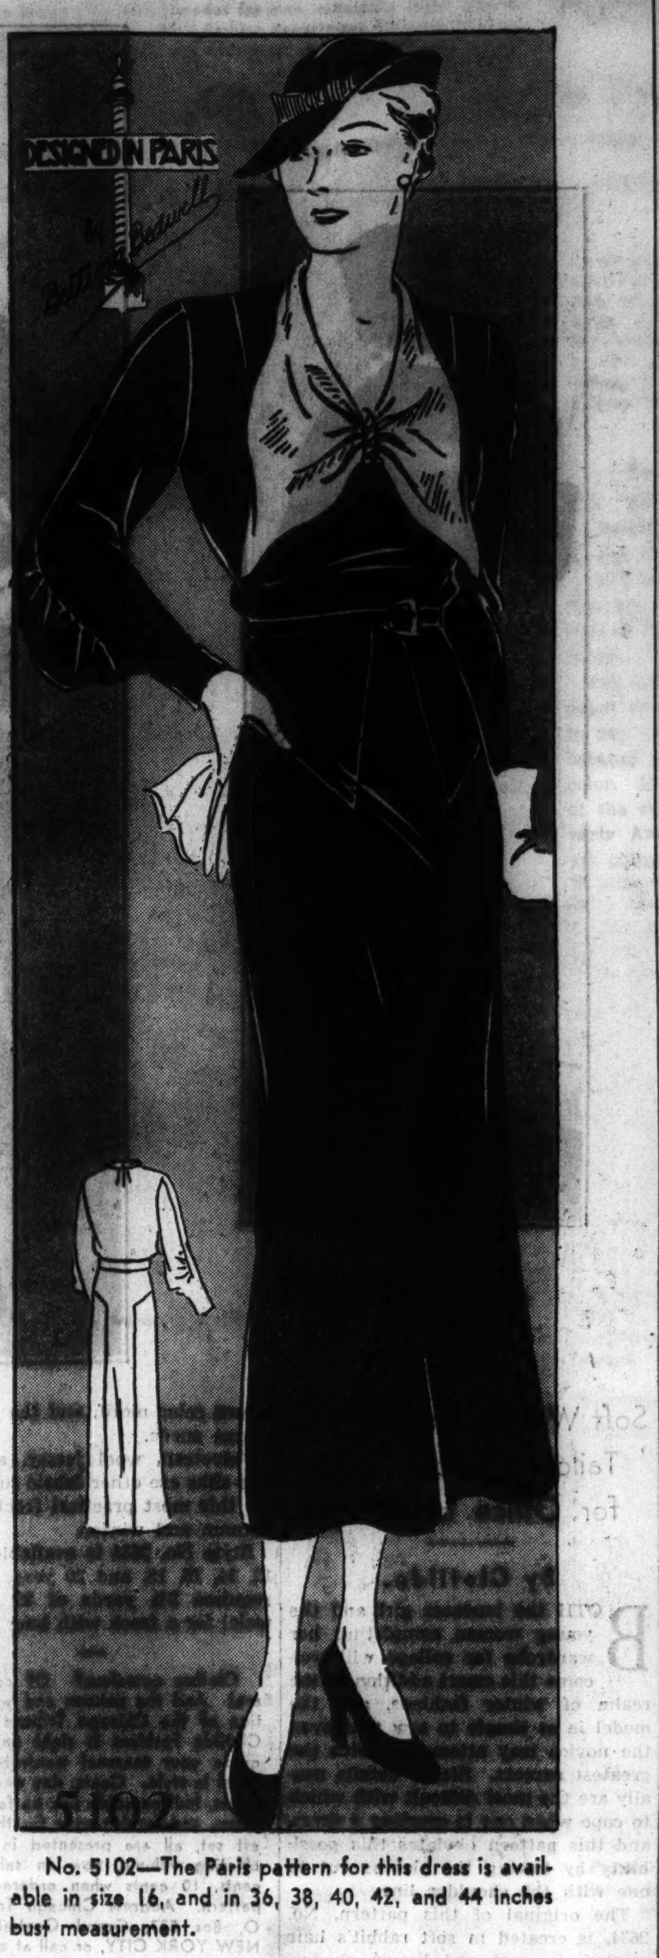
Simplicity Paramount Chic of Paris Pattern Matron's Frock



No. 5102—The Paris pattern for this dress is available in size 16, and in 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measurement.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—This is a simple Paris model that wears a lot of chic on its sleeves and neckline, and which is particularly becoming to the woman with a matronly figure. It is a dress with which one can begin the autumn, and which can be worn into the winter under a heavy coat. The pattern, No. 5102, is not difficult to make, and the frock will be suitable for afternoons, for church, and for simple parties.

The original Paris model of this dress was made of a heavy silk crêpe in black, and the butterfly jabot, which is shirred in the center and falls in flattering soft folds, was made of pale pink crêpe de chine. The pink jabot would be charming with a dark red dress, a dark brown, or a navy blue. The jabot may well be made of the material of the dress, if you choose crêpe de chine.

Sheer wool also adapts itself nicely to this model, with a silk or white lingerie jabot.

The sleeves, gathered near the elbows at the back, are charming and are a type of the smart large sleeve that the matronly woman can wear.

A FRIEND IN NEED

Articles for Which You Have No Further Use Will Assist the Poor and Ill Who Request Them in Making Their Daily Lives Livable and Enjoyable.

By Sally Joy Brown.

LITTLE Violet May needs a chair. If your youngster is now able to use an average size chair, wouldn't you like to pass on the discarded one? The child's parents live on the south side of the city and her father now is looking for employment after having spent some time in a veteran's hospital. Her mother recently was released from a tuberculosis sanitarium after a stay of eight months. A case worker from an organization which has been helping the family made the appeal.

Mr. M. is suffering from pulmonary tuberculosis, and is receiving treatment at a dispensary. It is necessary for him to attend the clinic regularly every two weeks. He is the father of four lovely children, one of whom is enrolled in the CCC. His earnings are expended for food and rent, and there is absolutely no provision for clothing. If some reader can supply Mr. M. with a suit, size 38, he will be able to continue his regular visits to the clinic.

Mrs. J. W. writes from the north side: "I wonder if one of your readers has a baby carriage no longer in use that I could have? My baby is 7 months old and is almost too heavy to carry. I have been ill since his birth, and he has been denied much sunshine and fresh air because I am unable to take him out. Due chiefly to my illness, we cannot afford to buy a buggy and I would greatly appreciate your help in obtaining one."

T. M., who has been without employment for many months, now is badly in need of clothing. He is 5 feet 8, weighs 125 pounds. He has no coat and his trousers are well patched. He feels that his appearance is a drawback in his search for work. He will be glad to call for a suit.

From a case worker: "Mrs. U. is a widowed mother with 10 children. Her husband died four years ago and her oldest son, 19 years old, has irregular work and is the only one employed. The family recently moved into a new flat, but there is barely enough furniture to supply their needs. Dressers, chairs, and living room furniture especially are needed. There are two girls attending high school, and four younger children, little girls, who have no toys of any kind. Perhaps some of your readers have articles to contribute to this family, who are anxious to have a decent home."—M. B.

From a worried mother: "Dear Miss Brown: I am writing to you in the hope of receiving some help. I have a 2½ year old girl and a baby boy just 2 months old. I take both the children to an infant welfare station, and find it difficult without a buggy. You see, the reason I appeal to you is that we are not on relief, and whatever my husband makes, whenever he gets a small job, goes for our food, extra milk since the new baby came, gas, electricity, etc., so there's nothing much left. We all need clothing, etc., but I am asking only for a buggy, because the baby needs fresh air badly, and can't get it upstairs on the second floor, where we live in a damp and stuffy room." Mrs. W. K.

Fashion Dips Fall Ensembles Deep in Color

By Rhea Seeger.

INSPIRED by old Italian canvases, by glowing oil paintings of court beauties and dandies, in whose costumes rich fabrics combined with colors that matched flaming sunsets in splendor, the newest of fall fashions are gorgeous collections to inspect. Gowns and ensembles display strange, rich colors. Cinnamon browns, mustard golds, deep green-bronzes, and royal purples in every fabulously lovely shade from amethyst to plum are just a few tones that will keep you using your best adjectives of appreciation.

It's the royal season of color. Bold, blazing creations make a living pageant or tapestry out of any social event that draws huge crowds of fashionably dressed women. Changeable two-toned velvets that flow from a draped décolletage to long flowing skirtline, opulent brocades that shimmer under lights, swishing taffetas—those that are stiff enough to stand alone—and the suave new favorites, soft, silken things that merely whisper when you move.

New Velvet Guaranteed Against Crushing.

Or you may choose sleek, clinging, rich satins to use for the intricately draped costumes, or novelty silks with twinkling threads of cellophane or silver and gold metal threads shining in vertical or horizontal lines, depending upon the way your gown is cut and draped.

There's a noncrushable new velvet, fully guaranteed against any abuse; velvet that stays smooth and unwrinkled no matter how long you wear it. The velvets of old fashioned glory, velvets combined with metal, velvet brocades, velvets with dots, bumps, and small self patterns; velvets in two colors, velvet using three and even four contrasting or harmonizing color to achieve an elegance never obtainable since the clothes-loving court ladies during the régime of the French Louis' used uncounted bolts of the most lavish fabrics to be found.

Silks also become doubly decorative. They have designs in color contrast, metallic stripes, checked patterns, or embroidered dots. Silk and velvet combines are lovelier than ever. One may find floral patterns of velvet against silk, stripes of velvet, dots and small geometric designs combined with either contrasting colored silk or self-colored silk backgrounds.

Chicago shops are filled with sumptuous creations using all these fall of '35 fabrics . . . afternoon costumes comprising a dress and a matching jacket; dinner gowns consisting of long, form revealing gown with extremely low cut necklines and a separate jacket that transforms this low gown into a costume for dinner. Satin rich velvets and gleaming, glittering costumes of colorful brocade make these breathtaking gowns.

Striped Satin Is Quaint and Picturesque.

Lower left: Picturesque and extremely young, this rib hugging gown of satin. It has a most revealing square neckline. The outline of the square cut top uses the narrow plaitings of the gay striped satin jacket. Unusual use of the striped satin is responsible for the picturesque quality of the quaintly styled full model with full, long sleeves ending in flared cuffs. The gown fits princess silhouette. One version is done in shiny black satin.

The long photograph at the right of the page shows the richest of brocades without a single bit of trimming to over-dramatize this rich material. In one model the brocade is rose red patterned in gold. A skirtline that flares moderately around the floorline, an extremely high neckline in front, held in the center ruffle with a barbaric pin, and long, deep arm holes outlined with a short cap sleeve effect are the highlights of the design. A deep, cutout back completes the silhouette streamline.

These are typically the best of the fall fashions to be unpacked and ready for the appraising eyes of shoppers.

Laundry Room an Apt Subject for Remodeling

Calcimined Walls, Painted Floors, Curtained Windows Transform It.

Are you interested in keeping warm this winter at minimum cost? Send for a new booklet by Louise Bargelt, "Keeping Warm—For Less Money," which discusses both major and small ways by which we can make our homes weather-resistant. It is 3 cents by mail and 2 cents at Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn and Tribune Tower.

By Louise Bargelt.

THE owner of an attractive little laundry room, damp proof, well lighted, prettily decorated, and filled with equipment which does the work thoroughly and as nearly automatically as possible, has a good reason to be thankful every week the year round!

It is quite evident that more women are realizing the value of a mechanically equipped laundry room. An increasing interest is being shown in this once ugly duckling of the house, the family laundry room.

By far the greatest number of laundry rooms are in the basement. And since more and more families are descending to the cellar for fun, modernizing basements and old storage spaces, the laundry room has come into the line of trafic. No reason either why any one should have to close the laundry door hastily when the guests flock down to the rumpus room. Wall board and paint, simple floor coverings, adequate lighting fixtures and effective curtaining of windows—and there is no laundry which cannot step into line with the space around it.

Plentiful Tables, Shelves, and Racks Important.

Most of our older basements are so large that the laundry room doesn't need to do double duty. Our washing machine and ironer, our laundry trays and driers, tables and stove can occupy stationary places week in and week out. The shelves or cupboards can be neatly packed with all the supplies necessary in laundering; so that when wash day comes round there will be no hurried hunt for soap or starch, stain remover or utensils.

We will have a sizable table or a broad shelf against the wall to sort our clothes, and to sprinkle them afterwards, a low table or rack for the basket after the clothes have been wrung, an overhead drier, perhaps, which can be pulled up and out of the way when not in use, and small tables on casters for clothes baskets—to save stooping and lifting. Even a mechanical clothes drying cabinet—so we can laugh at the weather!

But—if we haven't space enough for a complete laundry room, which is just that and nothing more, there is abundant equipment on the market which makes it possible for the room to play "laundry" on wash and ironing day and serve as a lounging room and play space the rest of the week.

Flat Covers Transform Tubs Into Serving Tables.

Flat covers can conceal the laundry trays or built-in tubs—and there, also, is your buffet. The washing machine can be rolled away in a corner, perhaps even enclosed in a cabinet as good looking as a radio cabinet. There are cabinet ironers which make excellent tables for lamps or refreshments or books. There are other types of ironers which can be easily stowed away.

Washer and ironer manufacturers are giving a great deal of attention to the design and beauty of their products. These machines deserve a bright, fresh, cheerful background.

Then there is the first floor laundry. The first floor is, perhaps, the newest idea for laundry placement. It is probably the ideal place. The advantages of this first floor laundry, near the kitchen and yet separated, and with an outside entrance, are the labor saved in going up and down stairs, the time saved, the fact of its convenience if there are children to be looked after, and its proximity to phone and door bells!

Complete Laundry Room in Space 8 by 12½ Feet.

If one is remodeling or building a new house, he may gain some suggestions from a display recently featured in the east in an industrial arts exposition. A laundry room was installed by utilizing space 8 feet by 12½ feet on the first floor, adjoining the kitchen. Here was all the recognized equipment necessary for the laundry room, with a specially designed sorting table with a hinged top which folded back to reveal bins to hold articles to be washed. There was also a correct posture chair for the woman sitting at the ironer.

In a model house recently opened in New York, there was a laundry room for "all week use." This is called the "clothery." It is a room 9 by 10 feet, so compactly arranged that family clothes can be made, repaired, laundered, and ironed in its confines. There is the housewife's desk, phone, typewriter, and radio. The table on casters is equally convenient to cut out clothes or to sort them for washing, or for reserve space when guests come and additional serving space is necessary. The washing machine and laundry tubs' covers are the same height as the table, thus furnishing more auxiliary kitchen service space.

Charm of Room Will Lessen Drudgery.

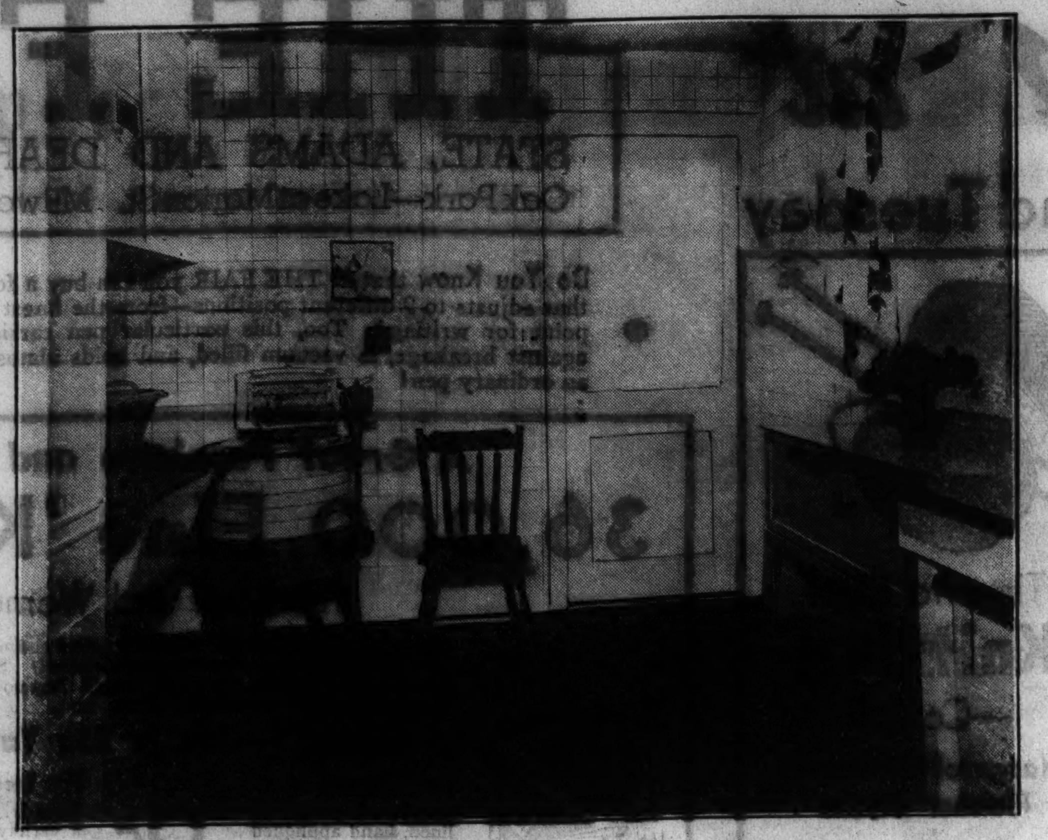
In any remodeling in a home, an inventory of the present laundry may result in the realization that a little planning and a little effort can achieve a great advance in the ease and comfort of laundry tasks.

That the laundry is a pleasant workroom means a lot! It's hard to work with battle scarred basement walls around one. A little whitewash or calcimine will transform them. The bleak stare of a concrete floor will be softened by a coat of paint. A drive on dim corners by good illumination will relieve the strain of working under inadequate lighting, and an electric fan placed somewhere to drive the air towards an open window will eliminate the fatigue caused by working in poorly ventilated quarters.

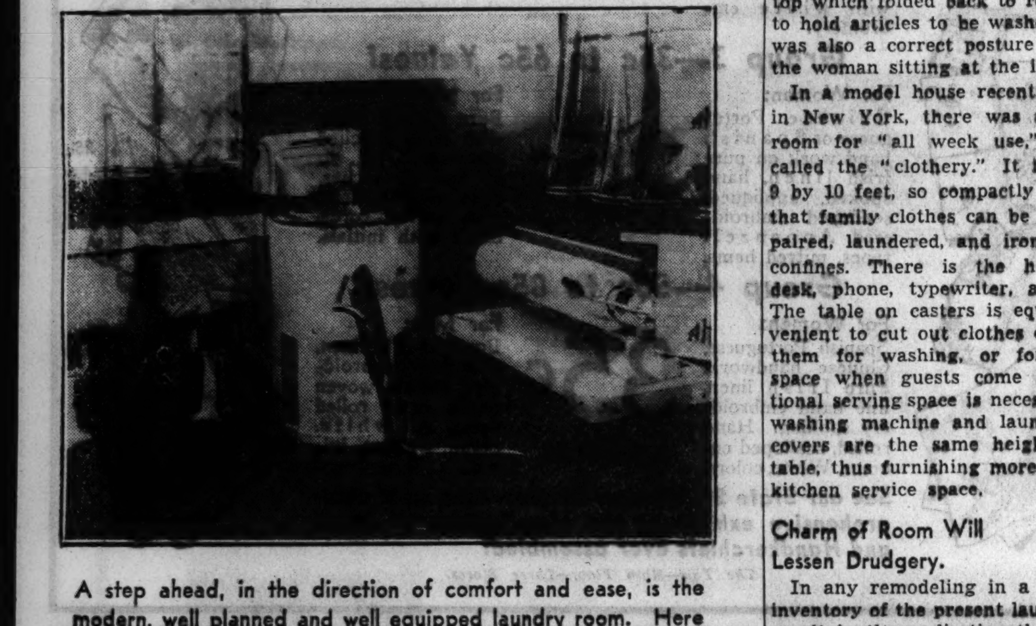
In a well equipped modern work room virtually all the operations of an average family laundering may be performed in a few hours, rather than in the "two days" of a score of years ago. Furthermore, these mechanical servants, such as the washing machine, the ironer, and the drier, work busily while the home mistress is making the beds, doing her dishes, and planning her meals.

For there are washing machines now which have not only built in thermometers to afford exact knowledge of how hot the water is, but a meter as well, to stop the machine at any predetermined moment—so that even a half hour's phone conversation won't wreck the wash, as the machine will obligingly cease operations at any time "set."

A DUAL PURPOSE BASEMENT



A basement laundry room, no longer the ugly duckling of the home, but a place of sparkling walls, composition floor, and laundry equipment to perform the arduous tasks of the weekly wash. It can "double" as recreation space, when not in active service, for trays can have covers, cabinet ironers appear as tables, and washing machines be rolled away when the day's work is done and the fun begins! After all's said—most laundry rooms are in the basement.



A step ahead, in the direction of comfort and ease, is the modern, well planned and well equipped laundry room. Here a waste hall end adjacent to the kitchen has been partitioned to make an attractive home laundry and save steps to cellar. A separate room off the kitchen is considered the ideal location for a laundry—especially if it has an outside door leading to the clothes line or space within it for a drying cabinet.

As neat as a broom cabinet, and not nearly so high, this modern ironer can be rolled anywhere the home mistress desires—since it is mounted on four casters and occupies no more space than a kitchen chair! It fits with equal ease in kitchenette apartment or modern home, and does duty as a table, too!

Reminiscent of days when Monday and Tuesday were bleak times, descending like a merciless blight on the busy housewife. For water must be pumped and the big wash scrubbed by hand. And the modern washing machine, ironer and drier, the present hand irons and sorting tables, built-in ironing boards and clothes chutes, soaps and bleaches were blessings undreamed of!

Household Hints

Mrs. Bargelt will be glad to answer questions concerning the care and repair of house.

Did you know that old stoves, both coal and gas, or electric burners, can be given an entirely new appearance with a black stove enamel—a fire resistant enamel—manufactured especially for this purpose? First the stove and burners must be washed with strong soap suds and well rinsed and dried. Then two coats of the enamel should be applied over the stove's principal surfaces, including back, hood, and ventilating pipes. For the trim, aluminum or bronze paint will be effective.

Did you know that basement game rooms are flaunting new and gayer color effects all the time? One unusual contrast is a yellow wall with orange trim. Again ivory walls can flaunt blue woodwork, with a darker blue for the game room floor. As for the basement pipes—if you can't conceal them—paint them to match the walls or the trim.

Venetian Blind Adaptable to Varied Schemes

Modern Product Is Easily Operated and Created in Wide Color Range.

"Learn About China Before You Buy," a booklet by Claire Winslow, explains the difference between earthenware and porcelain and tells a little about some of the famous wares: Wedgwood, Spode, Lenox, etc. It is 5 cents by mail, 3 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 S. Dearborn St. and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Claire Winslow.

VENETIAN blinds have been used for over a hundred years, but so many recent improvements have been made in them that they appear almost like a new product. Whereas before they were heavy, difficult to operate, and always of dark finished woods, they are now as light as a feather, so easy to lift and lower that a child can do it, and they may be had in all the delicate, lovely colors of the rainbow.

We're often asked the question: In what rooms may Venetian blinds be used? The answer is: In any room in the house. They are as practical and efficient for the kitchen as they are for the living and dining rooms. Another oft-repeated query is: If they are used in one room, must they be used in others, as well? No, this is not necessary. Some homeowners prefer them in the living and dining rooms. Others like them in the former room only, while still others use them in bedrooms. It is simply a matter of personal taste.

Venetian Blinds Contribute to Charm of Any Interior.

Windows are conspicuous in any interior. Have you ever noticed that on entering a strange room your eyes are immediately drawn to them? If they are treated harmoniously the whole decorative scheme is benefited. If they are not, it suffers. Any window is improved by Venetian blinds. They give it dignity and the beauty of color. They may match the tone of the walls, or contrast with it, as you wish. If the room is small and you want it to seem larger, let the blinds and walls be the same tint, and this preferably a light one, such as white, cream, yellow, beige, or pearl gray.

Or, in larger space, the blinds may contrast with the walls. They may, for instance, pick up one of the colors of the draperies. There are any number of tricks of decoration available to the woman who uses blinds.

Neither Glass Curtains nor Roller Shades Needed with Blinds.

Another nice feature: Neither glass curtains nor roller shades are needed. The former may, of course, be used if desired.

Are Venetian blinds expensive, readers ask. They are not cheap. Usually they are cut and made especially to fit your windows, and painted to carry out your color scheme. But when you realize they will last a lifetime if given ordinary care, the initial cost does not seem so great. They ordinarily are priced at about the sum of shade and awning combined.

From time to time the stores sell blinds already made up to fit several sizes of windows. These come in a few standard colors and may be had for less than those described above.

Excellent Construction and Materials Are Essential.

When you purchase Venetian blinds, examine the slats to make sure they are nicely finished, absolutely straight, and of well seasoned wood. Look at the cords and tapes to see they are strong, evenly dyed, and firmly woven. The best tapes are imported and last for many years.

Remember that in acquiring Venetian blinds you are getting efficient regulation of light, a splendid feature for your home. By tilting the slats you can admit as much light and air as you wish, you can temper the sun's glare while admitting the breezes, and you can be sure of privacy, for while you may look out, passersby cannot see in.

New Candlestick Has Cylindrical Chimney Section

WHEN the soft glow of candlelight seems to fit the mood of twilight suppers, a new type of candlestick for the modern hostess to use has a solid wooden block base that has circular grooves with which to hold tall cylindrical chimneys. These candlesticks are smart when used with gayly colored wooden salad bowls and plates that are having their place for smart buffet settings.

Another candlestick, but smaller in size, is made of chrome with a swanky, bright red cherry of good size for a handle. This candlestick also includes a glass cylinder chimney. Such lighting effects are soothing for sickroom vigils. Besides that, the glass chimney removes danger of ignition caused by drafts. This type of candlestick would be grand to use at Christmas time when the gesture of placing lighted candles in the window acts as a welcome beacon.

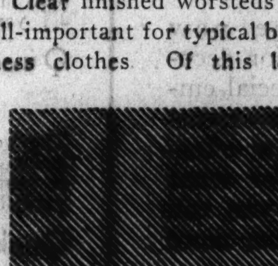
WE'VE passed through, only recently, a phase of fashion during which one had little more than a boarding house choice of fabrics for his suits.

The acceptance of definitly patterned woolens in rougher textured fabrics for sport clothing has been the forerunner of a general trend to patterned fabrics in appropriate textures for every purpose. No longer do we need to consider seriously the question of whether our new fall suit shall be a blue serge or a gray oxford. In fact, we won't consider them at all, but let's look at a most interesting group of fabrics, any of which, in a proper model, will prove to be a happy choice.

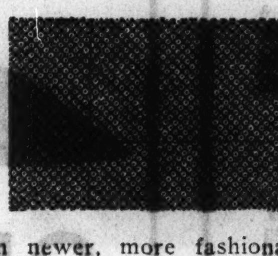
A NEW SLANT

Clear finished worsteds are all-important for typical business clothes. Of this long wearing fabric the most important is the diagonal weave in shades of blue-gray or brown-gray.



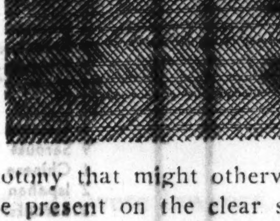
ADDED EFFECT

Another worsted favorite of the season is to be seen in the perennial sharkskin, but now in newer, more fashionable effects obtained by the addition of definitly colored oversquares on blue, brown, or gray grounds.



BROKEN UP

Adapted particularly for worsted fabrics is the herringbone pattern that takes its cue from the aforementioned diagonals. Avoiding the monotony that might otherwise be present on the clear surface of worsted, these new herringbones break with the usual repetition in the manner illustrated.



CHECKED FOR FASHION

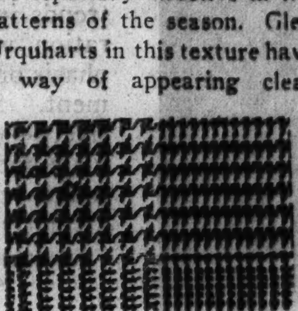
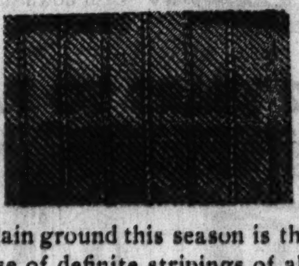
SMOOTH SAXONYS

The Saxony type fabrics are especially effective in the patterns of the season. Glen Urquharts in this texture have a way of appearing clear without being flagrantly bold. In black and white, or brown and tan, these glens follow fashion with colored overplaids.



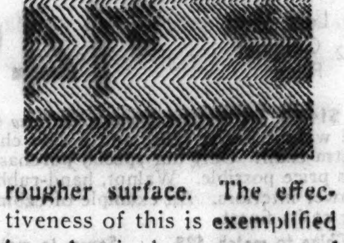
COLORFUL STRIPINGS

Nearest approach to anything that even resembles a plain ground this season is the use of definite stripings of alternate color on solid black, blue, or brown grounds. The otherwise somber shades are relieved by the bright colorings of the stripes.



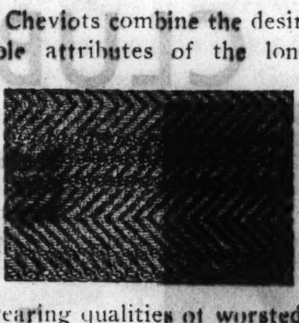
CLEAR BUT ROUGH

Shetland fabrics are known for their faculty of providing clear pattern effects in combination with a somewhat rougher surface. The effectiveness of this is exemplified in a herringbone pattern of definite black and white.



ROUGH AND TOUGH

Cheviots combine the desirable attributes of the long wearing qualities of worsted with the texture of wool. Here, again, the herringbone pattern, enhanced by a colorful stripe, is the basis of a smart effect.



Home Treatment for Keeping Skin Young

MERCOLIZED WAX is the one beauty aid you can afford because this single preparation embodies all the essentials of beauty that your skin needs. It cleanses, softens, bleaches, lubricates and protects. It is so simple to use, too. Just pat it on your skin each night as if it were an ordinary cold cream. That's all. Mercolized Wax seeps into your pores and dissolves grime and dust and all impurities. It absorbs the discolored surface skin in tiny, invisible particles, revealing the beautiful, soft, young skin that lies beneath. It clears away freckles, tan, oiliness, sunburn or any other blemishes. You use such a tiny bit of Mercolized Wax for each application that it proves an inexpensive beauty investment. Beauty cannot be taken for granted. It must be cared for regularly if you want to hold it through the years. Mercolized Wax brings out the hidden beauty of your skin.

POWDERED SAXOLITE dissolved in one half pint witch hazel quickly reduces wrinkles and other age signs. It is a refreshing, stimulating astringent lotion. Use it daily. At all drug and department stores.

MapleOccupies Unique Place as Furniture Wood

"Making the Most of the Dinette," a booklet by Edith Weigle, tells various ways of making this small room seem larger, explains the best furniture for the purpose, etc. It is 3 cents by mail, 2 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Edith Weigle.

IN this column recently we've looked at the merits of walnut and mahogany as furniture woods and told something of their qualities and characteristics. Today let's look at that extremely popular wood, maple.

You see it in every furniture and department store. It is inexpensive to buy and attractive in appearance because of its mellow, golden brown color. It is used to make furniture of the simple, informal type, mostly early American. But this fall you are going to see it fashioning pieces of pure modern design. These have been designed by Russel Wright for a well known eastern manufacturer and will be sold, a little later, in Chicago and elsewhere.

There are two kinds of maple, hard and soft. The hard varieties are called rock maple, sugar maple, and black maple. Hard maple grows throughout the area from Newfoundland to eastern North Dakota and south to the gulf, except in the peninsula of Florida. Its commercial range is confined to the lake states, the northeast, and the Appalachian mountains to northern Georgia. About sixty per cent of the hard maple used in furniture manufacture comes from Michigan and Wisconsin. It is considered much superior to soft maple, sometimes called red, silver, or swamp maple.

Seldom Has Figures in Grain.

Maple, as a rule, does not have wavy figures in the grain, although there are some few instances of this. Three distinctive, special figures are found in hard maple and, to some extent, in other varieties. These are birdseye, curly, and blister maple. They are accidental, occurring only in occasional trees, and the percentage obtained is small.

Some of the reasons why hard maple is one of the principal American furniture woods are its strength, its pleasing texture, and its ability to take a beautiful finish. It ranks with walnut and birch in its strength. Lift a well made maple chair and see how stanch and sturdy it feels. Furniture of good weight quality lasts longer, is more rigid, and resists hard usage better than that of light weight.

Few people realize they can tell a lot about furniture simply by lifting it—the weight test. Try it some time and see.

Slant Back Chairs Bring Greatest Comfort.

Most maple furniture is made of solid wood, although figured veneers may be used for drawer fronts, exposed panels, etc., for decorative effect. Soft maple is used relatively little in the industry.

Solid maple furniture is excellently made and beautifully finished. All edges are rounded and smoothed. The slant of the chair backs is not just a happy accident, but the result of a scientific study of forms that bring the greatest comfort to the body.

The Dramatic Story of the Constitution

Why Washington Lost His Temper—Madison's Classic Rebuke

After the lapse of six thousand years since the creation of the world, America now presents the first instance of a people assembled to say deliberately and calmly and to decide leisurely and peaceably on the form of government by which they will bind themselves and their posterity. JAMES WILSON.

By JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT

ONE way to make next Tuesday's celebration of the signing of the constitution of the United States more than a routine commemoration of a great state paper is to get at the humanity behind that paper.

Get at the men, their ways and their attributes, who put the constitution together during 116 days of the grilling summer and early autumn of 1787 in Philadelphia, where on muggy days the heat can be very trying.

From what walks of life came these 55 men, and who among them were foreign born?

Who was the oldest, who the youngest, and what was the average age?

How did it happen that of the 55 who either helped or hindered in the building of the constitution, only 39 signed it?

How many and what kind of speeches did these builders make, and why did General Washington lose his temper and scold the delegates in stately but scathing words?

How did undersized, squeaky-voiced James Madison—forever memorable by the classic description of him as "Father of the Constitution"—squelch a vociferous delegate by uttering the five words, "Lycia was such a one"?

And so on—endless homely, human ways and attributes.

It is right and profitable that in this anniversary week we should dwell upon the answers to such questions, because those intimate details and sidelights make the epochal document the intimate and, I hope, the dear possession of every American living in these anxious times.

Thomas Jefferson, author of the Declaration of Independence, who would have been one of the delegates had he not been absent in Europe on diplomatic service, called the members of the Constitutional convention "an assembly of demigods." But Mr. Jefferson, who sometimes inclined to o'erspacious statement, drew a long bow when he wrote those words.

The 55 were not demigods.

Had they been such they could not have fasnioned a form of government suitable to the needs—and the limitations—of a people that did not then and does not now dwell upon Olympian heights.

The 55 were for the most part a choice group of American citizens who took themselves and the heavy problems of a new nation very seriously. There was hardly a demagog nor a man of o'erweening ambition among them.

In his noble book, "The Constitution of the United States"—a work that ought to be on the bedside table of every American, man or boy—James Montgomery Beck, former solicitor general of the United States, the most eminent living constitutional lawyer and an ardent Shakespearean scholar, called them "a group of gentlemen of substance and honor."

Their occupations:

Of the 39 actual signers, 21 were lawyers, 2 farmers, 2 physicians, 3 merchants, 6 statesmen—in the sense that they were holding or had held public office with distinction—1 a banker, 1 a great university president—first president, indeed, of Columbia university—1 a financier, 1 a landowner, and 1 a soldier.

Three were born in Ireland, one in England, one in Scotland, and one—Alexander Hamilton—in the British West Indies.

The oldest, Benjamin Franklin, was 81, and the youngest, Jonathan Dayton, a New Jersey lawyer, was 27.

Their average age was a shade above 40. Thus it was what we would now think of as a convention of young men, and yet it was against young men in public life, for it decreed in the constitution that no man should be President of the United States until he was 35 and no man United States senator until he was 30.

It was also against democracy in the widest sense of that school of government. Young Hamilton, aged 30, was the leader of those conservatives, and when the constitution was finished he was so angry that he called it "a wretched makeshift." Later he modified that opinion, but in his heart—and in the convention—he was for a President, to be called "governor," who should hold office for life, and for the election of senators for life. Once he spoke for five solid hours from the floor of the convention in defense of his philosophy and methods of government.

Why did only 39 of the 55 sign the document?

Seven of the 55 did not sign because they were sore, four because they were absent from Philadelphia on that unforgettable 17th of September 148 years ago, two because they were sick, and three for causes which I cannot find explained in any of the many volumes I have examined.

Six of the signers of the constitution had also signed the Declaration of Independence in the same building, and probably in the same room, eleven years before. Those six were Roger Sherman of Connecticut, Robert Morris of Pennsylvania—the nation saving "financier of the revolution," whom an ungrateful country allowed to go to prison for debt in his old age; Benjamin Franklin of Pennsylvania, George Clymer of Pennsylvania, James Wilson, the learned Scot from Pennsylvania, and George Reed of Delaware. Elbridge Gerry of Massachusetts was a Declaration signer, but he refused to sign the constitution on the ground that it took too much power from the states. The word gerrymander, meaning arbitrary and iniquitous division of a voting district, is derived from his name, for as governor of Massachusetts in 1812 he permitted that dirty trick. An infamous immortality! And yet Mr. Gerry was the delegate who said in the Constitutional convention: "The evils we experience flow from the excesses of democracy. The people are the dupes of pretended patriots."

Mr. Beck, a Pennsylvanian, in that book I so love because its human detail is copious, its narrative rapid, and its enthusiasm without partisanship, says that the Virginia delegation was the ablest on the floor. John Fiske in another stimulating and vivid book, "The Critical Period of American History," declared the Pennsylvania delegation to be the ablest. [Continued on page eight.]

Folk Play Broadway's Modest Start on 1935-'36 Season

Italian Dialect Drama Is Trite but Appealing

Love Wins No Victory Over Rank in "Moon Over Mulberry Street."

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK. — [Special.] — The first dramatic item of the new season turns out to be a simple idyll of the streets and town called "Moon Over Mulberry Street." It is one of those mamma and papa plays which usually come to us heavily encrusted with a Yiddish dialect. This happens to be Italian, but the form is the same. Nicholas Cosentino wrote it.

There is something humanly warming about the dialect folk play, however trite it may be in story. I think perhaps it is because the sincerity of the author shines through and the actors try so hard to be simple, honest folk.

Marriage One Thing, Love Another to Wealthy Girl.

"Moon Over Mulberry Street" reveals the Piccino Morellos who, though they live in Little Italy, have a brilliant son who is being put through law school by a fashionable uptown lawyer. The boy, Fillipo by name, finds himself in love with his patron's blonde daughter, and she is greatly attracted to him. She realizes, however, that it would be pretty silly for her to marry a Mulberry street janitor's son. So she plans to marry a society fellow and live on Park avenue, but do most of her loving in Mulberry street.

Fillipo refuses to be party to such arrangement, which is a score for both the moral principles of the Italian-Americans and the honor of the tenements. In the end Fillipo finds his heart really belongs to little Nina Baccolini who lives in the next flat.

The cast is fairly obscure, though Valerie Bergere is a principal, playing Mamma Morello. William Edmunds does the explosive Italian effectively in the Louis Mann manner. An attractive young athlete recently out of New York university, Cornel Wilde, is the hero, and Gladys Shelley his blonde from Park avenue. . . .

Minneapolis Leads in Drama Festival Movement.

I am besieged with inquiries as to what exactly the new season will mean to those theater centers west of the Hudson, which were once enthusiastic supporters of the professional theater and are now, as many of their citizens phrase it, "drama hungry" or "theater starved."

I have no answer for these anxious ladies and gentlemen, save the reassurance that they seem quite likely to come closer to contact with the better drama this year than they have for as many as ten or twelve years back.

The intelligently organized dramatic festival is going to play an important part in this rebirth, as I have before noted. Word has just come from Minneapolis, a town that spent freely for worthy theater entertainment in the old days, that a new eight-week festival is to be started there Sept. 30 with a production of "There's Always Juliet," Violet Heming and Lester Vail playing the leads. This is good news, not only for Minneapolis, but for all the west as well.

Other plays arranged for this eight-week series include "Ceiling Zero," the most exciting of aviation plays, with Victor Jory, come over from pictures to play the lead. They are also to have "Peace on Earth," a conservative sort of propaganda play aimed at militarism, with Tom Powers featured. James Kirkwood and Estelle Winwood will play "The Bishop Misbehaves," an amusing though light comedy, and Ian Keith is to put the season in fashion with a revival of "Hamlet," which he does well, they tell me. Estelle Winwood will be his Queen Gertrude and afterward, I'm told, have the same part with Leslie Howard.

Grace George and her New York company are to fill one week with the current success, "Kind Lady," which will bring the festival folk upstanding, or I'm greatly mistaken, and there is to be one week of opera, probably Gilbert and Sullivan. Also a new play is likely, probably "Tomorrow We Live," in which, I suspect, Miss Heming hopes to star later.

Harris Brave Pioneer in Restaurant-Theater Combines.

The festival is under the general direction of the Robert Henderson who has done well with similar enterprises in Ann Arbor, Milwaukee, and Detroit. If it works out as successfully as promised in Minneapolis, there is no reason why every other center really hungry for living drama should not have a similar festival. . . .

As far back as 1910 the late Henry B. Harris had a vision that linked the theater business with that of eating. There always has been a fairly close connection. Going to the theater, when it is accepted as an event, usually includes a dinner before or a supper after the show. Harris, taking his tip from certain successful continental music halls, opened what is now the Fulton theater as the Folies Bergeres and invited his patrons to enjoy food and drink while watching an elaborate vaudeville program.

That venture, as it turned out, was a quarter century ahead of its day. It cost Mr. Harris a lot of money, a blow from which he was barely recovering when he was lost on the Titanic.

French Casino Makes Discreet Use of Nudity.

The modern theater restaurants are an outgrowth of these two early experiments, and they have become too important as a factor in the town's amusements to be ignored.

This week, for example, the French Casino, established last year with the importation of a French troupe brought from Paris for the Century of Progress, offered its second year's bill. It proves to be another elaborate importation, also almost entirely French, and already has a section of the town metaphorically standing on its heads.

The excitements, of course, are largely physical. They escape being either brazenly offensive or a challenge to the law merely because the French have a way of delicately gilding the risque with an overlay of visual beauty. Therefore, while the Casino does, in the course of its music hall program, achieve complete nudity with certain of its feminine exhibits, they are so deftly shielded from the startled but steady gaze of the theater's patrons, and present in the ensemble so definitly beautiful a picture, that up to now no one has cried out for either protection or the police. . . .

IN STAGE FROLIC AT THE PALACE

Helen Charleston, clever singer, dancer and mimic, is prominent in the current vaudeville program at the Palace theater. Her last appearance in Chicago was in Carroll's 'Vanities.'

Action of Film Studio Life Is Set to Music

Composer Ferde Grofe Is Latest Interpreter of the Movie Colony.

FERDE GROFE, the composer who makes description his musical forte, has adapted the rhythm of Hollywood life for his latest score. The suite is entitled "Pictures of Hollywood" and does for the world of films-in-the-making what his already famous "Rhapsody in Steel," "Grand Canyon Suite," "Tabloid," and "Mississippi Suite" do for other phases of Americana.

The composer, who recently returned east after several months in the film city, wrote "Pictures of Hollywood" for a pantomine presented not long ago in the Hollywood bowl. The ballet opens with a musical description of electricians equipping the studio for a day's work, by turning on the lights. The sonorous labor of sweepers getting the studio in order for the day's "shots" next is heard, followed by the sounds of carpenters erecting the sets, set dressers decorating the scene, the authoritative director stomping in, the appearance of the star, and the subsequent enactment of the love scene.

Such plaintive music at an end, the suite progresses to the denouement, the total representation of the sweepers putting the studio to rights, and then the lights being turned off.

The "stand-in," or understudy, is pathetically presented throughout the entire suite. Tearful notes interpret the disappointments, the heartbreak of the person who does the tiring work for the star, she who, upon being called merely to pose, always enters the studio doors with hope in her heart that a "break" in getting a real part may at last be hers. But always she is called only to pose, and after each disappointment the Grofe music is plaintive with disillusion.

The ambitious composer of the ambitious suite has other musical plans. "Wheels," a musical panorama of transportation through the various phases of American progress, is his next project. Grofe will depict in this suite six movements, beginning with the covered wagon era, down through "Pony Express," "Union Pacific," "The Gay Nineties," "Automobile," and terminating with "Airplane."

"Madison Square Garden" is the suite planned to follow the one on transportation. This is to describe in music a wrestling match, a rodeo, and a six day bike race.

Racketeers Prey on Easily Duped Film Aspirants

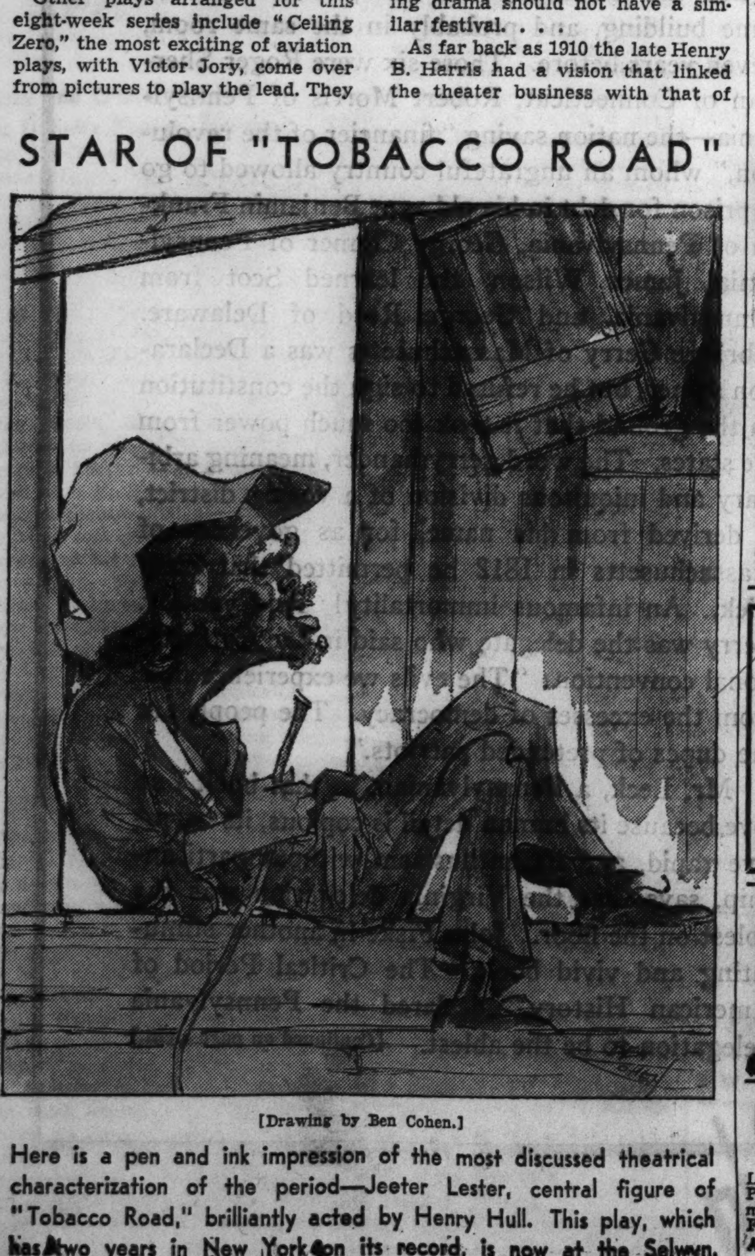
WIDESPREAD complaint from gullible persons, and one outstanding arrest, prove the existence of "film test" racketeers. These "salesmen" inveigle fond parents into investing their supposed prodigies and for negotiations with studios. The racketeering agents also are willing to accept substantial sums of money to get an amateur scenarist's brain child into the accepting hands of film studio editors.

These racketeers approach mothers and fathers whom they know to have movie ambitions for their offspring, and present a convincing story of "connections" with studios, the names of which honest persons never have heard. After getting the parents to give large amounts of money, for the alleged purpose of defraying half the cost of film tests, the racketeers go ahead and pocket most of the money, since the actual test cost far less than the money collected for the purpose.

It has been found difficult to pin down these racketeers on charges of guilt, because they usually have the comeback of honest attempts to interest studios in the talented child portrayed in the tests.

One misguided authoress complained to the police about being defrauded out of $1,000. The "president" of an unknown film company subsequently was arrested on a charge of grand larceny.

STAR OF "TOBACCO ROAD"



[Drawing by Ben Cohen.]

Film Stars Slimmer, Stronger than Headliners of Yesterday

Dispositions Also Said to Be Improving

Temperament on Decline; Better Health and Fear of Ridicule Responsible.

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—Today's movie stars are naturally slimmer than they were ten and twenty years ago.

Film heroes are better physical specimens and in better condition than men in any other walk of life.

Feminine stars are less knock-kneed than they used to be, doubtless due to their increased slenderness.

In spite of the Greta Garbo legends, film stars do not have larger feet than they used to have, but their shoes are larger and more comfortable, producing a more graceful carriage.

Women Have Better Breathing, Despite Cigarets.

Feminine stars of today have better dispositions and less temperament than they did twenty or even ten years ago. Better health, the prevalence of wisecracking and consequent fear of ridicule share honors for this improvement.

In spite of the demon Nicotine, carried about in the fancy bejeweled and enameled cigaret cases of the feminine stars, women in pictures now have better breathing habits than formerly, due no doubt to looser clothing and the fondness for outdoor sport that characterizes the Hollywood colony.

All of these observations come from a man named Louis Hippe pronounced Hippy, who for a quarter of a century has been working in Hollywood keeping actors and actresses from becoming overweight. If you like puns, fix up your own. We disdain 'em.

Male Stars Short Tempered Because They Can't Get Fat.

He has cut down waist lines and hips, he has slimmed legs of bathing beauties and dramatic ladies, he has built out skinny necks and biceps, and has taught film stars how to conserve health and beauty during his long experience as trainer, masseur, and health expert. For the last four years he has been at Warner Brothers in charge of their stars.

Actresses who reduce by diet almost invariably suffer some ill effects, reduce in the wrong places and sacrifice some of their beauty.

Male stars are often short tempered because they can't settle back and get fat.

Motion picture work is health work. The makeup, the lights, the nervous excitement of the sets are good for the body if the player is well.

No sick player does his best work.

Men Need Hippe's Help Most.

These and a dozen similar findings are the things Hippe says he has learned from his long association with studio people.

He says, for instance, that men players need more help from him than feminine players, although it used to be the opposite.

One reason for this, he believes, is that women stars are as a rule younger than the men who play opposite them. The average age of feminine players has gone down during recent years. Male players have not.

Cagney and O'Brien Must Have Definite Physical Prowess.

"On the Warner lot, at least," explains Hippe, "we make many strenuous pictures, pictures which require athletic prowess on the part of the male players. Jimmy Cagney fought a long hard fight in 'The Irish in Us,' and he went into serious training for it. In 'Frisco Kid' he takes part in a rough and tumble free for all that might seriously injure a man not physically fit for it.

"Pat O'Brien has been shown as a fighter. So has Dick Powell in 'Shipmates Forever,' the Annapolis picture. Joe E. Brown never appears in a picture that doesn't require some sort of athletic ability. He keeps up his training fifty-two weeks a year. Young Errol Flynn is a fine athletic type, but he needed special physical preparation for the strenuous work he is called upon to do in 'Captain Blood.'

"Preparing these men physically for these pictures and keeping them in condition through the filming is our most important assignment.

Few Women Players Inclined to Grow Fat.

"Only a few women in pictures today have a tendency to grow fat. Ten and twenty years ago that was the more or less constant worry of nearly every feminine star.

"It is more difficult to persuade a man to watch his figure than a woman. However, we have one great ally in our campaign to keep the actors in shape. That is fan mail. As soon as an actor begins to get thick around the waistline he starts to hear about it in his fan mail.

"Cagney, Dick Powell, and O'Brien have a tendency to put on weight. So do Joan Blondell and Glenda Farrell. But Warren William never has to worry—except perhaps about being too thin. Ruby Keeler, Kay Francis, Dolores Del Rio, and Bette Davis have found a happy medium that seems to be permanent.

"No actor takes better care of himself physically than Al Jolson. The size of Guy Kibbee, Hugh Herbert, and even Frank McHugh doesn't much matter. They are funny men and can be fat if they wish. But each of them watches his health and so—incidentally—his size. William Gargan took off thirty pounds and so changed his status from comedian to leading man."

Hippe Played with Mix, Fairbanks, and Beery.

Louis Hippe is a powerfully built man—some 50 years old, with iron gray hair and fierce blue eyes. He was working as physical instructor at the Los Angeles Athletic club when Mack Sennett persuaded him to move to the Hollywood district as his personal trainer. Hippe stayed with Sennett for three years and then went with Douglas Fairbanks Sr. in the same capacity. He played in several of Fairbanks' pictures, "When the Clouds Roll By" and "The Molly Coddle" among them. In the latter Hippe was the second heavy. Wallace Beery was first heavy.

After four years with Fairbanks Hippe was employed by Tom Mix. He continued to play parts in pictures for three years with Mix, turning cowboy for the purpose.

During the next five years Hippe ran an establishment of his own, but he wasn't often found in his offices. Malibu beach was just being settled by motion picture people and Hippe, who knew them all, had a regular clientele there. Those were the days of the eighteen day diet, "the boyish figure," the extremely short skirts, and other freak fashion ideas among women, and Hippe found himself busier than he had ever been in his life.

Present Stars Matured with Natural Slimness.

In his present offices on the Warner lot there is a tremendous gallery of portraits of motion picture people, some 200 of them, and Hippe has one time or another helped condition each of them.

Most of the present crop of feminine stars were growing girls during the "skinny age" in fashion and so matured with a natural slimness that solved their figure problems in advance.

But Louis Hippe keeps an eye on all of the players on the Warner lot just the same. When he sees a bulging hip, or a suggestion of a double chin, he knows he has a job ahead of him.

N. U. and City Schools Join for Training

Prepare New Program to Aid Those Teachers Who Are in Actual Service.

NORTHWESTERN university will coöperate this year with the board of education of the Chicago public schools in a new program of training for teachers in actual service. Courses in the study of the solution of daily classroom problems will be offered by the school of education and the University college, the university's downtown division, in centers conveniently located throughout the city.

Dean Ernest O. Melby of the Northwestern university school of education said: "The in-service training program launched by the university with the coöperation of the Chicago public schools is somewhat of an innovation in the Chicago area. The proposal originally came from Supt. William J. Bogan, and the entire program has been worked out in collaboration with him and members of his staf. To date more than 2,300 Chicago teachers have indicated their interest in the project. One course alone has attracted the interest of more than 800 teachers.

Will Train Teachers Already at Work.

"New teachers with modern training are gradually coming into the schools, but the turnover is small and the great hope for improvement lies in training the teachers already at work. There also is the fact that education, as a profession, is changing so rapidly that every teacher must be a constant student of her problems."

The content of these new classes includes both curricular and extra-curricular phases of the teacher's contact with her students. A course in creative dramatics trains the teacher in developing a pupil's talents; another on the activity curriculum develops intelligent self-direction and desirable social habits in the child. There is a course in educational and vocational guidance, and another in mental hygiene and personality development, and still another in social studies.

All are doubly effective in that the teacher returns to the class, where she herself is a student, bearing a mental picture of a group of pupils she has just been teaching and what their individual problems mean to her.

Forms Integral Part of the Curriculum.

This project forms an integral part of the curriculum of the school of education, and courses may be either applied against the requirements for academic degrees or may be audited without university or promotional credit, and without examinations, for a proportionately lower tuition fee.

The faculty for these new extensions consists of George E. Axtelle, Whit Brogan, and Eldridge T. McSwain, assistant professors; Harold C. Coffman, visiting professor from the Columbia teachers' college; Paul A. Witty, professor; Francis C. Rosecrance, associate professor; William Gellerman, instructor; Josephine Maloney and Louis U. Newkirk, lecturers, all of the school of education, and Winifred Ward, assistant professor of dramatic production and director of the children's theater, who has charge of the course on creative dramatics for children.

Program of Special Lectures Is Planned.

In addition to regular courses a program of special lectures will be presented by several outstanding leaders in American education, each lecturer making a number of appearances. The lectures will be free to members of the courses from any of the class centers.

Conveniently located centers are being established on the McKinlock campus, at Chicago avenue and the lake, where registration will continue through Sept. 3-14; at Lane High school, where teachers may register on Sept. 23; at Austin High school, where registration day is Sept. 24; at the Chicago Normal college, Sept. 25, and on the Evanston campus of the university, Sept. 20-21.

By Anna Nangle.

YEP, she married him all right, but what for I still don't know. Here we find the pretty Claudette Colbert, hopelessly in love for six long years with her boss, a selfish, stupid male for whom she slaves. She finally decides to marry him willy-nilly, and the hornet's nest she marries into forms the story of the film.

Her first problem is one Annabelle, her husband's child by a former marriage, and a nasty little girl if ever you saw one. She's a feminine Jackie Searl, and in her meaner moments even looks a bit like him. There's a gloomy house, run for the sake of the carpets and the family dignity; her sister-in-law Gertrude, one of these fainting femmes who doesn't relish the new Mrs. Barclay, and a husband who thinks of his bride only as some one who will run his house with the efficiency she formerly displayed in his office.

Claudette Easy and Expert in Well Nigh Incredible Role.

With the aid of a hair brush and some child psychology, Julia straightens out Miss Annabelle—with a firm hand she squelches Sister Gertrude, but she's not able to do much with the unconscious creature she's married until she's about ready to throw up the sponge.

There are numerous spots in this film that are pretty funny, and some fairly smart dialogue. Miss Colbert is easy and expert in a rather incredible rôle, looking her prettiest as she works. Michael Bartlett as the would-be villain or one corner of a triangle is adequate, but needs a haircut. Jean Dixon proves a fine comedian as a girl friend who stands by and hands out snappy advice. Mr. Douglas' portrayal of Barclay seemed to me too unattractive to have captured the affections of Julia. However, that's only my idea, and if you're looking for something light and giddy, with plenty of laughs, you'd better head for the Chicago theater.

H. G. WELLS, who recently decided to give up his regular writing in favor of creating stories for the screen, is due to arrive in America shortly and will leave immediately for Hollywood. While here he will work on two productions "The Man Who Could Work Miracles" and "100 Years to Come." . . . WALLACE BEERY and GEORGE RAFT have been borrowed from Darryl F. Zanuck to co-star for 20th Century-Fox in the "City God Forgot." This will be the first time these two have appeared together since they played in "The Bowery." Because of his comedy work in "Steamboat Round the Bend" and "This Is the Life," Francis Ford, prominent serial star and director of the "silent days," has been given a contract with 20th Century-Fox studios.

"Burlesque," a record breaking play of several seasons ago, will be filmed by Paramount within the next few months. SYLVIA SIDNEY will play the leading feminine rôle. . . . CHARLES BOYER has wired his studio that he will remain in France until the latter part of October to make a picture called "Mayerling," based on the life of Archduke Joseph of Austria. When he returns to Hollywood he will appear opposite MARLENE DIETRICH in "Invitation to Happiness." . . . CLAUDETTE COLBERT had an offer from a British film company to star in the screen version of "Melo," but had to refuse the offer because of commitments in this country.

The scenario is being written for "Life of Beethoven," based on the career of the celebrated German composer. According to present plans all of Beethoven's most beautiful compositions will be arranged by ERICH WOLFGANG KORNGOLD for a symphony orchestra to play throughout the film. . . . The casting will be made as soon as the script is completed. . . . JOHN BOLES has been given the leading adult rôle opposite SHIRLEY TEMPLE in "The Littlest Rebel." . . . MARTHA EGGERTH, Hungarian opera and moving picture star, has arrived in this country and is on her way to Hollywood where she has been given a contract by Universal studios. Her first assignment for this company will be "Song of Joy," which will go into production this month. . . . GENE FOWLER, author of "The Great Mouthpiece," arrived in Hollywood recently after vacationing in Egypt, to begin work at the 20th Century-Fox studio, where he has a long contract. He will write the dialogue for "Professional Soldier," starring VICTOR McLAGLEN.

Original Cast

WHEN "The Children's Hour" goes on tour it will be with its original cast, headed by Anne Revere, Katherine Emery, Florence McGee (as the malicious child), Robert Keith, and Katherine Emmett, intact. There has not been a change in the company of some twenty players since the opening night in New York, Nov. 20, 1934.

The play will be presented in Paris in October by Louis Jouvet, well known director, actor, and producer, at the Athenée, and about the same time in Amsterdam by Dr. H. W. J. M. Keuls.

Manager Shumlin's first production of the new season will be "Sweet Mystery of Life," a comedy by Richard Maibaum, Michael Wallach, and George Haight. It is scheduled for the Shubert theater, New York, Oct. 11.

"Student Prince" Tour.

Hal Young, the operetta tenor, has been signed by the Shuberts to sing the leading rôle in a revival of "The Student Prince" which starts on a coast-to-coast tour from Springfield, Mass., on Oct. 11. Ilsa Marvenga, the original Kathie, will co-star with him. He has been singing in the Continental room of the Stevens hotel recently.

Prospects for New Theatrical Season in Chicago

Managers Say Stage Affairs Are Improving

Cornell and Huston for Fall Engagements; Plans of Shubert Firm.

By Charles Collins.

PERHAPS it is time to begin talking about the vague and nebulous matter called the Chicago theatrical season, said to be opening. The acid of skepticism, a sort of summer hangover, has been corroding my soul of late in this matter, and I have taken several oaths not to mention the so-called new season until I found evidence of its existence. The managers and customers, however, are discussing it with optimism, claiming that much activity is in sight, so I will weaken and join in the conference.

At the beginning I feel that the phrase, "Chicago theatrical season," ought to be defined. For the past year or two it has meant little more than a first night about once a month. My own definition will be: Four first class theaters in steady operation through a period of thirty-five weeks, offering first class dramatic and lyric productions. This is my minimum demand for a stage season in Chicago. Any activities below that level will be classified as sporadic and casual symptoms of an obsolescent institution.

Three Dates for Premieres.

At present we have two playhouses under full sail—the Selwyn with "Tobacco Road," and the Harris with "Three Men on a Horse." Therefore we can file claim for the rating of half a season.

"Dodsworth," Sidney Howard's dramatization of Sinclair Lewis's novel, with Walter Huston as star, a great New York hit of the past year, opening at the Erlanger theater Oct. 21.

The American Ballet under the direction of George Balanchine, a new organization which has won applause from the dancing connoisseurs of New York during the past two years, to appear in the Civic Opera house Nov. 8, 9 and 10 in a repertory of seven ballet productions.

Katharine Cornell in her revival of "Romeo and Juliet," opening at the Grand Opera house Nov. 25 for a three weeks' engagement.

"The Old Maid," with Judith Anderson and Helen Menken, opening at the Harris theater Dec. 23.

Other prospects, undated, are: "Thumbs Up," a musical show with Clark and McCullough as stars; "Anything Goes," a highly rated Broadway revue; Philip Merivale and Gladys Cooper in "Othello" and "Macbeth"; Grace George in "Kind Lady," "Personal Appearance," "Waiting for Lefty," "Awake and Sing,' "Accent on Youth," and "Peace on Earth."

Booking for Shubert Theaters.

There is a possibility that the new version of the "Ziegfeld Follies" will be staged in Chicago before it is offered to New York. It is also likely that Leslie Howard will come here in "The Petrified Forest," his New York hit of last season, before he takes his ambitious leap into "Hamlet."

A recent announcement from the Chicago offices of the firm of Shuberts, leading theater operators here, almost warbles with optimism. It runs:

"This is to be the best year for the theater since 1929 in the opinion of Broadway producers. Not only Broadway, moreover, is to benefit from this revival. The road in general, and Chicago in particular, will receive their share of theatrical productions.

"The Shubert office will take the lead in reviving the 'road.' 'Life Begins at 8:40' is booked for a seven months' tour that will reach every important city from the east to the west coast. Four of the firm's standard operettas, 'Rose Marie,' 'Bitter Sweet,' 'The Student Prince' and 'Blossom Time' are now in rehearsal for extensive tours.

"The Chicago theater operated by the Messrs. Shubert have their biggest season in recent years in prospect. The twin houses—the Harris and Selwyn—have enough attractions booked to keep them open through the entire season. The Grand Opera house will book the big musical shows and heavier dramatic productions. . . . For the first time in years the Shubert local managers are wondering if there will be enough theaters to take care of all the shows that are seeking bookings."

Public Ignorance of Drama Locations.

Apparently the slogan along Randolph street is "Cheerio." On my part, I merely take the position of watchful waiting.

To promote this expected renaissance, however, I will issue a word of warning and advice to the managers of Chicago's legitimate theaters. I suspect, from the questions that are asked me daily, that a large percentage of possible theater patrons do not know the locations of Chicago's downtown playhouses. At least a dozen times during the past week, in talk about "Tobacco Road," I have had to tell people where the Selwyn theater is situated. This condition is chronic and general; and I will venture the sweeping assertion that 75 per cent of Chicago's population cannot give offhand the approximate geographical positions of the Harris, the Erlanger, the Grand Opera house, and the Selwyn—which are the houses most frequently in use.

The correction of this mass ignorance is a job in which the Chicago theater managers can prove themselves worthy of their salaries.

Newman Returns

AFTER an absence of two seasons, E. M. Newman, traveler lecturer, will return with a series of three "Traveltalks." "Italy," "Ethiopia," "The South Seas and Cannibal Isles" are the subjects that he will present in Orchestra hall, on three Wednesday and Friday evenings beginning Oct. 16 and 18.

Newman's reappearance marks the twenty-fifth anniversary of his career as a travel-talker.

NEW GIRL IN "THREE MEN ON A HORSE"

Ruth Lee has succeeded Dennie Moore in the role of the gambler's sweetheart in "Three Men on a Horse," at the Harris theater. She is a specialist in the wild women of the Broadway plays. Miss Moore has gone to Hollywood to have a fling in the movies. [TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

'Follies' Revue at State-Lake; Variety Shows

THE first annual "State-Lake Follies" occupies the stage of the State-Lake theater. It marks the start of a series of musical comedy productions. A full hour's musical show is offered.

This extravaganza has a cast of 70 singers and dancers. Among the performers are: Claire Powell, a dancer, who was featured in Earl Carroll's "Vanities"; Joe and Romeo Donatella, accordionists and dancers; Joe and Pete Michon, acrobats; Gifford and Pearl, in a comedy act; Cedric and Arlinda, dancers; Alfred and Alice Marfield, another dance team; Hal Young, operetta star; Louise Miller, a "torch" singer, and Verne Buck and his orchestra.

The Chicago theater's stage show consists of Dave Apollon and some 40 entertainers in the "International Varieties." Apollon is a comedian, singer, dancer, orchestra conductor and master of ceremonies for a troupe that includes: The Apollon string orchestra, Gene De Quincy and Adams, Harold Aloma, the "Hawaiian Rudy Vallee"; the 12 Bines, precision dancers; Ann Bradley, Selma Marlowe, Ramon and Ruth, Johnny Woods, Señor Winves and Don Morrell.

The Palace theater is holding over both its film attraction and stage entertainment for a second week. Eddie Peabody, banjoist, and Helen Charleston, mimic, continue to share vaudeville headline honors. Among the supporting acts are the comedians, Medley and Duprey; the dances of Sylvia Manon and her company, and the European animal novelty called Gautier's "Toy Shop."

Empire Room Alters Its Program; Trianon Will Reopen Next Friday.

A NEW cast of acts in support of Veloz and Yolanda in the Empire room of the Palmer house began for performances last Thursday evening. Heading the list of new talent is Charles Collins, the eccentric dancer and husband of the musical comedy star, Dorothy Stone. He has just returned from a season as a co-star of the London production of "As Thousands Cheer."

Vira Niva is a Russian girl who has pleased New York with her singing this season at the Waldorf. She uses a lapel microphone hidden in her shoulder corsage.

Another act new to Chicago night life is the acrobatic team of Alene and Evans. They come to the Empire room direct from a three year tour of Europe.

Bill Anson, the fourth new actor, is a mimic who has been continuously employed in eastern theaters and night clubs for the last three years. He changes from "white face" to "black face" in full view of the audience.

The Veloz and Yolanda orchestra, directed by Shep Fields, continues to play for the show and the public dancing. The Embassy Four fills the interludes. The Abbott dancers are seen in several fresh ballets.

● The Trianon ballroom has been completely redecorated for its reopening next Friday, with Jan Garber and his orchestra. New furnishings, new interior decorations, a new lighting system for part of the ballroom, a new refectory and a remodeling of the band stand have involved an expense of $100,000.

Jan Garber, returning for his third consecutive season, has just completed a transcontinental tour. All of his featured singers and soloists will return to the Trianon.

● Irving Margraff returns to the main dining room of the Blackstone hotel today to start his fifteenth year playing luncheon and dinner music. He started his career nearly fifteen years ago with one of the first radio ensembles on the KYW station. In recent years the group has been featured by W-G-N. Margraff's ensemble consists of piano, violin, harp and cello.

● Lorraine Santschi and Josephine Buckley will remain in the Continental room of the Stevens hotel, where Lydia and Joresco are headliners, until Sept. 26. They have introduced two new dances—the "Blue Danube" and an "Antelope" dance which is a combination of their "Indian Dawn" number and a Hopi snake dance.

● Joe Sanders continues his run at the Blackhawk. Mondays, at the Midnight Flyers show, visiting stars of the stage, screen, and radio were introduced by Bob Elson.

A new performer has been added to the floor show—Pete the Newsboy, a harmonica player. Barbara Parks, John Paul Jones, and Rose and Ray Lyte are featured entertainers.

● Georges and Jalna, a European dance team which has been featured for a year in the Waldorf-Astoria in New York, will come to the Gold Coast room of the Drake for the fall season, starting Oct. 4. These dancers will be presented by Horace Heidt in an entirely new floor show.

● Richard E. Kelliher, assistant manager of the Hotel Morrison, was recently appointed a "Kentucky colonel" as aide-de-camp on the staf of Gov. Ruby Laffoon. Among the other "Kentucky colonels" at the Morrison are Leonard Hicks, managing director; Willard M. Rutzen, assistant to managing director, and Thomas E. Sadler, manager.

Best Tap Dancer.

Lee Shubert has rejected an offer of $25,000 tendered by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for the release of Eleanor Powell from "At Home Abroad," the Howard Dietz-Arthur Schwartz musical show which opens at the New York Winter Garden on Thursday, Sept. 19. She is regarded as the best woman tap dancer.

IN VILLA VENICE STAGE PROGRAM

Miss Cornell to Act Juliet Here Nov. 25

KATHARINE CORNELL has engaged Florence Reed, one of the leading American actresses, to play the nurse in her production of Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet," which she will present on tour this autumn. This will be the third Shakespearean rôle Miss Reed has acted, as she was seen as Ophelia with E. H. Sothern in "Hamlet" and as Lady Macbeth in George C. Tyler's production. Miss Reed's greatest success, "The Shanghai Gesture," was directed by Guthrie McClintic, who again will stage "Romeo and Juliet." Two outstanding London actors, Maurice Evans as Romeo and Ralph Richardson as Mercutio, will make their American debuts in "Romeo and Juliet."

Among the players reëngaged from last winter's New York cast are Charles Waldron for Friar Laurence, Irby Marshal for Lady Capulet, Irving Morrow for Tybalt, David Vivian for Peter, and Robert Champlain for Gregory. Charles Dalton, last seen in Maxwell Anderson's "Mary of Scotland," with Helen Hayes, will appear as Capulet, and Alice John, who was in "Rain from Heaven" with Jane Cowl, will appear as Lady Montague.

Miss Cornell will open her tour in Baltimore, on Oct. 10, and afterwards will be seen in Boston, Springfield, Mass.; Hartford, New Haven, Conn.; Philadelphia, Washington and Chicago. She also plans to visit twelve other cities for one night stands.

What's New in World of Airplanes and Air Transportation

Student Takes His First Flying Lesson

This is the first of a series of articles on "Learning to Fly." Here the author recounts his experiences and describes his feelings during his first hour aloft with a flying instructor. In this initial lesson the student actually flew the plane part of the time. How he progresses in his later lessons will be told in early instalments of the series. The reader who may prefer to remain on the ground can get all the thrills of flying — second-handed, of course — by following this series in the Graphic Section of The Sunday Tribune.

By GUY MURCHIE JR.

IT IS 9 o'clock in the morning as I pull into Stinson airport for my first flying lesson. This is the big day for me.

Those hangars dozing in the hot sunshine over there make my pulse go up a good dozen RPM's. Inside must be the machine in which I will risk my neck a few minutes from now. Wiping off a little sweat, I climb out of my rattly Ford.

Here comes Slim Tiedt, who is to instruct me. Very tall, thin, blond, and cheerful, he looks something like Lindbergh. We shake — then walk to the office, where I must pull out my student pilot's license and sign a contract to cover my flying course. I got the license from a department of commerce doctor by paying $10 and submitting to a physical examination, mainly an eye test. The contract is between me and the Chicago Suburban Aviation corporation, which is Slim's company. I commit myself to pay $65, spread over a year, which covers all instruction. The only other charge is about $3.50 an hour in the air, being my share of the actual cost of running the plane. As more students sign up this cost will go down in proportion. Anyone may fly as many hours as he chooses, and the more the cheaper.

Now for the lesson. Slim and I walk over to the wide, yellowish hangar where a couple of mechanics are servicing a small, bright colored plane just outside the open door. "That's the ship," says Slim.

Whew! It looks tiny. As both Slim and I are about six feet five, I begin to wonder how we'll fit in that midget cabin. The wheels are nothing but hubs surrounded by tiny fat tires about one foot in diameter and practically touching the under side of the fuselage. The engine is a two-cylinder affair and looks smaller than the average motorcycle engine.

As I gaze with wondering eyes, suddenly Slim says, 'Why does an airplane fly?"

I give him the best explanation I can think of. He says: "Yeah, that's about it. I was only trying to see if we both were working on the same general idea."

After showing me the ailerons—flaps on the rear edge of the wing that move, the one on the right wing going up as the one on the left goes down — the rudder, stabilizers, elevators, and fin in the rear, Slim says, "Now we'll take a ride."

Two of the boys grab the little ship's tail—the whole thing weighs only 500 pounds empty—and wheel it out into the sunshine and the vast hay field stretching before us.

"How about those telephone wires all around the field?" I ask. "Aren't they kind of bad?"

"Well, I'll tell yer," says Slim. "All airports have 'em. If you're ever lost in the air and can't find an airport, just look for a high tension line. When you find one, follow it until it crosses another high tension line. There where the two cross you will find an airport."

With this hopeful information I follow Slim to the dinky ship and, ducking under the yellow wing with its wire supports, scrunch into the cockpit. Slim folds in from the other side and we shut both doors.

By this time, of course, the propeller already is buzzing around, the engine having been warmed up by a mechanic, so we are all set to take off.

"This is the throttle," says Slim, showing me a large knob sticking out of the dashboard. "You push it in to give her the gun, and pull it out when you want to slow down. And this is the stick," indicating a vertical rod with a knob on its end sticking up from the floor like a gear shift lever in a car. "It controls the elevators and ailerons. Push it forward and your nose drops; back, and she lifts; to the right, and you tip to the right; to the left, and you bank to the left. And those pedals for your two feet control the rudder. Pressing the right foot turns you to the right, the left turns you to the left. Got it? Now I'll take you up, and when we're up there I'll tell you what I want you to do."

So saying, he pushes in the throttle, the propeller begins to roar out loud, and we swing around to a cinder runway heading northeast through the long grass. Slim holds the throttle in his right hand, the stick in his left, and each foot on a pedal. He has two pedals of his own which work with my two in dual control, but the one stick is in front of me so that he has to reach over me to hold it.

The wind is from the northwest, so when we have taxied down to where the runways fork we swing around to the northwest and open the throttle wide. The little ship picks up speed rapidly. When we are going at what seems about thirty, Slim eases the stick forward and our tail rises off the ground. It seems only a second or two after that before we begin to bounce lightly over the rough cinders and are quickly in the air, slanting upward over the meadow against the wind. The edge of the field and the telephone wires are far below us and we continue upward in a wide circle over farms and pastures, still rising higher and higher.

When we get to about a thousand feet Slim levels her off and pulls the throttle so that the revolutions-per-minute dial registers 2,150 RPM's, the proper cruising rate. By this time we have made quite a circle and the world far beneath looks totally unfamiliar to me. Having been watching Slim inside the plane part of the time, I haven't followed our course over the ground and don't even know which direction the flying field is in, though it can't be far away.

I take the stick with my left hand, holding it just above where his hand is. Now he tips it a little to the left, causing the ship to bank slightly to the left. Now to the right. Now back, causing us to rise. Now forward, causing us to drop our nose.

"Now you hold the stick yourself," orders Slim, "and see if you can keep on an even keel. Keep the nose level with the horizon and the wings even."

The stick is in my hands now. The ship is flying straight at first, but as the nose drops slightly I pull back slightly on the stick to bring it up. I am more acutely than ever aware of our delicate balance in air as I feel the ship react to my slightest impulse. The ship's reactions are not instantaneous, though, and as it changes its direction a full second or so after I move the stick, it generally turns farther than I intend and I have to move the stick the opposite way to check it. Again I check it too much and find I have to recheck it again the other way. This is called overcontroling, a natural and common fault in beginners, according to Slim.

"Keep to one course," says Slim. "Aim at that smokestack on the horizon."

I try to do so, with partial success. It is hard to get used to using both feet and a handle in your hands that moves in all directions, and coördinate all of them. When I have got the ship fairly well lined up with the smokestack Slim says, "Now I'll put her off the course, and you see if you can get her back."

He banks to the left, handing me the stick. I press on my right pedal and push the stick to the right, banking and turning back to the right again. Repeating the same exercise to the right and left several times, I begin to get so I can do it fairly easily, but it is hard to judge how much of the turn results from your foot pedal and how much from the stick movement. Both being moved together, you are not conscious of which motion is producing which effect. This is confusing, but I suppose practice will overcome it. It seems almost impossible to think out just what happens to the rudder and the elevators and the ailerons and how all that affects the ship each time. I guess the only way to do is to keep on practicing it until it comes through feeling, instinctively.

"See those crossroads down there?" says Slim. "We'll do some figure eights around those and those other ones over there, first a left turn around this crossing and then a right turn around that one."

Slim does it once by way of demonstration. Then I try. There are no quick motions in this, as the two crossroads are about half a mile apart. It is just a matter of making slow curves at a slight bank. I overcontrol a good bit and have trouble straightening out after my turns, but otherwise feel as if I were doing fairly well.

"You want to allow for the wind," says Slim. "If you head to the right of that crossroad the wind will drift you enough to the left so that you will hit it about right."

This is news to me. I hadn't noticed the wind at all, being so far away from the ground.

"This exercise is good practice," says Slim. "It trains you to operate the ship while making both right and left turns and following the ground with your eyes at the same time."

We do it about a dozen times, then Slim has me follow a road for a few miles. Whether we are going north, south, east, or west over this endless pattern of fields and farms is all a mystery to me, and I haven't any idea where our home field is. But there, suddenly, I see it. Two big stone quarries lie to the south of it, just the other side of a road and the telephone lines.

When we are over the quarries Slim says, "Shut down your throttle."

I'd forgotten I had a throttle, but soon wake up and pull out the knob. With a sickening sigh the engine seems to die to almost nothing and we start to go down.

"Put your nose down," commands Slim, holding his hand over mine on the stick.

My every impulse is to put my nose up and stay in the safe blue sky, but Slim helps me push the stick forward and down we go in a swift glide right toward the telephone lines.

"You've got to keep your nose down when your engine is off," says Slim, "because that makes you glide and keeps the air flowing past your wing surfaces, which is what holds you up. If you didn't glide you would lose flying speed, and the wings wouldn't hold you up, and you would go into a spin."

"What should I do then?" I ask, a little worried as the ground and the telephone lines come nearer and nearer and Slim leaves my hand all alone on the stick.

"There's nothing more to do then," replies Slim. "It's all done—except pushin' up the daisies."

As we zoom just over the telephone lines I don't do much to the stick. I feel very lacking in initiative and hope that Slim will do the driving. Fortunately he does—and we skim along over the ground.

Just when I think we are about to land Slim gives her the gun and away we go off to the northwest again, as when we started.

"Don't point your nose too high," orders Slim. "Keep to the proper climbing angle. If you lose flying speed you know what will happen. Watch your nose. That's about the most important thing for a student to learn."

Around we go again in a great circle, and repeat the gliding dive and again skim a bare ten feet over the field before opening the throttle and climbing back into the safe emptiness of the sky. I am surprised at how comfortable I feel 'way up here in the empty air. Tall buildings make me plenty dizzy, but floating along this way, completely out of contact with the earth, seems to have a totally different effect. I don't especially want to come down.

Once more we close the throttle and descend in a swift glide over the inhospitable quarries and the telephone lines.

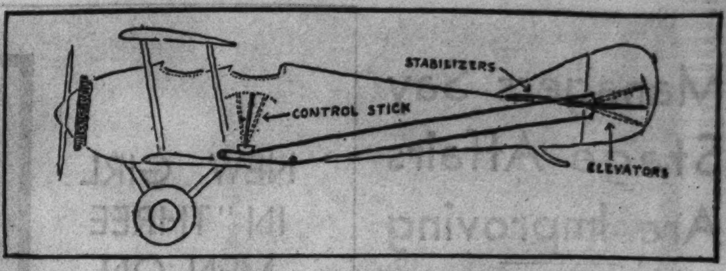
"We'll land this time," says Slim.

As we skim lightly over the wide cinder runway, heading northwest into the wind, slowly settling nearer the ground, I suddenly feel Slim's hand, which is over mine on the stick, jerk back so that our tail drops down. I cannot say for sure whether we are two or ten feet off the ground, but almost immediately I feel the wheels bump. Then, pulling the stick back harder, our rear skid presses hard against the cinders, slowing us down quickly.

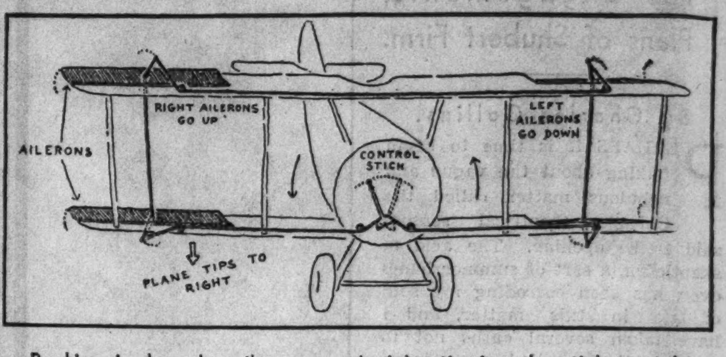
In a few seconds we are standing still in the long grass, safe on old Mother Earth again. I feel myself relaxing. I hadn't noticed it till now, but I have been pretty tense during this hour in the air.

Opening the throttle part way again, Slim turns the ship around and we taxi back toward the hangars through the long grass, the propeller cutting a swath in front of us like a mowing machine. We open the doors, unfold ourselves, and get out.

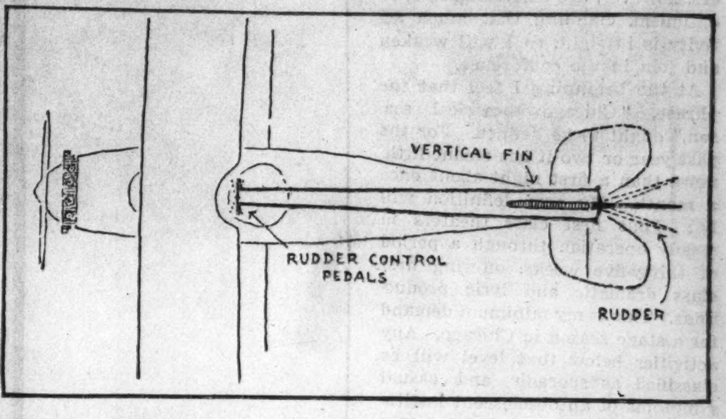
Here ended the first lesson.



Lowering and raising the plane's nose is done by forward and back motion of the stick, which works the elevators.



Banking is done by ailerons, worked by tipping the stick to right and left.



The rudder turns the plane to right or left, but is needed relatively less than the other controls.

Fight Aviation Fires With Gas

British Use a New Kind of Extinguisher

By WAYNE THOMIS

ONE of the great hazards of military, stunt, and race flying is fire. Accidents which would be taken as a matter of course by pilots engaged in these dangerous phases of aviation, just as crashes are accepted as inevitable in automobile racing, ofttimes become major tragedies only because the high-test gasoline carried for airplane motors becomes ignited.

Such fires generate tremendous heat. Metals are fused; wood or fabric is completely consumed. Many a daring pilot, guilty of but a minor mistake in judgment or the victim of a mechanical mishap which otherwise would not have cost his life, has met death in the volcanic heat of his own flaming fuel.

Water is useless against gasoline fires, so inventors have turned their attention chiefly to preventives. Rubber-lined tanks have been built to carry gasoline. The theory is that even though the tanks are smashed in an accident, the rubber still will prevent the fuel from spurting over the wreckage.

Others have experimented with compression ignition motors in which there are no electrical ignition systems that might continue to function after a crash, thus providing a spark to ignite gasoline-soaked fabric, wire, wood, or metal. Still others have developed "fireproof" dopes to substitute for the highly inflammable liquids used to stiffen fabric and to make it waterproof on so many airplanes. But none of these attempts is entirely successful.

And so military authorities have turned to chemists to solve the problem. They demanded chemicals which would smother even the hottest gasoline flames. They also wanted these chemical extinguishers in containers which would be portable and easily handled, because emergencies in which they would be used arise quickly and must be met as quickly.

English air force officers believe they have their own answer in a new extinguisher which utilizes carbon dioxide gas held under pressure until it is in a liquid state. When released in the form of spray upon burning substances part of the liquid turns to gas immediately and part to a snow.

Within a few seconds the snow also evaporates, becoming gas, and this creates a heavy, noninflammable, although invisible, wall around the burning objects. The gas clings because it is much heavier than air and because it is extremely cold, thus resisting the heat of flames which would tend to warm it and cause it to float away upward. Tests prove it extinguishes fire within a few seconds.

The containers in which this liquefied gas is held are strong steel cylinders. They are carried on a small trailer which can be attached to a light automobile or motorcycle suitable for quick dashes over an airport field or over open fields. On the trailer are hose and nozzles through which the liquid gas can be directed to any point within a range of 20 yards.

There is no difficulty about pressure and no pump is necessary, since the gas is under extremely high compression in the steel tanks. The accompanying illustration shows how the trailer, the extinguisher, and the nozzles are used in fighting an airplane fire.

Army, navy, and marine air forces in the United States, and most of the test, stunt, and race pilots of the country, have adopted a similar extinguisher within recent years. The American equivalent of the English liquefied carbon dioxide is "fire foam."

This is a liquid chemical compound which when sprayed from tanks forms a suds exactly like the cap on a freshly drawn stein of beer. Inside each bubble of the foam, however, is a heavy and noninflammable gas, chiefly carbon dioxide, which forms a barrier between the burning objects and the oxygen of the air.

Chemists explain that the methods are alike in that they rely on literally smothering the fire to put it out. Combustion, they say, consists of rapid combination of substances with oxygen in the air. If the supply of oxygen is shut off, combustion cannot continue. A simple experiment to prove this fact easily can be performed. Light a match and drop it into a bottle and then quickly cork the container. For a few seconds the match flares up brightly and then suddenly winks out. The oxygen in the air within the bottle has been exhausted by the combustion, and without it burning cannot continue.

How to Land a Job and Keep It—Tips to Working Girls

You just know she's efficient. Her frock is suitably unobtrusive, every clean hair is in place, her hands are immaculate, and her desk is neat.

If a man may be judged by his secretary, her employer is stamped as a man of good judgment. In dress, manner, and her work she's perfect.

Her telephone manner is crisply efficient, her voice is pleasantly low. She gets messages straight, can be firm when necessary, and never lacks tact.

Employers Suggest Rules to Aid Young Women Seeking Positions

IN THIS day of emancipated womanhood, finding a job and earning a living have come to be a recognized part of the career of almost every young woman. In the majority of cases economic necessity is the chief reason why girls enter business offices, but whether it is necessary or not for a girl to earn her living, there are very few young women who are content to spend their time just waiting to get married.

It is surprising, then, in view of the popularity and in most cases of the vital necessity of earning a living, that so few girls who seek jobs give more than a superficial consideration to their qualifications for employment. Girls in droves apply daily at the large department stores, register their names with employment agencies, and call at business offices to ask for work, but, according to employers and heads of employment agencies, only a very small number of them display anything more than a selfish viewpoint in seeking work, and an amazingly large number of them disregard the most fundamental rules which employers use to determine the fitness of an applicant for a position.

Emphasize Importance Of Personal Appearance

The importance of cleanliness and neatness of attire would seem to be obvious, yet men and women who hire girls for stores and offices testify that many girls lose out in the quest for employment on that score alone.

Concerning personal appearance, which should be of major importance to a girl applying for a job, a personnel manager who has interviewed hundreds of women advises all feminine job seekers to study and follow assiduously the following ten simple rules:

1. Wear well fitting, simple clothes.
2. Have that well groomed look—clothes brushed, no spots, no missing buttons. Be sure your blouse is immaculate, your collars and cuffs fresh. Protect your personal daintiness by wearing fresh underthings, too.
3. Watch your stockings; keep them trim looking. Avoid wrinkled ankles and crooked seams. Runs or holes give a bad impression. Sometimes these are accidents, but care in washing stockings will prevent many runs and holes.
4. Shoes should be neat—polished or brushed, heels not run over.
5. Do not use too much makeup; achieve a natural, not a theatrical effect.
6. Hands should be well kept—finger nails clean and not too long, polish not too vivid.
7. Hair must be neat—no straggling ends from knots; if you have a long bob, wear it curled and trimmed.
8. Do not use too much perfume or a scent that suggests an oriental harem. Daily bathing and freshness in intimate apparel are more important to daintiness than perfume.
9. Reflect in your bearing poise and self-confidence, but avoid conceit and overaggressiveness.
10. When you get a job, follow these rules to keep it.

It is likely that every employer of women would subscribe to these rules as being excellent guides in so far as the subject of personal appearance is concerned. In considering the whole subject of how to get a job, however, a girl should think about a great many other things in addition.

Consider the advice of Mrs. Anne V. Zinser, who has interviewed hundreds of girls in Chicago and through experience has become an expert in the psychology of seeking and finding employment.

"It is my observation," she said, "that the most noticeable mistake made by girls seeking work today is that they have given no thought to developing a definite interest in a particular field.

"Many girls have equipped themselves by education and by special training to qualify for general office work, but too few of them have realized the importance and value to themselves of giving thought and study toward qualifying for a position in a particular business.

Knowledge of Shorthand Only a First Step

"Too many young women who have spent several months and a considerable amount of money learning shorthand and typing consider themselves to be qualified for any office job available.

"As a matter of fact, knowledge of shorthand and typing, while valuable, is of secondary importance as a qualification. Shorthand is not a vocation. It is merely a means of increasing the speed of transcribing words on paper.

"A young woman who has completed a course in stenography and is competent to take dictation and type letters really has completed only the first step in qualifying herself for a position, assuming that she is intelligent and has a sincere desire to find the job in which she will have the greatest opportunity for a successful and happy career.

"My advice to such a girl is to determine, next, the sort of work which interests her most. If she has no preference she should take the trouble to develop one. She might, for instance, decide that work in an insurance office might be interesting. In that case she should then find out as much about the subject of insurance as possible. If in doing so she discovers that insurance does hold for her a definite interest, she will, of course, then concentrate on getting a job in an insurance office.

"Having developed this special interest and having made a serious preparatory study, a girl thus has greatly increased her chance of getting the desired job. She approaches her prospective employer not just as another stenographer asking for work. She has something more to offer.

"Many times girls who have college degrees overlook the fact that a subject of study which particularly interested them in school might be the very interest to develop when it comes time to find a job.

"It would be impossible, I believe, to overemphasize the importance to any girl seeking work of developing this special interest in a chosen field. Too many girls who apply for jobs completely fail to ask themselves, 'What have I to offer?'; yet this is the very thing on which the prospective employer will base his or her decision."

Another personnel manager, whose business is to employ salesgirls for one of Chicago's largest department stores, Marshall Field & Co., expressed agreement with the rules for personal appearance and with the views of Mrs. Zinser, to which he added several observations of his own:

Few Applicants Have Definite Ideas

"It is, unfortunately, exceptional when a girl comes to us with a definite idea of exactly what she wants to do and why. I always ask an applicant why she decided to apply for work with us. Usually this question is a poser. The answers almost always are vague. Most of them say:

"'I've always wanted to work for this store,' or 'I think I will make a good salesgirl.'

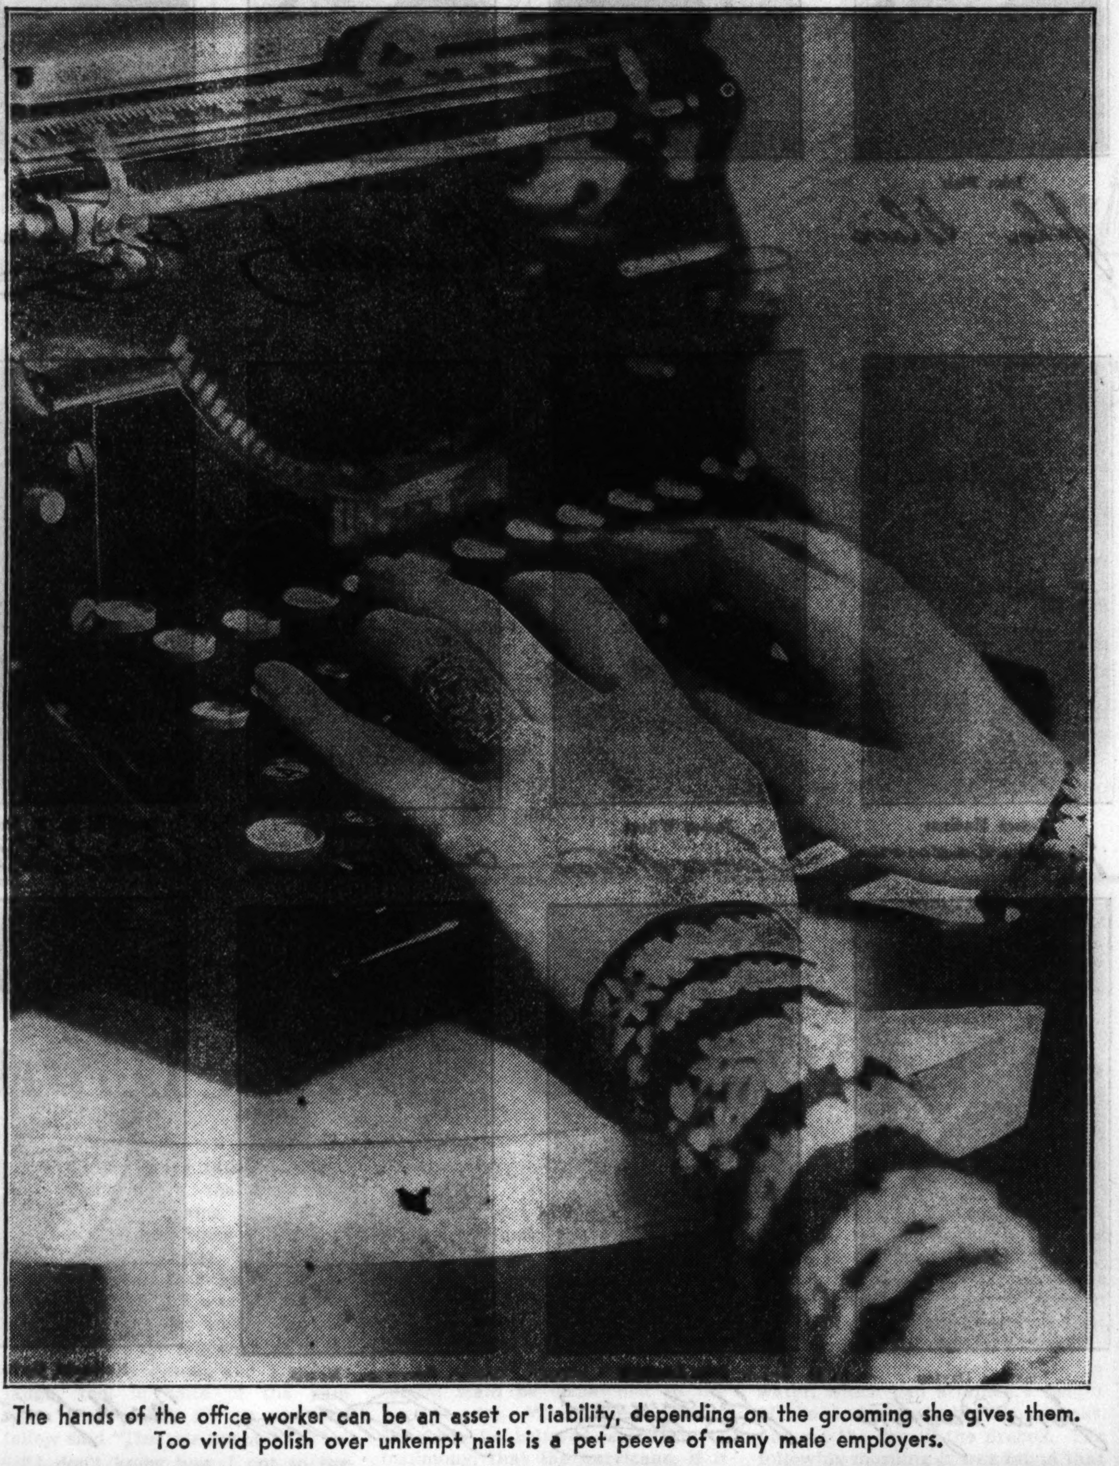
"It is refreshing when a girl comes in and says she has a definite interest in a particular department and gives evidence that she has taken the trouble to know what she is talking about."

Rules for Measuring Your Personality

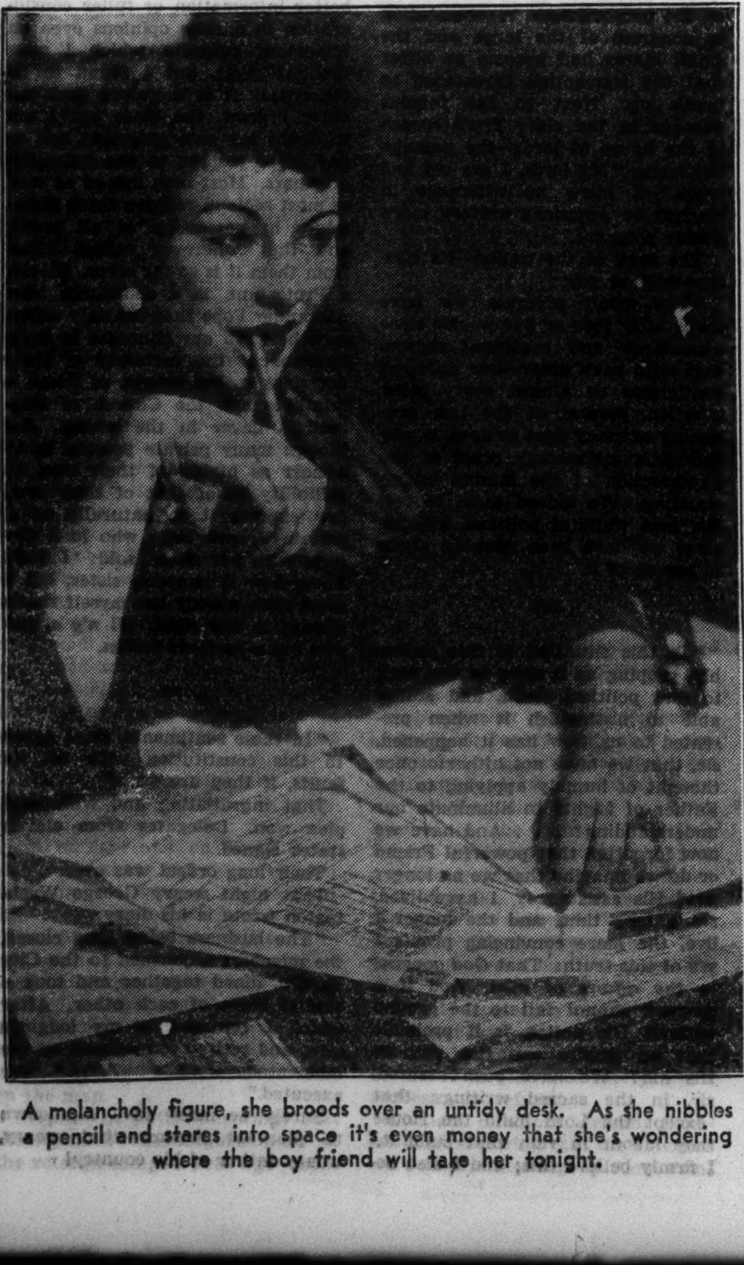
In addition to the all-important consideration of personal appearance, this official suggests to girls seeking jobs the advisability of giving serious thought to the following rules, which might be classified as personality measuring sticks:

1. Your face should express what you mean to say.
2. Look at the person to whom you are talking.
3. Your tone of voice should be pleasing and have variety.
4. Do not discuss your personal troubles.
5. Your attitude should be neither superior nor inferior.
6. Be free from distressing mannerisms.
7. Use words with discrimination.
8. Try out new words and increase your vocabulary.
9. Know what you mean to say before you say it.
10. Know when you have said what you mean and then stop.

A final suggestion which every girl seeking a job should keep in mind is that first impressions are lasting and that, having determined to present a definite idea to the prospective employer, rehersal of what you are going to say and how you are going to say it will enhance the effectiveness of your appeal. In doing this, however, avoid being unnatural and affected.



The hands of the office worker can be an asset or liability, depending on the grooming she gives them. Too vivid polish over unkempt nails is a pet peeve of many male employers.



A melancholy figure, she broods over an untidy desk. As she nibbles a pencil and stares into space it's even money that she's wondering where the boy friend will take her tonight.

She's read that the working girl always should look trim, so she combs out her curls at her littered desk. And her coiffure, like her dress, is much too fussy.

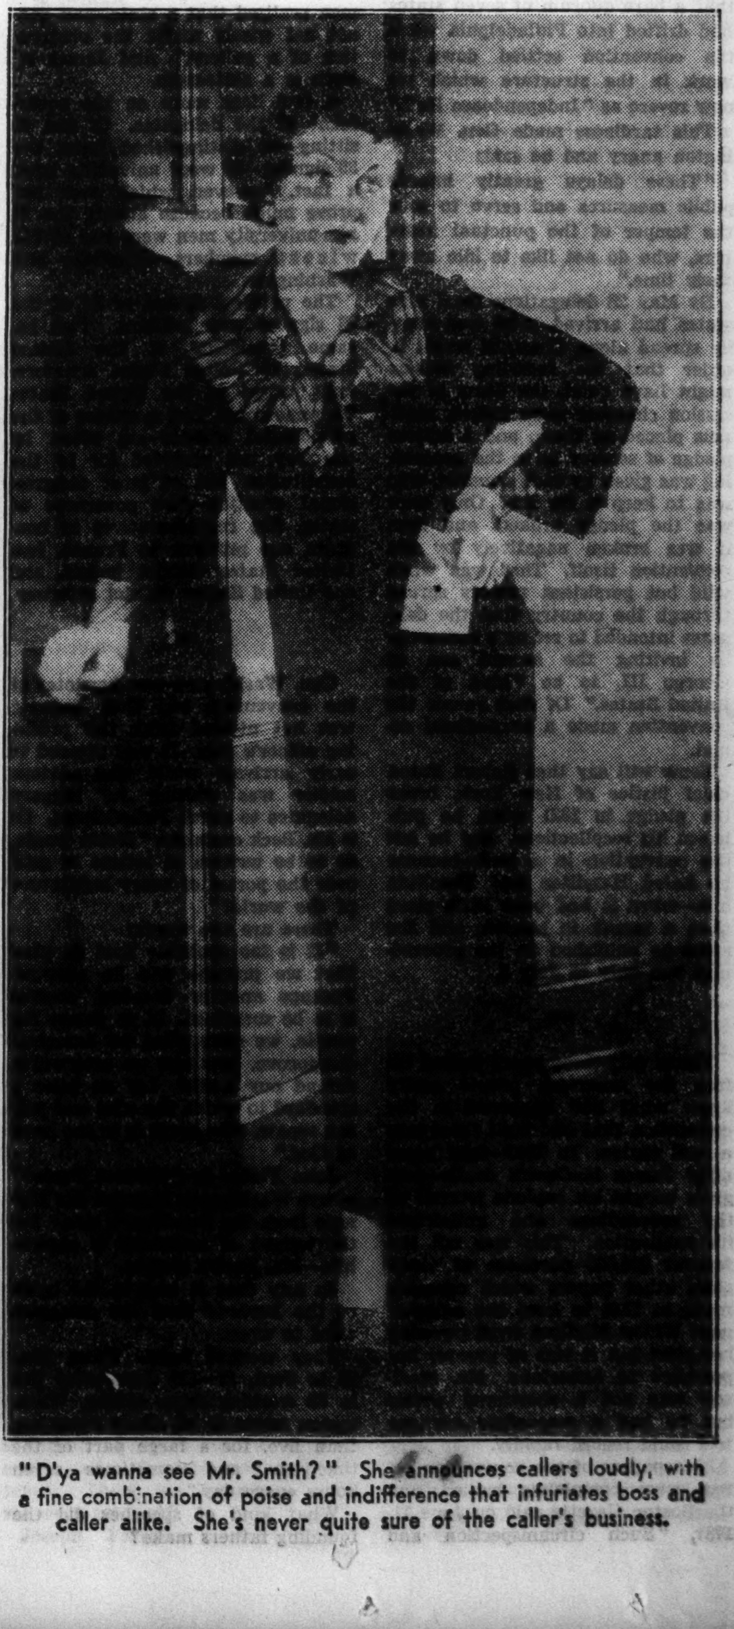
"Honestly, Joe, you're a card. . . . And then what did she say?" This goes on and on until the sad day the employer decides that her job interferes too much with her phone calls.



"D'ya wanna see Mr. Smith?" She announces callers loudly, with a fine combination of poise and indifference that infuriates boss and caller alike. She's never quite sure of the caller's business.

Franklin's Appeal to Delegates

It certainly was the largest, numbering eight.

Each of the 13 states that had brought us through the revolutionary war could send as many delegates as it wished to, for in the convention the states were to vote as units. Rhode Island, then as now, recalcitrant and under the thumb of demagogs, never sent a delegation and did not consent to ratify the constitution until May 29, 1790, nearly two years after its ratification by New Hampshire — the 9th and hence, by the express terms of the new constitution, the last state whose ratification was needed to establish the document as a working instrument of government.

Thomas James Norton, a Chicago lawyer, in his very valuable and readable book "The Constitution of the United States: Its Sources and Its Application," emphasizes the fact that "Little Rhody" dismounted from its high horse and knocked for admission at the door of the new Union only after the national government had begun to deal with it as a foreign country and had subjected it to taxes on its exports!

The date set by congress—such as it was, and it was a pretty feeble body—for the constitutional convention was May 14, 1787, but it was not until eleven days later that the body got down to work. Severe storms had delayed some of the southern delegates. New Hampshire was broke and could not raise money to send its delegation of two men until the convention had been several weeks in session.

The long and short of it was that a bare quorum of seven states had drifted into Philadelphia when the convention settled down to work in the structure which we now revere as "Independence Hall."

This tardiness made Gen. Washington angry and he said:

"These delays greatly impede public measures and serve to sour the temper of the punctual members, who do not like to idle away their time."

By May 28 delegations from nine states had arrived, sand was heavily spread along Chestnut street in order that the founding fathers might have quiet, the doors of the session chamber were locked, sentinels placed at them, and a solemn pledge of secrecy as to the proceeding was given by each member, who was to keep it for life. Only once was the pledge broken, and then it was broken negatively by the convention itself. That was when wild but persistent rumors spread through the country that the delegates intended to set up a monarchy by inviting the second son of George III. to be "king of the United States." Of that rumor the convention made a semi-official denial.

Some will say that Robert Yates, chief justice of New York, broke the pledge in 1821 when he published his recollections. But he left the convention in a huff—because he hated Hamilton and Hamilton him—when it had been little more than a month in session, and the notes he published on the proceedings run only to July 5.

Hence fifty-three years passed before the American people really knew what had happened in the convention that had built them into a real nation. In 1840—four years after James Madison's death—congress bought his copious journal of the proceedings and authorized its publication. This was not the famous $25,000 purchase of Madison's other papers which congress made in 1848 to keep the extravagant Widow Madison from pawning her skirt but it was of greater importance to historians. Mr. Madison was not a shorthand writer but he had a marvelous memory and could record rapidly.

Newspapers of the convention period were completely balked, and the Boston Gazette said on June 11, 1787, "Such circumspection and secrecy mark the proceedings that the members find it difficult to acquire the habits of communication even among themselves, and are so cautious in defeating the curiosity of the publick, that all debate is suspended on the entrance of their own inferior officers."

Once there was an accident that might have caused a leak, and again Gen. Washington, who had been unanimously chosen presiding officer, blew up in his own austere but effective way. A member had dropped a paper containing a measure then under discussion. Another member found it and handed it to the general.

Then the blowup. "I must," said he, "entreat gentlemen to be more careful, lest our transactions get into the newspapers and disturb the public repose by premature speculations. I know not whose paper it is, but there it is (throwing it down to the table). Let him who owns it, take it."

The guilty delegate was so awed that he dared not come forward and claim his paper.

Mr. Beck warmly defends this rule of secrecy, saying, "These wise men realized that a statesman cannot act wisely under the observation of a gallery." And James M. Beck is a statesman.

A few lines more on the equipment of the delegates. Of the 55 sitting—as distinguished from the 39 signing—29 were university men, a fact, however, which does not prove much because among the 26 non-university men were two of the wisest members—Franklin and Washington.

The political future of 34 of the 39 signers was brilliant. Two became presidents of the United States, 15 United States senators, four judges of the United States Supreme court, two members of the presidential cabinet—an office, by the way, not provided for by the constitution but of later congressional creation—two governors of states, five representatives in congress, one minister to France, two United States district judges, and one United States district attorney.

Gen. Washington was keynoter of the convention but that keynote was not uttered from the presiding officer's dais. It was uttered to early arrivals while the anxious soldier was waiting for laggard delegates to reach Philadelphia. Of it Mr. Beck exclaims, "Noble words, fit to be written in letters of gold over the portal of every legislature of the world!"

These are the words:

"It is too probable that no plan that we propose will be adopted. Perhaps another dreadful conflict is to be sustained. If, to please the people, we offer what we ourselves disapprove, how can we afterwards defend our work? Let us raise a standard to which the wise and just can repair. The event is in the hand of God."

John Fiske—in "Critical Period"—says Washington sounded his keynote from the President's chair but the weight of authority is against him—Mr. Beck's weight.

In any case it was in the spirit of the keynote that the delegates went to work.

They worked hard. From May 25 to Sept. 17—116 days—they put in 86 working days, toiling, Washington wrote in his diary, "not less than five, for a large part of the time six, and sometimes seven hours every day."

What kind of speeches did the founding fathers make?

Great—many of them.

And the number of them was appalling.

Patient commentators have ciphered it out that young Gouverneur Morris [Pa.] made 173 speeches, James Wilson [Pa.] 168, James Madison [Va.] 161, Roger Sherman [Conn.] 138, George Mason [Va.] 136, and Elbridge Gerry [Mass.] 119. That record accounts for only 6 of the half hundred debaters and omits the fluent and masterly Hamilton [N. Y.], and the tireless Luther Martin [Md.] who could and did speak on and on until adjournment time and then resume next day.

One of the very best speeches—almost terrifying in its prescience—was delivered on the day George Mason burned up the delegates from South Carolina and Georgia, who did not wish a provision ending the slave trade put in the constitution. I quote a fragment of that noble utterance.

After denouncing the slave trade as "this infernal traffic," Mr. Mason said:

"Slavery discourages arts and manufactures. The poor despise labor when performed by slaves. They prevent the immigration of whites, who really strengthen and enrich a country. They produce the most pernicious effect on manners. Every master of slaves is born a petty tyrant. They bring the judgment of Heaven on a country. As nations cannot be rewarded or punished in the next world, they must be in this. By an inevitable chain of causes and effects, Providence punishes national sins by national calamities."

For pure simplicity and for honest, tender appeal to the better natures of angry men nothing can excel the venerated Franklin's brief speech on June 28, when debate on the proportionate representation in congress of the large and the small states had become so bitter that the convention threatened to break up. Next to the famous passage in the elder Pitt's speech in the house of lords—the passage beginning "My lords, I am old and weak"—I know no utterance in English or American oratory more gently poignant.

The sage of the nation—its Nestor—said in part:

"The small progress we have made after four or five weeks' close attendance and continual reasonings with each other—our different sentiments on almost every other question, several of the last producing as many noes as ayes, is, methinks, a melancholy proof of the imperfection of the human understanding. We indeed seem to feel our own want of political wisdom, since we have been running about in search of it. . . .

Session Is Marked by Secrecy

"In this situation of this assembly, groping as it were in the dark to find political truth, and scarce able to distinguish it when presented to us, how has it happened, sir, that we have not hitherto once thought of humbly applying to the Father of Lights to illuminate our understanding? . . . And have we now forgotten that powerful Friend or do we imagine that we no longer need His assistance? I have lived, sir, a long time, and the longer I live, the more convincing proofs I see of this truth: That God governs in the affairs of men. And if a sparrow cannot fall to the ground without His notice, is it probable that an empire can rise without His aid? We have been assured, sir, in the sacred writings, that 'except the Lord build the House they labour in vain that build it.' I firmly believe this; and I also believe that without His concurring aid we shall succeed in this political building no better than the builders of Babel. We shall be divided by our little partial local interests; our projects will be confounded, and we ourselves shall become a reproach and byword down to future ages. And what is worse, mankind may hereafter, from this unfortunate instance, despair of establishing governments by human wisdom and leave it to chance, war, and conquest.

"I therefore beg leave to move that henceforth prayers imploring the assistance of heaven, and its blessings on our deliberations, be held in this assembly every morning before we proceed to business, and that one or more of the clergy of this city be requested to officiate in that service."

General Washington spoke only once or twice during the 86 days of debate.

Perhaps the shortest speech of the whole hot summer was made by young James Madison. He then was only 36 years old but one never thinks of him as a young man, so learned and so sedate was he. That speech contained five words. Again the subject of proportionate representation was up. "Where," thundered Oliver Ellsworth [Conn.], "is or where was there a confederacy ever formed where equality of voices was not a fundamental principle?"

Little Madison, ever gentle and kindly, and knowing the policies of antiquity as no other man on the floor did, said in his weak voice but with conviction:

"Lycia was such a one."

Thundering Ellsworth subsided, and Madison, then formally taking the floor, proceeded to trim him and Connecticut by chapter and verse.

And so, now truculent, now sagaciously compromising, they worked through the heat.

Dear Franklin made the most notable of the farewell speeches. It was an appeal to the delegates to forget differences and sign the completed document on which the fate of a nation depended.

"I confess," he said in the speech, that had to be read for him because he was so weak and infirm, "that there are several parts of this constitution which I do not at present approve, but I am not sure I shall never approve them. For having lived long I have experienced many instances of being obliged by better information or fuller consideration to change opinions even on important subjects, which I once thought right, but I found to be otherwise. It is therefore that the older I grow, the more apt I am to doubt my own judgment and to pay more respect to the judgment of others. Most men indeed as well as most sects in religion think themselves in possession of all truth, and that wherever others differ from them it is so far error. Steele, a Protestant, in a dedication tells Alexander Pope that the only difference between our churches in their opinions of the certainty of their doctrines is, the church of Rome is infallible and the Church of England is never in the wrong. But though many private persons think almost as highly of their own infallibility as of that of their sect, few express it so naturally as a certain French lady, who in a dispute with her sister, said: 'I don't know how it happens, sister, but I meet with nobody but myself that's always in the right.'—Il n'y a que moi qui a toujours raison.

"In these sentiments, sir, I agree to this constitution with all its faults, if they are such."

That ingratiating and whimsical plea won. Delegates from eleven states signed.

Their long ordeal was over.

That night weary George Washington wrote in his diary:

"The business being thus closed, the members adjourned to the City Tavern, dined together and took a cordial leave of each other. After which I returned to my lodgings . . . and retired to meditate on the momentous work which had been executed."

Surely he must have lain down to pleasant dreams—that weary, weary father of his country!

By SPEARMEN LEWIS

Miami, Fla.

THIS is the story of how 282 American world war veterans were killed and 106 injured in the terrific hurricane that swept southern Florida and the Florida keys last Labor day.

Why these men met injury and death has been the subject of an official government investigation. The finding of this inquiry has freed from blame everyone responsible for the safety of the former service men who were camped on Florida's hurricane reefs when the fury of the storm broke. The hurricane was an "act of God," the investigators reported, and "there was no culpable negligence anywhere."

The public, however, while quite willing to admit that there are no earthly forces capable of controling a hurricane, asks why these war veterans were virtually left to their fate on the narrow strips of sand that stretch beyond the tip of Florida when a majority of accounts have shown that there was ample warning of the approach of disaster. Why, also asks the public, was there so much delay when it finally was decided to evacuate the veterans from the points of danger?

For a clearer understanding of the account which is to follow the reader is referred to the accompanying map. This map shows, among other things, a line of coral reefs stretching out and down from the east coast of Florida, a 150-mile link of railroad, bridges, and ferries connecting the mainland with Key West, once important from a naval standpoint. In this long link are the three keys, or low sand islands —Tavernier, Upper Matecumbe, and Lower Matecumbe—upon which the veterans perished in the fury of the hurricane.

The sector embracing the three veterans' camps, sixty miles south of Miami, began about five miles south of Tavernier, on Whale creek, and ended at the ferry slip at Lower Matecumbe. Between the extremities of the sector, at Snake creek, Upper Matecumbe, the full force of the storm broke in the evening of last Labor day. The three camps, Camp 1, Camp 3, and Camp 5, where 699 former service men were sheltered under the jurisdiction and protection of the FERA, are indicated on the map.

Despite the petty bickerings that accompanied the establishment of the veteran camps a year ago—most of which can be traced to the practice of placing inexperienced civilians in charge of mentally ill and discouraged veterans — the men on the Florida keys fared by no means badly in pleasant weather and sunshine. Many of them say so promptly. They received $5 cash for pocket money monthly and $25 was sent to needy relatives. A dollar a day—$30 a month and their keep — for such common labor as they might do on highway construction along the lower keys.

The men suspected they had been exiled to the hurricane reefs as a convenient method of keeping them out of another bonus march on Washington, and that others of their buddies, for the same purpose, had been scattered about construction camps in the southern states, where the winters are not so cold and the general problem of shelter not so acute as in the north.

The three camps were under the direction of FERA civilians, Florida state appointments, headed by F. B. Ghent, director of veterans' work, of Jacksonville, and Ray Sheldon, also a resident of that city. The directors cruised up and down the reefs frequently in motor cars and were personally familiar with exposed conditions on the keys, some of which are only a block or two wide. The Florida East Coast railway, a major unit in national transportation, traverses the keys from Key West to Miami. A highway parallels the roadbed, and about 5,000 civilians had their homes along the keys—famous as deep sea fishing grounds for winter tourists.

It was a great life for the veterans until the wind began to blow. Death did not crack down on them with the suddenness of a Black Tom explosion, a prairie state cyclone, nor yet a California earthquake. It stalked them, taunted them, for forty-eight hours, every passing minute of which warned of the storm's relentless oncoming fury.

Apprehension began in the camps at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon preceding Labor day. It was then that the first broadcast located a gathering "tropical disturbance" at Long Branch in the South Bahama Islands. It was reported heading due west, which, had it been a correct forecast, would have carried the hurricane into the Gulf of Mexico, over the narrow seaway that courses between Key West and Havana.

Twenty-four hours after this stray hurricane had first been reported the men began to demand that they be moved to places of safety. Their request was refused.

Civilian directors defend themselves by declaring that the veterans were always stewing up some complaint and that a stray hurricane was just another excuse to "raise more hell."

Hurricane Survivors Describe Tidal Wave and 150 Mile Hour Winds

Veterans under the leadership of Blackie Pugh, a commander of Overseas Bridge post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, made three demands upon Camp Director Sheldon for evacuation. At the final appeal they declare they were threatened with the posting of a bayonet guard if they attempted to take French leave. There was nothing for good soldiers to do but dig in and wait.

When the full force of the storm broke at dusk on Sept. 2 the veterans at Camp 1 began their checkerboard game with death. Ernest Be[illegible]e, veteran of Portsmouth, Va., with his back cracked by a flying timber, told this story to Lula McLendon, Red Cross worker, from a mattress on the floor of the Baptist church in Homestead:

"It was just like a checker game. Most of us were living in those army tents that stood around the commissary and the mess hall. When we felt that even if the relief train did get there it would be too late, we began to shop around for tents with duck board flooring. It was raining plenty, and the tents with the sand for flooring were not so hot.

"That was funny for a while. A bunch of us would bust into what looked like a good tent—already full of fellows—when zip! would go the tent, just like a kite.

"So we beat it for the commissary. It was full of the lads, and for a few minutes it looked like a swell hideout. We had some lanterns, and it wasn't so bad out of the rain, when bam! it went — exploded right in our face.

"We had all been looking for windows and doors to blow in, when 'bam' out go the walls and away sails most of the roof.

"I think we lost a couple of the fellows there.

"Our crowd beat it for the mess hall hand-in-hand, strung out like a lot of kids playing 'follow the leader.' Just about half of us had got inside when the shack began to groan and wiggle and show signs of going to pieces. 'To hell with this,' says Blackie Pugh, 'let's try and find something that will stay put.'

"Somebody suggested a tank car that had just come down that day and was on the railroad siding.

"While we were talking it over and wondering if the mess hall could hold its beams, it just settled down on us. Some of the boys didn't get out in time. I felt something hit me in the back and the next thing I knew I was tasting salt water and was flat on my face.

"You know the fellows are always making funny cracks and I had to laugh, too, in spite of the pain when they picked me up and one fellow said 'The tide seems to be in.'

"I don't know how I got to the tank car but when I sort of come to there was a string of us, two and three deep, hanging on to the land side with the tanker between us and the storm. Blackie said he thought there were about forty. It was black as a storm night can get. The wind made so much noise we couldn't talk much. When the water began to get up over the tracks and swirl about our feet the fellows passed the word along to lock arms with each other.

"We stayed together pretty well until the water got up to our necks. Then we began to lose a few of the fellows. Five waves, one at a time, came right over the top of that tank car and every time they did we would lose a couple of buddies.

"Once, maybe about midnight, there was a lull — a doc told me later it was 40 minutes—and we all scrambled through the water around to the other side of the car. When the wind started again it just cracked like a whip and got so bad one of the fellows said we had better begin to pray while we could get our mouths open. Some of the fellows knew just about half of a lot of prayers and we passed them along by shouting in each others ears."

About thirty of the men in Belote's group were saved.

While this was going on similar scenes were being enacted at other points in the fifteen mile stretch of hurricane swept sands that made up the camp area. The one hope that kept many alive in the tragic hours of that Monday was that a special relief train would come to their rescue.

The story of that train, which reached the scene of the disaster too late, is pieced together as follows from the testimony given by witnesses at the official investigation:

It was about 1:30 p. m. on Labor day when Ghent, the camp director in Jacksonville, decided to evacuate the veterans' camps on the keys. Shortly after 2 o'clock he communicated with the main office of the Florida East Coast railway at St. Augustine and asked that a special train be dispatched to the keys at once. When Ghent ordered the train he believed, according to testimony, that the hurricane, if it struck the keys, would not reach them for at least twelve hours.

Approximately two hours after the order was received, the train, made up of coaches and boxcars, rolled out of Miami on its way south. The train arrived at Homestead, twenty-eight miles south of Miami, at 5:15 p. m. Here the engine was switched to the rear of the train in order that it might back south and have the benefit of pulling the train north through the heavy weather which was expected. Fifteen minutes were required for this operation. Some miles south of Homestead, a cable attached to a derrick alongside the track had blown down and had caught in the cab of the engine. This caused another delay of approximately an hour and twenty minutes.

The train arrived at Islamorado shortly after 8 p. m. By this time the storm already had broken, was of hurricane force, and so intense that the engineer failed to see the depot and ran two or three car lengths past the spot before his attention was called to it.

It should be pointed out here that it had been determined in advance, on the advice of George Branch, railroad yard master of the Miami district, to run the train to the end of the line, evacuate the most westerly camp first and then pick up the men of the other camps on the way back. But there was no return trip for that train.

Sheldon, the camp director, and thirteen men from one of the camps had arrived at Islamorado about 6 o'clock in the evening, and waited there for the train, which showed up shortly after 8.

Upon the arrival of the train, Sheldon went out to the engine. At this time the wind had risen in velocity to some 150 miles an hour, and the oncoming tidal wave already was several feet above the railroad track, which, in turn, is about seven feet above sea level.

An attempt to start the train was unsuccessful. Investigation showed that box cars at the rear had been overturned by the wind.

A few minutes later the rising water, which had attained a height of about five feet above the tracks, put out the fire in the firebox. The following morning it was found that all of the coaches and box cars had been overturned by the tidal wave.

One of the men on the relief train tells the following story of how men at one of the northerly camps tried to board the coaches and box cars in an attempt to escape the fury of the wind:

"When we passed Tavernier there was just about enough daylight— and men began to scramble out from the damnedest places you could imagine. They would run, stumble, fall, crawl, then up again, waving their arms to attract our attention. By signs we tried to convey our purpose—to clear the lower camp first and then come back. All the vets could understand was that we kept moving and were leaving them behind. Their 'relief train' was leaving them to fight the storm alone.

"We couldn't hear what they were saying, but I am kind of glad we went into the ditch, too, for of all the curses I have ever seen on human faces we must have been getting the worst. One or two made the train, but for the most part they were swallowed by the night. Perhaps it all turned out just as well, for many of our coaches would have turned out death traps."

Continuing his story, this man who was on the relief train says:

"To show you how the storm raged and how helpless we were, the train stopped to remove obstructions from the track near Upper Matecumbe and the box car I was riding in stopped right opposite a box car on a siding. There were about 20 men in that box car. In ordinary weather we could have formed some kind of a living chain and taken the boys aboard. The water by that time was right up to the car floors and sweeping between us like a raging torrent.

"Neither side could make itself heard and they could not understand our signals, although if it had been possible for both sides to hold out their hands we could have almost touched.

"One vet tried to jump. He didn't make it and was swept away in a twinkle.

"While we were trying to figure it out our train began to sag and slip and the first thing we knew our car was in the ditch half under the one we came to rescue.

"We stood on tar barrels the rest of the night trying to keep our heads above water.

"One of the men in the next box car told me that while we were standing there a telegraph pole that had been snapped off came through the side of his car—arms and all—and out through the other side as cleanly as if he had thrown a knife at a sheet of paper."

One of the most realistic accounts of the disaster was given by Dr. Lassiter Alexander, medical officer at Camp No. 1, Snake creek, who escaped with injuries to his back. Dr. Alexander related:

"The storm started in fury at 8 p. m. I was at Snake Creek hotel, which was used as a hospital. This collapsed at about 10 p. m., with many persons under the ruins. There were about forty patients in this building, about half women and children. Of this number there were only seven men and three or four of the women and children saved.

"When the building toppled over I was able to walk out through a hole in the wall into about three or four feet of water filled with floating timber and débris.

"With the aid of a flashlight I made my way in the direction of the railroad grade, which was the highest point. I reached a high bank covered with grass after walking about 250 yards and being knocked down innumerable times by flying timbers. I finally reached a rock wall about four feet high, where, with a bunch of other men, I huddled twenty or thirty minutes.

"When we found the water still rising, we made our way to the railroad track. Placing ourselves behind the grade, we dug holes into the earth under the cross ties, so we could protect our heads from the flying dêbris. This was the only way we could find to keep our brains from being crushed out.

"At daybreak Tuesday we found a tank car full of water which offered refuge from the wind, and a number of others built a fire and made coffee for the sick and injured. There we remained until we were rescued."

Joseph Factsau, former army aviator, timekeeper at Camp No. 5, is at a hospital in Miami with spine injuries. He saw his wife, two daughters, and two grandchildren killed after his family had reached Camp No. 1 seeking safety.

"Upon hearing the storm warning," he said, "I started out in an automobile from my home half way between Camps No. 5 and No. 3 with my wife, my two daughters, and my two grandchildren.

"After traveling through increasing winds and over wreckage-strewn roads for eighteen miles on a flat tire, we reached Camp No. 1 and were placed in a building with a lot of men.

"The building lasted only an hour. I tried to make a human chain from the building to the railroad track to get all the women and children to safety, but I was washed out into the gulf by a high wave. I swam back as quickly as I could and reached shore just as the hospital collapsed. I heard my wife calling my name, but I was not able to get to her in time."

From the lips of Albert Pawa of Newark, N. J., comes one of the strangest tales of a narrow escape from death.

He was one of the veterans in Camp No. 1 near Snake Creek. At 4 o'clock on Monday, Pawa says, the wind began blowing with hurricane velocity. The camp cabin in which he lived with companions was wrecked and he was compelled to crawl on his hands and knees for some distance to a shack used for the storage of heavy cable. There with two other companions he believed himself safe. But the wind eventually pushed over the shack, tons of cable notwithstanding. In an effort to save himself Pawa clung to a bit of the roof. In a moment, however, the gale lifted this off and blew it out to sea. After what seemed hours, Pawa relates, he was washed ashore and made his way to a tree to which he held.

From Pawa, and from others, comes a strange story of sparks, resembling lightning bugs, flying through the air as the wind created friction between the salt air and sand.

One survivor claimed that to be the most horrible moment of the storm.

"I thought the world was going to explode," he declared. "You may not believe that," he added, "but if you had been down there that night and heard that wind scream. If you could have seen human bodies flying through the air, and watched buildings collapse as if crushed by some mighty hand, you would have believed anything."

Mansion for Tugwell Workers

$3,000,000 Home Now Office

By WILLARD EDWARDS

Washington, D. C.

DESCRIBING recently the woes of the poverty-stricken whom he plans to aid with his rural resettlement and rural rehabilitation programs, Rexford Guy Tugwell, undersecretary of agriculture, with a lump in his throat and a tear in his eye, spoke as follows:

"These people do not live; they barely exist. They are huddled in tiny rooms practically bare of furniture. When night comes many stretch a blanket on the floor and lie down on the hard boards.

"The summer sun beats down on tin roofs. The heat inside is almost unbearable. Cracks in the thin walls are no protection against the blasts of winter. As you approach, undernourished, frightened children scamper to their mother's side. Their faces and bodies are emaciated and hollow. Economic disaster has ground them down, dangerously impaired their health, robbed them of a normal, decent existence."

The feelings of his listeners were properly harrowed. Some may have thought that the good professor in his zeal had painted the picture just a bit too vividly in his desire to justify the millions he was spending. If the chief brain truster was correct, they may have argued to themselves, then how had these unfortunates escaped the benefits of the billions being paid out for relief?

Dr. Tugwell, however, was probably sincere, and, as a step in the right direction toward bettering the condition of the economic underprivileged, he first has turned an eye to the comfort of his employés in his various departments. Recently he carried this solicitude to an unprecedented altitude, even for Washington, when he installed the 240 members of his rural rehabilitation staf in the magnificent, if somewhat rococo, mansion of Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean at 2020 Massachusetts avenue.

No tin roofs nor cracks in the walls here. No tiny rooms bare of furniture. No hollow-cheeked inhabitants. Instead, officials, in between decisions as to loans for live stock, seeds, and equipment for destitute farmers, glance around complacently at carved mahogany walls and full-length gold-bordered mirrors. Plump stenographers tap daintily at their typewriters in a ballroom with a color scheme of rose and ivory. Messengers trot up and down a grand staircase supposed to be a reproduction of the Paris Opera house stairway.

All this Dr. Tugwell has obtained for his charges at the modest rental of $1 per square foot per annum, $1,603.50 a month, $19,242 a year. It was a good deal for Mrs. McLean, who first wore the gaudy Hope diamond in this house. She had been paying $3,500 a year in taxes and supportng a large staf in leisure while she traveled. Even for a woman of Mrs. McLean's acknowledged opulence the place was a large white elephant.

It was not a question of office space being unavailable, Mr. Tugwell's amiable press agent, a Mr. McManus (with offices in the solarium), admitted. This was at first the official explanation, but a suspicious press pointed out that plenty of office space was to be had.

"Look at the advantages of the place," Mr. McManus said enthusiastically. "It is convenient and comfortable. Efficiency is promoted, We all like it very much."

He led the reporter on a tour. Entering the great portals of the 54-room, $3,000,000 mansion, the visitor finds himself facing the grand staircase. At the first level two comely marble maidens in flowing draperies stand poised with tambourines, ready to go into their dance. Similar statuary peeps at the tourist throughout the house. The staircase goes up and up to the third floor. Mahogany balconies line this three-story-high reception room, and a great stained glass roof sheds a rosy benediction upon the saviors of agriculture below.

"We put the attorneys in the drawing room," said Mr. McManus, ushering the reporter into a vast chamber flanked at each end by giant stone fireplaces. There were a dozen desks in the room, but only one lone young man scowling at some papers was present. "I guess the lawyers are out at the moment," remarked Mr. McManus.

The telephone switchboard was discovered in the butler's pantry. The stationery storeroom was found in the mammoth kitchen in the cellar. Draftsmen were working in the large bedrooms upstairs. Mrs. McLean had ordered the many ornate bathtubs covered up. Dr. Tugwell's young men and women are thus deprived of a cool tub when the inclination strikes them.

Over some of the rich carvings and the oil paintings cellophane has been spread. The rooms were repainted and electrical outlets and telephones installed when the department moved in Aug. 1.

The feature of the mansion which attracts most visitors is the great pipe organ. Mahogany again is the main material used to frame the pipes, and a couple of oil portraits furnish an unusual decoration to this musical instrument.

Where once arose the laughter of white-shouldered ladies and the quips of black-coated gentlemen, now is heard the gentle discussion of New Deal hirelings concerning the application of Farmer Brown of Corn county, Arkansas, for a $100 loan with which to purchase a mule to replace faithful old Jenny.

Like the mansion which is the subject of this article, another McLean residence, that in I street, famous as a social salon during the Harding administration, has been leased to the New Dealers to help take care of the expansion of federal agencies. The latest lease was announced early this month.

Ex-Smuggler a Power in Spain

Story of Juan March, Boss of Balearics

By HENRY BUCKLEY

Madrid, Spain.

"EITHER the republic overthrows Don Juan March or the señor will overthrow the republic!"

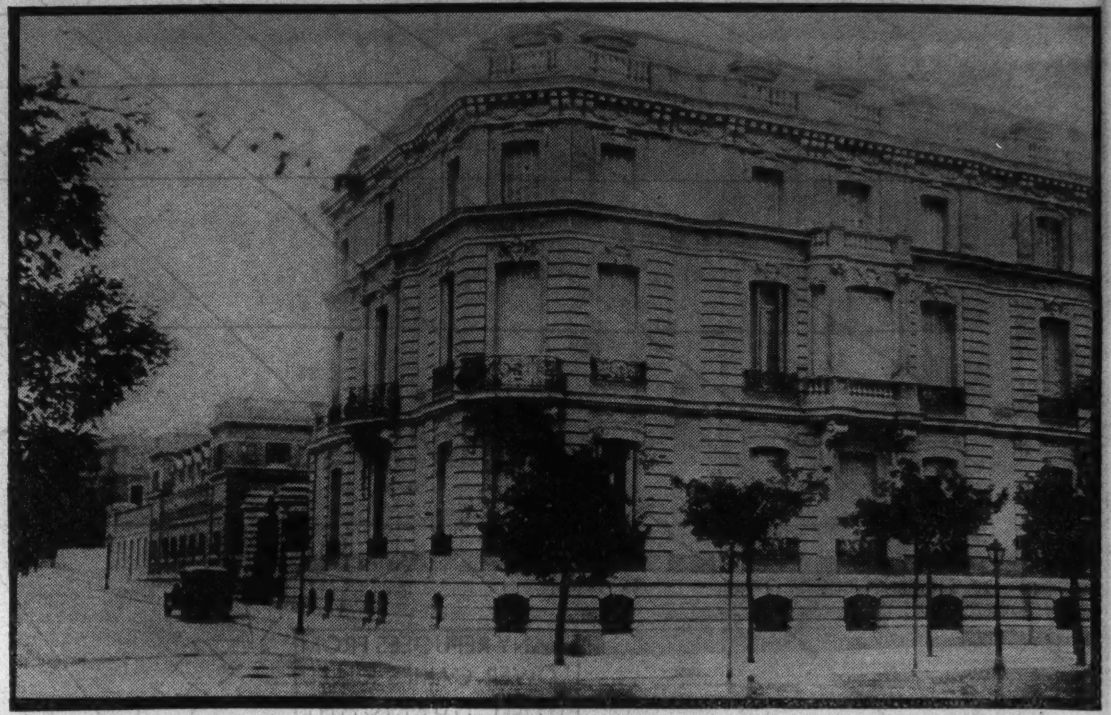
These were the prophetic words of the dour Señor Carner, finance minister in the early days of the new régime. He was referring to Spain's richest citizen, the boss of the Balearics—the "Golden Isles" of the Mediterranean—and former king of the smuggling bands which at one time flooded Spain with cheap cigarets at prices far below those of the government tobacco monopoly.

March's fortune is estimated at $30,000,000, and in a poor land such as Spain there is practically no limit to what can be done with thirty million. Money talks anywhere! It shouts in Spain.

Monarchy, dictatorship, republic, all have tried to cope with Juan March. All have failed. No one has been able to interrupt the dramatic career of this son of a Majorcan cattle dealer who has become not only the richest but the most picturesque figure in all Spain.

The prophecy made by the finance minister has not, of course, come literally true. Ex-King Alfonso resides in the Villa Tita Ruffo in Rome, and that Andalusian politician, Señor Alcala Zamora, still occupies the former royal palace in Madrid. But the republic as represented in those early days has disappeared.

The man who directs events in Spain today, Don José Maria Gil Robles, war minister and leader of the clerical party, is the unknown young lawyer who defended Juan March in parliament when Azaña's cabinet tried to prove a case against him.



Home of Don Juan March in Nunez Balboa street, Madrid.

Juan March, the most powerful individual in the second Spanish republic.

The port of Palma in Majorca, where Don Juan March holds complete sway. The great structure in the background is Palma's cathedral.

Judging by his name, March may well be descended from the well known class in Majorca known as the Chuecas. From the age of ten March traveled the markets of the island, which was prosperous even before it became the Mecca of sun bathers and idle rich. Juan helped his father buy cattle and garlic. But it was a dull business for one with an adventurous temperament, and Juan March apparently took to the favorite Majorcan occupation—smuggling.

The strategic position of the Balearic Isles, which lie not much more than one hundred miles distant from the coasts of Spain, France, and Morocco, added to the fantastically high customs barrier which surrounds the Balearics along with the rest of Spanish territory, makes smuggling an irresistible attraction for the inhabitants of those islands.

Juan March prospered. He bought a partnership in a tobacco factory in the port of Oran, in French Morocco. Then he obtained the monopoly for the sale of tobacco in the whole of the Spanish protectorate in Morocco. Apparently he had to pay some $50,000 annually for this privilege. Naturally his enemies suggested that it would now be much easier to send tobacco to Spain from the coast of Spanish Morocco, which lies just across the way and is much nearer than Oran, which is several hundred miles off in the direction of Egypt.

Figures from the official tobacco monopoly concern record that between 1909 and 1923 no fewer than 443 vessels were seized while transporting contraband tobacco. Of these the biographer, Manuel D. Benavides, attributes 70 as belonging to March.

The World war added a dramatic chapter to March's life and new riches to his pocket. According to Benavides, March was in British pay from the start. According to the Barcelona correspondent of the London Observer in a message sent home some time ago, he first was in the pay of the central powers and used his great network of smugglers along the coasts to supply petrol to the German submarines, only dropping this activity in 1917 in return for one million francs paid him to go over to the Allies.

The coup d'état of the bluff and hearty Gen. Primo de Rivera and the disappearance over the frontier of Señor March were practically simultaneous. Señor Alba, at present speaker of Spain's parliament and consequently vice president of the second republic, was highly unpopular with the army because he tried to patch up a peace in Morocco with the rebel Abd-el-Krim. The officers accused him of underhand work and of being connected with March in profitable deals in Morocco. March was in constant conflict with the military; they insisted in smuggling out Spanish tobacco to the many thousands of troops stationed in Morocco and in allowing the sale of Spanish cigarets there at prices much lower than those charged by Señor March, who had, of course, the monopoly for the whole zone. Even March's tough aids found it was unhealthy to try to search the army ammunition and supply trucks which moved about the Moroccan zone. And there had been a rather unpleasant incident concerning the capture of a boat said to belong to March which contained not only cigarets for the rebel Moors but also some nice new rifles. Both March and Alba, therefore, felt that the climate of Paris would be good for them.

But in a few months Primo learned a lot about public administration. He found that it was one thing to make sweeping charges, but that it was quite another thing to prove them. So March came back quietly and made his peace with Primo. They got on well together until the general turned the foreign oil companies out of Spain. March, as sole representative for soviet oil and gasoline in Spain, shared the market with Standard and Shell, and now he, too, was turned out of a profitable business. Primo, faced with the united and bitter enmity of the big oil companies, and in difficulties regarding supplies for his new monopoly, persuaded the soviets to break their contract with March. The latter had the first two oil tankers from Russia embargoed in the port of Algiers just before the monopoly was due to take over, and, with visions of empty filling stations and of much ridicule, Primo had to step hard on all the diplomatic pedals in order to have the tankers set at liberty.

But March had only a skirmish with the dictatorship; with the republic he waged a stern battle. The republic tried in vain to fix anything on March. It had two counts against him. One was for irregularities concerning a concession granted him by the dictatorship. The other was in connection with the murder of his partner's son in Valencia in 1916. He was accused of having instigated the shooting. It was said that the young man had been friendly with March's wife.

Nothing could be done. Anyway, the republic petulantly and somewhat foolishly locked March up in Madrid's prison. And it left him there for ten months. The extraordinary spectacle was seen of Spain's richest magnate busily dispatching all his affairs from behind bars. March stayed in prison until several weeks after Azaña and the Socialists had been removed from power by Alcala Zamora. Madrid is a long way from the frontier, and it was lucky that his escape was not discovered and reported to the government of Señor Lerroux until more than ten hours later; Don Juan had just time to get across the frontier to Gibraltar before warning messages were sent out.

After some months in Paris, March was included in the general amnesty for offenders against the republic and he was able to return to Spain. He has been elected deputy to parliament and also to the very highest tribunal of Spain—the tribunal of constitutional guarantees.

FAVORITE POEMS

GEORGE P. MORRIS (the middle name is given variously in biographies as Perkins, Phillips, and Pope) wrote many poems, but the best remembered of them all is "Woodman, Spare That Tree." Morris was born in Philadelphia on Oct. 10, 1802. While only a boy he went to New York, where in 1823 he established the New York Mirror and Ladies' Literary Gazette. In 1844 he launched a daily, the Evening Mirror, and in 1846 the Home Journal, which had on its staf some of the brightest literary lights of the period. While walking in the forest near Bloomingdale, N. Y., with a friend, the two came upon a great tree. The friend remarked that as a boy he had played beneath the tree. While they were talking a woodman appeared upon the scene to fell the tree. The friend offered the man ten dollars to spare the giant of the forest. It was agreed and a bond drawn up to that effect. From this incident the famous poem sprang. Morris died in New York on July 6, 1864.

WOODMAN, SPARE THAT TREE

Woodman, spare that tree!
  Touch not a single bough!
In youth it sheltered me,
  And I'll protect it now.
'Twas my forefather's hand
  That placed it near his cot;
There, woodman, let it stand—
Thy ax shall harm it not!

That old familiar tree,
  Whose glory and renown
Are spread o'er land and sea,
  And wouldst thou hew it down?
Woodman, forbear thy stroke!
  Cut not its earthbound ties;
O, spare that aged oak,
  Now towering to the skies!

When but an idle boy
  I sought its grateful shade;
In all their gushing joy
  Here, too, my sisters played.
My mother kissed me here;
  My father pressed my hand—
Forgive this foolish tear,
  But let that old oak stand!

My heart-strings 'round thee cling,
  Close as thy bark, old friend!
Here shall the wild bird sing,
  And still thy branches bend.
Old tree! the storm still brave!
  And, woodman, leave the spot!
While I've a hand to save,
  Thy ax shall harm it not.

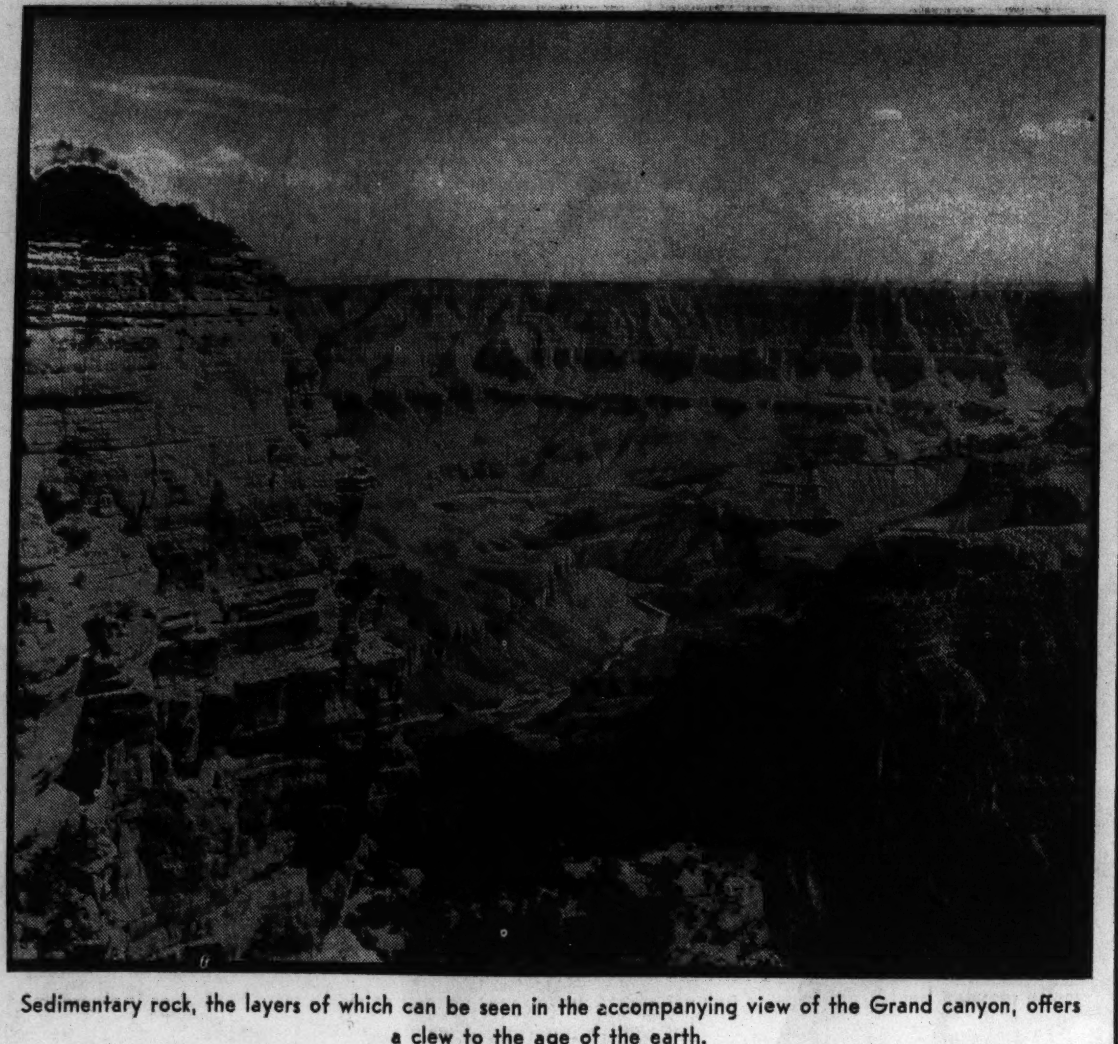
Age of Earth Still a Point of Dispute

By DR. THOMAS M. BECK



Sedimentary rock, the layers of which can be seen in the accompanying view of the Grand canyon, offers a clew to the age of the earth.

AN INQUIRY has been made as to the age of the earth and the methods of determining it. The actual age cannot be given exactly. We know our own ages because reliable witnesses have informed us of the dates of our births. We can tell the age of a tree by counting its rings, since observation has told us that a tree adds a new ring every year.

But none of us was present when the earth began its existence, and there is no comparable object of known age by which we can measure. There are, however, a number of clews before us from which we can make reasonable deductions. The fact that the various calculations made from the different data do not check very well with each other would indicate that none of them should be accepted as final. The whole question should be regarded as unfinished scientific business. There is no doubt, though, that our planet is tremendously old, at least from our mortal viewpoint, and its age should be reckoned in terms of millions or even billions of years.

The whole problem is further complicated by the fact that we are not sure whether the earth had a definite beginning. There is a theory, which has considerable scientific support, that originally there were no planets surrounding the sun, but merely a whirling cloud of dust, small rocks, and such débris. As the ages went by some of the bigger rocks wandered into each other's gravitational fields and collided. The increased gravitational force of their united masses then drew in more rocks, until eventually practically all of the matter outside the sun had been swept up into the nine planets. If this be true, then the planet was not born, but simply accumulated.

This hypothesis fails to explain a number of facts. First, the orbits of the nine planets lie in practically the same plane, which would indicate that their origins could hardly have been completely independent of each other. Then, too, it does not account for the existence of the earth's atmosphere. Finally, it is known that the solid part of the earth consists chiefly of different kinds of rock to a depth of at least a mile and a half, which is as far as man has ever dug. Yet gravitational measurements prove that the earth's density is about double that of the surface rocks. This would seem to indicate that the interior is made up of something much heavier than rock, probably iron. Such an orderly arrangement could hardly result from a random sweeping up of rocks.

The most commonly accepted hypothesis of the origin of the earth and the other planets runs something like this: In far-off ages the ball of glowing gas we call the sun almost collided with another star that happened to pass close by. The gravitation of the passing star sucked a long streamer of white-hot gas out of the sun. This gaseous filament, separated from the rest of the sun's heat, quickly cooled off and condensed into the nine droplets we call the planets.

At this stage the earth was a hot, molten sphere. Being liquid, the heavy metals settled to the interior, while the lighter rock collected on the outside, like slag floating on iron. Surrounding the rock was an atmosphere of hot gas. It continued to lose heat until the outside solidified to a crust which insulated the interior against any further rapid heat loss.

The surface, thus protected from the interior heat, quickly cooled to its present state, where it is warmed almost entirely by heat from the sun. As it approached this state the water vapor in the atmosphere condensed to form the oceans, and the earth's career had begun.

Thus the original temperature of the earth was that of the sun, and this can be measured. This being known, it can be calculated approximately how much time was required for the earth to cool down to its present condition. The time necessary is only a few thousand years, a long time according to human standards, but only a few ticks on the geologist's clock. It is negligible in comparison to the planet's subsequent history.

One of the first attempts to use scientific methods in determining the earth's age, and one that well illustrates the uncertainties and inaccuracies encountered, was that of Lord Kelvin, the celebrated Scottish physicist. Back in his day, about 1880, everyone agreed that energy was an entity whose sum total neither increased nor decreased. Now, since the sun keeps giving off heat without suffering any lowering of temperature, Kelvin was forced to conclude that this temperature was maintained by the sun's continued shrinking.

He then calculated how much heat the sun could give off if it shrank from the outermost limits of space to its present size, and divided this by the rate at which it is now losing heat. The result, 20 million years, represented the maximum age of the sun.

By measuring the change of the temperature of the earth's crust with its depth he was able to calculate the rate at which it was losing heat. From this he could determine the time required for the earth to cool down to its present internal temperature. He found the time to be 27 million years. These figures have a peculiar fascination, since they apparently indicate that the earth, a child of the sun, is somewhat older than its parent.

But our ideas have changed considerably since Kelvin's day. We now know that energy is not a fixed quantity, but that a small amount of matter can be converted into a very great amount of energy. It is necessary for only an imperceptibly small part of the sun's mass to disintegrate into energy to supply all the heat and light the sun gives off. Moreover, Kelvin was then unaware of the radioactive elements, which slowly but steadily release a huge amount of heat. There are probably enough of them in the earth's crust to account for most of its internal heat.

A second method of computation is based upon the fact that there are two general classes of rock: igneous, formed by the cooling of molten material, and that formed by the deposition and subsequent solidification of the sediment carried by rivers. We can estimate the total amount of sedimentary rock in the earth, and also the amount of sediment being deposited at the present time. By dividing the former by the latter we get 300 million years. Since sedimentation probably began as soon as there was water on the face of the earth, this figure has been taken to represent the earth's age.

A similar method is that of dividing the total salt of the oceans by the salt carried into it each year by the world's rivers. The result is also about 300 million years. The similarity of the two estimates is probably only a coincidence, however. Both methods are based upon the assumption that the sediment or the salt contents of rivers have always been the same as they are now. We can be almost certain that such an assumption is not correct.

Another means of calculation is based upon the debatable assumption that the planets originally had highly elliptical orbits and that these have been rounded out by friction with a gas which once filled interplanetary space, but which has since been diffused. This calculation sets the earth's age at greater than three billion years. Still another estimate, based upon the effect of terrestrial tides upon the moon's orbit, seems to indicate that our planet and its satellite have been separate for less than four billion years.

The only method of finding the earth's age which is relatively free from assumption is that based on the radioactive elements. The element uranium slowly disintegrates into radium, which in turn eventually changes to lead. This particular kind of lead is easily recognized, since it has an atomic weight of 206, as compared with that of 207.2 for ordinary lead.

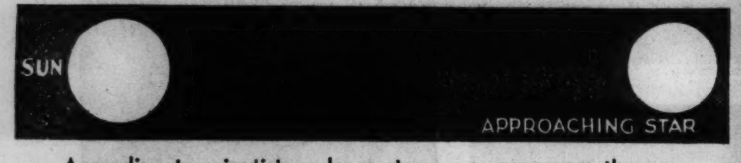
Therefore, if we were to find a piece of rock that contained uranium, radium, and "206" lead, there could be little criticism of our conclusion that at one time it had contained only uranium. We know exactly the rate at which uranium changes to radium, and radium to "206" lead. We also know that these rates are unaffected by temperature or any other factor. Accordingly, if we know the relative amounts of the three elements present in the rock, we can calculate how long it has been since only uranium was present, which gives us the age of the rock.

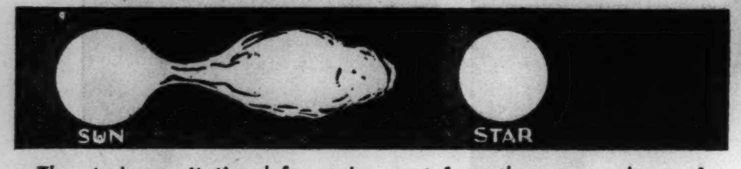
In this way it has been found that the coal beds are about 250 million years old. Uranium ores from all over the world show practically the same age, one and a half billion years. Since these ores did not exist prior to the earth's creation, the earth itself must be at least this old.

More sensitive methods of chemical analysis developed in recent years have enabled us to determine with considerable accuracy the minute amounts of uranium, radium, and lead in rocks other than uranium ores. The results indicate an age of three billion years, if we assume the lead to be entirely of the "206" variety.

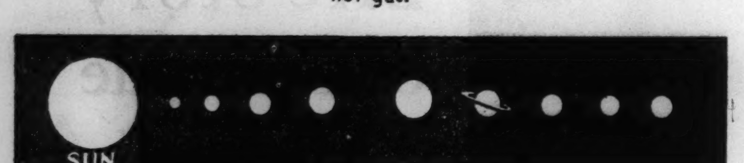
Unfortunately the methods do not distinguish very well between the two kinds of lead, and since it is quite likely that a part of this lead is of the ordinary kind, without uranium ancestry, we must accept this last figure as the maximum age of the earth.



According to scientists, a large star once came near the sun.



The star's gravitational force drew out from the sun a column of hot gas.



After the star had passed the gas column cooled and condensed into liquid globes which solidified into planets.

Scientific Queries Answered

Address questions of scientific nature to Dr. Thomas M. Beck, Graphic Section, Chicago Tribune. For personal reply inclose stamped, addressed envelope.

You say that raindrops consist of pure water and then go on to say that they are formed around a nucleus of dust. Are you not contradicting yourself?—E. B., Lawrence, Kas.

From a standpoint of strict, literal meaning of words you have me trapped. I must retract the statement that rainwater is absolutely pure. But then no one has ever seen an absolutely pure chemical compound. No matter what efforts are made in purifying it, there is always a barely detectable amount of impurity present.

Chemical purity is like human virtue. It is a state that may be approached closely but never quite reached. A compound we call chemically pure has traces of impurities, just as a man we call a perfect gentleman always has a few minor faults.

Mostly About Dogs

Importance of Retrieving Crippled Birds

FOR five of six years the sportsmen of the United States who like to hunt waterfowl have been urged time after time to do everything they can to retrieve crippled birds. The urge increased in volume when the first big drouth cut down the duck population. We can remember how the Izaak Walton league sent out the call stressing the value of a good dog in helping the hunter find wing-tipped birds and avoiding a waste of waterfowl during a day's hunt. Other conservation organizations took up the cry. Even the biological survey devoted a news release to the importance of getting every duck knocked down in the marsh so that as few birds as possible would be wasted. And all through this campaign to save birds, in view of a dwindling duck population, sportsmen have been made aware of the importance of a good retriever in hunting ducks as well as upland game.

Conservation organizations even have suggested that hunters everywhere use dogs to find the cripples, although none of them gave us the true facts about the terrific waste of birds that are wounded and never recovered. Somehow or other this angle of duck hunting has been shushed too much. Possibly if hunters of this country knew how many millions of birds were lost every year because these game birds are wounded and not recovered, there would be more effort put forth to retrieve cripples and more four-footed retrievers put to work.

This emphasis on the value of trained retrievers was the first of its kind we can recall since we have been going into marshes for bird shooting. And now here in the middle west there is support of this movement in the activity of a dog club that is encouraging the breeding and training of retrievers of all recognized breeds.

The club is the Midwest Field Trial club, which is specializing on Chesapeake Bay retrievers, Labradors, Irish water spaniels, golden retrievers, flat-coated retrievers, and curly-coated retrievers. Organized a few months ago in Chicago, the club is headed by Thomas M. Howell, a Labrador retriever fancier who has been using this breed for years on his duck and pheasant hunting trips. A. W. Harris, Chicago banker, is first vice president of the club. (Mr. Harris has been breeding and training Chesapeakes for more than thirty years.) Second vice president of the club is James B. Meigs of Midlothian, Ill., an enthusiastic duck hunter, who breeds Labradors in his kennel. David M. Scobie of Lake Forest, a fancier of golden retrievers, is secretary and treasurer of the club. Membership in this club already includes retriever owners not only in Chicagoland but in many other parts of the Mississippi valley, because the club aims to popularize all retriever breeds in this entire territory.

According to an announcement recently made by officers of the club, the American Kennel club has been asked to license a field trial for retrievers on Oct. 26 and 27. The trial will be held on the Barrington estate of Mr. Howell, where there is a large marsh and a big lake—both ideal for working the dogs. Although members of this new club are primarily interested in well trained shooting dogs that can do a good job in a duck marsh or a pheasant covert, they realize that a field trial is the "show window" through which the public can be instructed as to how a good retriever works, how it can mark a wounded or dead bird, and how it can find such a bird and retrieve it on land or in water. Therefore this new retriever organization is now laying plans for the first field trial featuring all breeds of retrievers ever to be held in the middle west.

One of the amusing sidelights of this coming trial and the activities of the Midwest club is the way eastern retriever breeders are registering their interest in what the Chicagoland group is doing. In fact, we find eastern retriever owners even more interested in the club than middle western sportsmen. Already one Labrador retriever fancier on Long Island has asked about accommodations for eight dogs during the field trial.

Anthony Bliss, president of the Chesapeake Bay Retriever club of Westbury, N. Y., told us a few weeks ago that he had been trying to get field trials for Chesapeakes started out here for three years without success, the whole idea being to increase the interest in this splendid breed. Now that this new club has got under way to focus the spotlight on all retriever breeds, he is lending his support to the new organization and the forthcoming field trial. We wouldn't be surprised to see Mr. Bliss attend the trial with at least three trained Chesapeakes.

There will be three stakes in the trial—a junior or puppy stake, a novice, and an open all age. All of the stakes are open to recognized retriever breeds. Entry blanks will be sent out shortly. In the meantime retriever owners who wish further details about the trial of the Midwest club should communicate with David P. Scobie, secretary, 208 South La Salle street, Chicago.

DOG NOTES

E. C. Dow of the Chicago Humane Education society has made the following comment on the question of dogs running the streets:

"There should be some way to prevent irresponsible persons taking dogs, only to let them run wild and become a community nuisance."

The Western Dobermann Pinscher club will hold a match sanctioned by the American Kennel club Sept. 29 at the Amateur Training Club hall, Harlem avenue north of River road, for the purpose of testing the new scoring system which puts the judging of dogs in the same class with the placing of live stock.

Each dog will be judged separately and its faults checked on a scoring sheet, which is in reality a "broken down" standard of the breed. Such shortcomings as light eyes, bad coats, and improper gaits are penalized as being either slight or serious and a definite percentage subtracted from the perfect score of 100 per cent.

F. W. Randolph, who, with other leading Dobermann breeders, designed the scoring system, will do the judging, assisted by Alois Kaeser, former German judge, and John R. Roberts. The public is invited to attend this match and watch the judging.

Michigan sportsmen who own hunting dogs were given a break in the game bill passed by the 1935 legislature and now in effect. Hunters now can train their dogs on game for sixty days previous to the opening of the respective hunting seasons on game. The law also permits them to train their dogs throughout the winter and up to and including March 15. The dogs can be trained only between the hours of sunrise and sunset, and the law forbids any hunter to carry firearms while training a dog.

Talent Wins Quick Fame in Films

By ROSALIND SHAFFER

Hollywood, Cal.

FEW stars in pictures can boast of the amazing versatility and thorough education of Gertrude Michael. Finishing school, law school, the University of Alabama, and the Cincinnati conservatory all did their part in developing the amazing young woman, whose newest screen release is "The Last Outpost," with Cary Grant and Claude Rains. Less than three years of actual dramatic experience launched her on a film career that already has brought her distinction.

All of this intelligence and talent had to begin somewhere, of course. Born in Talladega, Ala., on June 1—year not stated, but probably about 25 years ago—of a well-to-do family, Gertrude had the advantages of a good home environment and opportunities to develop her talents. These began manifesting themselves at a very early age. At three Gertrude was reciting poetry and singing songs.

Piano lessons began when she was five. Gertrude was hard at work planning concert programs at the age of twelve. By this time she had branched out and was using her unusually acute ear to perfect herself in violin. High school was over and done with by the time Gertrude was fourteen. A year at the University of Alabama convinced her that law was not for her.

Converse college at Spartanburg, S. C., was chosen as her next alma mater. There she continued with her musical studies, language, literature, and the other things generally found in a girls' college in the south. Following Spartanburg came the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, where she was notably excellent enough to win a five-year scholarship to study music in Italy. Because of the sudden death of her father, the scholarship never was used. From that point on in her life her ambitions and interests of a serious sort began to turn toward the stage.

While Miss Michael had been studying at the conservatory she took time off from symphony concerts to see the productions of the famous Stuart Walker stock company in Cincinnati, eventually getting backstage and breaking into small bits by playing offstage piano music when productions required such help. The following year, in New York with her mother, she saw enough of show business to feel that that was where her heart and her future lay. Back home in Talladega after the death of her father, Gertrude busied herself with founding a little theater in the community, and also a radio station, WFDA, where her versatility was used to the utmost.

A novel distinction should be mentioned here. When the overworked clergyman at the local Methodist church needed a four weeks' vacation Gertrude filled the pulpit during his absence.

She returned to Stuart Walker's company in Cincinnati, was given leads in his shows, and remained with him a year. Then came Broadway. Her first summer in New York found her playing in stock in East Islip, Long Island. In the winter of 1932, with little in sight, Gertrude Michael had reason to thank her stars for the well known versatility. Rachel Crothers, now in Hollywood writing screen plays for Sam Goldwyn, was casting her latest Broadway play, "Caught Wet," at the Eltinge theater. There was a hard part to cast. A call was sent out for fifty girls to read the lines, and among those answering the call was Gertrude. Miss Crothers told the girls that the ability to play a part of Scriabin's Symphony No. 1 in E flat, while reading some of the lines, was necessary. Then she dismissed them for lunch. Few came back to try it. But Gertrude, who was not familiar with that work of the composer, spent lunch time hunting up the piece in a sheet music shop and practicing it. She got the rôle.

Through her idea of a lark she got her first movie rôle, at Paramount's Long Island studio, playing Richard Arlen's fiancée in "Wayward." Two other studios sought film tests, but she remained on Broadway to play the lead in "The Roundup." In December, 1933, she signed a contract with Paramount after M.-G.-M. had paid her way to Hollywood to make film tests but failed to clinch with a good offer. She appeared in supporting rôles in many films, later being cast in leads. "Unashamed" was made for M.-G.-M.; "Sailor, Beware" for Radio; "A Bedtime Story" for Paramount; "Night of Terror" for Columbia; "I'm No Angel" gave her a good rôle in support of Mae West; "Ann Vickers" at Radio, with Ann Harding, offered another part; "Cradle Song," with Dorothea Wieck; "Search for Beauty," "Bolero," "The Witching Hour," "Murder at the Vanities," and "Cleopatra" all offered good supporting rôles. Then her own vehicles—"The Notorious Sophie Lang"; "Menace"; "Father Brown, Detective," with Walter Connolly; "Four Hours to Kill," opposite Dick Barthelmess, and her most recent one, not yet released, "The Last Outpost," with Cary Grant and Claude Rains.

Gertrude's friendliness is one of her charms. She has retained her soft southern accent. On the screen she is apt to suggest a rather brittle, hard, classic style of beauty, but off screen she is animated. She would be false to her native south if she didn't love parties, beaux, and going about. She is most often seen with Rouben Mamoulian, Armenian director, though they deny an engagement. Gertrude lives in a lovely home in the Toluca lake section. A grand piano full of music of the better sort shows that Gertrude's musical interests have not lapsed. Flying is one of her enthusiasms. She hopes soon to get a pilot's license and then her own plane.

This and the three other portraits on the page reveal Gertrude Michael, the versatile young motion picture star, as one with a cold, classic type of beauty. Off the screen, however, Miss Michael is gay and animated, frank friendliness being one of her charms. She loves parties, beaux, and going about. The dachshund is Johannesburg, her favorite pet.

THIS BOY JOE

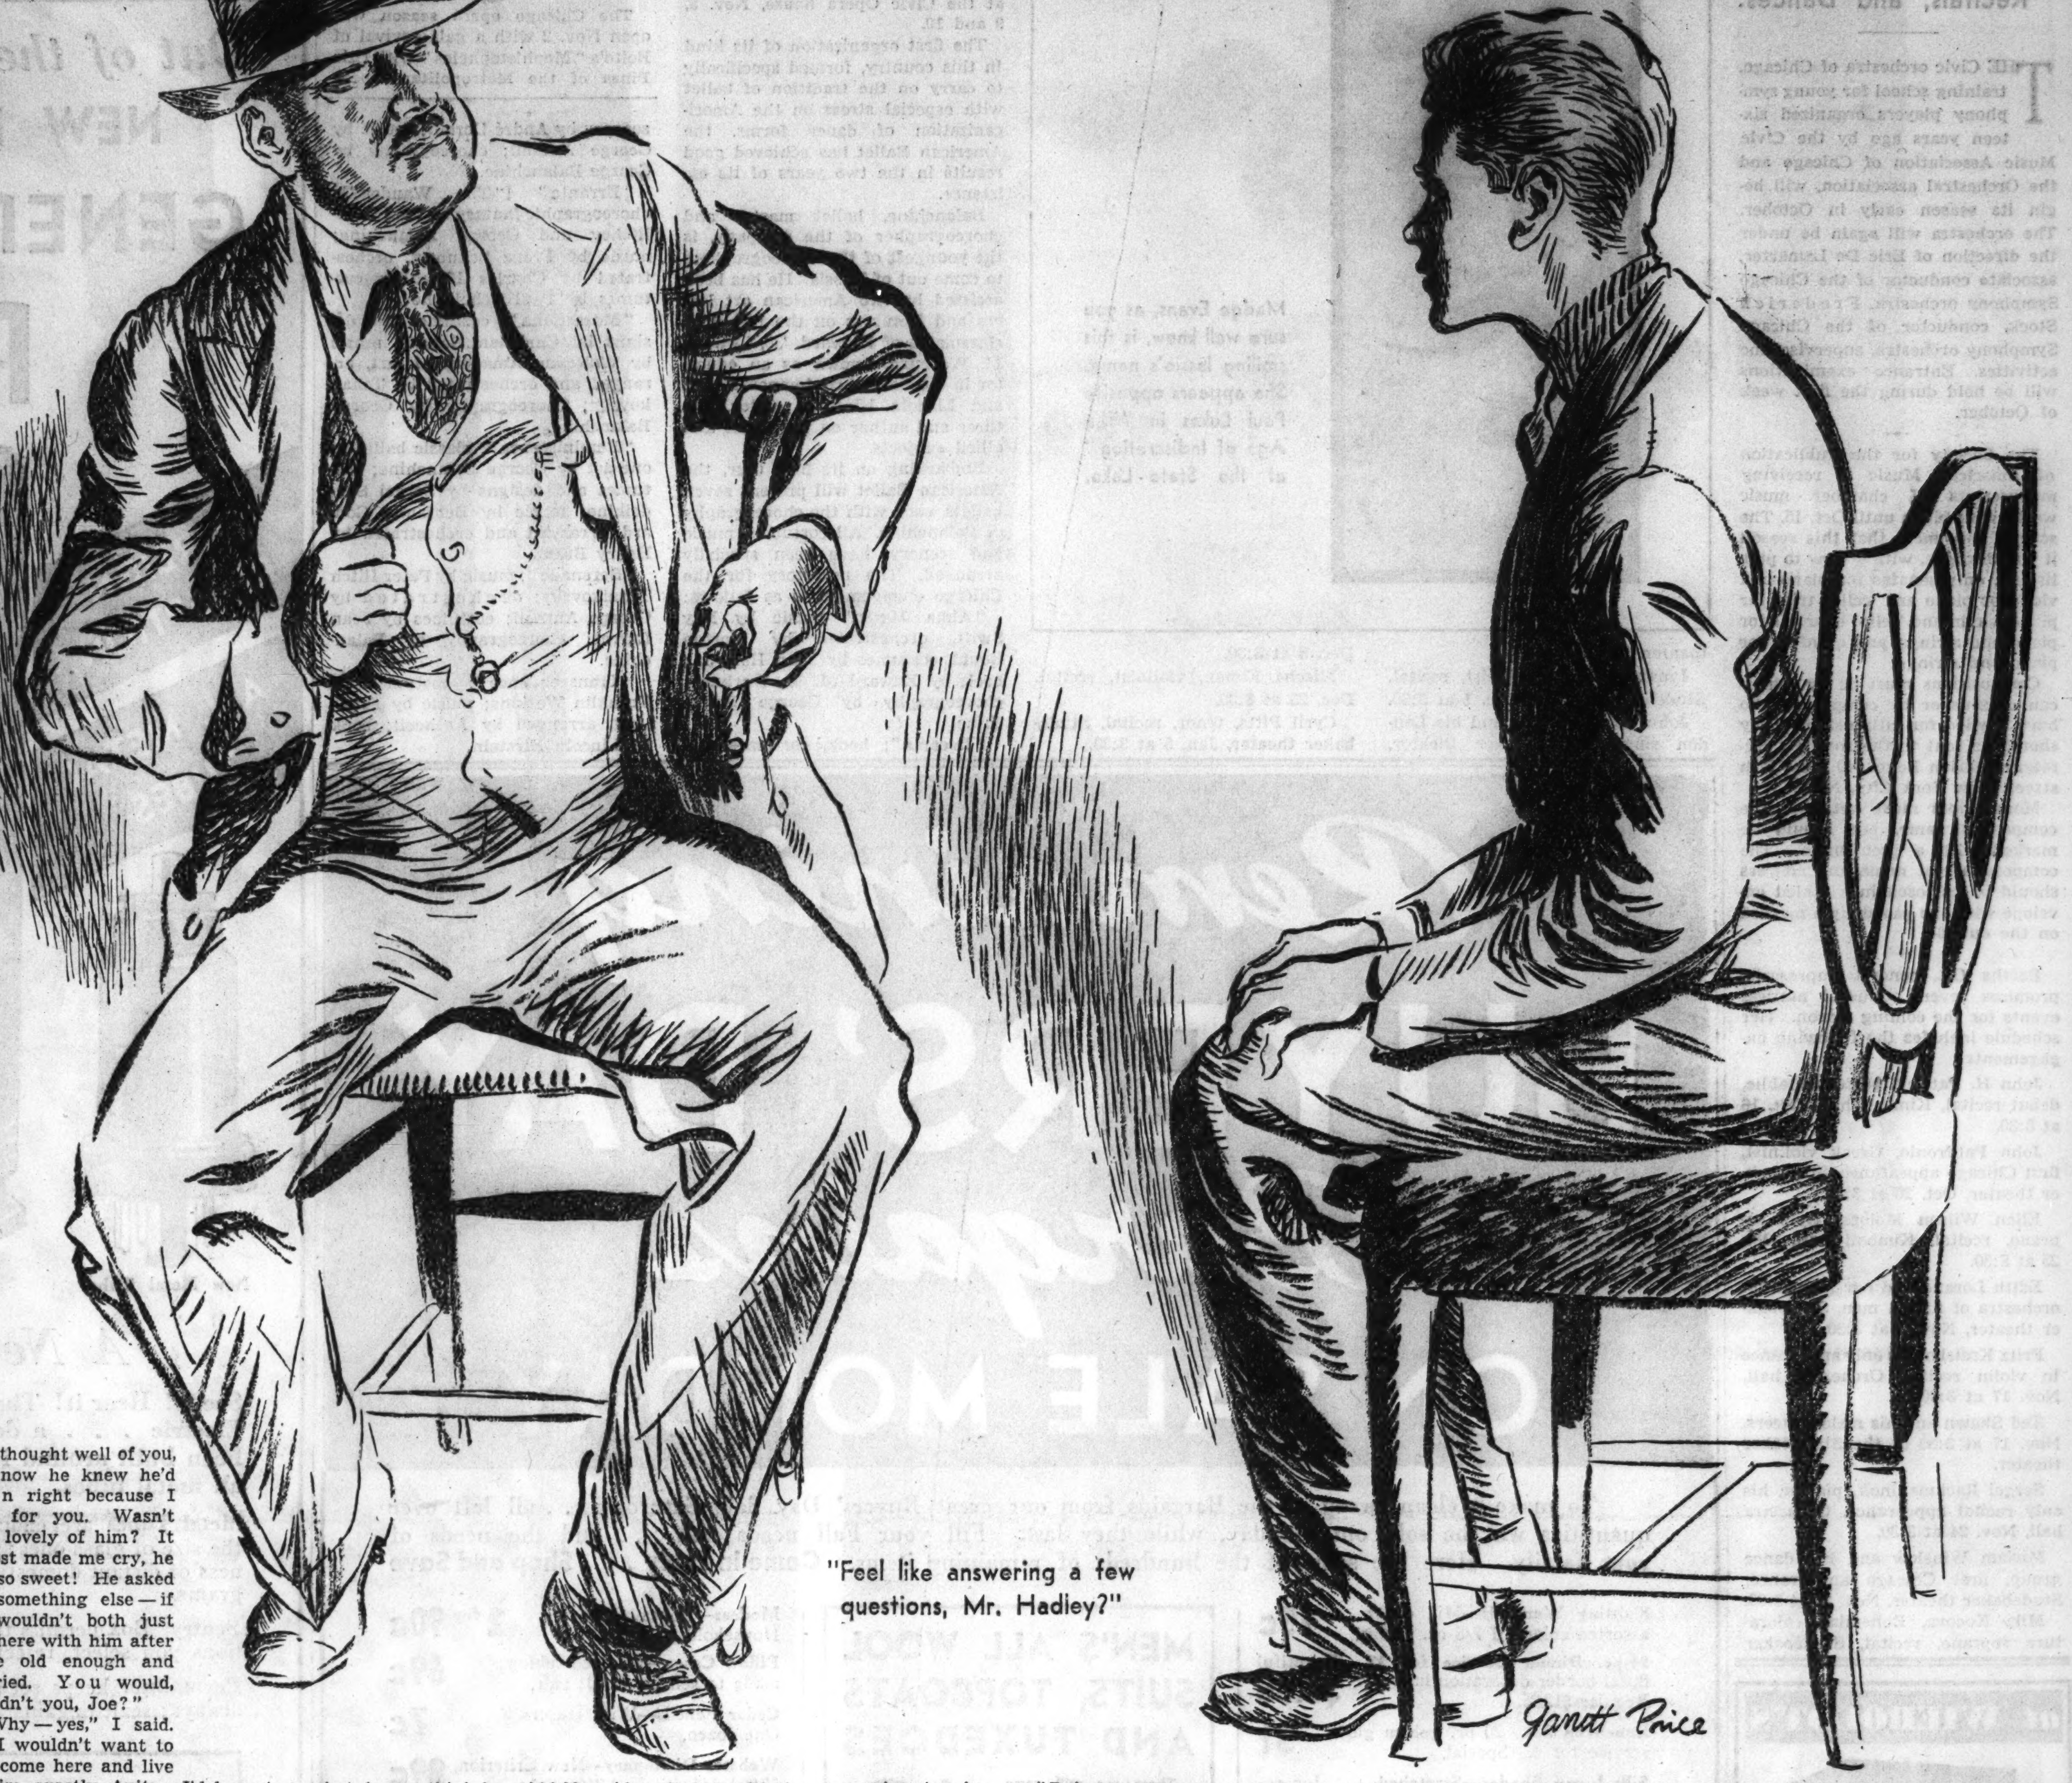
Anita Confuses Joe When She Tells Him Her Father Is Ready to Give Him a Job in the Tile Works

THE STORY TO DATE

Joe Hadley is a sentimental high school student of the small town of Aurora, Ind. His mother has recently died. His father is a state senator. While he is at the capital Joe's sister, Emma, tries to keep watch over Joe, as does his Uncle Milt, who lives with and on them. Joe meets Madge Alterbeck and her chum, Mabel Benns, at a roadhouse, where he is taken by his sporting friend, Yeastie Marshall. Yeastie is driving a new car which he tells Joe is a gift from his family. Joe falls for the cheap glamor of Madge and desires to convert her to a higher life. Ben Webster, a detective, appears at the roadhouse. Yeastie hustles Joe away, leaving the car behind. Next day he sends Joe back for the car. On the way back to Aurora Joe is followed by a man in a shabby touring car. He leaves the car on a side street for Yeastie to pick up. Too late Joe realizes that the sedan was stolen and that he has become Yeastie's partner in theft. His father is having trouble, having gone against a crooked bill sponsored by Gus Cooper, the town boss. He returns home a broken man, to die soon after. Joe proposes to Madge. He has just finished high school. She tells him she'll marry him when he finds a job. Joe's sister marries Edgar Morrison, an upright, industrious young man. Yeastie drives a stolen car into the Hadley garage. Joe refuses to let him leave it there. Uncle Milt appears. Not knowing the car isn't his, Uncle Milt gives him permission to leave it overnight. Joe sees Ben Webster cruising past the house. Joe begins to realize that Yeastie and Madge are using him. He sees how cheap Madge is compared to Anita Blythe, a lovely girl of his own set. Joe catches Madge keeping another date and breaks with her. He tells Anita about Madge.



"Feel like answering a few questions, Mr. Hadley?"

INSTALMENT IX.

WE were still facing each other and suddenly Anita stretched out her arm and put her hand on my shoulder. "I know," she said. "All right. I don't know how much effect it's had on me that when we were children you and I had a time of being something like sweethearts; but, studying myself, I've seen that it counted. I've always wished you'd come to see me oftener. I suppose we never can quite get rid of sentimentalism. Probably it's counted with you, too. Maybe I could keep it from having its way with me, though, if I didn't think you're strong enough."

"I'm not, Anita! Don't make a mistake! I'm not!"

"Yes, you are!"

"I'm not!" I said again; but I had the courage to take her hand down from my shoulder and not let go.

She looked down and blushed then and by the firelight and lamplight I saw that lovely change of color come upon her face. A wave of breathless happiness rushed over me—but in it was a strange, deep-down queerness.

"We're too young," she said to me. "Maybe only a little too young. That can't matter long, can it?" Then she said something that flustered me again, happy as I was. "My father adores me, he's the best man in the world—and the strongest! He can do anything and he will, for me. He'll help us."

Of course I didn't say anything except "I hope so," a little feebly, when Anita said her father could do anything and would help us. I didn't even let the feeling that had flustered me get much alive in my own consciousness.

I did ask her not to tell her father just yet what we'd found out about the way we felt and the excuse I gave her was true enough—that I didn't want him to think I was ridiculous. "Of course that's what he'd think," I told her the next day. "He'd be right, too, wouldn't he? How could anybody be more ridiculous than I am?"

"He'll say we're young, but for the rest he'll think what I do," she told me with some sharpness. "He knows I'm not a fool, don't you suppose? I don't remember a time when he and I haven't looked at things in exactly the same way. You're morbid about yourself, that's the trouble!"

Older people tell us that when we're young and are happy, we're happy in a way that won't ever come again because then our happiness is unalloyed—we don't have anything at all except happiness.

Even Madge Alterbeck's voice couldn't spoil that time for me. O, yes, I had to hear it sometimes. She'd "give me a ring" and if I was at home, she'd say, "Say, listen, big boy, how about a walk this eve and maybe sit a while over you-know-where? You know. Want to make it a date?" Then I'd say no and she'd ask me, "Say, listen, you ain't sore all this time just because I jaw too much when I get mad, are you? What's the matter with this eve to make it up and all cozy again, huh?"

I'd only say, "No, thank you." And finally she got tired. That time when she called me she was angry and managed to worry me.

"I'll never give you another ring, you forty cent high hat!" she said. "I'm good and through with you, so don't never come around me trying to fix it up or you'll get a sock on the button, see? Your friend Yeastie Marshall's in town again, so you better spend all your time covering up hot cars for him, I got none to waste on you! I'm off you, see? I'm through!"

I certainly hoped she meant it and a weight lifted, but another took its place. Yeastie might be in town—he couldn't fool me again, I wasn't afraid of that—but the surprise I got from Anita that same evening made me forget all about it.

SHE'D talked to her father. She came to the door when I rang and told me almost as soon as she let me in. It took me aback, but I didn't say anything until we'd gone into the living room and she began to explain. "He asked me something about you," she said. "Don't look frightened, I didn't tell him we're engaged, exactly."

"Then what did you tell him, Anita?"

She was in high spirits. She gave me a pat on the shoulder and another on the cheek and took my hand and made me sit in a chair close to the one she sat down in herself. "It's all right. Splendid!" she told me.

"Yes, but——"

She was gay. "Yes, but nothing! He's a darling! Of course he already knew I like you best. He was perfect!"

"Was he?" I tried to look pleased and be in her mood; she was just girlishly delighted and excited and she wasn't often like that. "What did he say, Anita?"

"He asked me to wait at least a year and I thought we ought to do that for him, don't you?"

"Yes. Yes, of course, and we'd have to anyhow, and maybe——"

"O, but that isn't all," she said, and her eagerness was lovely to see. "Not half! I told you he'd help us, didn't I? That's what he wants to do. He said he'd always liked you and thought well of you, but now he knew he'd been right because I care for you. Wasn't that lovely of him? It almost made me cry, he was so sweet! He asked me something else—if we wouldn't both just live here with him after we're old enough and married. You would, wouldn't you, Joe?"

"Why—yes," I said. "I—I wouldn't want to just come here and live on him, exactly, Anita. I'd have to do my share. I——"

She interrupted me, happier than ever. "Of course! That's the very point! I told him how you've tried and tried everywhere in town, how patiently you'd been the rounds, and not found anything to do, and what do you think he said? He said, 'He's never been to me, Anita. I'd have given him something any time he'd asked, because I knew he was a friend of yours.'" She leaned over and took me by the chin. "Joe! Why didn't you ever go to him?"

"Well—you see—you see——" I stammered. I wasn't quite sure of the answer myself. "Well—I didn't want——"

"I know!" She was radiant. She patted my cheeks, then leaned back, looking at me and laughing with a tender kind of pride in me that made me gulp. "You didn't go to him because of that very fact—because you didn't want him to favor you on account of your being a friend of mine. I understood that, of course, and so does he, now. You wouldn't go to him as long as things were that way, of course." She jumped up, she was so excited. "But now, you see, you can!"

I STOOD up, too. "But I don't see——"

"Yes, you do! Of course you do! He and I both understood you hadn't wanted to come and virtually ask him to put you on a salary for the reason that you call on his daughter sometimes—that's the way it couldn't have helped looking, of course, but now that you're going to be his son-in-law some day—well, that's pretty different, isn't it?"

She swept me off my feet. "We've got a little more time! A little more time of idleness that'll give us our afternoons together — and maybe you'd come some of the mornings, too, because after that there'll only be the evenings. He said he wanted a little time before——"

"Before what, Anita?" That was a kind of gasp from me.

"Before he finds what position he's going to give you."

"What——"

"With that heavenly tile works!" she cried. "If he didn't have that it couldn't have happened, but he has got it and it can! Pretty soon you'll be there all day every day and——"

Somehow I interrupted her. "But I don't know anything on earth about that business, Anita. I don't——"

She broke in on me with laughter. "What business do you know about, foolish?"

"Yes, but maybe on a newspaper——"

"You'd have to begin at the beginning there, too, idiot, wouldn't you? My father said that wouldn't make any difference at the Ancaster and he knows, doesn't he?"

I didn't tell them at home that Jackson Blythe was going to give me a position. Naturally, I knew I'd have to mention it before long, but I put it off.

It was curious, the circumstance that made me talk to Edgar again one evening about the Ancaster Tile company and Jackson Blythe's receivership. What led to it was a spurting back into my life and thoughts made by Yeastie Marshall.

It seems a terrible thing that when you've let people use you before, they can almost always use you again; at least, they'll always think they can and try it, and that keeps them in your life when you want them out of it. I received another letter with one for him inside. The one inside was addressed "Parks M. Nelson, P. O. Box 218, Uniontown, Pa." and around the envelope was a paper and on the paper was typewritten "Hadley. Hold this for two days after you receive it. Deliver it to E. E. M. if he calls for it in these two days. But if he does not call for it then mail it immediately after these two days."

I put the letter and the envelope addressed to me and the paper carrying the instructions on it in the sitting room fire and burned them. If Yeastie called for his letter I meant to tell him what I'd done, of course, and I had more than that to say to him if he stayed to listen —I didn't think he would.

Emma was helping Anna with the dishes, Uncle Milt had hurried out, all dressed up and humming, and I was going out, too, but not just yet, so I stopped in the sitting room where Edgar was winding and setting our old eight day clock on the mantelpiece. He seemed to be having trouble with it. "Blasted clock!" I heard him say under his breath, and I laughed and sat down. "Why don't you come right out and swear at it, Edgar?" I asked him.

"It's about the same thing," he said. "I wouldn't get any more relief from one word than I would from another."

"So you're just as sinful whichever one you use, are you?" I asked him, and I laughed again. "What is sin, anyhow?"

"Murder!" he said, just exclaiming and not meaning that was the answer. "I'm no theologian."

"No, but really, what do you think sin is, just in the ordinary sense for ordinary people?"

He stopped tinkering with the clock, turned round, lighted a cigaret, and stood leaning back against the mantelpiece. "I don't know, Joe. I don't believe I know what it'd be for other people besides myself."

"Well, what would it be for you, Edgar?"

"Doing anything against my own convictions or principles, I suppose."

"By the way," I said, "I've always understood that though Mr. Blythe's pretty thick with Cooper in politics, he didn't have anything to do with the attack on my father or take any part in that meanness at all."

"No," Edgar said, "he didn't. He wasn't concerned with the legislature at all at that time; just with municipal politics." Edgar gave me a quiet glance out of the side of his eye. "You needn't ever have any feeling about that, Joe; there's no ground for any."

"I know," I told him. "That's always been my understanding." Then, on the surface again, I shifted the subject a little. "I suppose you still have the same opinion you mentioned once about Mr. Blythe's receivership of the company?"

"Well, I will say this," he said, and looked a little flustered and gave an apologetic laugh. "For some little time back I did feel a little worried that you might be going to have a position under that receivership yourself, and I admit I'm just a little glad it hasn't happened that way."

"Are you?" I asked him. "Why, Edgar?"

He frowned. "Well—I suppose everybody knows that business could have picked up a good deal by this time if the receivership had been economical. It hasn't been. Just for one thing, people have been put on the pay roll out there that are anything but fit for their jobs."

THE next afternoon about three o'clock I got something else to think of pretty hard.

Emma'd gone to see somebody. Uncle Milt was out, and so was old Anna—her afternoon off—I was alone in the house, up in my room brushing my hair before going to Anita's, when the doorbell rang. I went down, opened the door, and Ben Webster walked in. "Name of Joe Hadley?" he said. "Isn't that right?"

"Yes," I said, "that's my name."

"I'd like to have a little talk with you," he told me, and his expression didn't change any, but I was pretty sure he saw that I was shaky. "Suppose we sit down a few minutes somewhere."

"All right," I told him, and I walked ahead of him into the sitting room and we sat down there. "What—what is it you want to talk to me about?"

"Well," he said, looking at me, "Where's Yeastie today?"

"Yeastie?" I asked. "You mean Yeastie Marshall?"

He spoke quickly. "What other Yeastie do you know? Who else should I mean? Where is he? Feel like answering a few questions, Mr. Hadley?"

"I don't know where Yeastie is. I haven't seen him since——"

He leaned a little toward me in his chair. "Listen," he said, "let's get this fixed up. I'll put it all out before you and you tell me when I'm right, see? You drove a sedan in from Arbuckle's one afternoon a good time ago, didn't you? Just man to man, now, didn't you? Any boy might do a thing like that. I just want to know if you did."

"Yes—I did."

He smiled to himself. "I thought so. I wasn't far behind you that day. Then I passed you and gave you a chance to pass me; but there I made a mistake. I got caught in a procession behind a truck and couldn't pick you up again—never did. Who'd you turn that car over to?"

"Nobody," I told him. "I parked it on Second street, where a friend of mine had asked me to. He'd said the car was his, and I believed him. I mean I believed him at the time he told me."

Webster seemed to do some thinking. "Pretty slick fellow, your friend Yeastie." He laughed. "We'll get him yet."

An Open Letter to Kay Francis

KAY FRANCIS

Dear Kay: There are periods in the lives of all of us, according to the laws of astrology, when it is a bit better to deal more with one sex than with the other. And the balance of this year, as well as the first two months of next, is shown as such a period with you. It appears that you will be treated better by men than by women in this stretch, so be advised and act accordingly. By the way, you have five good professional years ahead of you. With best wishes,

KILL KIDNEY ACIDS

Win Back Pep, Clear Your Skin, Look Younger

Women Need Help More Often Than Men

When Acids and poisons accumulate in your blood you lose your vitality and your skin becomes coarse and cloudy—you actually feel and look years older than you are. And what is worse, functional Kidney disorders may cause more serious ailments, such as Getting Up Nights, Nervousness, Leg Pains, Lumbago, Swollen Joints, Rheumatic Pains, Dizziness, Dark Circles Under Eyes, Headaches, Frequent Colds, Burning, Smarting, Itching, and Acidity.

The only way your body can clean out the Acids, poisons, and toxins from your blood is through the function of 9 million tiny, delicate tubes or filters in your Kidneys. When your Kidneys get tired or slow down because of functional disorders, the acids and poisons accumulate and thus cause much trouble. Fortunately, it is now easy to help stimulate the diuretic action of the Kidneys with a Doctor's prescription, Cystex (pronounced Siss-Tex), which is available at all drug stores.

Doctors Praise Cystex

Dr. Geo. B. Knight, of Camden, New Jersey, recently wrote: "When Kidneys don't function properly and fail to properly throw off the waste matter strained from the blood, aches develop in the muscles and joints, the appetite suffers, sleep is disturbed, and the patient is generally run-down and suffers with lowered vitality. Cystex is an excellent prescription to help overcome this condition. It starts its beneficial action almost immediately, yet contains no harmful or injurious ingredients. I consider Cystex a prescription which men and women in all walks of life should find beneficial in the treatment of functional Kidney disorders." And Dr. T. J. Rastelli, famous Doctor, Surgeon, and Scientist, of London, says: "Cystex is one of the finest remedies I have ever known in my medical practice. Any doctor will recommend it for its definite benefits in the treatment of many functional Kidney and Bladder disorders. It is safe and harmless."

World-Wide Success

Cystex is not an experiment, but is a proven success in 31 different countries throughout the world. It is prepared with scientific accuracy and in accordance with the strict requirements of the United States Dispensatory and the United States Pharmacopoeia, and because it is intended especially for functional Kidney and Bladder disorders, it is swift, safe, and sure in action.

Guaranteed to Work

Cystex is offered to all sufferers from functional Kidney and Bladder disorders under an unlimited guarantee. Put it to the test. See what it can do in your own particular case. It must bring you a new feeling of energy and vitality in 48 hours—it must make you look and feel years younger and work to your entire satisfaction in 8 days or you merely return the empty package and your money is refunded in full. You are the sole and final judge of your own satisfaction. Cystex costs only 3c a dose at all druggists, and as the guarantee protects you fully, you should not take chances with cheap, inferior, or irritating drugs or with neglect. Ask your druggist for guaranteed Cystex (pronounced Siss-Tex) today.

Chicago Makes Plans for New Music Season

Bertha Ott Announces Long List of Concerts, Recitals, and Dances.

THE Civic orchestra of Chicago, training school for young symphony players organized sixteen years ago by the Civic Music Association of Chicago and the Orchestral association, will begin its season early in October. The orchestra will again be under the direction of Eric De Lamarter, associate conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra. Frederick Stock, conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, supervises the activities. Entrance examinations will be held during the first week of October.

The Society for the Publication of American Music is receiving manuscripts of chamber music works with piano until Oct. 15. The society announces that this season it will examine, with a view to publishing, only sonatas for piano and violin or piano and 'cello; trios for piano, violin and 'cello; quartets for piano and strings, and quintets for piano and strings.

Compositions must be by American citizens or by composers who have applied for citizenship. They should be sent to the society's secretary, Marion Bauer, 40 West 77th street, New York City, N. Y.

Manuscripts must not bear the composer's name, but should be marked with a pseudonym. The composer's real name and address should be enclosed in a sealed envelope with the pseudonym marked on the outside.

Chicago Dates for American Ballet Group

OF keen interest to the ballet "fans" of Chicago is Manager Harry Zelzer's announcement of the approaching engagement of the American Ballet at the Civic Opera house, Nov. 8, 9 and 10.

The first organization of its kind in this country, formed specifically to carry on the tradition of ballet with especial stress on the Americanization of dance forms, the American Ballet has achieved good results in the two years of its existence.

Balanchine, ballet master and choreographer of the company, is the youngest of the choreographers to come out of Russia. He has been assisted by two American art lovers and lecturers on the fine arts, classmates of Harvard, '30, Edward M. Warburg, known as an educator in the field of contemporary art, and Lincoln Kirstein, editor, lecturer and author on the dance and allied subjects.

Embarking on its first tour, the American Ballet will present seven ballets, each with the choreography of Balanchine. All costumes, music and scenery, have been specially arranged. The repertory for the Chicago engagement is as follows:

"Alma Mater," music by Kay Swift, orchestrated by Morton Gould, costumes by John Held Jr.; book by Edward M. M. Warburg; choreography by George Balanchine.

"Dreams"; book, costumes and scenery by André Derain; music by George Antheil; choreography by George Balanchine.

"Errante" ["The Wander"]; choreographic fantasy by Paul Tchelitchev and George Balanchine; music by Franz Schubert, orchestrated by Charles Koechlin; costumes by Paul Tchelitchev.

"Mozartiana"; costumes and designs by Christian Berard; music by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, arranged and orchestrated by Tchaikovsky; choreography by George Balanchine.

"Reminiscence"; classic ballet in one act by George Balanchine; costumes and designs by Sergei Soudeikine; music by Benjamin Godard, arranged and orchestrated by Henry Brand.

"Serenade"; music by Peter Ilitch Tchaikovsky; orchestrated by George Antheil; costumes by Jean Lurcat; choreography by Balanchine.

"Transcendence"; costumes by Franklin Watkins; music by Franz Liszt, arranged by Antheil; book by Lincoln Kirstein.

NOTES OF THE MUSIC WORLD

The latest contribution to choral activities in Milwaukee is the Symphonic Male chorus, Alfred Hiles Bergen, director; Norman M. Sinske, accompanist. Although only a year old the chorus has already established itself as a factor in the cultural life of the community. It presented eleven concerts its first year and plans appearances in Chicago and Minneapolis this season.

The Chicago opera season will open Nov. 2 with a gala revival of Boito's "Mephistopheles" with Ezio Pinza of the Metropolitan Opera company in the leading rôle. Pinza, who has been successful at the Metropolitan, won acclaim in his recent appearance in Salzburg. Many Chicagoans journeyed there to hear him sing in "Don Giovanni."

Franco Forest will make his debut here in this performance in the rôle of Faust. Edith Mason will sing Margaret. Mari Barova will appear as Martha, and Eleanor La Mance as Helen. Gennaro Papi will conduct the opening performance.

The regular chorus will be augmented by 100 voices for the prolog and a special ballet will be arranged under the direction of Ruth Page. She will appear in this production with Bentley Stone.

"Mephistopheles is regarded as Pinza's best rôle," Paul Longone, opera manager, announces. "He has proved such an attraction in New York that we feel his appearance here in this vehicle, which has not been heard for at least ten years in Chicago, will prove an unusual opening attraction."

Holy Land Gives Cousin Eve Vivid Sense of Past

Mingles Views of Ancient and Modern Jerusalem on Mount of Olives.

By Cousin Eve.

DAMASCUS The Mount of Olives at sunset was my last drive in Jerusalem. This holy mountain, slate colored, with rocky ledges and thin lines of cypress trees, is a mountain in name only. Rather a ridge. Slightly elevated, a sort of shelf of the Mount of Olives is the Garden of Gethsemane, now a bricked and walled garden, with a few cypresses and some gnarled olive trees which might be 2,000 years old—one never knows about olive trees. There are flower beds among the trees.

A brown Franciscan friar is caretaker. The Franciscans have built a church and small chapels nearby. The monk points to the rock where Peter, James, and John are said to have slept. How comes one actually to be in this thrice holy place? Then relief appears in disbelief. One remembers that Jerusalem was a shambles for sixty years, after its destruction by Titus, 70 A. D.

English Have War Cemetery on Mount of Olives.

The Mount of Olives is a twin. On its rear elevation, Scopus, is an English war cemetery, beautifully planned and placed. To my great surprise the entire summit is built up. There is a Jewish college! On the mount itself, the view is stupendous. On the left, the earth fell away in fiery waves to the opalescent, savage mountains of Moab twenty-five miles away.

In front, Jerusalem, seething with unrest, within yellow, ancient walls. As we parked, the red sun dropped, and in the afterglow blazed a giant star. A file of little Arab girls in silken robes, orange, emerald, and scarlet, bore on their heads flat baskets of grapes and figs to a bride's house. The Arab chauffeur explained that a mosque stands on the exact spot of the Ascension, and that we were seeing an Arab wedding.

So there was nothing to do but sit in the enchantment of the hour and remember that Jesus was there on this height and must many times have looked down upon these scenes. Then an Arab came between us and the evening star. First it was postcards, then wood carving. The Arab was young, handsome, persistent. He showed a good profile, then fine white teeth. He handed in a good will offering of an olive branch from the garden of the mosque. Then we fled.

Two Magnificent Mosques in Solomon's Temple.

The most gorgeous authentic sight in Jerusalem is the floor of the temple of Solomon. On its 3,000 year old granite pave are two magnificent mosques, the octagonal "Dome of the Rock" and El Aksar. The dome is a jewel box enameled with blue mosaics of fabulous beauty. The mosque of Omar is in pattern an early Roman church, with superb Byzantine interior. Their setting is the vast floor of the temple with ancient, octagonal pools, clumps of age old cypresses, its several levels, and time worn steps.

The sun beats fiercely. The sky is intensely, cruelly blue. But there is air. We are in the Judean mountains. The scene thrills you.

The Moslems do this thing well. Visitors must buy an official guide, costing over four shillings. This silly book, full of dates, is an admission ticket, and the money goes to the upkeep of these mosques. Which is an improvement on being badgered by priests of the various sects in charge of Christian shrines.

Rock from Which Mahomet Rose Carefully Preserved.

Inside the blue mosque it is dark, mysterious. Gorgeous rugs cover the floor. There are jewelled, stained glass windows. There is a circle of magnificent marble pillars. A high bronze screen encircles the center. Climbing up we pass in. There at our feet in the darkness, lies a great naked, black rock. A sinister looking rock! If only this rock could talk, I thought! History records that it is a part of the threshing floor bought by David from Araunah the Jebusite. It also, in Solomon's temple, and the later Temple of Herod the Great, supported the Ark of the Covenant, holy of holies of the Jews. This has vanished. Destroyed possibly by Nebuchadnezzar. Or hidden away, say orthodox Jews, in a secret cavern of the rock. Arabs refuse to allow any digging under here. Did not Mahomet rise to heaven from the rock on his winged steed Lightning. And Abraham was ready to sacrifice Isaac on it.

The rock remains, inscrutable.

Scene Today Much That Which David Viewed.

Out in the open, an octagon of slender marble pilars, and floor. At one side a marble niche and seat. Here King David sat in judgment, in the same dazzling scene. Same swarthy populace, muffled in long robes. Same Mount of Olives rising across the narrow valley of the Kedron.

Politically, Jerusalem is a hot spot with two burning questions: The war about to break in Abyssinia, and the terrible quarrel between the Arabs and the Jews, both descendants of Abraham. Ishmael and Jacob were their forbears. In high places I was given ample opportunity to hear the Arab side. These same powers, ever fair minded, steered me toward the constructive side of the Jewish problem.

Dr. Leo Kahn came to see me. Bursting with energy, red cheeked and bright eyed, he brought half a ton of printed matter, which afterward filled sixteen scrap baskets. He is from London and is political secretary of the Jewish agencies. I agreed to rush off with him to see what the Jews are doing in two of their colonies. We swung up in the mountains to the north. The noon heat was scorching as we hairpinned in bleak Judean valleys.

Jews Run Profitable Dairy Farm.

First we came to a convalescent home on a high hill, made blooming as a green bay tree. Water was being piped up in big mains and there were flowers, vegetables, groves of young pines. It was a coöperative place. The inmates were all subscribers. A few of the girls came out as a gong boomed. Up to date, in backless bathing suits. About 100 people of all ages, men and girls, were convalescing here.

We dashed over to Kiryath Annavim, the City of Grapes. Here was a model dairy farm going strong. Here also was the wilderness made to bloom, and there were great herds of black and white Dutch cattle. Seems the high altitude favors both dairy workers and their beasts. This dairy furnishes milk and cream to Jerusalem and this year had paid back $5,000 on its debt to the land fund. I saw a neat little schoolhouse, good gardens. Much impressed, I asked Dr. Kahn "How do these people get along with the Arabs?"

"Better," he said optimistically. "Jews have brought money into Palestine and are paying Arabs well to work for them. The Arabs then hire cheap Syrian labor for their own work. The country Arab likes the Jew. It is the political Arabs in town who make all the trouble."

Two Hundred Jewish Children from Germany Recent Arrivals.

It is the policy of the Jewish agencies to colonize Jews in the country and root them to the soil, so they will stick. Intensive cultivation of the soil, not extensive, is the idea. "And," continued Dr. Kahn, "the marvelous orange groves of Jaffa and the mixed farming around Nazareth, grapefruit, honey, cereals, vegetables are paying well."

Russian and Polish Jews are many in these farm colonies. Recently 2,000 German children came for colonization. Their parents are not yet able to afford the journey.

Of the Abyssinia war I heard plenty, lunching with the consul general of Italy, Mariano de Angelis, a smart, charming man. Seems that Arabs who have passion to expend over nothing at all are steaming up in sympathy with the dark races—are hinting at a black and white war!

Bus Trip to Damascus Stupefying Experience.

Well, everything comes to an end and one must tear away from Jerusalem, breeding place of prophets. And from the Jerusalems that lie underfoot; those of the gospels, of Hadrian, of Constantine, of Omar, of the Crusaders and Saladin. Of these fiery feuds of today, intolerance, violence.

I never heard of any one taking a train to Damascus. Only buses and motors. Red and blue omnibuses cover a network of routes. You can go from anywhere to anywhere if you have the price and stamina.

Seemingly these buses run full, heavy luggage atop and are extensively patronized by natives who push in with wives, children, birds, bundles, a cat, and a goatskin full of water. I met two English women who had done this trip in ten hours for 10 shillings and seemed slightly dazed with the adventure.

They left Damascus, however, by private car. It seemed to me that I talked to every Arab motorman in red tarboosh and clipped mustache in the world about a motor tour of Palestine and Syria. There is a close combine. In the end I had to pay 14 Palestinian pounds. So I picked the best car in Jerusalem and the best Arab chauffeur (a Christian) and one breezy Sunday afternoon set out over the Damascus road.

Speedometer Passes 100 on Damascus Road.

From start to finish this was one glorious Sunday school lesson. And a transit through terrain of fierce and indescribable beauty. Before we had gone far the chauffeur said that we would soon pass a better driver than himself and they would swap cars. I knew the other chauffeur and made no objections. Soon we met the other car and the chauffeurs, who were brothers, changed and we drove rapidly on again. Suddenly the new driver, while rushing through the "valley of the robbers," said that his passport was in the other car and that we must turn and pursue it. Anybody who fancies mathematics can figure how good the going was when we caught up with the passport in 10 kilometers. It was going fifty. My chauffeur confessed next day that we were doing better than a hundred.

From the pink, red, brown rocks of Judea we passed into the green, mountainous, rich province, Samaria. Perfectly beautiful are its towns and villages. The great plain of Esdralon, where millions of men have fought down the ages; Phœnicians, Romans, Assyrians, Greeks, hordes of Tamerlane, Crusaders, armies of Saladin, Germans in the last war, who used the field for aviation; British, in final victory.

Endor, City of Famed Witch, Brings a Shudder.

Endor, where Saul, the night before the battle, visited the witch. I shiver! The green plain of Zezrul, and a newly uncovered palace of King Ahab, where Mme. Jezebel lived and misbehaved.

A climb to Nazareth, lovely mountain town, white houses, many churches, and turn west towards the sea to pass the hot night on Mount Carmel, in a Carmelite monastery. The immensely wealthy Carmelites have had this hospice nearly a century, and nearly all the mountain.

There are many hospices in the Holy Land in strong competition with the hotels. Some people think the hospices are a racket. Their tarif is the same as the best hotels, and the fare is plain. At Mount Carmel the house was airy, large, among exotic flowers. The dining room was filled with wayfarers like ourselves. There was a tableful of nuns. The menu included a large carafe of topaz wine, which nobody drank, bean soup, weenies and salad, baked beans and meat scraps, watermelon, bread.

Our rooms overlooked the Mediterranean by moonlight and were full of salt breezes. And the bill next day was no higher than at the best hotels of Beirut and Damascus.

I had an appointment that morning in Haifa with the famous Keith-Roche, vice commissioner of Palestine. I wanted to apologize to him for not being on ships which he had met on our behalf, and for seeming generally tempeeamental and unreliable.

Well of Virgin in Nazareth Commands Awe.

But after seeing my face—on which mosquitoes had dined not wisely but too well—and after having breakfast on dry bread and a dark liquid called coffee, I decided to show the British vice commissioner of Palestine and Transjordania that I was still an elusive jade. So we dashed back to Nazareth. Here in the hills, Jesus spent his boyhood. In this changing world, here is life that does not change. In all the Christian shrines one is harried by postcard sellers and guides. Of a persistency! We left the old churches in despair and found peace by an ancient well, the only one in Nazareth. Here dark eyed young girls were filling jugs and balancing them on their lovely dark heads. "Well of the Virgins," said the chauffeur—"the only well in Nazareth. She must have come here for water." I was thrilled.

Just then some boys came up to the car. One of them, a slim boy of 12, ran to my window. He had a wonderful face, black lashed gray eyes, fine features, white teeth, white skin, straight little figure. He gave me an adorable smile, wanted nothing, was just friendly. Suddenly it came to me that the young boy Jesus might well have looked like him. Again something changeless in this changing world.

Ancient Church Marks Site of First Miracle.

Speeding in Galilee through orchards of pomegranates. Stopping awhile at Cana, scene of the first miracle, which is now a most ancient church, placed carefully on top of the stone floor where was held the Cana wedding feast. One looks down a hole whence might have come water that became wine. The old monk spouts English like a geyser.

We lunch on the lake of Galilee. Here way below sea level is a sea of turquoise blue, sparkling in the hot breeze. Across the lake are mountains of Gilead in a long, pale palisade. Dashing through the famous hospice, Tabgha, a veritable oasis of passion flowers, palms, pomegranates, heady jasmine, bougainvillæa. Right on the lake, in sight of the spot where happened the miracle of the five loaves and two small fishes. In sight of the spot where Jesus took ship and was followed round the end of the lake by multitudes.

Damascus a Blend of Beauty and Antiquity.

Damascus, according to the old Arabian poem, is "the mole on the cheek of beauty"—"the plumage on the peacock of paradise"—"the brilliant breast of the ring dove." Damascus is in the middle of a green oasis, of pomegranates and twenty different kinds of apricots. Damascus has seven rivers and every house has a fountain. Reputed, on sound authority, to be the oldest city in the world still inhabited. On the east, it has the Syrian desert. On the north it lies slanting upwards into the rosy lower reaches of the Ante-Lebanons, mountains of pink sandstone. Three hundred minarets beautify the city. We flew over the desert toward Damascus on a solitary road. Camel trains, lone Arab riders with guns crosswise on the saddle.

We ride into Damascus at eventide. On the outskirts, barracks, and in them immense numbers of newly arrived troops: Senegalese, Sudanese, other soldiers from French Indo-China. French officers are smart in khaki and red. Arabs are the regulars. The town is brilliantly lighted, lively. Men in red tarbooshes fill the coffee houses. There are trolley cars, smart looking motors.

Hotel Omayad is gay. One hears music again, a train of life, so different from pious Jerusalem. But underneath this gayety is a boundless religious fanaticism, almost sinister.

DEBUTANTES SOON OFF TO SCHOOL IN EAST

Miss Esther and Miss Elizabeth Buchen are the pretty and attractive debutante daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Buchen of Winnetka. They were presented to society at a tea at home on Sept. 7. Miss Esther is returning to Bryn Mawr this month for her sophomore year, and Miss Elizabeth will return to Pine Manor, where she, too, is a sophomore.

Etiquet Editor Recounts Table Setting Errors

Describes Common Faults Taboo in Arranging a Tasteful Dining Service.

By Helen Bartlett.

IS there a hostess who isn't vitally interested in any phase of table setting? We have on hand two little illustrated booklets, one on table setting and service for dinner, and the other on luncheons. If you will send us a stamped, self-addressed envelope we'll be happy to send you a copy. There is no charge other than the stamped envelope.

A few remarks might be appended to the information contained in these pamphlets, however, things to avoid doing rather than things to do. Among the taboos are toothpicks. Toothpicks never should be in evidence in the dining room, and certainly never should be used, even in the privacy of the family. If you absolutely feel the necessity of removing a piece of food from between your teeth do so where you won't be seen. And when the task is accomplished throw the toothpick away and don't dangle it from your mouth and gnaw on it for an hour afterward.

The old fashioned spoon trays seen on every table a number of years ago are now decidedly out of date. All the silver required for the meal should be properly set at the individual places, and then there will be no necessity of an extra supply of spoons.

The fashionable dinner table no longer permits the use of sauce dishes for vegetables. Any and all vegetables, except salad, should be served on the dinner plate. Napkin rings, too, are unknown on the well dressed table, and particularly so at company dinners. In large families, and in those of moderate means, rings sometimes are a necessity in helping to keep the laundry bills down, and the napkins as clean and unrumpled as possible. But, as I said before, they should not be used when outsiders are present.

Table decorations are best limited to pieces of silver, such as candle sticks, a silver bowl, or a centerpiece of flowers or fruit. Efforts spent on trying to be original with paper nut cups, favors, and satin ribbons always are time wasted, except, perhaps, in the case of some children's parties. Tables always are more attractive, and certainly more dignified, if these bursts of creativeness are curbed or, at least, restrained.

It is, perhaps, needless to advise you of the fact that the bottles and jars in which pickles, jellies, and condiments are bought are not to be placed on the table. Instead, the contents should be removed to an attractive serving dish. The exception to this rule is that wines and some types of cheese are correctly served in their original containers.

While bread and butter plates are in perfectly good taste at a table set for luncheon, they rarely are seen at a correctly set dinner table, at least a fashionable dinner table. And they absolutely never are used at a formal dinner.

Without doubt the hunt will be one of the most unusual events undertaken recently by a woman's organization. Yesterday there were five contestants signed up to fly, and a number more is expected to enter the hunt today.

After luncheon at noon at the airport the squadron of planes will take off promptly at 1 o'clock. In search of the treasure the women flyers will land at six airports including Sky Harbor, Pal-Waukee, Ashburn, Elmhurst, Ford, and Stinson.

Trophies to Be Presented on Return to the Airport.

The return to Curtiss-Reynolds is scheduled for 3:30 o'clock, when trophies will be presented to the winners. During the two hours and a half that the flyers will be absent from the home port a program has been arranged for the entertainment of the spectators. The army and navy will put on an exhibition of parachute jumping, under the direction of Lieut. Verne Stewart and John Wickum who conduct the parachute school at Curtiss-Reynolds. There will be miniature balloon racing, the demonstration of various types of ships, and a free-for-all model airplane contest.

Miss Marguerite Greene of the bureau of air commerce and Illinois governor of the Women's National Aeronautical association, is in charge of mapping the course to be flown. She also is director of the ground crew to be stationed at each of the airports.

Mrs. Schuyler B. Terry, president of the Chicago unit of the Aeronautical association, will be hostess at the luncheon, together with Mrs. George Meyer of Winnetka and Miss Mary Sim.

Odd Fellows and Rebekahs Convening in Atlantic City.

Miss Flora E. Sheets, past president of the Rebekah Assembly of Illinois and secretary of the educational foundation work of Odd Fellowship, is in Atlantic City today for the opening of the 111th annual convention of the Odd Fellows and their feminine affiliates, the Rebekahs.

Miss Sheets is to contribute a part to the convention program, for on Thursday she will preside over the educational conferences with Miss Harriet P. Reeves of Wellesley, Mass., a past president of the Massachusetts Rebekahs.

Organization of Rebekahs Is Widespread and Active.

It is interesting to note that there are 761,000 Rebekahs in the United States organized in 27,600 lodges. There also are 175 Theta Rho clubs for junior girls. These women help to support 65 homes and orphanages, in which 6,052 aged and infirm members of the order and orphans of members are cared for. It is estimated that these homes have a present value of $16,000,000.

One of the most recent activities of the order was the establishment of an educational foundation fund from which loans are made to the sons and daughters of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs that they may attend college. This fund was started eight years ago, and since that time 301 loans have been made, amounting to $68,000.

The program of events for the convention begins with a church service this evening, followed by a reception and welcome by the mayor of Atlantic City tomorrow. There will be a banquet tomorrow evening at which the delegates will be addressed by Gov. One of the principal speeches of the convention will be delivered Tuesday evening by U. S. Senator M. M. Logan of Bowling Green, Ky., a past presiding officer of the Order of Odd Fellows.
Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey.

A. R. Miss Irene Jean Crandall, a member of the organization and an author and playwright, has written a sketch called "The Makers of the Constitution," which is to be given between 12:30 and 12:45 over WBBM. Miss Crandall is remembered for her pageant, "The Romance of Fort Dearborn," which was produced at the Illinois Host House during A Century of Progress.

While in Chicago Mrs. Becker is to be the house guest of Mrs. Vinton Earl Sisson at her Winnetka home. Mrs. E. Julius Albrecht, fourth division director, is in charge of the luncheon arrangements.

Mrs. Samuel James Campbell of Mount Carroll, state regent of the D. A. R., will preside Sept. 25 at the annual meeting of the Fourth division at 10 o'clock at the Aurora Woman's club.

Leader of Polish Women's Alliance a Goodwill Worker

THERE is nothing strange about the fact that Emily Napieralski never had a doll when she was a little girl in pigtails. Neither is there anything strange about the fact that she received the "History of Poland" for her 5th birthday.

MISS EMILY NAPIERALSKI.

Born on Ashland avenue, the daughter of parents of a high social order in Poland, she was reared according to the best Polish and American traditions. Even as a baby she was impressed with a feeling of responsibility toward her American playmates and her Polish cousins.

Little wonder then that of recent years Miss Napieralski has been called a Joan of Arc among her people; has been linked in her peace interests with the late Jane Addams. The good will feelings and responsibilities she had as a little girl have found their real expression in the Polish Women's alliance, of which she is the president. For the last thirty years she has been identified with every movement that has concerned Polish-American relations.

The greatest good the alliance can do, she believes, is to acquaint Americans with Poles, Poles with Americans. The Americans have vigor, aggressiveness, spirit, she points out, while the Poles continue in the glow of an ancient culture. "The two peoples can do much for one another," she says.

Also through the alliance Miss Napieralski believes that she and her staf must strive for the general uplift of Chicago's Polish women. She's never too busy to counsel with these women, to give them a friendly hand. They appreciate this spirit and love and respect their leader in return.

The meeting ground for this work is the gray stone building of the alliance at 1309 North Milwaukee avenue. Between this address and Hinsdale, where she lives with her mother, Miss Napieralski commutes daily. Once in a while she makes a trip to Europe, but then it usually is because she has work to do abroad or a decoration to receive.

New Debs and Beaux Neglect Social Graces

Observers Find Them Arrogant or Indifferent Toward Their Hosts.

By Judith Cass.

BEING in town is great fun at this time of year and one is glad to see every one. Absence must make the heart grow fonder. New fall clothes are beginning to appear, although some independent women who care more for comfort than for style are still wearing their summer outfits. Not the youngest and newest members of adult society, however, for they all have new and extremely smart autumn ensembles in which to start the debutante season. This year's buds seem even younger than those of any other year, but of course they aren't. It is just that this chronicler of society news is older each year.

It isn't just because of this, though, that I feel that some of the young women entering society and most of the young men who are their escorts haven't learned as much as they should have about good manners, for my opinion is shared by many who aren't much older than the debs.

"It is because they haven't spent enough time with their mothers and fathers that the very young men and women are so gauche and so inconsiderate of older people," remarked one wise young woman who herself was a debutante just a year or two ago.

Modern Education Keeps Child Too Much Away from Home.

Perhaps she is right. What with nursery schools, kindergartens, boarding schools or day schools, and summer camps, the children of well-to-do parents do not spend much time at home any more. As excellent as schools and camps may be, they all must, because of their nature, make the child the pivot of all activity. And the so-called modern educational institutions go far in developing the child's natural ego and sense of his great importance in the universe.

Whatever the cause, one has only to attend a few debut parties to know that most of the very young women and men of society have not learned how to behave when they are guests. At a recent tea-dance—a lovely and unusual party, by the way—it was noticeable how lax the young men were in greeting their host and hostess. Few of them introduced themselves to those whose hospitality they were enjoying and "Huh" was what their "how-do-you-dos" sounded like. On the whole the girls' manners were better, but they, too. for the most part, acted as if they were conferring a favor by being there instead of vice versa. Perhaps that is the way they feel, but if it is they are stupid young people, for it is only the exceptional person, one of great charm or wit or beauty, who manages to go through life successfully with bad manners. Good manners are not old fashioned, they never will be, although they are becoming extinct, perhaps, especially in young society.

Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman Soon to Return to City.

To go from one extreme to the other: It won't be long before two of our most gracious and mannerly dowagers will be back in town. Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman, who has been spending the summer as usual in her beloved Santa Barbara, will be back in her apartment at the Ambassador East on Oct. 1, and Mrs. Arthur Meeker, with Mr. Meeker, will be back from their home in the same beautiful California place shortly after that. Their son, Arthur Jr., who has been enjoying the summer abroad, resting and writing in his favorite Alpine retreat in Switzerland, and hearing opera in Munich, will not arrive at home until the middle of October.

Young Mr. Meeker spent a week in Munich with Miss Peggy Hambleton and her sister, Mrs. F. Stanley Rickcords, and the latter's subdeb daughter, Anne. The former crown prince of Germany was staying at the same hotel, and a friend tells me Mr. Meeker and Miss Hambleton became quite well acquainted with him. Mrs. Rickcords, Anne, and Miss Hambleton will arrive in Chicago about Sept. 27.

Chicagoans Leaving Resorts in East and West.

The Walter R. Kirks are back from a summer in Santa Barbara and are at the Ambassador temporarily while they are furnishing their new apartment at 1500 Lake Shore drive. Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr., who returned not long ago from six weeks in England, is at her Ipswich, Mass., residence, Castle hill, to remain until November. Mrs. Crane's sister, Mrs. Joseph M. Patterson, will keep open her country place, Westwood, in Libertyville, until November also.

The John Alden Carpenters are lingering on in the house that they have had this summer at Pride's Crossing on Massachusetts' fashionable north shore. It probably will be after Oct. 15 when they return to their Lake Shore drive mansion. The Heyliger de Windts will return to their pleasant Winnetka home on Tuesday from Nantucket.

AIDS PLANS FOR JUNIOR LEAGUE BENEFIT

Miss Peggy Wiley, along with all the other active Chicago Junior league members, is busy making plans and selling tickets for the mammoth benefit the league will hold on Oct. 4. The league will take over the Drake for that day and an elaborate program is being planned to entertain those who attend the league's "Open House." The league will receive a percentage of the receipts that day, which will go toward its charity budget of more than $15,000, dispensed annually to recognized agencies in the Chicago district.

Gotham Gives Society a Gay Homecoming

Refurbished Night Clubs Insure Smart Set Against Post-Vacation Boredom.

By Nancy Randolph.

NEW YORK

Park avenue is beginning to roll itself out of moth balls. The Four Hundred's trek homeward from the four corners of the earth is almost complete. It doesn't take the night spots long to pick up their cues when society gets back to town. Even at this early date the Vere de Veres and the Astorbilts can find ways and means of keeping from being bored at any of a dozen fashionable rendezvous recently reopened for the fall rush.

Mon Paris unlatched its doors on East 53d street last week, displaying a nice new coat of paint. The proper mixture of Broadway and Park avenue managed to extend the Thursday night première at Mon Paris well into Friday morning.

Those who contributed to the gayety included jolly Mary Brown Warburton and Charlie Le Maire, the Frederick Sears, the junior William K. Taylors, Johnny Burke and Harold Spina, de luxe song writers; Russell Patterson, ace fashion artist; the Eddie Kniffins, and Jimmy Rogers, who's been engaged by the management to regale the customers with his amusing, sophisticated songs.

The Central Park Casino had its early fall opening simultaneously with that of Mon Paris. It was attended by such veteran round-the-towners as the Julien Chaqueneaus, Jean Edwards, the John Livingston Thomases, and the Frederick K. Barbours.

Everybody's looking forward to the grand opening of the Opera club come Thursday evening. The Opera club has more tradition to back it up than a sturdy colonial family tree. By any other name it's the old Embassy club on East 57th street, which has had the financial jitters since the end of good old days when only the Best People dared cross its elegant threshold.

Gil Boag and Jimmie Thompson, who've been partners in some of the biggest and best night club ventures in this country for the last quarter of a century, will be the major domos of the new Opera club. The jovial Gil is the man in charge and Jimmie is the big financial gun behind the scenes.

Not a single vestige of the old Embassy club remains. Indirect lighting, gun metal bar, pink glass mirrors, and white lether upholstery will replace the heavy, elaborate trappings of yore.

Howard Hughes and his new 350 mile per hour plane have been overhauled by Cupid. Society has been holding on to its hat since it learned a few days ago that the 30 year old multi-millionaire oil man, aviation enthusiast, motion picture producer, and playboy will wed Ruth Moffett, the 15 year old daughter of James A. Moffett, vice president in a nationally famous oil firm and former federal housing commissioner.

The news leaked out when Ruth, an extraordinarily pretty girl, confided to friends at East Hampton, where the Moffetts have a summer home, that she and Howard had virtually completed arrangements for a wedding, probably in October and certainly no later than January.

That a mere school girl should be on the verge of capturing the elusive Howard is flabbergasting both Park avenue and Broadway.

Heretofore the Hughes romances have revolved around both society and screen celebrities. The first to make the headlines concerned Billie Dove. She was under contract to the Hughes movie organization after Howard went to Hollywood less than a decade ago and astounded the industry by sinking $4,000,000 on the production of "Hell's Angels"—and then making some $2,000,000.

Lillian Bond, another cinema actress, claimed the Wonder Boy's attentions after Miss Dove. Then he came east, and for a year after Timmie Lansing's debut in 1931 the night club crowd was betting 10 to 1 that she and Howard would marry. But that didn't happen, and the dynamic daughter of the Cleveland C. Lansings is now the bride of Peter Arno,

Finger this amazing little newcomer among corsets, and you'll say there's nothing like it! But pull it between your hands and you'll begin to appreciate the strength and power of those Lastex threads, woven into a two-way mesh so soft you can crumple the whole garment in your fist like a handkerchief!
The heaviest elastic made has no more persuasive way with the female form than this silken snare; yet no corset could be lighter, softer to the skin, less detectable under fitted gowns!
This Model $5. Others $5 to $25. At the Better Shops.

When Chicago Was Young

The Elegant Eighties

By Herma Clark.

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, March 13, 1886.

DEAR Julia: Do you get tired planning meals for your household? This spring I seem to have the greatest difficulty getting the right viands for my family. Will's appetite isn't good, and I have to think of delicacies for him . . . to get up meals that are a little out of the ordinary in order to tempt his palate. Yet he often leaves food untouched on his plate. So I was glad yesterday to find a list of menus in a morning paper and to use one today for breakfast. I followed it exactly. It was:

Oatmeal
Fricassee of Chicken — Boiled Eggs
Baked Potatoes — Rolls
Griddle Cakes — Coffee

Will ate the chicken pretty well and took most of his dish of oatmeal and a few griddle cakes, but wouldn't eat even a bite of his baked potato. I must have him see Sandy this week for an examination.

What do you think of Mrs. James Brown Potter's reciting "Ostler Joe" at the Whitney's reception in Washington? I imagine you feel as I do that a fallen woman is not a proper subject for a poem to be read aloud in a company of both men and women. Washington society is coming in for a good deal of criticism, isn't it? What with its décolleté gowns and Sunday receptions. I was brought up strictly, as you know, in the matter of Sunday-keeping and we never had company on that day . . . at least, company that was invited for pleasure. Of course we often had family gatherings. That sentence would make Will laugh at me, but you know what I mean.

Will is reading a book by Bill Nye, the humorist, and has just interrupted to share a page with me. Will thinks this western jester is truly amusing . . . that he doesn't have to try so hard as do many allegedly funny writers. The page Will read to me is one containing a letter Bill Nye wrote to the postmaster general, on being appointed postmaster at Laramie, Wyo. It is said that this made the humorist's fame.

Mrs. James Brown Potter (Cora Urquhart), actress and beauty of the 80's, is the mother of Mrs. Fowler McCormick of Chicago.

Under date of Aug. 9, 1882, he writes: "My dear General: I have received by telegraph the news of my nomination by the President and my confirmation by the senate as postmaster at Laramie, and wish to extend my thanks for the same. I have ordered an entirely new set of boxes and a postoffice outfit, including new corrugated cuspidors for the lady clerks. I look upon the appointment as a great triumph of eternal truth over error and wrong. It is one of the epochs, I may say, in the nation's march toward political purity and perfection. I do not know when I have noticed any stride in the affairs of state which so thoroughly impressed me with its wisdom.

"Now that we are co-workers in the same department, I trust you will not feel shy or backward in consulting me at any time relative to matters concerning postoffice affairs."

Isn't it ridiculous? He closes thus: "With profoundest regard, and a hearty endorsement of the policy of the President and senate, whatever it may be, I remain

Sincerely yours,
Bill Nye, P. M."

I don't believe he was postmaster at all, though I think he held some other offices in Laramie. Will thinks he really did get the appointment. He saw Bill Nye once, at the Grand Pacific hotel, and says he is tall and gaunt, and though in his thirties, is bald and solemn looking which makes him funnier than ordinary people. I'd like to hear him speak.

Now I must close. Much love, from MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOTNOTES.

Mrs. James Brown Potter, mother of Mrs. Fowler McCormick of Chicago, made a great stir, in the 80s, by reciting "Ostler Joe," though the poem would now be regarded as a bedtime story for children.

Edgar Wilson Nye [Bill Nye] made the town of Laramie, Wyo. famous with his humorous essays. He satisfied himself that he could "write up things that never occurred, with a masterly and graphic hand." He was born in Maine in 1850 and died in 1896.

Old Chicago Harthstones.

1935 South Michigan Avenue.

[Not exactly a "harthstone," the Calumet club was such a famous gathering place in its day that we are happy to print part of a delightful letter about it from Stanton M. Meyer, president of the company which now occupies the old building at 20th street and Michigan avenue.]

"Often working late of an evening, I can picture, beyond the closed doors of my office, the colorful ghosts and the bygone pageantry that peopled this old building in another era. And, as a constant reader of your Sunday feature, it occurred to me that perhaps others of your readers would like to know something about this famous old club which numbered among its membership so many pioneer Chicagoans.

"They just don't build buildings today as they did when the Calumet club was put up. The outside walls are three feet thick. The place is built like a fort. The ceilings on the first and second floors are fifteen feet high. Solid pillars and paneling of oak, the paneling quarter-sawed. Doors of the same material. Lavish ornament everywhere. In rehabilitating the building for commercial use, we have tried as much as possible to preserve the institutional dignity of the place, where it did not interfere with business.

"Back in the early 90's, when the building was put up, replacing an earlier structure that had been destroyed by fire, the Calumet club was in the center of the south side's finest residential district. The Pullmans, the Armours, the Fields, the Blairs, the Keeps, the Lowdens, the Otises, all lived a stone's throw away. The Calumet club was the center of their social lives. Many is the top hat that must have passed up the entrance stairway where errand boys and homegoing copywriters now tread. Many is the bottle of fine vintage wine that must have been stored in the great vaulted cellars, where now prosaic rolls of paper are kept.

"It was the automobile and the coming of the country club that wrote the doom of the Calumet club. People moved to Lake Forest and Winnetka and the old town clubs like the Calumet, the Lakeside, and the Standard, either went out of existence or moved downtown. But a building like this, no matter what its latter day uses, is bound to have a personality that cannot be effaced by such thinks as clicking typewriters and rows of steel filing cabinets."

Write us about any old house that interests you . . . either asking for its story or telling us about it. We shall be glad to hear from old members of the Calumet club. Address Herma Clark, care CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

War Clouds Fail to Keep Visitors Out of Europe

Chicagoans Continue Their Trek Eastward in the Face of the Ethiopian Trouble.

PROSPECTS of a war in Africa may have the league of nations all steamed up, but they are causing little alarm among travelers planning European sojourns.

The Conte Grande, which sailed yesterday for Mediterranean ports by way of Gibraltar, was heavily booked, with at least a dozen Chicagoans on its passenger list. Among them were Mrs. William F. Peter of Lake Forest and her three daughters, Sylvia, Phyllis, and Marion. Mrs. Peter and Marion will travel abroad until January, while Sylvia and Phyllis will spend the winter in school in Rome. Mrs. John S. Hummer of the Edgewater Beach hotel is going to Rome to visit her daughter, the wife of Capt. Sergio Giovanni. John Adams, the son of Mrs. Benjamin Adams of Evanston, also took the Conte Grande. He will attend the University of Rome.

Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Orschell sailed yesterday on the Lafayette to make a motor tour of England. Hugh Byfield, son of Ernest Byfield, left on the same ship to spend a year at Park Lodge in Pau, France. Mr. and Mrs. John E. Leish left on the Aquitania to spend a month touring the continent. They will return in October on the Normandie.

Starts on Trip Around the World.

When the Manhattan departed from New York Wednesday it carried Mr. and Mrs. K. E. Rodenberger and their son Kent Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Hugh W. Cureton, and Mr. and Mrs. John Mitchell. The Rodenbergers will remain in Paris until January, while Mr. and Mrs. Cureton plan to make a motor tour of France and Switzerland. Dr. A. A. Sinaiko of Madison, Wis., who sailed on the same ship, was beginning a journey to India, where he will spend four months in clinics and then continue on around the world. Edward F. Wilsey of Champaign, Ill., another Manhattan passenger, was leaving for Istanbul, where he is a professor of physics at Robert college.

DETOURS

By Frederic Babcock.

TRAVELING Chicagoans are getting hep to the fact that one of the best times in which to go places—whether on land or sea—is the season now setting in. Summer is the most popular time, but autumn is the most convenient and comfortable. Also, it's more economical. Steamship and hotel rates are down.

Summer induces laziness—a desire for rest. Autumn calls for action. In August many ocean voyagers pass up the deck games with the excuse that the weather's too hot or the sun too strong. In October it's a different story. The sea breezes have set in by that time, and there's not so much desire for taking life easy.

- In the fall the ships are not crowded. As a rule the lone traveler does not have to room with a stranger. He has his quarters to himself, with a privacy equal to that of home or hotel. In the "off" season strangers are not booked in the same room unless there is an unusual demand for accommodations.

For the health seekers and others wishing to gain the benefits of the sea air, autumn has it all over the other seasons. The air is the most invigorating then. The slower ships usually take a little more than seven days to cross the Atlantic, and the two weeks spent in going over and returning are enough for reconditioning almost any one.

- It's a similar story in the areas north of Chicago. Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota, and Canada are now at their best. The woods are becoming riots of crimson, orange, gold, and green. The days are cool. The insect pests have vanished. It is the season for the poet, the artist, the philosopher, as well as for the outdoors man.

All across Canada this year there is a plentiful supply of moose, deer, bear, waterfowl, and uplands birds. In the mountain sections of the west there are caribou, mountain goat, mountain sheep, and grizzly bear. The season is still open on many varieties of fish; the gray lake trout fishing is at its finest. The canoeist will find that the streams which were too low at midsummer are now maintaining a fairly constant level. The trafic on the railroads and highways is lighter and therefore less nerve racking.

Autumn is the time for travel.

Chester Gump of Chicago Turns Up in Yellowstone Park

YELLOWSTONE PARK, Wyo.—Park rangers do not make a practice of doubting the credibility of reports brought to them by Yellowstone park visitors, but every once in a while an incident taxes their gullibility.

Such an event occurred to Ranger Robert Beal of West Thumb station last week. A young chap rushed up to him at the station to report that he had lost a lether jacket at Old Faithful, and would the ranger call up and check to see if it could be found?

Ranger Beal said he would, and, reaching for his "lost and found" reports, he inquired the visitor's name.

"Chester Gump of Chicago," replied the young man. Whereupon Beal gave him a quizzical look and proceeded to call a halt to what he thought was a practical joke.

"I'm not a funny paper fan," replied Beal, "but I happen to know that Chester Gump is in the arctic."

"I don't know anything about Chester Gump of the arctic," replied the Chicagoan, "but I'm Chester Gump of 7537 Jackson boulevard, Forest Park, Ill., and I lost a lether jacket at Old Faithful."

Still a bit dubious, Beal resumed the proceedings, and the report was duly sent out to Old Faithful.

T. Hamano Takes Over N. Y. K. Chicago Office

T. HAMANO arrived in Chicago last week to become local representative of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha steamship lines. He succeeds T. Ohtsuka, who has been transferred to Yokohama office.

Three Exhibits Open 1935-36 Art Season

Dale Nichols, Francois Noga, Julius Moessel Offer Varied Work.

By Eleanor Jewett.

THREE interesting exhibitions, entirely different in character, introduce the 1935-'36 round of art shows to us. Dale Nichols, under the auspices of the All-Illinois Society of Fine Arts, is enjoying a one man exhibit of paintings in the Lord Nelson room, Drake hotel, during September. In the Allerton gallery François R. E. Noga is showing oils, pastels, water colors, and etchings. Julius Moessel has an impressive array of mural decorations on the walls of the Davis Store galleries.

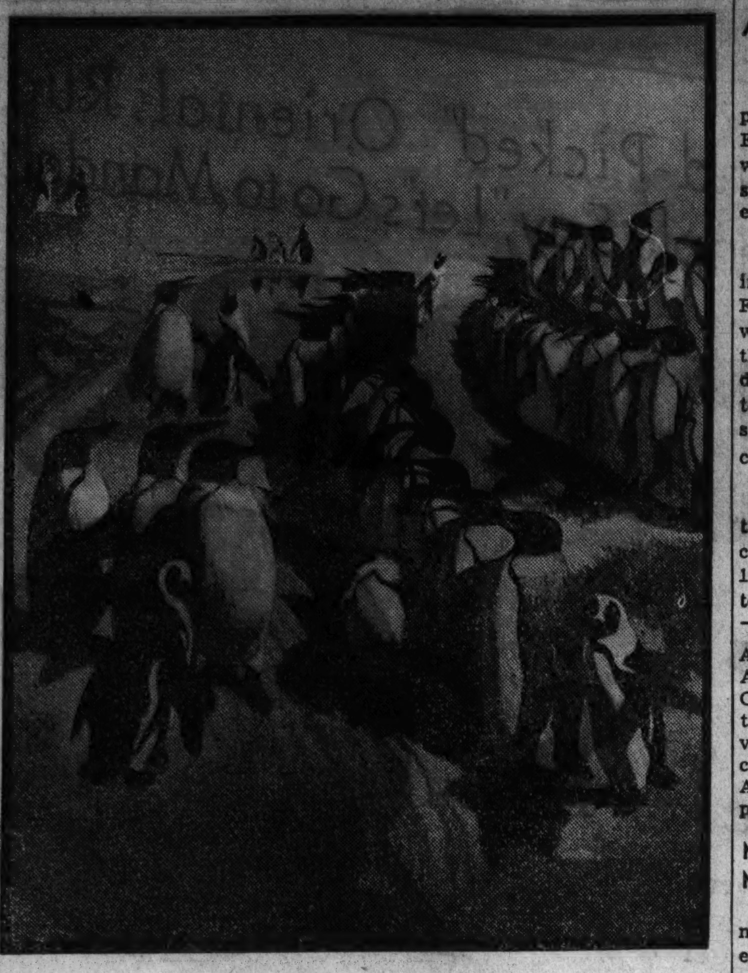
Mr. Nichols was in great part introduced to Chicago as a painter by the All-Illinois. Some two seasons ago he had a little exhibit in the Findlay gallery, but he barely brushed the surface of public attention until his pictures were thrust into the limelight as prize winners in an All-Illinois exhibition. Then we found him at the Art institute, and again now in full glory on his own at the Drake.

Nichols' Technique Resembles Grant Wood's.

Dale Nichols has a personal technique as marked as that of Grant Wood. His work is picturesque, vivid, stiff, varnished, and meticulously clean. He, like Grant Wood, has reduced landscape painting to a formula, but his favorite season is winter, while Mr. Wood pursues summer with enthusiasm. Grant Wood diversifies his landscapes with attractive figures and quaint, clear cut buildings; Mr. Nichols introduces a few figures [and these well done], but turns the most of his constructive genius to the task of depicting barns.

There is a slight flavor of Rockwell Kent about Dale Nichols' work, but chiefly it puts one in mind of Grant Wood. The Rockwell Kent influence is felt undoubtedly because a certain lonely splendor inhabits most of these canvases. One fears that the country which one knows could never live up to Mr. Nichols' theory of neatness and cleanliness, but it is comforting to have his representations as an ideal. Rockwell Kent is usually equally neat in his portraits of a countryside and, if the truth must out, so is Grant Wood.

Atmosphere Sometimes Overrides Precision.



MARCH OF THE PENGUINS

"Penguin Parade," by Julius Moessel, first shown in the Chicago galleries and followed now by a penguin screen in the artist's exhibit of mural paintings in the Davis Store Eighth Floor galleries.

However, infrequently atmosphere overrides precision in Mr. Nichols' painting. There is a tense moment in "Summer Showers" that gives one a thrill. An informality of manner increases the charm of "Sledging." "Valley Farm" is a pleasant place and "Spring Plowing" is a delightful composition. "Clean Dirt" labors under the handicap of a pink house, but it has a girl in the foreground who reminds one of the "Song of the Lark," and it has delightful trees and an earthy feel that make it one of the fascinating pictures of the show.

"Early Morn," "The End of the Hunt," and "Empty Handed" are three stunning winter landscapes, distinctive and impressive. One may laugh a little perhaps at Mr. Nichols' care to drop not even one grain of seed nor stalk of straw on the pattern of his snow, but when one has laughed one stays to admire his balance, rhythm, and color.

Noga Versatile in Technique.

François R. E. Noga is represented in the Allerton gallery by a delightfully varied group of work. His several oil paintings are impressionistic in manner, but not consistently so, for the large "Smoldering City" is straight story-telling with no romantic edges to its significant outlines. "Apple Blossoms" is a gentle impression, and the lilt of the trees in "The Old Colonial" marks that as one of the fine things in the show.

Two large pastels hold the attention. One is a fine portrait of a dog painted in an unusual pose, lying full length, head toward you. The other, "The Accordion Player," is a skilful and interesting figure.

But, after all, perhaps the greatest drawing card of this exhibit lies in the water colors. These are spirited, delicate, delightful, and intriguing. Again and again one is enthralled by their color. It hits with unerring precision the right note. Of them all the gem is "Flanagan's Log Cabin," but close upon its beauty tread "On the Edge of Lincoln Park," "Oriental Consistory," "Farm in Edgebrook," "The Abandoned Homestead," and "Early Spring in Michigan."

Mr. Noga is an alumnus of the Art institute school and a naturalized American citizen. He was born in Czechoslovakia. He has exhibited in the Corcoran gallery, the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, the Chicago Art institute, the University of Ann Arbor, and the Museum of Applied Arts, Minneapolis.

Moessel Shows Only Murals in New Exhibit.

Julius Moessel is well known to most Chicago art lovers through his exhibitions at the Chicago galleries, with the All-Illinois, and at the Art institute. His one man show in the Davis Store gallery during September introduces to us only one side of his many-sided genius. His ability as a mural painter is the theme of the exhibit. There is no more able craftsman than he in this particular field. His compositions are beautiful, balanced, effective, and enduring.

Various motifs have been developed in the different designs and each in turn is fascinating. Mr. Moessel plays with the centuries and gives us a suggestive page of the 17th century or the 18th century, or, quite casually and equally cleverly, a combination of Baroque and Japanese. He even, later on, unleashes a sense of humor and presents us with a map of Paradise—"God's Own Country," complete with Adam and Eve, the tree, the guardian angels, the lion and the lamb lying down together; a celestial map drawn with a wink, a twinkle, and a chuckle—and from here he runs fluently to maps of various other choice spots, Babylon, for instance, and the Land of the Pharaohs, and North America of 1805 and of 1690.

Of all these different conceptions for wall decorations the most fascinating are the three lovely "Silverscreens" [in one are the penguins] and the richly decorative and beautifully modulated "Still Life in 17th Century Effect," flowers and birds in gorgeous array.

ART NOTES

Berenice Newman, under the auspices of the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts, will follow Dale Nichols with a one man show of her beautiful still life paintings at the Drake. Her exhibit will open Oct. 7.

Oskar Gross has been vacationing in the dune country not far from Frank V. Dudley. He and Mr. Dudley will exhibit their recent paintings at the Chicago galleries about the middle of March. Mr. Gross is planning to open a second studio, where his students may work with weekly criticisms to guide them.

The tenth annual exhibition by artist members of the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts will open Nov. 16 in the Stevens hotel and continue to Jan. 31, 1936.

Hangchow Hills Filled with Caves and Captivation

Traveler Is Inspired by Trip Through Quaint Mountain Villages of China.

By Mason Warner.

HANGCHOW, China.—If a traveler enjoys lakes and mountains, pools and running brooks, gorgeous temples, and sacred caves, he may spend several happy days in the Hangchow hills. The scene changes constantly and never repeats, and each new aspect is more interesting and inspiring than the preceding one.

I walked and rickshawed through the hills, following the stone flagging and brick walks that thread through China in cobweb figures, only more intricate and complex because of the twistings and turnings. I traveled more than twenty miles one day, and every foot of the way was captivating. I passed through ten or twelve mountain villages, so-called—some of them only groups of twenty or thirty open front houses piled against one another at the sides of the path.

No two of the villages were alike. In some, every house was an open front restaurant, the entire village devoting itself to feeding the multitude, although there was no multitude in sight, and it was a mystery whence came sufficient patronage to support them all.

Uncultivated Areas in Starving Land.

Other villages were given over to tea gathering, drying, packaging, and selling. The Hangchow district is noted for the fine quality of its tea, but the tea gardens are not so meticulously cultivated as they are in Japan. The majority of them were only small patches of ground approximately 100 by 60 or 80 feet. The plants were uneven and straggly, with leaves of various sizes and ages.

In the gardens were groups of men, women, and children picking the young and tender leaves. In the baskets of the pickers I could see only leaves of uniform size, shape, and color, indicating that the trained eyes and skilled fingers were 100 per cent perfect in selection.

There were only a few rice paddies in the hills and these were in valleys where they could be flooded. Much rice land was uncultivated—and this in starving China.

Mountain streams were numerous. They flowed over the narrow stone or brick walks at a ratio of four or five to the mile, but only of shoetop depth over the walks.

Some tea gardens were on terraces on the sides of hills, but there were no terraced rice paddies as there are in the Philippines or in the East Indies. It seemed to me as if the Malayans could produce four or five times the food the Chinese get out of the land around Hangchow. And yet I have arrived at the conclusion that the Chinese really know a lot about China.

Families Form Whole Processions.

There were many people going about on the paths in the hills. Of course, all Chinese. So far as I know, there is no foreign colony in Hangchow, and only a few tourists at the only two hotels where foreigners stop. Yet native travel was so heavy that in the hills far from the city, wherever two paths cross, there were rickshaws and sedan chairs awaiting fares.

When you meet a Chinese family on a trip to temple or town you meet quite a procession. Father has his sedan chair, mother hers, and each of three or four children has his or her own. There are three bearers for each chair—one a relief man who steps in and out of the shafts as easily and deftly as a chicken picks up corn.

I was surprised to encounter long files of Chinese school children visiting the temples and sacred caves. Nowhere else in China did I see any evidence of interest on the part of groups of natives in places of historical or religious significance. But the Chinese children devoted themselves to having a good time—running about, shouting, pushing, and boisterously conducting themselves generally, instead of listening with rapt attention to priest or preceptor, as the Japanese children do.

Some of the hill villages were grouped around the great temples that bring glory and renown to Hangchow. The monastery of Ling Yin is a beautiful and tremendous aggregation of temples and halls. Buddhist services are conducted by more than 100 monks in unison, singing, chanting, and praying to the accompaniment of slowly beaten gongs, bells, and strange instruments, low and melodious in tone—the whole producing a soothing effect of tranquility and calm.

There are several colossal Buddhas in Ling Yin and many altars with representations of the finest art in carving in China. Back of one great Buddha is a huge work in metal and plaster at least 20 feet high and 100 feet wide. It is neither a screen nor a mural; nor can it correctly be called statuary in bas-relief. It represents the goddess of mercy acting for the goddess of the sea. She protects those who cross the sea, because she stands on a crocodile, which, if he could get free, would overturn the deeps and drown all on sea and land.

Italy Cuts Cost of Travel There

CAPT. G. MAGGINI, Chicago delegate of the Italian Tourist Information office, was notified yesterday of drastic reduction in hotel rates and in the price of gasoline in Italy. The reductions are available to all tourists through the purchase of newly created coupons. In addition, holders of hotel coupons are accorded a 70 per cent cut in first class railway fares throughout the country. The pasteboards are to be sold by travel agents in the United States. The result of the combined savings is the lowest travel cost in Italy since the world war.

American Social Leaders in Paris Turn Homeward

Many Loitering for Last Pleasant Days; McCunes Linger at Old Chateau.

By May Birkhead.

This is the time when American homing birds wing their flight, metaphorically speaking, toward the west, instead of from north to south, like the feathered creatures that fly toward the sun with the approach of winter. Recent days in France have been so summery that many of the migrants would like to prolong their stay, but the call to activity in the homeland is imperious. The other day we saw two well known Chicagoans who were basking, not exactly in the sunshine, but under the orange awning that tempered the warm rays on the 18th century landscape surrounding the Château du Haut-Buc, near Versailles. This property was acquired several years ago by Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McCune, who have been identified with the American colony here for the last decade.

Exterior Charm Preserved While Interior Is Modernized.

They have shown, as have others of our compatriots, how attractive a French château can be when all its exterior charm is preserved, and at the same time the interior is equipped with all modern devices for comfort. Nothing of its old régime cachet has been lost. The principal salon, and the passage leading to it, are richly adorned with cabinets and rich lacker which the McCunes picked up some years ago in China. Flowers always figure prominently in the decorative scheme, for the garden is rich in blossoms of many kinds and colors.

The jardin potager, or vegetable garden, contributes much to the delight of their American guests, for in the summer and early autumn they are regaled with that characteristic product of our soil, sweet corn; in this case, of the golden bantam variety, as yellow and as succulent as could be found anywhere within the borders of the U. S. A.

Salzburg Gives Mrs. Baur Ideas for Chicago Opera.

The road to Haut-Buc winds up from Versailles past an ancient aqueduct, not quite as early as the Romans, but rather of the days of Louis XIV. Mrs. Jacob Baur was one of the Chicagoans who came there lately. She had reached Paris only a few days earlier, and had been staying with her friend, Mrs. Charles Chadwick, at the latter's attractive hotel apartment. Mrs. Chadwick was also at the McCunes, and so was H. Gordon Selfridge, formerly of Chicago and now of London. He had been spending recent days at Deauville, where the cosmopolitan throng is inclined to linger. Mrs. Baur was delighted with her stay in Salzburg, where the music festival gave her suggestions for the coming opera season in Chicago. She is leaving for home as this is written. A few days ago the Comtesse de Gramedo, the former Ethel Spenser Brown of Chicago, gave a dinner for Mrs. Baur and Mrs. Chadwick at her residence in Neuilly.

Mrs. Paul J. Healy, who has been passing the summer at Deauville, is back at her apartment in Paris.

Mrs. James Field, who expects to return home in October, spent a few days in Paris, after prolonged travel on the continent, before returning to London.

Mrs. Frank Barrett Writes Her First Children's Book

MRS. FRANK BARRETT of Kenilworth, prominent North Shore Garden club member, returned last week from Trout Lake, Wis., to find her first juvenile book off the press. Mrs. Barrett has used a creative theme for the story, entitled "Buffin," which is in line with the work she has done in a garden way. Last spring Mrs. Barrett opened the Navy Pier flower show of the Illinois Garden club with a broadcast over THE TRIBUNE station, W-G-N. The broadcast was introduced as "And So Let Us Be Creative." She designed the New Orleans garden that was a prize winner at the flower show a few years ago. At the Horticultural building at A Century of Progress she did "Maxwell House" and "Snow Scene." All of the royalties from her new book will go to charity.

Rufus Daweses on Mississippi Cruise

MR. AND MRS. RUFUS DAWES, with Mr. Dawes' sister, Mrs. Mary L. Beach of Marietta, O., and Dr. and Mrs. William Allen Pusey left yesterday noon for St. Louis, where last evening they boarded the steamer Golden Eagle. With a party of fellow Chicagoans they are now on a week's cruise down the Mississippi, Ohio, and Tennessee rivers to Muscle Shoals, with visits to the historic back country towns en route. Many travelers relate that this is the best time of the year to make such a trip.

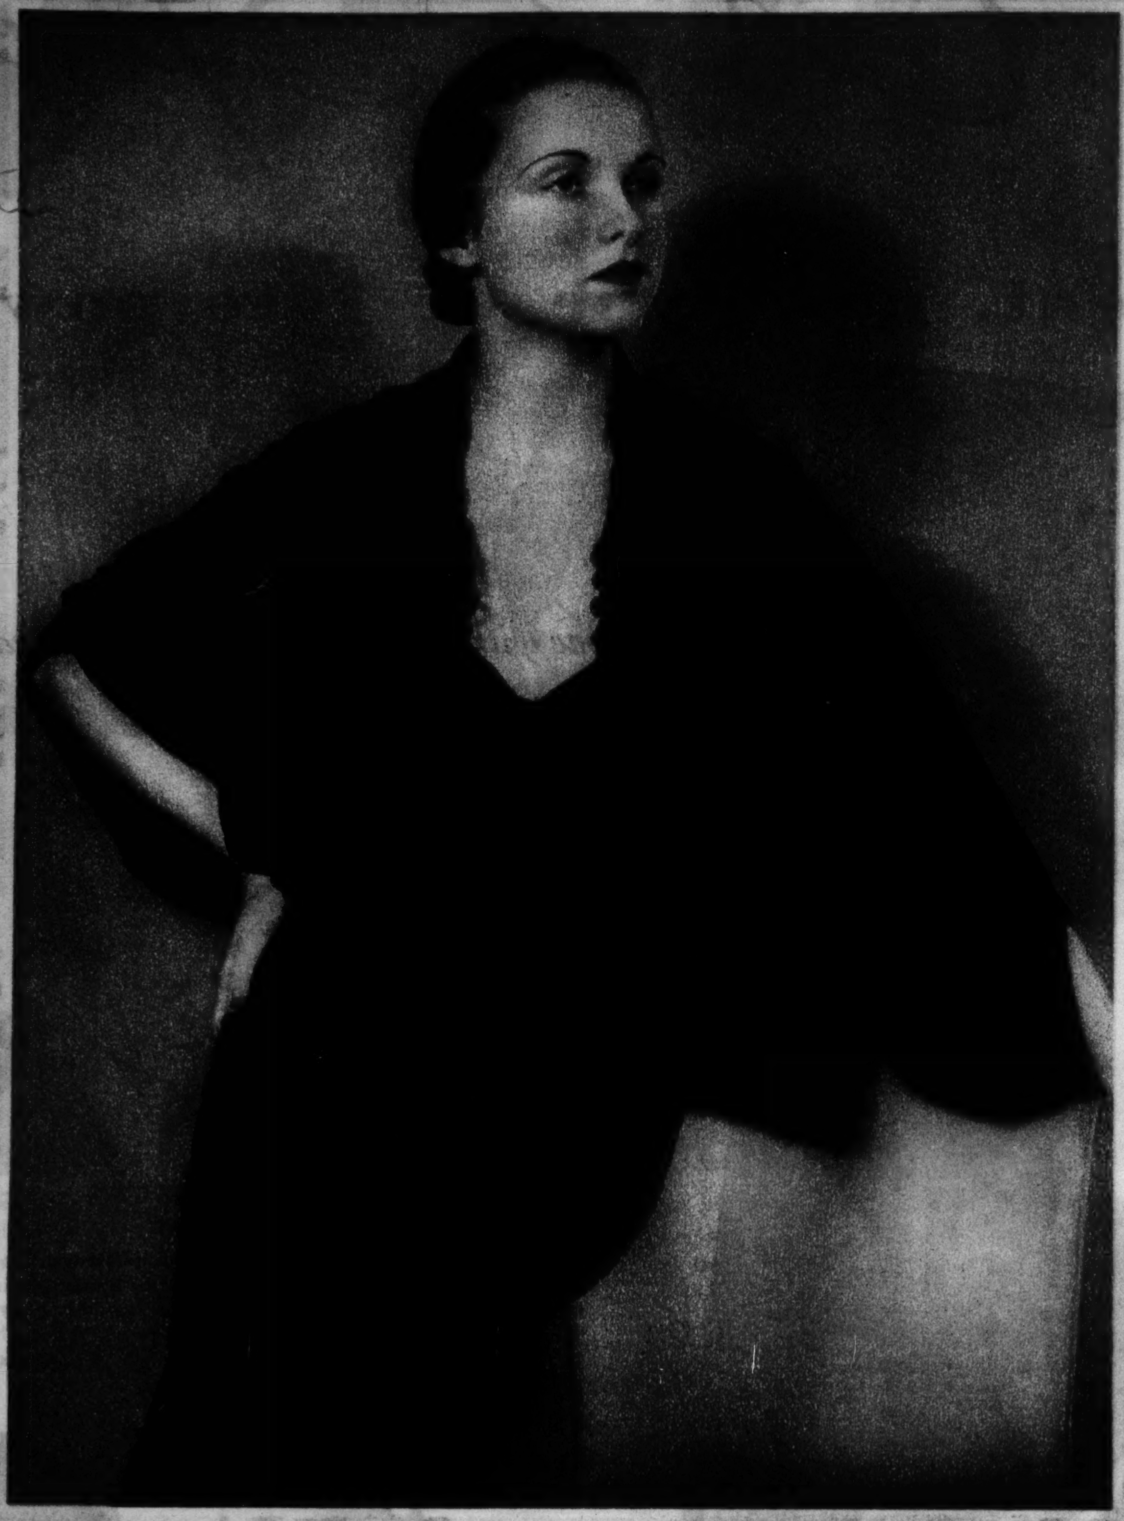
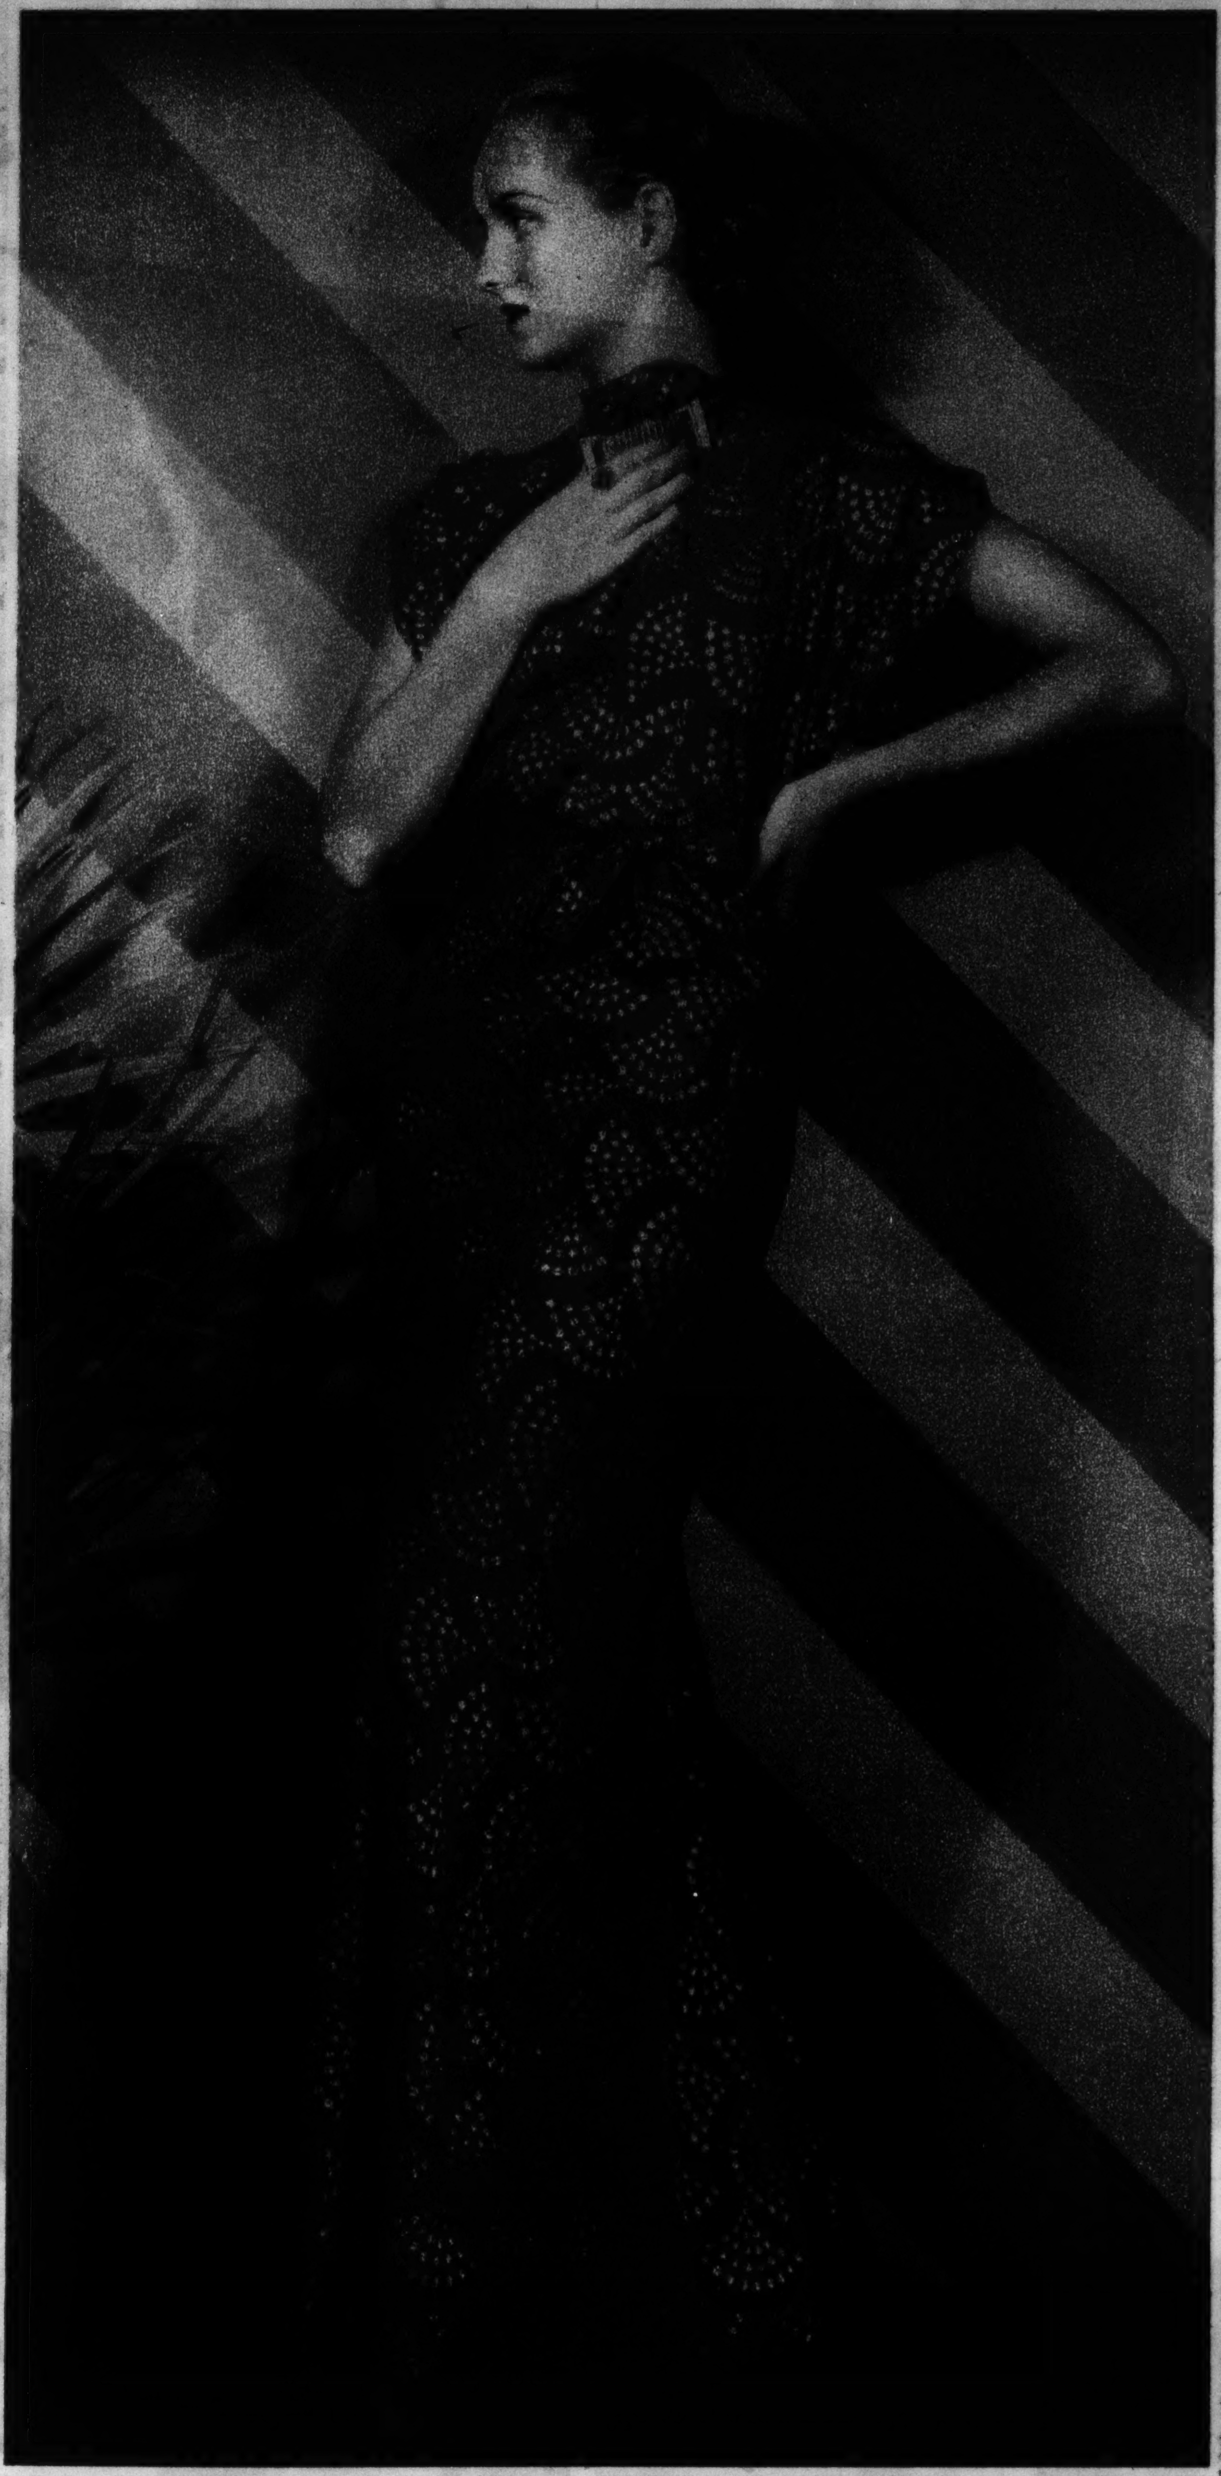
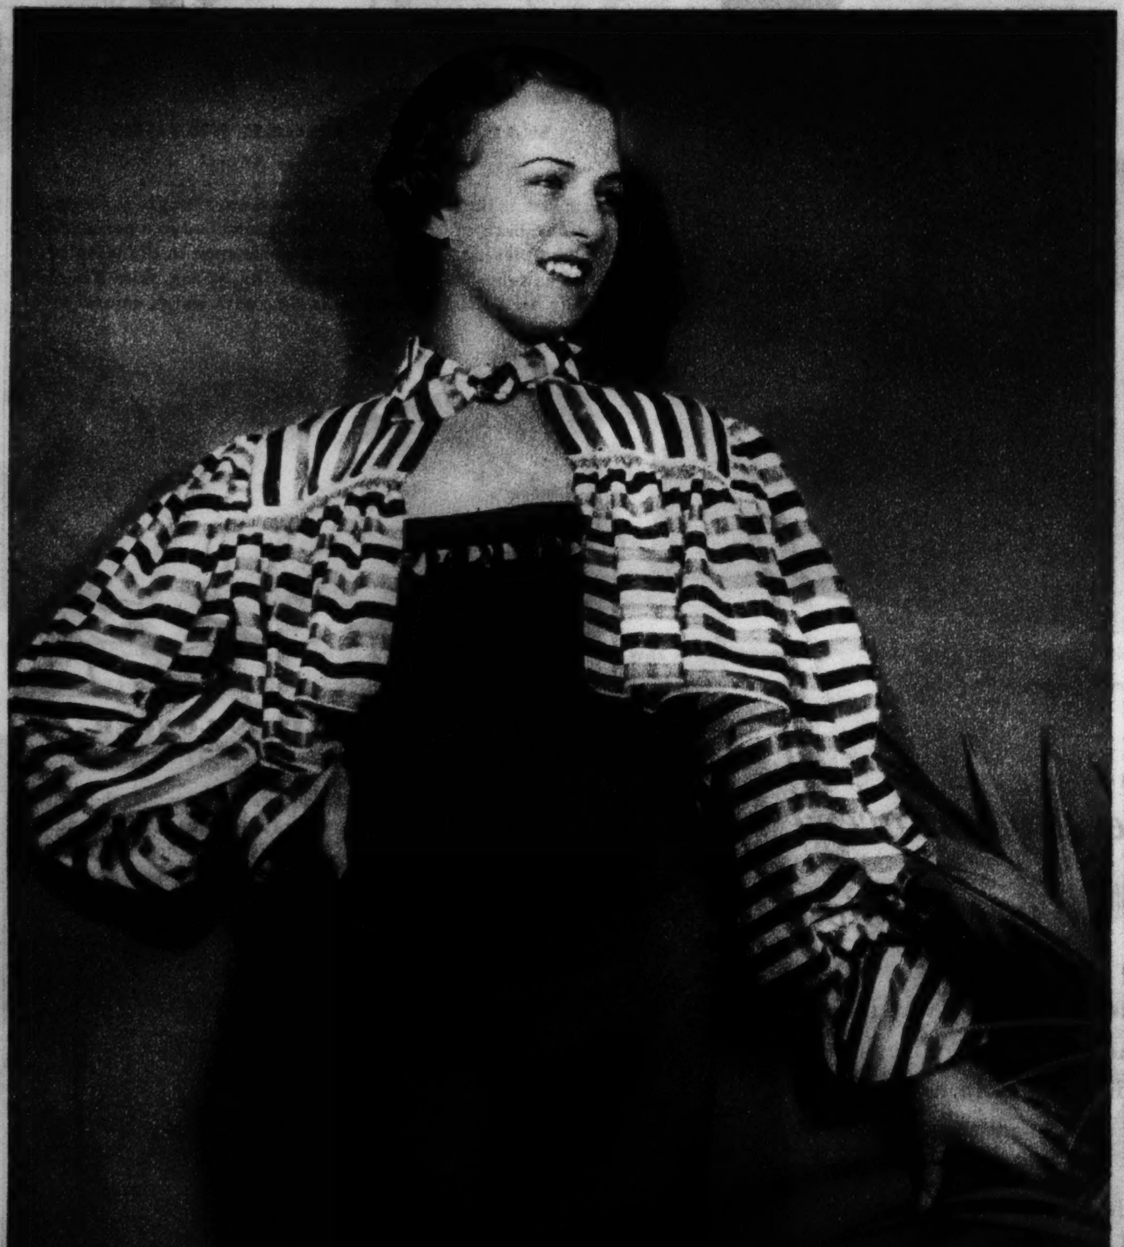
New Modes for Fall



EVENING ELEGANCE, as smooth and as suave as only clinging, lustrous velvet can be! The low cut gown is fashioned in clinging long lines, with shirrings down the front. The fitted jacket coat is cut with full sleeves that reach the wrists and is fastened with tiny covered round buttons of the velvet.



HIGH AND SWATHED AROUND THE FRONT NECKLINE, this glittering scarlet and metallic brocade evening gown uses the rich material alone for the effective long silhouette. Draped short sleeves, a cut-out backline, and a large metal throat pin accent the simplicity of this dramatic costume. A narrow tie belt holds it snugly.



DARING COMBINE of sleek fitted black satin gown with the contrast of a short, horizontally striped satin jacket. The long full sleeves match the ruffle of satin attached to the square cut yoke of the jacket, and the square cut satin gown is outlined with a tiny ruffled band of the striped satin.

Coty presents "Air Spun"

. . . a dramatically different, new type of face powder

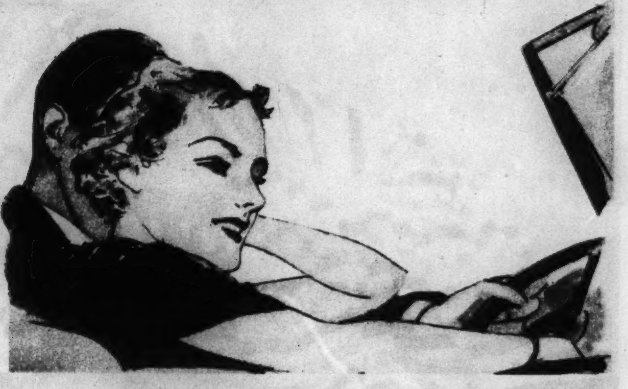
Come with Coty to A New World of Beauty!

NEW, TENDER TEXTURE
because it's Air Spun!

Just touch Air Spun Powder—and you feel the difference! The texture will thrill you . . . so tender and smooth, it seems twin to fresh young skin itself. Because it is so much smoother, Coty Air Spun Powder actually HUGS the skin. It lies even and flat. That's why it hides away little imperfections and tiny lines in your skin.

WARMER, YOUNGER SHADES
because it's Air Spun!

Here, at last, is the young quality you've always sought in face powder shades. Each of Coty's 12 shades is matched to a perfect, debutante complexion. The tints are then air spun in the powder . . . blended as subtly as the colors in a living, young skin! Thus, the new Coty Air Spun Powder seems alive with warm, natural tones.



LOYAL . . . IT CLINGS LONGER
because it's Air Spun!

It is a scientific fact that the smoother the powder, the better it "holds." Because Air Spun Powder is smoother it is "friendlier," as chemists say, to your skin. It clings long and faithfully, even when no foundation cream is used. With Coty Air Spun Powder you need not over-powder at first to avoid shine later.

SUBTLER FRAGRANCE
because it's Air Spun!

The famous Coty odeurs are now Air Spun through and through the powder. The result is a fragrance exquisitely subtle and delicate. Yet the scent lives on your skin as long as it is powdered, bringing you the constant delight of your favorite Coty fragrance. All world-loved Coty perfumes are available in Air Spun Powder.

From the ateliers which have given women so many great beauty discoveries comes a powder—many times softer—smoother—than could ever be made before!

A NEW FACE POWDER BY COTY! Just six simple words . . . but millions of women instantly will realize the dramatic importance of this news. For "Coty Powder" has for years meant the perfect beauty powder...adored by women for its flattering qualities...respected by chemists for its purity. And indeed no more exquisite a powder could be produced by any method known...up to this day.

But now from Coty ateliers comes a new, startling discovery . . . a new method of making powder . . . a completely different technique.

POWDER THAT IS AIR SPUN! Until now, powders were made by "mechanical methods," simply by grinding and sifting.

Now Coty goes far beyond that! Imagine a powder actually spun by air! Buffed by powerful currents at greater than cyclone speed! Swirled in a fantastic snowstorm! Driven and spun until each tiny particle is perfect. The result is a softness, a smoothness, a delicacy, never even approached by any other face powder . . .

SHADES AND TEXTURE . . . IMPROVED! Every way in which face powder flatters . . . the Air Spun method makes more flattering still! The texture is so tender and soft it seems twin to fresh young skin itself. The shades are warm, alive with vibrant color . . . color that's spun right through the heart of every tiny powder particle! The scents—those world-loved Coty odeurs—are subtler and longer living because they are air spun into the powder.

And what a loyal powder it is! Chemists say that the smoother air spun particles are "friendlier" to your skin . . . and so cling longer.

A NEW AND LARGER BOX—$1.00—Coty Air Spun Powder—in its famous odeurs, L'Origan, L'Aimant, "Paris" and Emeraude—comes in a new, larger box...almost half again as large...yet costing only $1.00. See the newest shades—"Soleil d'Or" and "Perle Rose."

Try Coty Air Spun Powder...and enter a new world of beauty!

WHY A CORN HURTS • A corn is hard, dead tissue with a sharp tack-like point. Shoe pressure forces the hard point deep into sensitive nerves sending pain throughout your system. That's why a corn seems to hurt "all over."

HOW TO STOP THE PAIN • Center the dainty soft felt Blue-Jay pad over the corn. Shoe pressure is lifted and pain ceases instantly. A special Wet-Pruf Adhesive strip, exclusive Blue-Jay feature, holds the pad securely in place. (Waterproof soft kid like finish—will not cling to stocking.)

HOW TO REMOVE THE CORN • For three days the mild Blue-Jay medication does the work. Take off pad—soak your foot in warm water—and easily lift the corn right out!

Blue-Jay is the modern scientific method of removing corns quickly, safely. Attacks only the corn. Will not injure live skin or flesh.

A COLLEGE PROFESSOR DISCOVERED

That Often It Isn't their Brains, but their Pens that Run Dry —Cause Failure—in Classes and Exams

So he invented this sacless Vacumatic, and Parker engineered it to perfection—gave it 102% more Ink Capacity—made its Ink Level VISIBLE, so it suddenly can't go empty!

Visible ink supply
Holds 102% more ink
medium or broad

A lovely, utterly new Style—rings of luminous Pearl laminated with transparent "Jet"—wholly exclusive because design patented

YES, a scientist at the University of Wisconsin was amazed to find how pens that suddenly run out of ink slow down classes, demoralize thinking, and bring marks that no student wants to write home about.

This led to the birth of the revolutionary Parker Vacumatic—the miracle pen that writes 12,000 words from a single filling—shows when it's running low—tells when to refill! As in college, so in business, too—if you can't see how much ink is in your pen, how can you tell that it won't fail you just at the wrong time!

Don't expose yourself to such calamities. Go to any good pen shop, department, stationery, jewelry or drug store and hold this shimmering laminated Pearl and Jet barrel to the light—see how the "Jet" rings become transparent—mysterious windows, that show the column of ink within.

But don't think that sacless pens containing squirt-gun pumps are like Parker's patented sacless Vacumatic. This new creation contains none of these. That's why it's GUARANTEED MECHANICALLY PERFECT!

Go and try writing two different ways with its Reversible Point—solid Gold combined with precious Platinum—skilfully fashioned to write on both sides—slightly turned up at the tip so it cannot scratch or drag, even under pressure!

Try this and you won't let an old pen impede your learning or earning another day. The Parker Pen Company, Janesville, Wisconsin.

Laminated Vacumatic Sets now come in PLASKON UTILITY CASE
for Cigarettes or Boudoir Trifles—included without charge

This smart innovation in packing the Parker Laminated Vacumatic Pen and Pencil Set adds exquisite charm to the Gift. And the Plaskon Utility Case is thoroughly useful, durable, and attractive as a permanent container for cigarettes; or for bobby pins, hairpins, etc. Choice of Brown or Black with Ivory lid.

NOTE: A remarkable Parker discovery now gives the world an ink—called Parker Quink—that cleanses a pen as it writes—a Parker Pen or any other. Two kinds—(1) PERMANENT Quink, for office records, (2) WASHABLE Quink, for home and school. Ask for Quink instead of ink, and your pen will work like a charm.

SHE cheats herself out of good times, good friends, good jobs—perhaps even out of a good marriage.

And all because she is careless! Or, unbelievable as it is, because she has never discovered this fact:

That socially refined people never welcome a girl who offends with the unpleasant odor of underarm perspiration on her person and clothing.

There's little excuse for it these days. For there's a quick, easy way to keep your underarms fresh, free from odor all day long. Mum!

It takes just half a minute to use Mum. And you can use it any time—even after you're dressed. It's harmless to clothing.

You can shave your underarms and use Mum at once. It's so soothing and cooling to the skin!

Always count on Mum to prevent the odor of underarm perspiration, without affecting perspiration itself. Don't cheat yourself! Get the daily Mum habit. Bristol-Myers, Inc., 75 West St., New York.

A MILLION MOTHERS AGREE

NEW WONDER BREAD

is richer in energy... higher in food value

it's best for your children!

YOU should hear the delighted comments of the million mothers who now serve the new Wonder Bread! Without exception these mothers agree that Wonder Bread brings children extra benefits that ordinary bread could never offer. And how the children love it!

"I knew it was far better the moment I saw it," one mother writes; "only bread of extraordinary goodness could have such perfect velvet-smooth texture!" Says another, "I know that Wonder Bread is really helping my children. And they like it so much they even eat it plain."

When you see how your children enjoy this bread and find how good it is for them, you'll agree that we are right in spending 17% extra for ingredients alone . . . and in choosing only the one best flour of 24 kinds available—pure heart-of-the-wheat-berry flour, richest in energy and nourishment.

As a mother you know how necessary milk proteins and milk minerals are to growing children. Wonder Bread has this body-building benefit in far greater quantity than ordinary bread.

You know how essential it is that children's food be easy to digest. Actual laboratory tests prove that slo-baking makes Wonder Bread far easier to digest than ordinary bread. Your children get more goodness from Wonder Bread . . . get it quicker and easier. And they eat more of it because it is so delicious.

Please don't let this advertisement slip your mind! Remember that Wonder Bread, with all its extra benefits, costs no more than ordinary bread. Serve it for 30 days and see how it helps your children. Look for Wonder Bread in the new air-tight wrapper with the red, yellow and blue balloon wrapper at your grocer's.
